"July 16, 1705. The Committees of the General Assembly upon the accounts of Cap<sup>t</sup> John Livingstone late Messenger to Quebeck, Reported the state thereof, whereby he falls indebted to the Province twenty two pounds three shillings and two pence, which was received, read and ordered a Copy to Captain Livingston if desired.

* Sic: Baptiste.

The said Committees upon the accompts of Mr John Shelden late Messenger with Capt<sup>o</sup> Livingstone to Quebeck and John Wells who attended them, Reported the state thereof, whereby there is due to the said Shelden for ballance, four pounds, nine shillings and two pence, and to the s<sup>d</sup> Wells for Ballance the sum of sixteen pounds, fifteen shill<sup>gs</sup> and ten pence, which were accepted. — And Advised and Consented That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the said several sums resting for ballance to the said Shelden & Wells respectively." — Ibid., p. 197.

The warrants drawn in conformity to these orders appear in the province treasurer's accounts* to have been duly paid.

In addition to the foregoing there are on record the following orders for warrants to the province treasurer to pay the Commissary-General for expenses incurred by the messengers for the subsistence and wages of sundry persons in Brookfield, Deerfield, and Hatfield (probably those who attended upon them as their escort), and for the entertainment of the messengers of Courtemanche, and of their attendants, while in the province on the business of the commission: —

"June 22, 1705. An Accompt current arising from three particular accompts examined by the Commissary General and lodged in his Office of sundry persons in the Town of Brookfield for Wages &c<sup>a</sup>, of sundry persons in the Town of Deerfield, and of Samuel Partridge Esq<sup>re</sup> Bill of Hatfield for Provisions &c<sup>a</sup> delivered, Capt<sup>o</sup> John Livingstone to Canada from October 20th to the 31st of January 1704 amounting to the sum of two hundred and eight pounds, eleven shill<sup>gs</sup> and two pence, was presented and read — And Advised and Consented, That a Warrant be made out thereon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Two hundred and eight pounds, eleven shillings and two pence to the s<sup>d</sup> Lieut Col<sup>o</sup> Partridge accordingly, on behalfe of himselfe and the other persons in the s<sup>d</sup> acct named." — Ibid., p. 183; and see Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 250.

"Sept. 20, 1705. An Accompt was presented by Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>re</sup> Commissary General of Expences by sundry persons for the entertainment of Capt<sup>o</sup> John Livingstone and Mr Shelden late Messengers to Quebeck, and of Mr Courtemanch late Agent from the Govern<sup>t</sup> of Canada about the Exchange of Prisoners, and his attendants during their being within this Province, amounting to ninety six pounds, fifteen shillings.

Advised and Ordered. That the Commissary Gen<sup>l</sup> do pay the several persons in the said account named what is respectively due to each of them accordingly; and also that he pay the sum of six pounds to Capt<sup>o</sup> John Ballentine for his service in his care and attendance on the said Mr Courtemanch dureing his abode here. And bring the said whole charge to the Province in his Accompt." — Ibid., p. 218.

The progress of the committee appointed by resolves, 1704-5, chapter 78, to dispose of the old Province Galley and build a new ship of war or galley for the province is thus reported in the Governor's speech to the Assembly at the opening of the first session this year (May 31, 1705): —

"... The Gentlemen of the Committee for the building of the new Province Galley will Acquaint you of their good proceeding in that Affair, the Galley being in all points fit for the Service, and now at Sea. . . ." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 28.

On the twenty-ninth, in the House, the foregoing account was read and approved, and this vote of approval appended to the account being concurred in, was recast by the Secretary, when he made up his records, into the form of this chapter and chapter 39, post. The first appropriation credited in the account was paid agreeably to the warrant issued upon the advice and consent of the Council, as follows, in which appear some particulars not elsewhere mentioned:—

"Dec. 13, 1704. The Committee appointed to Treat and agree for, and oversee the Building and fitting out a New Ship or Galley for the use of the Province, and to employ and lay out the money granted for that use, reported their contract with the Builder, viz for a Vessel of seventy two foot keele Twenty four foot Beam, nine foot and a halfe hold, with Eighteen Gun Ports, at the Rate of four pounds  $\Psi$  Tun, proposing that one foot more may be added to her breadth, and six inches to her depth.

Which Report was read and accepted, and the Committee are desired to proceed according to their proposal therein — And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the sum of Two thousand pounds, granted by the General Assembly for the building and fitting out a new Ship or Galley for the use of the Province, to Andrew Belcher and Samuel Legg Esq<sup>s</sup> two of the s<sup>d</sup> Committee, to be laid out and Employed accordingly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 126.

By the province treasurer's account* it appears that the above amonnt was paid. The balance of £378 14s. 5d. remaining due by the foregoing account was ordered to be paid in chapter 39, post.

The launching of the Galley and the prospective time of her beginning a cruise are thus announced in the News-Letter:—

"Boston, On Monday last [April 2] was Launched here, The Province Galley, who will be ready to Sail a Cruising in 4 or 5 days." — No. 51.

The executive records of the council contain the following entry of the appointment of a chaplain:—

"April 11, 1705. Advised. That Mr Peter Thacher Minister be employ'd as Chaplain on board the Province Galley." — Vol. 4, p. 165.

The workmen engaged on the new Galley were spurred to increased activity by a report that some fishing shallops had been chased into Cape Ann, and that a ketch starting on a voyage had put into Salem Harbor bringing the news that she had sighted two vessels off the coast, which were believed to be French privateers. These reports had been communicated to the Council by the Governor on the sixth, as appears by the following entry:—

“April 6, 1705. His Excellency Communicated to the Council a letter from Colonel Hathorne and another from Major Sewall of Salem, to acquaint his Excellency, that on the 2<sup>d</sup> current some Fishing shallops were chased by a vessel into Cape Anne; & that on the 4th current a Ketch bound out to sea, saw two Vessels lying by off Cape Ann and the wind coming contrary the said Ketch put into Salem, gave the information of the said two Vessels, which they could not make perfectly, the weather being Foggy, they fear they are French Privateers.

Advised. That a Well Sayleing Shallop, wth six Men and Oares be forthwith set out for a spye Boat, and to give notice to inward bound Vessels, and that the new Galley be equipped with all possible dispatch.” — Ibid., p. 163.

The order which constitutes this chapter originated in the House June 28, 1705. It was passed that day and sent to the Council for concurrence, and on the next day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The amount * paid on this order was embraced in a charge of two pounds, which also covered the allowance made to constable John Baker, of Boston, under chapter 74, post.

Both in the original order remaining in the archives, and in the legislative records of the council, the amount ordered to be paid to Richardson is twenty-one shillings, obviously an error, since the counterfeited bills were of the denomination of twenty shillings, and this is the amount actually paid by the treasurer.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was appended to the account printed in the note to chapter 37, ante.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed July 9, 1705, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was duly paid.

Chap. 40. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 142. It is preserved in archives, vol. 71, p. 141.

The contest between the Council and the House concerning the continuance of the establishment of wages for the officers and men of the garrison on Castle Island, § and consequently the right of the Governor and Council to draw warrants for the pay of the lieutenant upon that basis, was not settled in the spring of 1705. Dudley insisted that the act was still in force, and that the representatives could not reduce the pay without new legislation, which would require the concurrence of both branches and the consent of the Governor. The following entry in the executive records of the council, however, indicates that the Board was disposed to yield to the claim of the House, or, at least, not to proceed hastily against the judgment of the representatives:—

“April 17, 1705. A Muster Roll of the Garrison at Her Majesty's Castle on Castle Island, containing an account of their pay for three Months past was Offered with the Lieutenants pay open. Upon the question put, whether the pay for the Lieutenant performing the duty of Lieutenant & Gunner, be filled up according to the Establishment? It was carried in the Negative and Advised that it be deferred until the setting of the General Assembly.” — Vol. 4, p. 167.

According to Sewall, || the Governor, after this negative by the Board, refused to consent to the quarterly pay-roll of the garrison, thus suspending payment of the wages of the common soldiers, although he appears not to have withheld his consent to warrants for defraying charges for subsistence of the garrison. ¶

Upon the assembling of the General Court in their first session this year Lieutenant Tuthill, without alluding to any claim he might have under the establishment of wages, filed the following petition to be allowed for his services as bookkeeper and accountant for the engineer, Colonel Römer, during a part of the time that the latter was engaged in building the defensive works on the Island:—

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Capt Generall & Gov<sup>r</sup> in Cheife &c: and the Honourable Council, with the Honourable the House of Representatives of Her Maties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in Generall Court Assembled.

ZECA TUTHILL." — Mass.

This petition was read in the Council on the twenty-first and sent to the House "for consideration." On the twenty-second it was read in the House and committed. On the twenty-seventh the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed, probably as it was reported by the committee, and sent to the Council for concurrence. It was concurred in on the twenty-ninth, and consented to by the Governor.

On the same day an attempt was made to establish for the lieutenant of the Castle a lower rate of wages than had been hitherto paid. This was sought to be accomplished by a resolve for separating the functions of the lieutenant and the chief gunner. This resolve, which follows, passed the House, but failed because the representatives would not agree to the proposal of the Council to substitute sixty pounds for fifty pounds as the lieutenant's pay:—

"In the House of Representatives. June 29; 1705

Resolved That there be allowed, and Paid out of the publick Treasury after the Rate of fifty Pounds, to Capt Zechariah Tuthill, the Lieutenant of the Castle, for the year currant, commencing from the time to which he was last paid, And that the said Tuthill, be not Allowed, any thing as chief Gunner, this House apprehending it very unsafe, that two such important Offices in the s<sup>d</sup> fortification should be sustained by one & the same person.

THOMAS OAKES Speaker." — Ibid.,

The same division of functions was again attempted, to continue "for and during the present War with France, and Spaine," by chapter 94, post, and the same chapter ratified, in terms, the provisions of a resolve passed on the thirtieth of June for increasing the pay of William Barnsdale, the chief gunner, who, the year before, as gunner's mate, had been recommended by the Council for increased pay, "to encourage his Stay there, He being a good Officer."* This latter resolve, which failed for want of the Governor's consent, is given below:—

"In the House of Representatives. June ult<sup>o</sup>

Resolved That the sum of Forty Pounds, be allowed, and Paid out of the publick Treasury, to Mr William Barnsdale for his service as chief Gunner of the Castle, for the year currant, to begin, from the time, to which he was last paid.

To chapter 94, however, Dudley was equally averse to giving his consent, and he seems never to have signed it; but when the next pay-roll was made up in January, 1705-6, in which the lieutenant's pay was fixed at the rate of sixty pounds per annum, the Governor signed the roll under protest, thus practically consenting to this provision of that chapter.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance granted by the present chapter was passed July 9, 1705, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

An account of the attack on Lancaster July 31, 1704, is given in the note to resolve, 1704-5, chapter 71. From that time forth until after the harvest, guerilla parties of the enemy were hovering on the frontiers, allowing no relaxation of vigilance in the several garrisons. From a too hasty yielding to the impulse of fear on the part of one of the garrisons at Lancaster the Rev. Andrew Gardner, minister of the town, lost his life October 26, 1704.

The following items in the News-Letter give the particulars of this unfortunate affair as gathered at the time, apparently from the most authentic sources:—

"On Thursday night the Reverend Mr. Gardner, Minister of Lancaster was unfortunately Shot by the Sentinel on the Watch, supposing him to be an Indian climbing over the Walls of the Fortification; of which Wound he dyed in an hours space or little more." — No. 28. October 23 to 30, 1704.

"Boston, In our Numb. 28. As we then received it, we gave you the Account of the Death of the Reverend Mr. Gardner, Minister of Lancaster; and having since had a perfect and exact Account of the same, from Eye and Ear Witnesses; we thought it expedient to insert it here, to prevent various reports thereof: And is as follows

That a man being Killed the day before betwixt Grotton and Lancaster, and the Indians having been seen the night before nigh the Town) Mr. Gardner (three of the men belonging to his Garrison being gone out of Town, and two of the remaing three being tyred with Watching and Travelling in the Woods after the Indians that day) being a very careful as well as courageous man, concluded to Watch that night himself; and accordingly went out into the little Watch-house that was over one of the Flankers, and there stayed till late in the night, whence and when he was coming down (as it was thought) to warm him, the man that shot him, who was not long before sleeping by the fire, came out, and whether between sleeping and waking, or surprized with an excess of fear, fired upon

This chapter was passed in response to the following petition:—

"To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esqr Governour, the Honorable council and ye Representatives siting in Boston June ye 29 1705

The resolve which constitutes this chapter passed through all its stages and was consented to by the Governor on the day it was first read in the Council.

During the first session of the Assembly of 1705-6, it appears that Mr. John Leighton, the representative from Kittery, presented a similar petition, upon which the House passed a resolve for abating one-half of the arrearages of the taxes assessed upon that town. Neither this petition nor the resolve thereon, which was not concurred in by the Council, has been found in the archives; but on the twenty-ninth of June the House passed and sent to the Council for concurrence the resolve which constitutes the first paragraph of the present chapter. On the next day the Council concurred in this resolve of the House with the addition of the proviso shown in the printed chapter. On the same day the House agreed to this addition, and the resolve was consented to by the Governor.

† Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 257.

In the legislative journals of the Council this resolve is twice* recorded, the only difference in the two entries, from the word "that," at the beginning of the first paragraph, being in the last word of that paragraph, which is first recorded "heathen" and afterwards "enemy."

The province treasurer's account † shows that the abatement ordered by this chapter was made to Kittery.

Chap. 43. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 144. It has not been found in the archives.

Russell was again chosen commissioner of the impost, as shown by the following entry:—

"June 30, 1705. James Russell Esq<sup>r</sup> by the Vote of the Council & Representatives, was again elected Commissioner of the Impost for the Year ensuing."—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 144.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of the allowances granted by this chapter was passed July 9, 1705, and the province treasurer's account § shows that they were paid.

In his opening speech to the Assembly this year (May 31, 1705), the Governor thus called attention to the need of supplying the treasury:—

"... Gentlemen, of the Representatives, Mr Treasurer will lay before you the present state of the Treasury, & the necessity of a Supply, which I desire you very early to Consider . . ."—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 29.

Before the new emission of bills authorized by this chapter had been printed there were this year two several votes of advice and consent for emitting bills. They were as follows:—

"July 9, 1705. To Mr Treasurer Taylor to issue forth and emit Five thousand pounds of Bills, which are or shall be received into the Treasury towards payment of the Publick Debts of the Province already contracted, and the further growing charge of the defence thereof &c<sup>a</sup> as he shall receive Orders or Warrants for the same made out & signed by the Governour, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Council."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 196.

"Aug. 3, 1705. Pursuant to a Resolve passed by the General Assembly at their Session begun the Thirtieth of May last, that the Treasurer be Ordered and Impowred to issue forth and Emit the sum of Five thousand pounds of Bills, which are or shall be received into the Treasury, towards payment of the Publick Debts of the Province already contracted, and the further growing charge for the defence thereof.

Advised and Consented. That his Excellency order the Treasurer to issue forth and Emit the above sum of Five thousand pounds of Bills, accordingly, as he shall receive Orders or Warrants for the same made out and signed by himselfe, with the advice and consent of the Council."—Ibid., p. 204.

The act ¶ granting a tax as a fund and security for the bills ordered in this chapter to be emitted was passed July 13, 1706.

Chap. 45. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 145. It has not been found in the archives.

In his opening speech to the new Assembly this year Governor Dudley still remained silent on the subject of his salary.

On the twenty-second of June a message was sent from the Council to the House by James Russell, Joseph Lynde, John Thacher, Samuel Partridge, John Higginson, Samuel Appleton and Secretary Addington "to move the House for a suitable and honorable allowance for the support of the Governor."

To this motion, communicated by a committee composed of the most influential and respected members of the Council, the only response was the resolve which constitutes this chapter, in which, as a gift, the usual amount was allowed. The original has not been found in the archives, so that the date of its passage in the House cannot be ascertained, but by the legislative journals of the Council it appears that it passed the Board in concurrence on the thirtieth, and that it was consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of this allowance was passed July 9, 1705.

By the province treasurer's account § it appears that this allowance and the allowance granted by chapter 100, post, were paid in one sum.

A bill, in place of a standing vote first passed by the legislature of New Hampshire, October 6, 1703, for fixing Dudley's salary as governor of that province, was finally passed, and signed by him May 2, 1705. The salary settled by this act was one hundred and sixty pounds per annum.¶

No action having been taken by the Assembly looking to the establishment of honorable and permanent salaries for the judges of the Superior Court of Judicature up to the date of the passage of the resolve, 1704–5, chapter 33, and the allowance granted in that chapter being unsatisfactory to the judges, they joined in the following memorial to the Legislature:—

Humbly Offers

To be Consider<sup>d</sup>

Whether it be not a real loss, prejudice and Dishonour to this Province to allow the Judges of the s<sup>d</sup> Court no more then forty or fifty pounds p<sup>o</sup> Annum.

Whether the Labour of the s<sup>d</sup> Judges be not a Calling which deserveth Food and Raiment. Where as now as things Stand The necessary Expences of themselves Servants & horses being deducted; It is a Question whether any thing be left remaining

The Inconveniences following hereupon are these,

The s<sup>d</sup> Judges are in danger of being laid open to Contempt for that the Gentlemen at the Bar, tho<sup>o</sup> the number of them be much Increased of late, receive a reward three or four times Superiour to them.

They are in danger of being Exposed to the Temptacō<sup>n</sup> of Bribery, an Evil most Obstructive to the free Course of Justice.

This Renders the Judges less Capable of fitting themselves for and attending upon that Service with unwearied Diligence, making it their busines<sup>s</sup>: and less concerned whether they hold, or quit their Places.

The Judges have now a much harder Chapter then formerly. For the learning of the Bar is as much enlarged as the number. Many great and p<sup>l</sup>exed Cases are brought before the Superiour Court (to Say nothing of Criminnalls either of the highest or lowest nature) Both parties by their Learned Council are Comōnly long and Strenuous in their pleadings, the Judgm<sup>t</sup> being Final, and which way Soever it goes, the Justices are Sure of being Shock<sup>d</sup>.

All which is humbly Submitted to this Great and Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court by

This memorial was “Present<sup>d</sup> & Read in Council”* August 19, 1704, and thereupon the Council voted their “Opinion that a further Encouragem<sup>t</sup> be given to the Judges and Recommend it to the Consideration of the House of Representatives,”* which vote on the same day the House “Read and Referr<sup>d</sup> to further Consideration the next session of this Court.”†

On the last day of the next (third) session the following entry appears in the legislative journals of the Council:—

“Nov. 18, 1704. A Message was sent to the Representatives by Joseph Lynde, Penn Townsend, Andrew Belcher, Samuel Hayman & Samuel Legg Esq<sup>r</sup>s to move that House for a Grant for the Support of the Governour & the Secretary, And to know what Consideration they have had of the Memorial presented by the Judges.”—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 91.

Upon this the House passed the following vote:—

Towards the end of the next session (January 4, 1704–5), in the Council “A Memorial formerly presented by the Justices of the Superiour Court for Enlargement of their Salary, . . .” was “. . . sent down to the Representatives with a Message to desire a further Consideration of them by that House.”‡

On the next day, in the House, “The Question being Put whether any further allowance to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Judges of the Superiour Court be made for the year past? It Pass<sup>d</sup> in the negative.”‡

On the thirteenth of June, 1705, a memorial by John Leverett, one of the judges, was communicated to the Council by the Governor. It was read in both branches on the same day, as follows, but no further action was taken thereupon:—

Less than a fortnight after the passage of chapters 13 and 15, ante, the advice of the House for the conditional exchange of Baptiste, in which the Council concurred, seems to have become generally known outside of the halls of the Assembly, notwithstanding the injunction of secrecy. Thereupon, leading merchants, traders, and sailors in the province united in the following address arguing against the proposed exchange:—

To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> &c—and To The honour<sup>ble</sup> the Council and representatives now Assembled in the Generall Court:

The Address and Petition of y<sup>e</sup> Merchants, Traders & Sailers In y<sup>e</sup> Town of Boston: and other<sup>s</sup> in y<sup>e</sup> Province of the Massachusetts-Bay—

That Whereas by the Providence of God; Wee of these parts have beene hitherto Signally Preserv<sup>d</sup> from any Attacks or Insults on our Sea: Coasts by the French, Which we Chiefly Attribute unto the Good Success Wee have had in Taking & Since by the due retention of One Baptist A pretended frenchman, Whose former Piracies, Murder<sup>s</sup> & Villanies, have beene Notorious, which together with his Circumstances, readiness, and Capacity. of further mischief To her majesties good Subjects In these parts, The sence of which Constrains from us this our humble Application To prevent as farr as in us lies the Dangerous Consequence which will unavoidably attend his Release, Whereof wee are (to our Great Surprise & Greif) informed That your honours have in a manner Concluded: Which doubtless must arise for want of Due knowledge of these following Circumstances relating to y<sup>e</sup> Prisoner— Which Wee here humbly Offer

1st That said Baptist is not by Birth a Subject to y<sup>e</sup> French King, therefore cannott as such. be reclaimed by any of his Governours—

2<sup>dly</sup> That in y<sup>e</sup> Late Warr he submitted himself under the Obedience of the Crown of England, and as a Protestant was here receiv<sup>d</sup> by the French Chh: and as Such was Impley<sup>d</sup> in Divers Sea Services Whereby he's become knowing in all our Coasts, harbours, and Circumstances

3<sup>dly</sup> That after having remain<sup>d</sup> with us a Considerable Time upon some disgust or rather his own Wicked Inclination Did Confederate himself With some of the french Prisoners With whome he Took and Surpris<sup>d</sup> Divers Vessells without any Commission, and having hereby Effectually recommended himself unto the French. (To whom otherwise by his former Thefts and Piracies he Stood a Criminnal) he was by the Governour of St Johns recommended unto the cheif Ministers of State in France, who finding him proper to Anoy us, was Immediately prefer<sup>d</sup> to a small ship of Warr In which (thro<sup>tho</sup> the Goodness of God.) he miscarried Was by us taken before he Cou<sup>d</sup> do any thing Notable upon us on which the Peace then Immediately Ensuing Wee neglectfully omitted the due Inquiry & Punishment of his Crimes, and at the Generall release of the french prisoners he made his escape amongst them.*

4th That his Bragg<sup>s</sup> and Threats, even before and since the breaking out of this Present Warr have been very frequent and Notorious.

5<sup>thly</sup> That Whether in Sincerity or Otherwaies itt matters not but so itt is, that some time since in the Last Winter he did before severall Witnesses, as also by writinge under his own hand Signify to the Govern<sup>r</sup> his Solem<sup>n</sup> repentance and Greif for what he had formerly Don against our Nation & that could he be but reconciled he was willing and ready to enter into the English Service, and as a mark of his faithfullness Did then give Memoirs on Divers heads, relating to y<sup>e</sup> Warr, offering to Prosecute them to Effect in his own Person.

6<sup>thly</sup> That besides what the Nature of the thing in respect of our own Preservation does require. The french have given Verry Notable & recent examples of the method for Detaining such Prisoners of Warr who shall have the Misfortune to fall under their Suspicious and jealousies and by only Changing this Stile or name, of a Prisoner of Warr, into that of a Prisoner of State, and then without rend<sup>r</sup>ing or assigning any other reason, keep them During their Pleasure which seldom Terminates until the end of the Warr as was Lately acted with M<sup>r</sup> Nelson.†

7<sup>ly</sup> The foregoing Circumstances being Duley Considered Wee humbly Conceive, That it is Inconsistent with the honour of her Maj<sup>ties</sup> and of this Government, as well as the safety thereof to give up into the Enemies hands a Person so Circumstanced, especially Since with his own Consent. Wee might Improve him in our Service and happily if Prudent Measures were taken he himself would Chuse to remaine, Which Wee presume Cannott be Deny<sup>d</sup> him.

8<sup>ly</sup> Were there nothing else, but the manner and the nrgency of the French Demanding off him is a verry Sufficient reason why wee shou<sup>d</sup> preserve him to our selves

9<sup>ly</sup> All the objections that Wee can Conceive reasonably to be made, are either the release of Prisoners with them or the Charge of theirs with us, To which wee humbly answe<sup>r</sup> To the first: That y<sup>e</sup> Same Instant demand was prest upon us the Last year, by Monsieur d'e Broillant Govern<sup>r</sup> of Port Royall, but when he saw that his Arguments could work no Effect he then desisted and So Submitted to a totall exchange without any further mention off him, And if our Impatience do not prevent the same with better reason may be expected from Canada, For that wee have in our Possession more men; and those of Better Consideration then they have of onrs, (Except m<sup>r</sup> Williams) for whom may be some especial provision made towards his Subsistence. And as to the Charge of maintaining the French p<sup>r</sup>soners here Doubtless Methods might be found out by Impley<sup>ing</sup> & Setting of them To work, as they do to ours, So that the most of this Charge will thereby be taken off.

* These prisoners were released December 10, 1697. See note to private act, number nineteen, and Sewall's Diary, vol. I., p. 465. Baptiste was recaptured by Captain John Harraden. See note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 27.

Notwithstanding this implied protest, which was read, first, in the House and then in the Council on the twenty-ninth of June, both branches, by concurring in the passage of the present chapter, declined to recede from their former votes of advice.

Preparations for the voyage* to Quebec which, as shown in the note to private act, number nineteen, was to be in a brigantine owned by John Borland, and under the direction and at the expense of Samuel Vetch, had already begun, as appears by the following order in Council:—

“June 27, 1705. Ordered. That Mr Commissary General do furnish Twenty day's provision of Bread, Beer, Flesh and pease for the number of men borne upon the Vessel in which Mr Courtemanche the French Commissioner is returning to Quebeck. And a Hogshead of good wine as a present to the Governor there.

J: DUDLEY.” — Executive

Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 187.

On the sixth of July † the brigantine cleared for Quebec with the envoys and Courtemanche as passengers ‡—the latter being now fully informed of Dudley's intention to liberate Baptiste with the other prisoners.

Besides the draught of the tentative treaty signed by him and Courtemanche Dudley forwarded to Vandreuil, by the latter, a copy of the treaty (upon which his articles were based) between the governors at Martinique and the Leeward Islands, together with the following letter, in which he signified his purpose to return Baptiste:—

“Boston, July 4, 1705.

Two months ago I received your letter from the hands of Mr. Hill and the Frenchmen who accompanied him, whom I placed at the disposal of the Sieur de Courtemanche, your envoy. As for Mr. Hill, he returns, according to my order, by sea with him, and the two Frenchmen by land. It was about a month ago that some other letters were delivered to me in your name by the Sieur Courtemanche, with whom Mr. Levingstone and Sheldon have returned. They have taken care to pay their debts to the Sieur de Courtemanche's satisfaction.

With regard to the Sieur de Courtemanche, it gives me pleasure to assure you that you could not in any way have done me a greater service than by sending such a worthy gentleman to negotiate the exchange. He is indeed a man of honor, who is in every way

* The ostensible reason for proceeding by sea was the illness of Courtemanche, which Pontchartrain seems to have suspected was feigned in order to afford a plausible pretext for private negotiations contrary to the laws of both nations. He wrote to Vandreuil June 9, 1705,—

“The illness which obliged Sieur de Courtemanche your envoy to Boston, to return in an English brigantine, has much the appearance of having been assumed as a cover for trade. This obliges me again to recommend you to use all possible precautions in the Treaty you will conclude, against a reciprocity of trade between the people of the two Nations.” — Documents relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IX., p. 779. This letter was a full and formal communication to Vandreuil of the comments made by the minister upon a summary of Vandreuil's letter to him October 19, 1705. The following are summaries of, and comments upon, the proposal to exchange prisoners, and the account of Courtemanche's illness:—

“M. de Beauharnois and he sent an account this spring, by way of Placentia, of the arrival of Captain Livingstone, sent by Mr. Dudley, to propose an exchange of prisoners. He sent back with him the Sieur de Courtemanche (who has already been in that country), in order that he might facilitate the exchange and learn the state of their affairs.

He aims to treat with them in such a way that the glory of the King and the honor of the nation shall not be affected.”

“I hope that the exchange and neutrality may be advantageous to both colonies; but some particulars indicate that the two governors make use of pretexts of this sort to have occasion to send persons back and forth for purposes of trade.” [By Pontchartrain.]

“The Sieur de Courtemanche falls ill at Boston, and Mr. Dudley uses that as a pretext to persuade him to return by sea and proposes in the letter that he writes to M. de Vandreuil a kind of truce between the two governments.”

“The pretended illness of the Sieur de Courtemanche seems to authorize the suspicion above.” [By Pontchartrain.] — “Collection de Manuscrits,” etc., vol. II., p. 449.

† “On Fryday the 6th. Sailed Capt. Courtemanche, who came hither [Boston] to His Excellency from the Governour of Canada, in order to Concert Measures for the Exchange of Prisoners, between whom there is a good understanding.” — Boston News-Letter, No. 64

‡ Samuel Hill, the messenger sent “through the woods” by Vandreuil, returned to Quebec in the same vessel. His companions, the two Dubois, were sent back overland by order of Courtemanche,—Dudley having given him permission to direct the manner and time of their return.

agreeable to me. I hope that the reception and treatment accorded him here were as courteous and considerate as the occasion demanded.

I have had him look over the list of all the Frenchmen who are prisoners here. He saw them all and acknowledged that they are very well treated. He will give you a copy of this list and can assure you that there are no French prisoners who have gone to Europe or to the West Indies except at their own request. In the proposed articles you will see that I am obliged to send them to Port Royal immediately on their arrival in parts subject to this government.

In order to save time I have signed the articles that the Sieur de Courtemanche is to hand you; and I beg that you will return me a copy signed by you. I will keep them religiously in future. Considering that winter is approaching, I have used all possible means to effect the exchange before then; and I assure you that on the first tidings I have of your acquiescence touching the articles and the return of the prisoners, I will send home all your people.

I desire that the commissioners may meet yours at Mount Desert about twenty-five leagues west from Port Royal where we have formerly made exchanges. Mount Desert is an island in the Bay of Thienday* where all of your vessels as well as ours put in for safety.

If you please to let me know the day that you will set for their leaving Quebec I will take care to calculate so well on the time that it will take for the voyage as that they may meet about the same day.

As for Baptiste, I believe that the Sieur de Courtemanche has heard so many things about him and his baseness, that upon all accounts you will allow that he is a knave who does not deserve that you should ask for him again and perhaps you will judge that it is not worth while for me to keep him. That is why I determined to send him, back with the other prisoners to the place of rendezvous, that if the articles are accepted and the exchange made, I will have him sent with the others to be returned and this business will be ended.

I notice in your instructions concerning the prisoners who are held by the Indians, that you would not buy them back hereafter; and I assure you frankly that I will not give a penny for any prisoner under pretext of money paid by you to the Indians for his ransom, because I cannot tolerate the idea that Christians may be slaves of these wretches. And if you do not wish to redeem these English prisoners from the Indians, I shall be obliged to allow my Indians, who are fully as numerous and better people, to keep the prisoners they shall take from your nation; then the thing will be equal on both sides and your people will be forced to conform to a savage life as well as mine.

You go too far in your letters when you speak of the command that I have here as if it were not equal to your own. I have in this place all the just and reasonable power that an English governor could wish, and find a correspondingly just and reasonable obedience; although by the grace of God the number of my people exceeds that of yours tenfold.—the thing which ordinarily constitutes the difficulty of government.

In your letters you mention the Sieur Allain, who has been unfortunate. He pretends that he was sent to me from Port Royal with a flag of truce, but that he fell into the hands of a young navy officer who belonged to another government and who carried him thither.

He was not able to show his passport nor his credentials; but I have had faith in his word and have treated him like a gentleman. I did all that I could to facilitate his return, and he is now on a little vessel which is to carry him from the eastern coast to a place where I have given orders that he shall find a fishing-vessel.

I generously gave him two very hardy men from Port Royal, who were prisoners here, to serve him in returning to his home, and that in exchange for two maidens whom Mr. Livingstone brought. The Sieur de Courtemanche goes back by sea in a stanch vessel which he took here. He promises that she shall not be detained more than ten days, but as she has my permit for Quebec, she ought also to have yours in order to return here with all the English who are there.

I have only one thing to add, which is to tell you that the Sieur de Courtemanche has induced me to consent to give him Mr. William Dudley,† the youngest of my sons, to keep him company as far as Quebec and to return with Captain Vetch on the same vessel.

He is a young man who has had no experience, but I wish that he should travel before I make something of him. It is the first time that he goes away from home.

I ask your pardon for the liberty I take. I will gladly render a like service to any of your kindred if ever you command me. I send you a gift by Captain Courtemanche of a cask of sweet wine, which I hope will be good.

I have given the Sieur de Courtemanche a copy of the treaty made between Martinique and the English governors of the Leeward Islands, to let you see how it conforms to that which I have projected for our governments, which will be equally useful to you and to me; and we shall remain thus at peace if we wish, notwithstanding the war.

With all possible respect, I am, sir,

Your most humble and obedient servant,

DUDLEY.

P.S. Have the goodness to despatch as soon as possible a courier by land, so that I may know what you do with regard to the exchange." — "Collection de Manuscrits," etc., vol. II., p. 435.

* Now Frenchman's Bay.

† Pontchartrain, in the abridgment of, and comments upon, Vandreuil's letter above referred to, summarizes and remarks as follows upon this action of Dudley:—

"Mr. Dudley improved the same occasion to send him one of his sons, eighteen years of age, who has merit."

"It is to be feared that he may have become acquainted with the country, in order to make use of it some day against us." — "Collection de Manuscrits," etc., vol. II., p. 450.

He also sent by his son William a letter of introduction, as follows:—

“ Boston, July 5-16, 1705.

I cannot allow my son to present himself to your excellency without a letter bespeaking for him the favor of your courtesy. He is young and inexperienced but I hope that some time he will prove worthy of his name and fulfil my expectations. M. de Courtemanche himself persuaded him to accompany him to Quebec. I shall return the courtesy that you show him to any person whom you shall please to recommend to me.

I have no doubt that what I have written to you will procure an exchange of prisoners, and I should be very glad if my son could see them and procure assistance for their prompt return, for fear the winter might surprise them; and unless the manner of sending back the prisoners does not suit Mr. Williams because of the large number, if you will allow them to come with my son, I will give to your gentlemen in this town a special passage for their return.

Captain Veach (sic) is my particular friend and I shall ever be grateful for any consideration you may please to show him.

I desire that he, my son and the vessel may be despatched in ten days conformably to the agreement made with M. de Courtemanche.

I am, sir, Your very humble and very obedient servant,

The first motive for addressing the queen at this time was to thank her for the supply of warlike stores, the promise of which had been communicated by the queen's ministers through Captain Nathaniel Cary. His personal ill-fortune on his voyage out has been described in the note to chapter 42 of the resolves of the year 1704-5, and is more particularly related in the note to chapter 93, post. It will be remembered that the address, the vote approving the draught of which constitutes chapter 120 of the resolves of 1704-5, was intended to replace or reinforce the address and memorial which Cary had been charged to lay before the queen, but which it was then feared had failed of resulting in benefit to the province. This fear, however, proved not well grounded, and long before the convoy of the mast ships to England bearing that address reached its destination the Governor received a letter from Cary which he reported to the Council on the fifteenth of May, as shown in the note to chapter 42, above mentioned.

In his speech at the beginning of the first session of the Assembly this year (May 31, 1705), the Governor thus refers to this letter and to the duty the queen's bounty had made imperative of expressing the thanks of the Assembly therefor:—

“ . . . The Letters from Captain Cary your Messenger to Whitehall last year will acquaint you with Her Majesty's most Gracious reception of your addresses and orders thereupon; which will oblige your most humble addresses of Thanks to Her Majesty for Her Royal Bounty towards this Province. . . .” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 23.

No action having been taken upon this letter, probably on account of the uncertainty of the realization of the queen's promises, the Governor renewed his recommendation in his opening speech at the next session, on the fifth of September, as follows:—

“ . . . And this assembly will . . . I hope remember to address Her Majesty with their Humble thanks for ye great encouragement given to the Importation of navall stores by ye Act* of Parliament & her Majesty's Royall bounty in ye Cannon bestowed upon us— In all which I shall be glad to assist as is my Duty yt this Province may always deserve & never want ye Protection & favour of Her most Sacred Majesty & ye Govern<sup>t</sup> of England upon which we have our Just dependance. . . .” — Ibid., p. 55.

In the mean time other matters of importance, which the Legislature could not be excused for failing to notice in such an address, had been commended to the Governor's attention by the Lords of Trade so earnestly and pointedly that he felt compelled to take the first opportunity to urge the Legislature to prompt and favorable action upon them. These were the royal commands, conveyed in letters dated as far back as the twenty-fifth of the previous January, to comply with the requirements heretofore repeatedly made to rebuild the fort at Pemaquid and to provide a permanent, stated salary for the governor. There was also a further requirement that they contribute towards the cost of the fort at Piscataqua.

Apparently these letters came to the Governor's hands after the prorogation of the first session, since he submitted them to the Council on the nineteenth of July for their advice as to whether he should call an extra session in order to avoid delay in bringing them to the notice of the General Court or should wait for the Assembly to convene at the time to which it stood prorogued. To this appeal the Council replied as follows:—

“ July 19, 1705. . . . Upon consideration of the little difference there will be in time betwixt the one and the other, and that there is no Ship bound to England. It was advised to stay to the Prorogation.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 200.

The state, at this time, of the controversy respecting a fixed salary for the Governor may be gathered from the notes to resolves, 1703-4, chapters 46 and 114, 1704-5, chapters 15 and 125, and chapter 45, ante.

The controversy concerning building a fort at Pemaquid has not been so fully and distinctly described, on account of its being intimately involved with other questions of more immediate importance; still a general view of the relations of the agents of the crown and the provincial Legislature upon that subject may be gathered from the previous chapters and notes hereafter referred to. However, these are not so regularly connected that a brief review of the subject would be wholly superfluous to elucidate the points at issue at the date of the passage of this chapter. It may, therefore, be helpful to be reminded that the rebuilding the fort at Pemaquid first became a matter of urgent requirement on the part of the crown under Governor Dudley's administration. Although the letter* from the Privy Council of the nineteenth of January, 1700-1, conveyed a command that the work should be done, it was not earnestly insisted upon until Dudley, in accordance with his instructions "To press the Assembly vigorously to exert themselves to fortify the Province, especially Pemaquid 'which they too easily suffered to be taken and demolished by the French during the late War,'"† began a series of commands, entreaties, and threats to urge the accomplishment of the work. His first recommendation to the Legislature to undertake the rebuilding of the fort is given, together with his instructions upon the subject, in the note to resolves, 1702, chapter 24, and in this he indulgently suggested the alternative of another fortification near Pemaquid if the rebuilding of the old fort "be thought improper." At the beginning of the second session that year (October 15, 1702), he renewed the recommendation in his speech to the representatives, but without the alternative suggestion, as follows:—

"Gentlemen

Since I Saw You last I have in Obedience to Her Majesty's Commands visited all the frontiers to the Eastward as far as Pemaquid and had then the Opportunity of Conference, with the Sachems of those Parts, which has Occasioned the Quiet that we have hitherto had on that side, and saved you the Trouble of an earlier Meeting than at this time, which truly I was very apprehensive would not have been Prevented, and how long it Shall last I have no Assurance, and therefore we ought to be in all Points ready.

The last Session I Communicated to You Her Majesty's Instructions referring to the Rebuilding of Pemaquid, which I must Still with all Earnestnesse offer to you, and when it is Considered that all the Stones necessary are in place, the foundation yet good, and Lime to be had very near and easy, the Rebuilding cannot be thought to be halfe the original Charge, Added to this I must Acquaint you, that the Indians in their Treaty, and Since, Urge the Necessity of another Trading House beyond that at Casco Bay, and I Judge it as necessary as They, if we Intend to hold them Depending, and that may as well be at Pemaquid, as any where else and better, because the Harbour is good, and our Honour Depend's upon our Asserting our own which we so unluckily lost, These Things Added to Her Majesty's Directions in the matter I hope Will have their due Weight with every body, I hope the Gentlemen of the Council & Assembly that there ‡ with me there, will when the Affair is before You Represent that Matter as it is. . . ." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 4.

The subsequent altercations between the Governor and Council and the representatives concerning the rebuilding the fort at Pemaquid, and the objections of the latter to undertaking that great work at the expense of the province, have been traced to the legislative session of 1702-3, in the note to resolve, 1702, chapter 67. Dudley's failure to induce the representatives to concur with the Council in accepting the favorable report of a joint committee, who accompanied the Governor to Pemaquid to inspect the ruins of the old fort in order to report upon the feasibility of rebuilding it, has also been shown. This want of agreement between the two branches led to the adoption of an address and memorial to the queen by the House alone. §

The first allusion by the Governor, in speech or message, to the rebuilding of the fort at Pemaquid, after the deadlock of 1702, was the following, in a paragraph in his speech of October 27, 1703, at the beginning of the third session:—

"as Likewise that you do again consider and do your duty in Restoring the fortification at Pemaquid, I shall offer you no arguments on these heads, but that herein we shall shew our selves obedient and good subjects as all her Majestyes Kingdoms and plantations do at this time to the Most Just and Gracious Prince that Ever sat upon the throne of England, and I am Comanded to assure you that this is the Method to obtayn her Majestyes favour and that it is her Royall Grace thus to Move you to do your duty rather then to have it in any other way." — Ibid., p. 12.

The Secretary was then directed to read the queen's two letters, and, with some additions, proceedings thereupon ensued as shown in the note to resolve, 1703-4, chapter 114. Besides the request which the Council made for the return of the queen's two letters the Secretary was requested "to inquire after a Return to a Message sent from the Board the last Night;" ¶ and the oral message which the House sent back, and which the Governor declined to receive, contained the declaration "That the Journal of the House is open, And his Excy & Council may appoint a Committee to inspect the same, to see what has been done in that Matter." ¶¶ After the first paragraph the written message sent up by the House continued as follows:—

"2 For the Building a Fort at Pemaquid.

We humbly Conceive Her Majesty hath Received Misrepresentations, concerning that Affair, at least our Apprehensions of it do not Concurr, with what hath been Represented to Her Majesty, wherefore this House sent home their humble Adresse & Memoriall Dated March 27th 1703, to Lay before Her Majesty our reasons, why we did not Comply, with Her Majesty's Directions in that matter, viz<sup>t</sup>

- 1.) The little Advantage it was formerly to us altho<sup>t</sup> not lesse than Twenty Thousand Pounds expended.
- 2.) The Scituation being out of the ordinary Way of the Indians, and more than One Hundred Miles distance from any English Plantation.

3) For the now * Building, and Maintaining s<sup>d</sup> Fort, the great charge will be such that this Country cannot possibly Subsist under in Regard of the Several large Sums of money Laid out in the Raising new Fortifications on Castle-Island with diverse others in this Province of great Importance which are set forth in s<sup>d</sup> Memoriall, and we hope may be sufficient to render us excusable; But the fresh unaccountable Charge Created by the present War, with the Indians, we humbly Conceive is Argument enough; were there no other for our not Building the same." — Ibid., p. 13.

Beginning with the next day the following proceedings took place: —

"Nov. 17, 1703. A Message was sent by John Phillips & Isaac Winslow Esq<sup>rs</sup> to the Represent<sup>es</sup> to enforce the message sent two days since. for a Copy of their Address to her Majesty referring to the Affair of Pennaquad.

His Excy afterwards directed the Secy & John Foster Esq<sup>r</sup> to carry the same Message & withal to intimate to the House the Usage of the two Houses of Parliam<sup>t</sup> viz<sup>t</sup> That when the House of Lords desire to inspect the Commons Journal, the Clerk of that House attends their Lordships with the Books, but when the Commons desire to inspect the Lords Journal, they do it by a Comm<sup>tee</sup> & that he only expects either a Copy or their Clerk to attend, & read the same out of their Books.

An Order of the House of Represent<sup>es</sup> was sent up & read, being in the Words following viz. Ordered that a Message be sent up to the Board in Answer to their Message of the 15th Instant for a Copy of the Address of this House to be forthwith laid before the Board, That the Journal of this House is open to the Veiw of such as the hon<sup>ble</sup> Board Shall send to inspect the same, which We apprehend is as much as is customary to be demanded of one House of Parliament by another." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 11.

"Nov. 17, 1703. His Excy desired Eliak<sup>m</sup> Hutchinson Esq<sup>r</sup> to acquaint the Represent<sup>es</sup> That he is in Council & directs y<sup>t</sup> Mr Speaker & the House do forthwith attend him with the Journal of their House: — Some of the Represent<sup>es</sup> attended his Excy to acquaint him that it being full Noon, & many of their Members out upon Comm<sup>tees</sup> Mr Speaker & the House prayed their Attendance might be excused till after Dinner, which his Excy granted. — Post Meridien, Mr Speaker & the House attended his Excy in Council, & his Excy intimated the Occasion of sending for them, viz<sup>t</sup> the Message sent them in the Forenoon, referring to their Address to her Majesty

Mr Speaker answered, That himself & the House attended in Obedience to his Excy's Commands, but said their Journal lay upon the Table in their own House open to the Veiw of any Comm<sup>tee</sup> to be appointed by the Board; But the House did not understand it to be the Practice in Parliam<sup>t</sup> nor had it been the Usage in this Country to bring up their Journal, & declaring he had no further to say to what was offered by his Excy, they were dismiss'd." — Ibid., p. 12.

"Nov. 17, 1703. Jonathan Corwin & John Higginson Esq<sup>rs</sup> were sent with a Message to the Represent<sup>es</sup> to inquire, whether the House had had any further Consideration of that Matter since their Attendance, who return'd Answer from the House that they were upon Consideration thereof." — Ibid.

"Nov. 17, 1703. A Message was brought up from the Represent<sup>es</sup> by Cap<sup>t</sup> Otis, Mr Blagrove &c. That if his Excy & Council please to appoint a Comm<sup>tee</sup>, The Clerk of the House should attend them to draw a Copy from their Journal of their Address to her Majesty." — Ibid.

"Nov. 18, 1703. The Secy, Jonathan Corwin & Penn Townsend Esq<sup>rs</sup> were named a Comm<sup>tee</sup> of the Comm<sup>tee</sup> of the Board to inspect the Journal of the Represent<sup>es</sup> being attended by the Clerk of the House to receive a Copy of their Address to her Majesty, pursuant to the Message they sent up the last Night — And accordingly the said Comm<sup>tee</sup> received a Copy of said Address attested by the Clerk of the Represent<sup>es</sup> & examined in their Presence." — Ibid.

"Nov. 18, 1703. Upon reading the said Address, It being observed it had relation to a Memorial accompanying of it, A Message was sent to the House by Samuel Patridge & Samuel Hayman Esq<sup>rs</sup> to desire a Copy of the said Memorial, who returned Answer from the House that they would prepare a Copy of the same." — Ibid., p. 13.

"Nov. 19, 1703. A Message was sent to the House for a Copy of their Memorial accompanying their Address, which the Messengers brought up with them." — Ibid.

On the twenty-third the Governor made a speech to the Assembly in which occurs the passage which, under that date, appears in the note to chapter 114 above referred to, and which preceded the following reference by him to the queen's commands respecting the proposed work at Pemaquid: —

" . . . but that if they would make one Step towards complying with her Majesty's Commands in the Matter referring to Pemaquid by granting any Sum of Money towards that Work, they sh<sup>d</sup> see what Representation he would make thereof, & her Majesty's Answer thereto, which might be expected by May following, before one Shovel of Mortar were laid." — Ibid., p. 15.

Constantine Phipps had been acting agent of the province, and, in that capacity, April 8, 1703, had written to the General Court, "intimating his presenting the Address sent the last Year to her Majesty, & the Application he had made for a Supply of warlike Stores." †

This letter had been read October 27, 1703, and the resolve thereon prepared for rewarding the writer for his services, which was afterwards passed as chapter 79 of the resolves of 1703-4. The representatives had passed the resolve November 12, 1703, and it was pending at the time the above speech was delivered by the Governor. At the beginning of this speech, as if to resent the agent's interference with affairs that properly belonged to the Governor as the regularly appointed intermediary between the Privy Council and the Assembly, Dudley made the observation upon the subject of Phipps's relations to the General Court, and his recompense, which appears in the note to that resolve.

More than a year passed before the Governor again reminded the Assembly of the queen's commands relative to the rebuilding of the fort at Pemaquid. In his speech at the beginning of the fourth session (December 27, 1704), he, by command of the Lords of Trade, communicated, as follows, the expression of their regret at the obstinacy of the Assembly in this matter, and of their resentment of the indecorum of the House in sending to the queen an address* without the Governor's knowledge and consent:—

“ . . . I am also Comanded by the Right Honorable The Lords Comissioners of trade & plantations to acquaint you that they are sorry for the refractory temper of the assembly referring to her Majestyes Comands for the rebuilding of pemaquid, & that your address in Excuse: thereof did not reach so farr as that board & so came not to her Majesty & that it is very vnfit that assemblyes should make representations to her Majesty without the Consent & Knowledge of her Majestyes Governour. . . .” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 24.

Nothing appears to have been done by the Legislature of 1704-5, after this date, nor in the first session of the next year, either in regard to salaries or fortifications.

The contribution required of Massachusetts towards defraying the cost of the fort at Piscataqua was not one of the matters upon which Dudley received instruction upon his appointment as governor. The exactions of the government of New Hampshire in the form of tolls as an equivalent for the protection which this fort afforded to commerce on the Piscataqua River had been a subject of complaint † by citizens of Maine inhabiting the eastern shore of that river, and might well be considered as more than offsetting any benefit derived by Massachusetts from it as a barrier to foreign invasion. Besides, the council of New Hampshire were preparing a memorial ‡ to the Lords of Trade, to be sent at the same time with the address of Massachusetts, asking for a supply of ammunition and for a detail of soldiers to garrison that fort.

Such was the condition of the several subjects which were to be considered by the Legislature in preparing at the approaching session a formal address to be tendered to the queen.

The Assembly convened on the fifth of September, and the Governor, according to custom, delivered the opening speech, in which he fulfilled his purpose to lay before the whole Assembly the letters and commands that he had already submitted to the Council, as follows:—

“ Gentlemen

When I parted from you last I had no Intention to have seen you upon this Prorogation, but to have left the ordinary affairs of the Government to ye usuall time of your sitting nearer ye Winter, but upon ye Receipt of Her Majesties gracious Letters which I have now to lay before you I Judge ye present Session absolutely necessary, That you may not want an opportunity early to shew yr Obedience, & I may have ye Satisfaction to represent It, Her Majestys Comands contained In these Letters are not new, but such as I brought with me at my arrivall & have since been renewed by Her Majties most gracious Letters at all times, ye Articles are ye rebuilding Pemaquid, The Assistance of ye Fortifications at Piscataqua River, and ye Settling of Salarys for ye Support of Her Majties Governour & Lientenat Governour —

Gentlemen of ye Representatives

Your Journell will acquaint you of ye proceedings of your hous as well, as of ye Council In ye Affair of Pemaquid —

That ye Comitte of ye Assembly of both houses upon view of ye Ruines when they attended me thither Three years since, represented ye benefit of restoring That important place & ye Council from time to time accepted That return, so yt our neglect of her Majties Comands In yt Article rested at yr Door —

In ye other Article of ye Establishment of Salarys for ye Governour & Lieutenant Governour It has been frequently lay'd before you, & messages & votes of ye Council sent you, to make better provision for ye Government than has been done, but yt which Her Majesty insists upon in this matter is an Establishment of A Salary upon Those Offices yt Her Servants may know what to depend upon for their Just Support & Encouragement In Her Service.

Her Majty has graciously Comanded mee to Represent to the Assembly their great neglect of their Duty to Her Majty & their own security, In this ocasion & yt you do forthwith apply yourselves to ye rebuilding ye fort at Pemaquid, & to contribute towards ye charge of ye fort at Piscataqua & to the settling of Salarys upon her Majties Governr & Lient Governr —

And yt ye neglect of these Comands will shew this Assembly undeserving of Her Majties royall favour & bounty towards them.

Gentlemen

You will allow me to tell you that after all the Royall favours & Protections we have had from Her Majty during Her prosperous Reign These are ye only Comands That have been given us & our neglect & Disobedience will be very much aggravated & attended with very evill Consequences

I very well know yt It will be easily objected that this Province is at great charge in ye present warr with ye French & Indians, but I must as well remember you yt these comands were given us in peace before the troubles began, when there was no such objection to be offered, & our Just obedience to Her Majty is ye nearest method yt I know of to procure ye favour of Almighty God to restore us peace & put us Into a Capacity to obey Her Majestys Comands in greater things than These. . . .” — Ibid., p. 33.

† Resolves, 1701-2, chapter 19.

‡ See note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 120.

In recording this speech the Secretary added the following memorandum :—

“His Excellency having ended his Speech Ordered her Majesties gracious Letter dated from Whitehall January 25th 1704, 5, to be read Containing her Majesties Commands referring to the Articles of his Excellencys Speech, And deliver'd the said Letter with his Speech to the Speaker, and dismiss'd the House to their Business.”—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 148.

On the next day the representatives sent to the Council for concurrence a responsive message, as follows :—

“Ordered That the following Message be Sent up to the Board in answer to His Excellency's Speech at the opening of this Court. viz;

That referring to Her Majties Comand for Rebuilding of Pemaquid fort, This Court at their Session in february last made their Humble Adresse to Her Majesty, which was Since the Date of Her last Letter And We hope when It Arrives to Her Majties sight, will be graciously accepted.

And as to the other Two Articles of Contributing to the charge of Piscataqua fort, and Settling of Salaries. They are matters of so great Consequence, That We Desire, They may be Debated and Answered, by a full House, which at present there is not, the members of Three Counties being absent, (It not being the usuall time of meeting.)

And the Affaires of the Husbandry are yet so pressing that We cannot without great Inconveniency Continue sitting so long at this time as is necessary, to Prepare an Answer, and adresse, proper to be laid before her Majesty. Therefore Propose That the further Consideration, of the Premisses may be referred to the next session of this Court.”—Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 36.

To this motion for delay the Governor sent a message urgently requesting immediate action upon the subject propounded in his opening speech. The record of this proceeding is as follows :—

“Sept. 7, 1705. Upon the Message recieved Yesterday from the Representatives, His Excellency sent a Message to the House by the Secretary for a List of their present Members, Which being brought up. It appeared their Number was Fifty six, Whereupon his Excellency sent the Secretary again with a written Message to the House in these Words ;

Viz,
The Governour has commanded me to acquaint you, That he cannot rest satisfied with the Vote sent up Yesterday for a further Delay of an Answer to her Majesties Commands now under Consideration, but desires that the House of Representatives will proceed to the several Articles of Her Majesties gracious Letter, And if any Members of the House be wanting, they may be sent for to give their Attendance on Tuesday at furthest, That the Resolves of the Assembly may be sent Home by Her Majesties Ship the Guernsey now in this Port.”—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 149.

The representatives replied in another message urging delay and giving additional reasons for it, as follows :—

“Sept. 7, 1705. Major Converse, Lt Coll. Checkley, Major Samuel Brown Mr Jewett & Cpt. Samuel Phipps of the Representatives attended his Excellency with a Message from the House to pray his Excellency, that agreeable to their Message Yesterday they may have further Time for Consideration of the Commands contained in her Majesties Letter being of great Importance, they having also address'd her Majesty with Reference to the Affair of Pemaquid before the Date of her Majesties said Letter, And had yet no Advice of the Presenting of their said Address, Which they humbly hoped would find a gracious Acceptance.”—Ibid., p. 150.

On the eighth, “His Excellency sent a Message by the Secretary to the Representatives, To enquire If the House had any Thing to offer to the Board this Fore-Noon, And the House returning Answer they had Nothing. Adjourned to Monday the 10th of Sept. Curr; at two a Clock. P M.”*

On the tenth, “The Council met, & having no Business before them, & his Excy. not coming to Town. Adjourned unto To Morrow at Ten in the Morning.”*

On the eleventh, a committee of the House consisting of “Cpt Savage, Major Bradford & Mr Walker of the Representatives” brought up “with a Message” the following “Answer in Writing to the Articles contained in his Excellencys Speech † at the Opening of this Session,”:—

“May It Please Your Excellency

In Answer to those Articles of your Excellency's Speech at the Opening of this Session, referring to Her Majesties Directions for the Building of a fort at Pemaquid, Contributing to the charge of the fort at Piscataqua, & settling of salaries, We crave leave to Offer.

Inprimis, As to the Building of a fort at Pemaquid, We are humbly of Opinion, that Her Majesty, hath received misrepresentations, concerning the necessity and usefulness, of a fort there. Wherefore this House in their humble Adresse to Her Majesty dated the 27th of March 1703. (and since twice repeated) Did amongst other things Lay before Her Majesty, our reasons, why We could not Comply with Her Expectation in that affair. as,

First, The little Benefit, the sd fort was to us, not being (that We could discern) any Bridle to the Enemy, or Barrier to our frontiers: being out of the usuall Road of the Indians; and one hundred miles distant from any English Plantation: And served only to make a safe Anchorage, for a few fishing Boats, that accidentally put in there, But the Expence thereon was very great, not lesse than Twenty Thousand Pounds.

Secondly, The charge of the said fort will be such That. We cannot see how this Province can possibly sustain it, having already Laid out, severall large sums of money, in the Raising of new fortifications, on Castle-Island, with diverse others in this Province of great Importance, which was set forth, in the said Adresse, and memoriall accompanying of the same, but understand, We have been so unhappy, as that the said Adresse, & memoriall did not reach Her Majesty's hand, because proceeding from this House alone, although the addressing of Her Majesty is a Priviledge, ever Allowed to the meanest of Her subjects.

† Ibid., p. 151.

We did therefore at our session in february last Joine, with the Council, in making our humble Adresse to Her Majesty, upon the affair afores<sup>d</sup> which We hope some time since hath Arrived to Her maj<sup>ties</sup> favourable acceptance.

In which latter Adresse, was further Inserted the insupportable Charge, that has been Created, by the present War, which has Cost us, not lesse than Eighty Thousand Pounds. The greatest Part whereof is still unpaid.

And We would now further suggest, That the Fortification at Casco-Bay (which in the first Intention of It, was Designed only as a Cover to a small Trading-House, Erected there, at the Request of the Eastern Indians, for a near supply, and to steady them in their Obedience to the Crown of England, and to Prevent their Going to, or Dependence on the French) is now very much Enlarged demanding a Great Expence, for the support thereof, and is seated near the Extent of the former settlements, & Plantations, of the English within this Province, and considerably beyond any of the present English Dwellings.

Which Reasons, We humbly Hope, will render us excusable, for not Building a ffort at Pemaquid.

2<sup>dly</sup> The 2<sup>d</sup> Article, is the Contributing to the charge of Piscataqva ffort.

The Fort in that Province has been built severall years past, when It was not Desired, or thought necessary, that this Province should Assist them therein The late Reforms, & Reparations made of the same, as We have been Informed, stands that whole Province, about the sum of five Hundred Pounds which doth not amount to the Quota of severall particular Towns within this Province; towards the Charge of the War, within the Compasse of one year. And all the Navigation, & Trade, of this Province coming down Piscataqva River, have been charged with a considerable Duty towards the support of that fort.

And this Province, hath alwaies Afforded such Guards, as were needfull for their Haling of masts, Timber &c<sup>a</sup> for Her Majesty's service, whilst the principall Benefit, and Advantage, of that Trade has accru'd to That Province. And They have never Contributed any thing to the Charge, of our fforces, fforts, and Garrisons, or Guards by sea, that are as great a safety, and Defence to them as to ourselves. But the Publick Charge of that Government has been much lesse, proportionably, than the Charge of this.

Which being Considered We hope no Assistance will be Expected from Us, towards the charge of the s<sup>d</sup> fort.

As to the setting of fixed salaries.

The Circumstances of this Province as to our Ability to support the Government, are at times so different, that We fear the setting of fixed salaries, will be of no service to Her Majesty's Interests, but may Prove prejudiciall, to Her Majesty's good subjects here, And as it is the native Right, and Priviledge of English subjects, by Consent of Parliament, from time, to time, to Raise, & Dispose such sums of money, as the present Exigency of Affairs calls for, (which Priviledge We Her Majesty's Loyall, and Dutifull subjects, have hitherto lived in the Enjoyment of,) so We Hope, and Pray alwaies to Enjoy the same under our most Gracions sovereign, and Her successors.

Upon the foregoing Heads We Purpose to Adresse Her Majesty: and with our humble Thanks for Her Royall Bounty, wherein We hope the Council will Joine with us, And That your Excellency's favourable Influence will not be wanting thereto.

THOMAS OAKES Speaker." — Mass.

This answer was immediately read in Council, and "His Excellency proposing that the Council would speak to the said Answer, Some of the Council moved that they might have Consideration of the said Paper till To Morrow, The Matter therein being of great Importance, And the Paper to ly upon the Board, Which his Excellency Ordered."* On the next day the following advice by the Council appears of record: —

"The Answer of the Representatives Read yesterday, was again Read & after some Debate thereabout, A previous Question was put, Whether the Council desired any longer Debate, which being answered, Not,

The following Questions were drawn up & severally put the Vote; Viz, Question, whether the Council do advise the Building a Fort at Pemaquid?
Answer, In the Negative.

Quest: whether the Council do advise that this Government do contribute towards the Charge of the Fort at Piscataqua River in the Province of New Hampshire? Answer In the Negative.

Quest: whether the Council do advise to the Settling of a fix'd Salary for the Govern<sup>r</sup> & Lieut. Govern<sup>r</sup> for the Time being? Answer In the Negative." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 153.

The two branches being thus in entire harmony upon each of the subjects proposed by the Lords of Trade the preparation of the address became only a matter of detail, to be settled by a joint committee. Accordingly, immediately after the Council had expressed their opinion and advice, they passed the first part of the order which constitutes this chapter and sent it to the House for concurrence, whereupon the House added the final paragraph, as shown in the text.

See chapter 56, post.

* Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 152.

In his opening speech to the Assembly this session, the Governor addressing the representatives thus directed the postponement of all business not responsive to the commands of the queen in the letter he had received from her and which he laid before the Assembly: —

That you may with all freedom apply yourselves to give Her Majesty Satisfaction in Her Royall comand, I do desire & direct that you proceed forthwith to ye Consideration of Her Majestys most gracious Letter now given you, & I shall meet the Assembly in another session in ye Usual Season about a month hence when ye occasion of ye Province will better allow It to which all affairs depending shall be referred. And this Assembly will give me their Answer, And I hope remember,” etc.* — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 35.

This was on the fifth of September, and immediately thereupon the order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the Council and sent to the House for concurrence. Although it was read in the House on the same day, there was other business which the representatives evidently felt ought not to be postponed, and therefore their vote of concurrence was not passed until the fifteenth, when, that being the last day of the session, the order was consented to by the Governor.

The proclamation in accordance with the request of the representatives as expressed in this chapter was prepared and read in Council September 20, 1705, as appears by the following entry: —

“Pursuant to a Message from the Representatives at their last sitting, and then agreed to by the Board, that Thursday the 18th of October next be celebrated as a day of publick Thanksgiving to God throughout this Province, for the great and multiplied occasions thereof to be Enumerated by the Board.

A Proclamation by His Excellency appointing the sd day to be observed accordingly, with the occasions therein Enumerated, was read, advised to and then signed by the Govern<sup>r</sup>.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 216.

The following text of this proclamation is from the News-Letter, published October 1, 1705: —

“By His EXCELLENCY, JOSEPH DUDLEY Esqr. Captain General and GOVERNOUR in Chief, in & over Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New England in America. A PROCLAMATION for a Publick THANKSGIVING.

WHEREAS it has pleased Almighty God in his Great Goodness to preserve Her Majesties Sacred Person, and to prosper Her Arms in the Just War, wherein Her Majesty and Her Allies are Engaged for the preservation of the Liberties of Europe, Having also been Graciously pleased, in the Summer past, to restrain the Insults and Outrage of our barbarous Enemies, & to grant us great Quiet and Tranquillity; To bless the Fruits of the Earth, and to give us the hopeful prospect of a plentiful Harvest; To grant us general Health, and to Smile upon us in other our Publick Interests and Enjoyments.

Wherefore humbly Adoring the Divine Goodness, and duly that such great and publick Blessings do call for Publick and Solemn Acknowledgements.

I Have thought fit, by the Advice of Her Majesties Council, & at the Desire of the Representatives in their late Session, hereby to Order and Appoint, That a General THANKSGIVING to Almighty God, for these His Mercies be Observed throughout this Province, within the severall Towns and Districts thereof, on Thursday the Eighteenth Day of October next: And do strictly forbid all Servile Labour thereupon; Exhorting both Ministers and People to Solemnize the said Day after a Religious manner, and to offer up sincere and hearty Praises to GOD.

Given at the Council-Chamber in Boston the 20th Day of September, 1705. In the Fourth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady ANNE, by the Grace of GOD of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, QUEEN, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By Order of the Governour and Council,

WM TYNG." — Mass.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 126.

This petition was read in the House on the twenty-sixth of June but no further proceeding upon it in this session has been discovered.

In the second session the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed on the seventh of September and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the fifteenth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

With the petition were filed the following accounts, and the letter accompanying a statement which appears to have been sent by Captain Thomas Harvey of Amesbury to Tyng at Chelmsford:—

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed December 27, 1705, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

The expedition in which the sicknesses were contracted is described in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 98; and see note to chapter 27, ante.

Chap. 56. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 155, and archives, vol. 20, p. 104.

The joint committee appointed in chapter 52, ante, in response to a message sent to them, returned answer, September 13, 1705, that "they could not be ready so as to make their report today." On the fourteenth the following proceedings are recorded:—

* Sic. The footing agrees with the account given in the chapter, but is twopence less than the figures show.

† Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 249.

‡ Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 256.

“John Hathorne Esqr Chair Man of the Committees for an Address to her Majesty, reported the Draught offered by the Committee, Which was Read two several Times & laid upon the Board; His Excellency the Govern<sup>r</sup> & the Lieutent Govern<sup>r</sup> with drawing, The Council went upon the Debate thereof, And proposed several Amendments & Alterations to be made therein and sent them down with the Draught to the Representatives.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 154.

The amendments and alterations thus proposed by the Council were discussed by the representatives with the result which appears in the following entry of the Council's acceptance of the draught as finally amended by the House; that is, as the address appears in this chapter: —

“Sept. 15, 1705. The Draught of an Address to her Majesty reported by the Committees, with the Alterations & Amendments proposed yesterday by the Council were sent up from the Representatives with the Agreement of that House to some of them & to others not, & some Alteration made by them selves; w<sup>ch</sup> being Read The Council directed a Draught to be accordingly made & Returned to the House.” — Ibid., p. 155.

On the same day it was passed to be engrossed, in the House, and the vote to engross was forthwith concurred in by the Council.

No evidence has been discovered that Dudley signified his approval of this address or of the order appointing the committee to prepare the draught thereof. On the contrary, by the following extract from a representation of the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations to the Privy Council it appears that he complained of the Assembly for not implicitly obeying the queen's commands respecting those particulars in which, in their address and memorial, they asked the indulgence and assistance of the crown: —

“Col. Dudley does likewise inform us, that notwithstanding Your Majesty's repeated letters signifying your just expectations, that the Assembly there should take care to rebuild a good fort at Pemaquid, which they, by their negligence, lost during the last war, to the French and Indians; as also, that they should contribute towards the fort at Piscataqua, the same being of absolute necessity for the security of those colonies, and for protecting from the French and Indians Your Majesty's subjects, in providing masts and other naval stores for the use of Your Majesty's royal navy; — they have absolutely refused to comply with Your Majesty's directions therein; as they have also refused to settle any fixed salary pursuant to Your Majesty's commands, upon Your Majesty's Governor and Lieutenant Governor of that province; but at the year's end, they give them, as also to the judges and other civil officers, such allowances as they pretend to judge they may have deserved which renders the support of the said Governors and other officers, precarious and dependent on the people.” — Records of the Colony of Rhode Island, 1707-1740, vol. IV., p. 14.

Chap. 57. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 155. It is preserved in archives, vol. 71, p. 169.

Chapter 75 of the resolves of the year 1704-5, entreating the Governor to demolish the fort at Saco and to erect another at or near Winter Harbor, and appropriating therefor a sum not exceeding two hundred pounds, was passed November 17, 1704. Although nothing appears to have been done under that chapter during the ensuing winter, the Governor, in the following passage in his opening speech to the new Assembly (May 31, 1705), informed them of his intention to proceed in the work as soon as his other official duties would permit: —

“Capt Redknapp Her Ma<sup>ty</sup>s Engineer has lately viewed the ground at Winter harbour for the raising the Fortification intended there, and I shall proceed in it as the pressing Affairs of the War will Allow me agreeable to the desire of the last Assembly, and shall then draw off the Garrison from Saco.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 28.

During the second session Captain Redknapp presented to the Legislature the following itemized estimate of the cost of the work, together with a draught of the proposed fort, as shown in the accompanying plate: —

— Ibid., vol. 71, p. 169.

The House thereupon passed the order which constitutes this chapter; and it was concurred in by the Council on the same day. This work on the fortification being wholly within the province of the Governor as commander-in-chief, he did not formally signify his consent to the order, but approved of it by conforming to the wish of the Legislature thus expressed.

See, further, resolves, 1706-7, chapter 76, and particularly 1708-9, chapter 47.

Chap. 58. This chapter is from archives, vol. 62, p. 510. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 157.

The fact recited in the preamble to this chapter has not been found elsewhere recorded. That Coit was notified of the order of the General Court is evident by the statement in the preamble to chapter 66, post.

On the twenty-sixth of October the House passed and sent to the Council the following order, which, on the same day, was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor :—

“Ordered That the vote, abouewritten be Revived” — Ibid., p. 164.

The expedition in which Rolfe received the wound mentioned above is described in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 98.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

The petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is as follows :—

The above petition was read in the Council on the twenty-seventh when the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the House for concurrence. On the twenty-ninth it was read in the House and again on the thirty-first, when a vote to concur was passed, and it was consented to by the Governor.

It will be observed that no particular description of the estate to be conveyed is given either in the petition or the order. For want of such particularity, possibly, no conveyance under this order has been found of record. See, also, private act, number twenty-nine.

Chap. 62. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 162, and archives, vol. 62, p. 502.

"To his Excy Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> General & Gov<sup>r</sup> in Chief in and over Her Mat<sup>y</sup>s provinc of the Massachusetts Bay in N: Engl<sup>d</sup> the hon<sup>ble</sup> the Council & Representatives in General Court Assembled

That whereas your Petitioners At their own proper Cost and charge did in the year 1704 Equip and fit out in Warlike manner the s<sup>d</sup> Briganteen Charles, with Commission against Her Mat<sup>y</sup>s Enemies the French and Spaniards. And the s<sup>d</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> Halsey and Company haveing taken a Spanish ship Laden with Wines and Brandy, brought her into Rhode Island where the s<sup>d</sup> ship with her Lading were Adjudged and condemned in Her Mat<sup>y</sup>s high Court of Admiralty, as good & lawfull prize. After which your petitioners Transported & brought some of the s<sup>d</sup> Wines & Brandy to Boston. For which the Impost Officer demands a Duty./—

Now your Petitioners humbly pray That in asmuch as they were At so great a charge in Equipping & fitting out the s<sup>d</sup> Vessel, and run so great a risque for the publick Service to make Spoyle upon Her Mat<sup>y</sup>s Enemies, They may be Exempted from the payment of any Duty's or Impost for the s<sup>d</sup> Wines and Brandy brought to this Port./—

And your Petitioners as in Duty bound, shall ever pray &

& Partners." — Mass. Archives, vol. 62, p. 502.

This petition was presented, first, in the second session. It was read in Council, September 15, 1705, and sent to the House, where, on the same day a resolve was passed granting the prayer that the whole impost be remitted, as prayed for. To this the Council refused to agree and the subject seems to have been resumed in the third session, by a vote of the Council on the second of November for the abatement of one-half the impost, as it appears in this chapter. It was immediately sent to the House for concurrence, and was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The brigantine Charles was the same vessel which set out under command of Captain Daniel Plowman, but was seized by Quelch and his company, for which act several of those most actively engaged were executed as pirates, as narrated in the note to chapter 47 of the resolves of 1704-5.

It appears by the following copy of a deposition and commission that within a few months after the unhappy termination of Quelch's cruise the Charles was refitted as a privateer:—

"John Halsey of Boston in New England Marriner Command<sup>r</sup> of the Brig<sup>t</sup> Charles, Sworn Saith, That in the month of November Anno 1704, being at Road Island with his said Vessell, he had a Commission granted him by Govern<sup>r</sup> Cranston to Equipp and Command the said Briganteen as a private man of war, by virtue whereof he took a Spanish ship upon the Coast of New Spain in the West Indies. And further saith That for the manning of his said Vessell he had Twenty five New England men to serve him that came out of the Government of the Massachusetts Bay, where Colonel Dudley is Govern<sup>r</sup>, And that his whole Complement was but Forty seven when he Sayled

Apparently the first public intimation that Halsey had secured his complement of men appeared in the News-Letter, as follows: —

“Newport-Rhode-Island, April 20. Here is one Bell arrived from Curacoa bound for Connecticut, who says, that Capt Halsey got 30 able Sailors such as he wanted at Jamaica.” — No. 53. April 16-23, 1705.

It would seem that upon the arrival of Halsey at Newport with his prize he libelled her for condemnation before Nathaniel Byfield, judge of the Court of Admiralty, who, thereupon, on the sixth of June, had proceeded so far as to order the ship to be surveyed, and the cargo to be taken out and stored under the charge of three watchmen; but upon view of Halsey's commission, granted by Governor Cranston after he had received notice that his authority to issue such commissions was denied by the crown, Byfield declined to adjudge the ship and cargo lawful prize to the captors, upon the ground that the commission was invalid, — it being issued in contravention of the queen's orders and the decision of the Privy Council that the charter of Rhode Island had conferred no admiralty powers.

The government and people of Rhode Island seem to have been greatly exercised at this decision of the judge, and it immediately became a topic of discussion both in Rhode Island and at Boston.* On the sixteenth, Governor Cranston addressed the following letter to Byfield: —

“Newport, on Rhode Island, June 16, 1705.

Sir: There being a Spanish prize brought into this port by Capt'n John Halsey Commander of the private man of war, Charles, who was commissioned by myself against her Majesty's enemies, pursuant to her Majesty's Declaration of war, and particular command, to use our utmost endeavors to annoy the subjects of France, and Spain, &c., all which you have been and are well knowing unto, and have made a considerable step towards the condemnation of said prize; but for what reason you defer the full accomplishment thereof, I am not fully satisfied, though I know there was a pretence or scruple made by you, whether said prize was taken by a lawfull commission, &c.

Sir: Since the said prize was taken by my commission, which hath been deemed a lawfull and good commission by yourself, and is now as good as ever, though otherways pretended, in behalf of her Majesty, the Lord High Admiral and captors, I can do no less (deeming myself thereunto obliged) than to require a condemnation of said prize, according to law, and that you give your positive answer thereunto, and if by you declined or delayed, your reasons for the same, that such methods and measures may be taken as the authority of this her Majesty's Collony shall think most proper for her Majesty's service and the interest of her subjects, and encouragement against the common enemy. I am, Sir,

Your humble servant,

SAMUELL CRANSTON.” — Rec-

* “... Capt. Halsey's Prize is not yet condemn'd.” — Boston News-Letter, No. 60. June 4 to 11, 1705.

Three days later the assembly convened and passed the following preamble and declaration:—

“Whereas, our Honored Governor hath represented unto this Assembly, that there is a Spanish prize brought into this government by Capt'n John Halsey, Commander of the brigantee Charles, a private man of war, commissioned by himself against her Majesty's enemies the French and Spaniards, pursuant to her Majesty's Declaration of War, and particular commands unto this government, to use our utmost endeavor to annoy the said subjects of France and Spain; and that the said Capt'n Halsey having requested condemnation of said prize, of the Honorable Coll. Nath'l Byfield, Judge of her Majesty's High Court of Admiralty. The said Judge, after having made a considerable step towards the condemnation, pretended said prize was not taken by a lawful commission, alledging that this government had no authority to grant any commission to private men of war, [and] so suspended the accomplishment of the condemnation, to the contempt of her Majesty's authority here established under the great Seal of England, and to the detriment of her Majesty's interest and considerable damage of the captors.

This Assembly have accordingly debated the matter, and considering the privileges and liberties granted in our Charter, as well as her Majesty's Declaration of War, and the particular commands to annoy the subjects of France and Spain, and severall instructions from time to time sent unto this government relating to the government of private men of war, &c., do deem the Governor of this Collony from time to time, as well as the present Governor, by leave and permission of the Generall Assembly of said Collony, have had and still have full power and authority to grant commissions to private men of war against her Majesty's publick enemies; and that the said Governors have been, and still are justified therein, provided they have and do take bond and do all other things as the law directs relating to private men of war.”—Ibid., pp. 535, 536.

The passage of this vote of the assembly, Byfield, in his letter to Secretary Hedges hereafter given in full, attributes to the influence of Colman, one of the owners of the Charles, and at the same time the “Agent for the Lord High Admiral, and one of the Commissioners for Prizes,” and intimates that it emboldened the Rhode Island officials to be more audacious and clamorous in their demands for a judgment of condemnation to the captors than they would have dared to be without this show of authority.

Byfield, who had adjourned his court to the twenty-seventh, improved the intervening time in advising with Roger Mompesson,* judge of the admiralty at New York, and with Dudley, at Boston, and had fully made up his mind to condemn the prize to the crown, as having been taken without commission. But the owners in the mean time appealed to Governor Dudley in his capacity of vice-admiral, which commission embraced Rhode Island, who wrote to Byfield, at Bristol, stating that, “if speedy proceedings and condemnation be not made, all the cargo of the prize will be embezzled or lost.” Upon receipt of this letter which, it seems, reached him on the day he had appointed for his decision, Byfield changed his mind, and adjudged the prize to the captors. While sitting in the case he was interrupted by “about eighteen lusty fellows” (probably the councillors of Rhode Island), who presented a paper to the Register of the Court with the demand that he read it, which Byfield forbade. This paper would seem to have been the above vote of the council. The judge's own account of the whole affair is given in the following letter to Secretary Hedges, above referred to.—

Bristol [Rhode Island], July 19th, 1705.

Right Honorable: I humbly take leave to inform your Honor that it is now a year since his Excellency, Joseph Dudley, Esq'r, her Majesty's Captain General and Governor of the Massachusetts Bay, &c., sent me her Majesty's order in Council of the 28th January, 1703, referring to the irregularities practised in the proprietary Collony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, and her Majesty's letter of the 2d March, 1703, to the Governor and Company of that Collony, commanding them to submit to the Court of Admiralty, constituted by the Lord High Admiral, and to the powers of Vice Admiralty vested in Col. Dudley, Governor of the Massachusetts Bay, together with a letter from the Lords Commissioners of Trade and Plantations, dated the 17th March, 1703, referring to the said order and letter from her Majesty; upon receipt whereof, I went to the Governor of Rhode Island, and was with him upon the receipt of said order and letters, which he showed to me, and we read them, and he told me he had given a commission to one Capt'n Lawrence, and if he took any prizes he did expect that his commission should be acknowledged, and he would grant no more.

Yet upon the 7th of November last, the said Governor Cranston, granted a commission to Capt'n Halsey, Commander of the brigantee Charles, a private man of war, who the beginning of June last, brought a prize into Newport, on Rhode Island, being a ship of one hundred tons, laden with brandy, rum, wine, snush,† sugar, paper and oil, &c., which Capt'n Halsey acquainted me with soon after his arrival, desiring me to go down to condemn her; and at the same time, he moved for a warrant to unload her, she being very leaky.

Whereupon, I went the next morning to Newport, and gave order for a survey of the ship, and it being reported that the ship was leaky, the cargo was in danger, I made out * Mompesson, appointed judge of the admiralty for New York and the adjoining colonies, April, 1703, arrived in Philadelphia the next summer. In July, 1704, he was appointed chief justice of New York to succeed Chief Justice Bridges.

“His Excellency has been pleased to appoint Roger Mompesson Esq. Chief Justice of this Province to the general Satisfaction of it.”—Boston News-Letter, No. 14. July 17–21, 1704.

From Paul Dudley's reference to him as “his father Mompesson” (Sewall's Diary, vol. II., p. 148, note), it is inferred that the former, while in England, had been his pupil.

† Sic, in copy: snuff?

a warrant, to unload her, and appointed three men to take charge of the cargo, and to keep each man a lock upon every door, untill condemnation.

And upon the 6th day of June, I held a Court of Admiralty, in order to the condemnation, having first told Capt'n Halsey that I had been ill treated of late by Mr. Colman, about the charge of a Court for condemning a prize in Boston; and he being one of the owners of Capt'n Halsey's vessel, I expected that somebody should engage for the payment thereof, being five per cent.; but nobody would. However, I proceeded in holding a Court; and upon examination of the prisoners, it appeared to be a Spanish ship, manned with Spaniards, and loaded with goods belonging to the subjects of the King of Spain, &c.; but when I found she was taken by Governor Cranston's commission, granted some months after his receipt of the Queen's commands, I declared I could not proceed to a condemnation upon that commission, for that I was a witness to the Governor's having received the Queen's commands to the contrary, and adjourned the Court until the next day to consider, and found the Governor and people much disturbed at my questioning his commission. And I having taken care to secure the ship and cargo, I adjourned the proceedings unto the 27th June, in order to my taking the best advice I could obtain in so weighty an affair; I wrote to Mr. Mumpesson, the Judge of the Admiralty at New York, and went down to His Excellency, her Majesty's Vice Admiral of these parts, and when I had advised all I could, I returned home, fully determined to condemn the prize to her Majesty, as taken without any commission.

But upon the 26th June, Colonel Nicholas Page (who is one of the owners of the said private man of war) brought me a petition, which he, with the rest of the owners had signed, to his Excellency, the Governor, and his Excellency's advice thereupon, to condemn the prize to the captors, [a] copy whereof, I shall herewith send to your Honor.

The next morning, I proceeded to Newport, contrary to the advice of many of my friends, who told me there was a talk that if I do not condemn the prize upon Governor Cranston's commission, my life was threatened — however I proceeded.

And when I came to Newport, the Governor came to me, who I acquainted with what I had heard, and then proceeded to hold a Court of Admiralty. And in the first place, I did declare, that I had considered Governor Cranston's commission, on which Captain Halsey founded his information against the prize, and found that the Governor who referred to the Charter in the commission, had acted contrary thereunto in granting the same in his own name; when, according to the Charter, it ought to have been in the name of the Governor and Company, and that the Charter itself empowers them to resist by force of arms, as well by sea as land; and also to kill, slay and destroy, &c., all such person or persons as at any time shall attempt or enterprize the destruction, invasion, detriment or annoyance of that her Majesty's Plantation, which seems to fall very short of an Admiralty jurisdiction. And her sacred Majesty in her letter to that government of the 2d March, 1703, hath declared, that there is no Admiralty jurisdiction granted in their Charter. So that upon the whole, I could understand no otherwise, but that the prize was taken without a commission.

But having considered the petition of the owners, in behalf of themselves and Capt'n John Halsey and Company, to his Excellency, setting forth that they had taken a commission from the Governor of Rhode Island, which they supposed had been a good commission, but now were made to understand by the Judge of the Admiralty and otherwise, that the commission was not vaild and legall, the Vice Admiralty of Rhode Island being vested in his Excellency, and praying that the owners and captors, who had ventured their estates and lives, might have the full reward and benefit of their prize, as if their commission had been legally granted, together with his Excellency's advice thereupon, and the odd circumstances of things at Rhode Island at this time. I did adventure to condemn her a lawful prize to the captors, saving to the Lord High Admiral, &c.

When I had so done, about eighteen lusty fellows drew up to the table where I sat, and one of them delivered a paper to the Register and demanded of him to read it, which he going to do, I took it out of his hand, and told them that no paper should be read there without my allowance.

They replied, that they gave it [to] him as one of the Council of that government, and would have it read.

I told them he was there a Register of that Court, and should read nothing there without my allowance, and ordered the Court to be dismissed.

And when we came out, was hooted down the street by those fellows that offered the paper, without any notice being taken by any in the government there. The paper was directed to Governor Cranston, in justification of his commission, which I had just before declared illegall and void.

It is not the first time I have suffered in the service of the Crown, but hope care will be taken that her Majesty's Courts and officers may be treated more agreeably.

They would not (I do think) have been so absurd in their carriage, had not Mr. Colman (who is Agent for the Lord High Admiral,* and one of the Commissioners for Prizes) solicited that government to hold a Court for the condemnation of the prize, and put them upon passing a strange Act in that government, all which will appear by the copies of Mr. Colman's letters, and of Governor Cranston's letter to myself and of the Act itself; all which are herewith sent.

I humbly hope that my sincere desire and endeavors to serve her Majesty and her subjects in these parts, will be accepted, and that upon the whole, your Honor will see reason favorably to represent me to her Majesty; for I am devoted to her service. And pray that I may be allowed to subscribe myself,

Right Honorable,
Your most dutifull humble servant,

NATHA'L BYFIELD.

The next issue of the News-Letter after the Court sat contained the following item :—

"Newport Rhode, Island, June 29 On Wednesday last Capt. Halsey's Prize was Condemned here at the Court of Admiralty." — No. 63. June 25 to July 2, 1705.

It does not appear that the owners of the Charles had applied to Dudley for a commission, or that he either granted or refused one to the commander. It was possible for Halsey to have sailed under commissions from two or more persons authorized to issue letters of reprisal, but from the following deposition and other papers in the archives it would seem that the son of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief and Vice Admiral, at Boston, had had some part in challenging the legality of Cranston's conduct, and that he was aware that the latter was not disposed to surrender a prerogative to which he believed himself entitled by the words of the charter of the colony of Rhode Island :—

"The Deposition of Paul Dudley Esq; her Majesties Attorney General for the province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England and Advocate of the Court of Admiralty.— Who saith

That on or about the fifth day of June last past being at Newport on Road Island in Company with the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Nathaniel Byfield Esq; Judge of the Court of Admiralty &c., at the House of Samuel Cranston Esq; Governo<sup>r</sup> of sd Island. The sd. Judge complaining of the sd Governo<sup>r</sup>s granting a Comission to Capt Halsey a Privateer after the Receipt of her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Commands to the contrary. The sd Samuel Cranston replied That he had taken the advice of the General Court of that Colony, who were all of Opinion That her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Commands did not forbid him or Restrain him from Granting Commissions for Privateers. And That their Charter Granting them Power of Vice Admiralty he was determined to Exercise that power, and Grant such Comissions untill their Charter was actually and wholly taken away; And that they would not part with their Powers or Government by pieceineal, but would Die all at once; and That they had parted with too many of their priviledges already. —

Archives, vol. 2, p. 150.

It is quite possible that the known avarice of the Dudleys, father and son, may have led Halsey to prefer not to haggle over the extortionate demands of the Vice Admiral, or with the Advocate in a tribunal over which the father had something more than a moral control, and of which the son, by virtue of his office, was an influential member.

The presence of the foregoing papers on file with the petition suggests that in the legislature the petitioners may have encountered some opposition from the Dudleys, especially since it appears that the refusal to remit the whole impost as prayed for began in the council chamber.

From the following correspondence between the owners and Halsey, especially from Halsey's letter written from Fayal, it would seem that his commission was either renewed in Rhode Island, or that Dudley had been induced to grant him one at Boston, for it cannot be imagined that he was openly avowing his purpose to commit piracy by continuing to wage war against the queen's enemies without any show of authority :—

p. 512.

This letter from Fayal, in which it would seem that Halsey had not proceeded upon his voyage as expeditiously as the owners desired and as was required by a prudent consideration of the near expiration of his commission, justifies the suspicion that he had received some authoritative assurances that any such trifling departures from the strict course of duty would for a sufficient consideration be overlooked and condoned. It was followed by a long-continued correspondence, in which is manifested the same easy indifference to consequences.

The following extracts from the representation by the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations to the Privy Council show that Governor Dudley promptly communicated to them his animadversions upon the conduct of the authorities of Rhode Island respecting their attitude towards the laws of trade, and the irregularity of their proceedings in matters of admiralty jurisdiction, notwithstanding the cognizance which Byfield eventually assumed in the case of the brigantine Charles, and the decision made by him in accordance with Dudley's advice:—

“On the contrary, . . . some of these proprietary and charter governments, viz.: Connecticut and Rhode Island, . . . are the refuge and retreat of pirates and illegal traders, and the receptacle of goods imported thither from foreign parts contrary to law. In return of which commodities, those of the growth of these colonies are likewise contrary to law, exported to foreign parts; all which is much encouraged by their not admitting appeals as aforesaid. . . .

That they have refused to submit to Your Majesty's and His Royal Highness's commissions of Vice Admiralty, and for commanding their militia, and have defeated the powers given to the Governors of Your Majesty's neighboring colonies therein. . . .

That when he, Col. Dudley, went to Rhode Island to publish . . . [a] commission from His Royal Highness, by which he is invested with the power of Vice Admiralty, the Governor and council of that Island used indecent expressions, saying, they were en-enslaved and injured, nor would not give (nor have they since given) due obedience to the said commissions. . . .

The said Col. Dudley further gives us an account, that he had sent to the government of Rhode Island Your Majesty's order of council of the 28th of January, 1703-4, for repealing an act made in that colony for establishing Admiralty Courts there, unto which they had promised obedience. But that, nevertheless, after the receipt of such Your Majesty's repeal of that act, they had presumed to grant a commission to John Halsey, a privateer; and have by a declaration in their General Assembly, insisted that they have power so to do, though no such power is granted to them by their charter; which privateer having brought in a Spanish prize, they resolved to proceed to the condemnation thereof, in their pretended court, notwithstanding the admonitions which they received to the contrary, from Col. Dudley, and the judge of the Admiralty constituted for those parts by His Royal Highness.” — Records of the Colony of Rhode Island, 1707-1740, vol. IV., pp. 12-14.

This petition appears to have been presented at the first session and to have been referred to a committee June 26, 1705, together with the following certificate by Captain Haseltine showing that he received his orders from the Colonel on the eighth of April and that in accordance therewith, on the tenth, he detached Corporal Robert Haseltine and four men under him to serve as a picket guard along the Merrimac, and to build a blockhouse “in the neck,” and that on the twenty-eighth of June the blockhouse was finished and occupied by the soldiers so detached, who remained in service until the fourth of July:—

No further action upon the petition appears to have been taken until the third session, when the following petition, containing, besides an account of the services of his men, the items of his account for building the blockhouse, was presented by Captain Haseltine:—

On the twenty-seventh the order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House, and sent to the Council, for concurrence, and on the third of November it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of these allowances was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account † shows that they were paid.

Nothing has been discovered to show how the work of clearing the cut at Gloucester was finally accomplished — whether by Coif's immediate agents, or by workmen employed by the selectmen under the provisions of this chapter. It is certain, however, that the work was done, and that in a few years a very considerable number of vessels annually took advantage of this convenient means of escaping the perils of the outward passage around the cape.

Römer having asked the Lords of Trade and the Board of Ordnance to be relieved of duty in the colonies was superseded by Captain John Redknap. ‡ Apparently unhappy at being thus taken at his word, he seized the opportunity of leave-taking with Dudley to renew his complaints of the treatment he had received, and to invidiously criticise the work of those who had been associated with him, or who had controlled him, in his labors as an engineer. One of his later letters to Dudley, preserved in the Winthrop papers, provoked a severe rejoinder from Dudley and both are given below as illustrating the relations of these two high officials : —

PORTSMOUTH, Jun : ye 7 : 1705.

SE, — Yor Excell<sup>cy</sup>s of ye fird<sup>e</sup> instand I receved, being in answer upon my two last letters of ye 24. & 31. May last past, but I find nothing to my comfort on the account of my just demands & for the good of the Queen's service ; as alsoo (in myn regard) because yo<sup>r</sup> Excell<sup>cy</sup> teakes not the least notice of my offers & proposals for the preservation of the commu case, neither to ye deserving honnour of my self, & whereas, rebus sic stantibus, I can not withstande the lycke hardships, I must therefore submit. Yor Excell<sup>cy</sup> is pleased to say that Capt Redknap is to repaire ye breeches occasioned by the last vyolent storm & high waterflood, & that ye appartements (soe well for officers as comm<sup>n</sup> soldiers) & what further belongs to the defence of ye Fort Will<sup>m</sup> & Mary, you would be glad to see it done ; and will procede further when the Asembly of this Province can be brought to advance mony for it. Then, perhaps, as affaires of waar are now circumstanced, it mae be to tease & prouue very hurtfull ; therefore, I thincke yo<sup>r</sup> Excell<sup>cy</sup> could not have a better opportunity as now before you, to finishe ; and yo<sup>r</sup> Excell<sup>cy</sup> must be sensible of it, considering that in this juncture it is of the highest necessity, to secure that place by the chevaux de frise ag<sup>t</sup> surprize : item, ye ravelin before the gate & conuering of ye same, & by that means to macke a good correspondency for a relief, if occasion should offer ; & lyckwyse the brust-work of ye whole poligon towards the neck, together with ye centry boxes & the settling of all that belongs to ye preservation of ye well, soe that a high flood mae not corrupt ye same in tyme to come, is at present all of the greatest necessity & my duty soe to lay before yo<sup>r</sup> Excell<sup>cy</sup>.

Yor Excell<sup>cy</sup> is pleased to say again that there is no mony in the Treasourey. Now Cap<sup>t</sup> Redknap can not worck, nor meand the breeches, without mony ; neither will he (as I perceve by others) be suche an unwyse man as I am, to offer that whad I have offered, nor do what I have donne : as in paying & ordering the mony, & pinching the same on all accounts, & in providing materials &c. Yor Excell<sup>cy</sup> is sensible how often I have petitioned to you in order to be discharged of all those things et ceteris paribus, but could not obtaine it ; therefore I hope to have donne as an obedient & faithfull servant, and every where compliyed to advance the Queen's and contry's service, according to ye liability & constitution of ye same ; and if I had not donne soe, all the woret might be sensible of it, thad every thing would have been carried on to a great charge & loss of the people. Therefore I thinck to have reason on this present occasion, if any thing should miscary or prouue fatal for want of finishing, it can not be imputed to mee. Therefore I must solemniter proteste against it, and only say that I have not deserved (on account of ye forementioned reasons & soe slavish service in obeeing & submitting to yo<sup>r</sup> Excell<sup>cy</sup>s orders & comands,) suche hard indurations as no notice taken of my proposals ; & that I have written on that head to Whitehall. And if it must be soe, then I shall leave Cap<sup>t</sup> Redknap in his good oppinion, & in a more weiser & better conduct to his quietnes, & shall be glad to see that hee (according to his oppinion) can & mae do better service then I have

And as by your Excellency's pleasure I shall & must desiste, in case your Excellency should not take other measures on the opinion taken your Excellency's 4. instand by her Majesty's Council of this Province, on account of my Memoriall then tendred to your Excellency and sent by this tyme to Boston for your Excellency's approbation; so I shall tarry heare a little tyme longer, humbly praying that your Excellency will be pleased to grant me leave (as you must be sensible that it is my due in all reason) to finishe, and to pardon that I must trouble your Excellency onse more. To the foregoing letter Dudley replied as follows:—

SIR,—I have your very surprising letter of the seventh instant, by which I perceive, after your huffing all mankind in these Provinces, you intend to treat mee after the same manner & use the word protest upon mee, & your slavish service in obeying & submitting to my orders & your labouring to insinuate with the gentlemen of the Council, who have nothing to do with you nor her Majesty's fortifications unless by my express directions, which I thought a man of your education had known, especially having often yourself told them that you had nothing to do with any body but the Governour. Sir, I will now tell you plainly that your angry & harsh treatment of every body these three years since my arrivall (the Lt Governour, the Councillors & Commissioners of the Works, officers and soldiers) has been such that there is an universall displeasure taken against you; so as that I know no friend you have in these governments except my self, who have always shewed you the just respect of your services & merrits, accounting & declaring the same to every body that your place being filled with another was at your own earnest solicitation to the Right Honorable the Lords Commissioners of Trade & at the Board of Ordinance; and that I have their commands accordingly to receive Captain Redknapp as her Majesty's Engineer in your place, & which I have obeyed, & desire you will inform him for her Majesty's service what wants to be finished or repayred, & he has my warrant to persue the necessary [blank]. I cannot employ two Engineers, least thereby I contract a charge upon the Crown unnecessary, which I have never yet done, but whatever you agree with Captain Redknapp to do I shall accept the same well. This I say to you to make you easy, if your own temper will allow it, & shall be willing to serve you when you see your error in your late proceeding, & when you shall pay that respect to Captain Redknapp, who succeeds you, as the Queens service demands. I desire you whenever you shew your letter to mee of the 7th of June, you will shew this answer with it, & they that know my station here, & my temper as well as inclination towards you, will take it for an answer.

I am Sir your servt

That the rebuke thus administered by the Governour did not cure Römer's censoriousness nor curb his vanity appears by the following "remonstrance," which was addressed to the General Court in their third session:—

"To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Captain General and Governour in Chief in and over her Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New England And To the Honorable her Majesty's Council and House of Representatives now in General Assembly convened in and for sd Province October 24th 1705/.

The Humble Remonstrance of Col: Wolfgang William Romer.

Since after my many repeated Petitions to the late King William of ever blessed memory, and to her present Majesty our great and gracious Queen Anne she hath at last of her great goodness been pleased to give me leave to return home; Before I depart I would according to my duty adjust and Settle every thing relating to her Majesty's Service as far as in me lies, as also what concerns my particular affairs relating therunto (after my Eight years Service on the Continent of America) So that I may not hereafter Suffer under the Imputation of any Injustice or Reproach—

When I was by a vote of this Honorable house obliged to desist from the Work at the Castle, and the same devolved on Thomas Brattle Esq; & Capt Timothy Clarke upon a Supposition that they had my directions as by the Same vote appears; I did afterwards upon Mr Brattles application to me give Some Satisfactory directions in what he proposed and desired, but he never had, nor requested any Draught or Scheme of me; neither have they in performing the Work attended the Rules I gave them, So that through the Unexpectness of Capt Clarke the work done is very irrationally and Ridiculously, altogether contrary to Reason and the Rules of Military Architecture, which I am ready to demonstrate when required.

I now take leave to lay before this Honorable Court, for her Majesty and the Provinces Service, in a few paragraphs, wherein the Castle is not compleat, and what for the preservation thereof is further highly necessary to be done—first the Espolement for the Securing of the S.E: Powder house is not done, neither from the Contraguarde as of unavoidable necessity, and to the highest degree necessary Communication with the Lowermost fortification and Battery—

2<sup>ly</sup> The Coverd way for the Communication from the N.E: Gate of the Upper Castle with the N: W Sallyport of the lowermost work is not tought on which is a thing of great moment that the same should be according to Reason in Military Art Traversed thus that I may have a Reasonable Communication with your Excellency's lowermost fortifications, so that an Enemy could not know my strength, and motions if an attacque should happen, as in this Juncture it may, before we think of it.—

3<sup>ly</sup> The Demi Bastion is not tought on, neither did they know how to begin it, and less how to proceed for the finishing the same. This is all what was from the beginning proposed, as by my Memorials & Especially the last of the 16th March 1703/4 will appear, and I am ready upon your Excellency's order to Satisfy Capt Redknapp in every thing relating to these three Articles, and what further to the security and preservation of the Castle is necessary to be observed. vizt

Inpris The Aquaducts in a work so built on the Sea side, up and down Hill are of great observation, therefore singular care should be taken about the Same, Yor Remonstrant has made a great progress towards setting y<sup>e</sup> Same, almost finished Some, & others in part begun & shewn the way and means how to finish the same, but I being put off they are wholly neglected & nothing done towards the Same, a great prejudice is already occasioned thereby, and if any Inundation, or great Gust of water should come & occasion a Destruction (which cannot befall the works if the water leadings are finished as begun and proposed) the fault will not be mine.

2<sup>ly</sup>. I have two years ago, as is well known, and from the beginning urged the pointing & Rough casting the Brick walls and Quarry stone works where the severity of the ffrost and N: E Rude weather has Endamaged them, and this to be done in the Month of May by an honest, understanding Man, that knows how to prepare two Sorts of Mortar for that purpose, and so once well done, it will be for ever in a manner provided That when a Severe blow may occasion Some little hurt that a Mason on the Castle may take a Trowell of Mortar to mend it, which will certainly be the Care of the Commander there, and whereas at* N: E part Some Brick & Roughstone Walls are almost bare & have but little support, perhaps next year the cost and charges of pointing and repairing, will be Six times more than it would have been the last year —

3<sup>dy</sup>. There is no care taken about the breaches in y<sup>e</sup> Sodwork occasioned by the violent N: E. rainy weather and Storms; and other necessary things More, &c: If the 75<sup>l</sup> sent into the Treasury had been well Employed, it would have made the aforementioned Espolement, Communication line by the powder house mean covered way, all the breaches &c. repaired, the Aquaducts, made and every thing brought into good order. But this must be so, and a favourable Commendamus for Capt Clark to shew what a good Husband he had been in taking off the Lead from the platform, to the great disfiguring & hurt of that part of the Castle; And to leave the most urgent and necessary works unfinished, The Breaches unattended, and the joints in the Brick & stone Walls unpointed. As also the pallisadoes designed for the Castle use taken away, likewise the oak planks for to make Madrieres on the lowermost works, and by the same to cover the Defence thereby to secure the Gunners and people that must work the Guns, taken for other uses from the Castle. All which I leave to y<sup>r</sup> Excellency's and the great and General Courts prudent and serious Consideracons.—

My Son John from the year 1700 till 1703<sup>h</sup> has been of very Considerable Use, and Service in the Works at the Castle, which he has attended with Constant diligence and application, as is well known, which has as yet been unregarded; and he has not Ten shillings  $\Psi$  Diem, in England nor any other allowance, as has been most falsly reported, for any of his Services; If this Honoble Court shall think him unworthy of a reasonable Encouragement then I humbly pray in his behalf, they will please to grant him a Certificate So far as concerns matter of fact. All which I leave to y<sup>r</sup> Excellency and the great & General Courts prudent Consideracons—

WOLFGANG W. RÖMER."—Mass.

Before this remonstrance had been presented the completion and dedication of Römer's work on Castle Island were celebrated,† on the spot, by the Governor and attendants, and an appropriate mural inscription, in which for the first time the Castle received the name of "Castle William," was placed in honor of the event and of the engineer. Of this ceremony the executive records of the council contain the following account:—

"Oct. 29, 1705. His Excellency acquainted the Council that on Friday the 21st † current he visited the Castle, being attended with Colonel Romer her Maj<sup>y</sup>'s Engineer, and several Gentlemen, and that by her Maj<sup>y</sup>'s especial commands he had caused the following inscription cut in fair letters on stone § and gilded to be set up and affixed on the Castle, viz: ANNO DECIMO TERTIO REGNI GULIELMI TERTII. MAG: BRIT. FR: & HIB REGIS INVICTISSIMI, HOC MONUMENTUM (EX EJUS NOMINE WILLELMI CASTELLUM NUNCUPATUM) FUIT INCEPTUM ANNOQ: SECUNDO REGNI ANNE. MAG. BRIT: FR: & HIB REGINE SESERISSIME PERFECTUM—ANNOQ: DOMINI M.D.C.C.III.

And underwrit in a smaller Character. A TRIBUNO, WOLFGANGO WILLELMO ROMERO REGIARUM MAJESTATUM IN SEPTRIONALI AMERICA ARCHITECTO MILITARI PRIMARIO CONSTRUCTUM."—Vol. 4, p. 230.

Whether this remonstrance was purposely withheld by Römer until the inscription in his honor was placed, or its presentation was prudently delayed in the council chamber, does not appear, but it is certain that it was not read at the Board until the thirty-first of October. The proceedings that ensued are shown in their order in the chapter, as printed.

"Seventh-day 8<sup>l</sup> 27th [1705]. . . The two committees appointed in this chapter “to Consider what may be at present necessary to be done” at the Castle were accompanied by Redknap on their visit to the island, who, on the twelfth, presented to them the following report:—

“Boston November 12th 1705.

Whereas there was an order of the General Assembly of y<sup>e</sup> province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, That a Committee of both Houses should go down to Castle William at Boston aforesd there to view the Works, the Gentlemen appointed for the sd Committee were Col<sup>n</sup> Hutchinson, Col<sup>y</sup> Townsend, and Cap<sup>t</sup> Belcher of the upper House. and Col<sup>n</sup> Checkley and several other Gentlemen of the Lower House, and Whereas according to an order reced : from his Excellency the Gov<sup>t</sup> I the subscriber—her Majesties Engineer was appointed to go down with the sd Committee, in order to propose to them, what I thought farther necessary to be done for y<sup>e</sup> finishing of the sd Works and to make Report of the same :— /—

1stly It is very necessary That the Blind that is already begunn should be finished for the security of the powder-House, and other advantages which will be drawn from it;

2<sup>d</sup>ly : The Sodwork Ravelin before the lower gate wants to be repaired.—

3<sup>d</sup>ly : There wants to be made a Line of Communication of pallisados That the Garrison done may pass from the upper to the Lower works without danger of being discovered—/—

4thly That at the End of the sd Line of Communication there be a small Gnard house, done built, able to contain fifty men upon occasion, that the Garrison may be augmented, they would be mightily straitned for want of Room, It would be likewise a very necessary place for keeping their dry provisions, which is often Endamaged by reason of the dampness of the Vaults.—

5thly That in the Well that is in the Lower works, there be something fixt, not only for the Conveinence of drawing it, but to prevent several mischiefs that may happen by its lying as it now dos,—/—

6thly : That at the End of the Line of Pallisados, where a Demi Bastion, or something else to be raised for the security of that part of the Island, the same is very necessary to be taken care of./—

7thly. That considering the largeness of the whole works, and the violent weather that happens sometimes in these parts, it would be very necessary to have a mason continually upon the place, for the mending and pointing any little damage that may from time to time happen to the Walls, and That there be also a Carpenter, whose whole Employ should be to look after the Battery Platforms, and the severall Gutters that are made of Planks, for the Conveyance of the water from the several parts of the Works, I Judge two such men may be had for very little more pay than that of a private Centinell.—

8thly : Whereas severall little Repairs are wanting about the whole Work, the same would be done with far less charge if taken in time, that* it will be if neglected—

It would be much better if the necessary House were taken a little lower because as it is at present it takes away the defence of two flanks, which are the principal strength of any Fortification/— Sign<sup>d</sup> by me

On the nineteenth this certificate was read in Council as the committees' report "and accepted, with Thanks to the Committees for their Service." This vote was sent for concurrence to the House, where it was read on the next day, and no further action upon it has been discovered. But see note to chapter 114 of the resolves of 1706-7.

The word "done" in the margin opposite two of the clauses in Redknapp's report appears to have been written at a later date, probably after the changes recommended had been completed.

Chap. 68. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 165. It has not been found in the archives.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was a continuation of the allowance granted by resolves, 1704-5, chapter 55.

The order for a warrant to the province treasurer and payment thereof are considered in the notes to chapters 44 and 72 of the resolves of 1706-7.

For an account of the sufferings of the inhabitants of Deerfield inflicted by the French and Indian enemy see resolves, 1704-5, chapter 6 and note. Immediately upon the great desolating invasion of February 29, 1703-4, those of the militia of the town who had not been killed or carried into captivity were impressed into the service of the province and ordered to act as a garrison, under pay. By the wages and subsistence received by them under the regular establishment they were enabled to escape starvation but not to retrieve the losses they had endured by fire and robbery or even to bear the ordinary burdens of a township. In view of their deplorable condition the province contributed, as appears in this and a former chapter above referred to, to the maintenance of a minister among them. Their compensation under the military establishment having ceased December 1, 1704, although they continued in the service until midsummer, they applied to the Legislature during its second session this year that pay and subsistence be allowed to them to the end of the term of their enlistment. This reasonable request was approved of by a vote of the House of Representatives, which was a sufficient warrant to the Commander-in-Chief to restore them to the regular pay-rolls without the passage of an act or formal resolve. Their petition, the vote of the representatives thereon as finally drawn, and the order in Council for a warrant to the province treasurer for paying them, accordingly, to the time they were mustered out, are given below: —

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Captain Generall and Governour in chief of Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay, And To the Honrable the Council of the said Province & Representifs of y<sup>e</sup> same

The province treasurer's account* from May 31, 1705, to May 31, 1706, shows a payment of £399 12s. 6d. to "Col Sannel Partridge on behalf of the Officers & Souldiers posted at Deerfield" from October 20, 1704, to July 27, 1705.

This included payment for the services of a regularly enlisted company, which was under Partridge and commanded by Captain Jonathan Wells, posted at Deerfield, in the autumn and early winter of 1704-5. Their pay, amounting to £98 18s. 8d., deducted leaves just the amount named in the above warrant.

This petition was read, first, in the House on the sixth of November, and on the following day it was read again and the resolve was passed as here printed and sent to the Council for concurrence, when the Council added the following proviso: "Provided the minister be Approv'd by the Govern<sup>r</sup> and Council." † When the resolve thus amended reached the House it was returned to the Council with a vote and resolution thereon to adhere "to their former vote." This was on the eighth, and on the next day the Council "Agreed to withdraw the Proviso."

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of this allowance was passed November 13, 1706, and the province treasurer's account § shows that it was paid.

This petition was presented at the first session. It was read in the House on the twentieth, and again on the twenty-first, but no further action upon it appears of record until the third session, when it was read again in the House on the seventh of November, and on the ninth the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. It was read and concurred in on the next day and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account† shows that it was paid.

See resolves, 1700-1, chapter 95 and note, by which it appears that up to October, 1694, Conant had received but twenty-five pounds. Ten pounds more were allowed to him in the resolve last referred to, which, added to the previous grant and the sum allowed in the present chapter, make a total of sixty-five pounds.

The above petition indicates the date of Conant's death as nearly as it can be ascertained from any paper or record that has been discovered. He was born in Salem, April 15, 1657—the son of Joshna and grandson of Roger Conant, the leader of the Cape-Ann colony. It is said that he removed to Truro on Cape Cod about 1700;‡ but by resolves, 1700-1, chapter 95, it would seem that he was still gunner at Salem Fort March 15, 1701, and his widow, in her petition, describes him as "late of Salem."

Chap. 74. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 167. It has not been found in the archives.

The twenty-shilling counterfeit bill of credit "annexed" to the original order probably tempted some one to take it from the files. Very likely it is in some private collection, like many other public papers that have disappeared from the Secretary's office.

Chap. 75. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 168. It has not been found in the archives.

Notwithstanding the promise of Courtemanche that the envoys should not be detained at Quebec more than ten days, and Dudley's request that Vaudreuil despatch a courier overland immediately upon the arrival of the brigantine, more than four months had passed § since her departure without any tidings of her arrival at Quebec or any response from Vaudreuil. During this time the French and English governments in the West Indies || had been keeping up their cartel, and Dudley was preparing to send to Port Royal all the French captives at Boston in the hope of receiving English prisoners in return.

Dudley evidently was annoyed and disappointed if not alarmed at this long silence of his envoys. He therefore determined to take measures to ascertain in the speediest manner the cause of the delay. Hence the proposal described in this chapter.

No copies of the letters therein mentioned have been found, nor has it been ascertained that any such letters were actually sent. No record has been found of the receipt of such letters by Vaudreuil, and since only eight days after the passage of the vote the brigantine returned, bringing Vetch and the Governor's son, it is likely that the letter, if written, never reached Canada.

See note to chapter 83, post.

Chap. 76. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 168. It has not been found in the archives.

The petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is also missing. The following extracts from the records show that upon this motion by Carr to have the former action of the Legislature reconsidered no definite result was reached:—

"June 5, 1706. The Case of Richard Carr upon his Petition referring to a Claim of Privilege in the Ferrys over Merrimack River between Newbury & Salisbury, And the Towns of Newbury & Salisbury were fully heard before the whole Court."—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 195.

"June 6, 1706. Upon a full Hearing yesterday of the Case betwixt Richard Carr by his Petition to this Court, referring to a Challenge of the Privilege to the Ferry over the lower Part of Merrimack River, & the Agents of the Towns of Newbury & Salisbury.

Resolved that the said Richard Carr take Nothing by his Petition, And that he pay Costs to the said Agents of Newbury to be taxed by Samuel Sewall Esq<sup>r</sup> & the Secretary: We<sup>h</sup> Resolve was sent down to the Representatives for Concurrence."—Ibid., p. 196.

"June 26, 1706. The Resolve pass'd by the Council on the sixth Instant in the Case of Richard Carr against the Towns of Newbury & Salisbury referring to his Challenge of the Privilege of the Ferry over the lower Part of Merrimack River, was Disagreed to by the Representatives:—And an Order made thereon by that House was sent up; We<sup>h</sup> being Read & the Question being put for Concurrence; It was Carried in the Negative."—Ibid., p. 210.

The order of the House last referred to has not been found in the archives.

For particulars relating to the history of the controversy respecting the ferry over the Merrimac, between Newbury and Salisbury, see the note to resolves, 1693-4, chapter 12, and private act, number forty-one. See, also, chapter 106, post, and chapter 98 of 1706-7.

Chap. 78. This chapter is from archives, vol. 2, p. 270.

The complaint of the selectmen of the towns of Enfield and Suffield which induced the preparation of the letter that constitutes this chapter has not been found in the archives.

By the following entry in the legislative journals of the Council the first action upon this complaint appears to have been taken by the House, but not being agreed to this letter was substituted by the Council:—

So far as this chapter affects the question of the contested boundary line between Massachusetts and Connecticut, it belongs to a class of legislative proceedings that are to form a separate group in a later volume, with the resolves, orders, etc., relating to the establishment, etc., of towns, etc.

See, further, resolves, 1693-4, chapter 21; 1695-6, chapter 56; 1696-7, chapters 18 and 22; and chapter 35, ante.

Chap. 79. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 169. It has not been found in the archives.

In his speech at the beginning of the third session this year (October 24, 1705) the Governor addressed the Assembly as follows:—

“. . . I shall direct the Treasurer to Lay the accounts before you which to save time I have lately audited by a Committee of the Council & members of your house whereby you will see the Expence & what is wanting. . . .” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 40.

The first action upon this recommendation was taken in the House, after a week's delay, as follows:—

“Oct. 31, 1705. A Message by Major James Converse, Mr Knowles & Mr Little of the Representatives from that House, Desiring that the Committee might proceed to the Imprinting & Signing of the Five Thousand Pounds of Bills of Credit Ordered by this Court at their Session in May past.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 161.

The order* for printing the bills of credit which this chapter required to be forthwith completed provided that they should be received back into the treasury in all public payments at five per cent advance. The Council seem to have deemed it important that some other method of replenishing the treasury should be devised, or that the provision for receiving them back at more than their face value should be rescinded. Nearly a week having passed without action upon the above message of the House, the following correspondence between the two branches took place:—

“Nov. 6, 1705. A Message was sent to the Representatives by Elisha Hutchinson & John Foster Esqrs Mr Secretary & the Treasurer, to propose to the House If an Expedient may not be found out to supply the Treasury otherwise than by Making a further Impression of the Bills of Credit.” — Ibid., p. 164.

“Nov. 8, 1705. A Message was sent to the Representatives by Elisha Hutchinson the Secretary & Penn Townsend Esq; to Confer with the House upon what was opened to that House in the Message sent the sixth Curr; referring to the Treasury of the Loss & inconvenience by Allowing a like Advance on Debentures as on Bills of Credit.” — Ibid., p. 165.

“Nov. 9, 1705. Ordered that the Treasurer forthwith write to the Constable or Collectors of the several Towns & Districts within this Province to return to him all Debentures now in their Hands with an Account thereof upon Oath if required, And to forbid them for the Future to receive any Debentures for more than the Sum therein express'd, And not to Issue out any Bills of Credit in their Hands but to pay them into the Treasury:

W<sup>ch</sup> Order being sent down to the Representatives for Concurrence, stopt in that House.” — Ibid., p. 166.

“Nov. 13, 1705. A Message was sent by Simeon Stoddard Esq; to the Representatives to enquire if the House had acted on the Order pass'd in Council upon Fryday last for Direction to the Treasurer, . . .” — Ibid., p. 168.

Nothing having been accomplished towards effecting the measure proposed by the Council, the proposition of the House conveyed in the message which constitutes this chapter was agreed to by the Council.

This petition was read in Council on the seventeenth of November and sent to the House of Representatives where on the nineteenth it was read and the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the twentieth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The payment does not appear specifically in the province treasurer's books.

About this time* desertions from the Castle garrison appear to have been frequent. Thus, "Bartholomew Carlile" of Marlborough, laborer, who appears to have enlisted May 29, 1704, to serve to the beginning of March, 1704-5, having obtained permission to go to Marlborough for his clothing, etc., never returned.† On his plea of guilty before the Superior Court of Judicature and Court of Assize‡ at Cambridge July 31, 1705, he was convicted and sentenced to sit upon "the Gallows in Charlestown on Fryday the Seventeenth of August next at four of the Clock in the afternoon of s<sup>d</sup> day, for the Space of one full hour with a rope about his neck, the one End thrown over the Gallows: Suffer Three months Imprisonement pay Costs," etc. He presented a petition for mercy to the justices of the Superior Court on the last Tuesday of July, in which he professed sorrow and shame for his conduct, adding that he knew he was "liable to be severely punished (if not by death;)."†

Another instance is shown in the following from the News-Letter of February 5, 1704-5: —

"Advertisement.

Lately deserted Her Majesties Service at the Castle on Castle-Island, Jonathan Milburn Souldier, a Middle siz'd man, thin Visage, dark brown short Hair; Aged about Thirty years: Whosoever shall apprehend and him Convey to the Honourable Thomas Povey Esq. Lieutenant Governour of the Massachusetts-Bay, shall have Forty Shillings Reward, besides his Charges. And if the said Milburn will Voluntarily come in and Surrender himself to the next Justice of the Peace, in order to return to his Obedience, he shall be pardoned his Crime." — No. 42.

At length these desertions were taken notice of by the Council, as shown in the following entry: —

"Nov. 9, 1705. Whereas the Souldiers Impress'd and sent down in the service of this Province at Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Castle William have several of them lately deserted the service there, contrary to Law.

Advised and Consented, That his Excellency do give publick significations, that whosoever, Officer or other Inhabitants within this Province or the Province of New Hampshire, that shall apprehend and returne such Deserters to Justice shall be at all times paid their just charges therein out of the Wages of such Souldiers, so restored to the service or Justice according to Law, to be assigned by the Govern<sup>r</sup> out of the next Muster Roll, wherein such Deserters are named & payment accordingly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 234.

Although this petition was presented at the first session of 1704-5, no action appears to have been taken upon it until the third session of that year. On the fifteenth of November, in the House, it was "read and sent up." No further action upon it appears until June 26, 1705, when it was read. It was read again November ninth, and on the twentieth the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council for concurrence, where it was immediately read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

As has been previously stated, only eight days after the Governor's proposal ‡ to send an Indian messenger to Canada had been agreed to, Borland's brigantine § returned, || bringing Vetch and William Dudley and with them the draught of a treaty which Vandreuil proposed for Dudley's acceptance. It ran as follows: ¶ —

¶ The translation here adopted is taken from the "Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York," and is more complete and apparently more accurate than the French version in the "Collection de Manuscrits," etc. Reference has been had to the latter, however, for comparison, and all important differences have been noted; thus, words, phrases, and sentences put in brackets and not italicized are such as were found only in the English version; of the words and letters not enclosed in brackets, those in Italics were found only in the French version, and of others, which are inserted in smaller type, the upper word is proposed as a substitute for the word beneath it, as the more accurate translation; and words in Italics enclosed in brackets were not found in either version, but are supplied by the editor to render the meaning more obvious.

It seems less probable that the differences between these versions are attributable to the translator than that there were two original copies, — or a completed copy and a rough draft, — not exactly agreeing. The latter conjecture receives some support from the circumstance that, wherever, in the two copies now in print, except in one instance, the French and English governors or territories are mentioned in juxtaposition, the French name has precedence in one, and the English name in the other; as if these copies were intended to be delivered to the contracting parties interchangeably.

states, but merely to the ruin and desolation of some poor families belonging to their governments, transmits to Mr Joseph Dudley governor-general of New England, the following <sup>proposals</sup> * some of which are extracted from the Treaty which he had presented to him, and others are added, to wit:—

The Marquis de Vandreuil, [Knight of the Military order of St Louis], governor-general of New France, and Mr Joseph Dudley, governor-general of New England have contracted, [agreed] and firmly covenanted, † that [from and] after the date and signature of the present Treaty and following articles [concluded] by themselves or by others named and duly authorized by them, all acts of hostility whatsoever shall cease on both sides, as well on the part of the French as of the English, and [of] all Indians or Savages of what Tribe or Name soever they may be, and [of] all the other Europeans who are now, or will be hereafter in the service of the one and the other; and that on the following terms:—

1st.

The two governors abovenamed have covenanted and mutually promised, on the true public faith ‡ and honor of their governments, as well for themselves as for their people of their said governments, to cause an exact truce, neutrality and cessation of arms to be kept and observed, unviolably and to prevent, on the one side and the other, between the two governments, all acts of hostility that might be committed either on land or water by the French, English, Indians or other Nation whatsoever, directly or indirectly dependent on them, encouraged or authorized by one of the said governors or those who are under them.

The abovenamed governors have covenanted and mutually promised not to assist, either directly or indirectly, the nations with whom they might be at war, not to afford any transit across their territory § to the troops which would march to disturb them, and never to lend any vessels belonging to their governments nor allow the people of their governments to lend ¶ any of their [ships] for the purpose of transporting any foreign troops to wage war within the governments of said governors under any pretext whatsoever.

That in virtue of said Truce, Neutrality and cessation of arms, the two governors abovenamed will give passports to the vessels, the property of their own Colony, as to those belonging to the people of their governments, who shall want to pass on their business from one to the other of said governments.

The two aforesaid governors have covenanted together and mutually promised, that the said passports which shall be delivered to the inhabitants or residents within the said two Colonies, shall serve them for surety and protection against all soldiers and people of said two governors [governments]; provided that the inhabitants or residents of New England who will come into the territory of New France, shall not import thither any merchandise whatsoever, on any pretence whatsoever, for though furnished with passes the merchandise shall be confiscated.

The two governors abovenamed have covenanted together and mutually promised, that the passports which they will give to the vessels of the two Colonies, or to those belonging to the people of the two Colonies aforesaid, or that will have touched at the territory of said two Colonies, shall serve them for surety and protection against all vessels of the two Colonies aforesaid, or to it [them] belonging or may be destined thither; it being well understood that ships from New England that will arrive [at] in the ports of New France, or [that] shall enter the River St Lawrence, shall not be freighted with any merchandise on any pretence whatsoever, and shall come [thither] with their ballast ¶ [cargoes] and provisions only, in default whereof said merchandise shall be confiscated without any regard had to the passports.

vessels of his government, going to fish on the coasts of New England, [though furnished with his passports,] shall be lawful [good] prize; * in like manner Mr. Dudley, [governor-general of New England] hath covenanted that 'if he find any vessel of New England fishing, or loaded with fish that it will have fished, on the coasts of Acadia, or in the gulf, or river of St Lawrence, or even that shall be found freighted with oil manufactured from fish killed there; The said vessel shall, without any manner of regard being paid to its passport, be lawful [good] prize; † [the two governors aforesaid mutually promising, the one the other, that vessels belonging to the people of their governments, or to the Colony, shall not fish within the territory the one of the other.]

The two Governors named have covenanted<sup>9th, †</sup> that they shall prevent, in as much as in them lies, any Indian or Savage of their dependencies or allies, going in a body or in numbers to trade or hunt on the territory of either of the two governments, without being provided with a passport from their governments.

And [finally,] in order that the said Truce, Neutrality and [or] suspension of hostilities be not subject to be violated or invalidated by the caprices of any dissatisfied or ill disposed person [dissatisfaction] on the one side or the other, or by the inconsiderate incursions of any Indians, the said two governors above mentioned disavow, from this moment, all those who shall contravene this present Treaty, and agree between themselves that no private quarrel or incursion of any unauthorized persons shall prejudice in any manner the present Treaty. Both of the said governors have agreed and mutually promise, that if any persons, either soldiers or settlers belonging to their [said] governments, make incursions into the countries the one of the other, they shall cause exemplary punishment to be inflicted therefor at the first requisition of him who shall have been attacked; but should the infraction of the present Treaty proceed from the Indians, the governor on whom they shall<sup>10th</sup> depend, pledges himself to do his best to cause the satisfaction due in such cases to be given by them.

The two above named governors have covenanted and mutually promise, in support of the present Treaty, to surrender [all] the prisoners they have made, on the one side and the other, as well by sea as by land, of what quality and condition they may be, without regard to number, pledging themselves besides, the one and the other, to surrender them without distinction, and even though they should not have been taken by the people of the said two governors [governments.]

And in regard to the French or English prisoners who are in the hands of the Indians, the two aforesaid governors oblige themselves to do all in their power to withdraw them from the hands of the Indians, and to send them afterwards back to their countries.

And in regard to the Indians who are in the hands of the English, Mr Dudley obliges himself to send them back to the Marq<sup>s</sup> de Vaudreuil as soon as possible after the signature of the present [said] Treaty.

The Marquis de Vaudreuil declares that he includes within the present Treaty all the country called New France, the Province of Acadia, the Islands of St Peter, the Island of Cape Breton, the whole of the Gulf of the river St Lawrence the Islands therein inclusive, the entire coast of La Bras d'or called the Territory of the Esquimaux [Ischimaux], and Bellisle Island.

The Marquis de Vaudreuil submits this Treaty to Mr Dudley in answer to his; on condition that he shall oblige the Governor of York, and all deputy governors to enter into the same Treaty, who shall be obliged to assent to, and sign the present Treaty before the end of February; || in default whereof the Marquis de Vaudreuil declares that all these present propositions shall be null.

Done at Quebec the October 1705." — Vol. IX., pp. 770-772.

On the twenty-third of November the above proposals and the letters accompanying them were communicated to the Council, read and sent to the representatives for their perusal.

The last clause of the eleventh and final article, being a stipulation that the treaty should not take effect unless the Governor of New York and others therein named should assent to and sign it before the end of February, Dudley prepared a letter to Cornbury on the subject of ratifying the treaty proposed by Vaudreuil. It was the draught of this letter, no trace of the existence of which has been discovered, that was approved in the vote which constitutes this chapter.

Cornbury's assent was never given, and indeed only four days after the date of this chapter the House advised Dudley against agreeing to the proposed treaty.¶ At the expiration of the period limited in Vaudreuil's proposals, hostilities were renewed by the Indian enemy, by permission of Vaudreuil.**

* "Bonne prise."

† The final sentence fails to give the evident meaning of the passage as it stands in the French version, which, by a single transposition, may be better rendered "any vessel of New England found fishing, or laden with fish caught, or with oil extracted from fish killed, on the coast," etc., "shall be lawful prize."

‡ The editor of the Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York has appended to this article the following note:—

"This article ought, it is supposed, be numbered 9th. But it is without any number in the Text.—Ed." It is written out "neuvième," in the French version.

Meanwhile, however, Dudley proposed that the release of French prisoners of war* be continued as an exemplary act of generosity that might appeal to the sensibilities of the Governor-General at Quebec. Possibly, also, he might have thought it would afford opportunity for trade.

Dudley immediately communicated the news of the return of the messengers, as follows, to Governor Winthrop, with the request that he express it to Major Pynchon at Springfield on its way to Vetch's wife, in care of her uncle, Peter Schuyler, at Albany:—

“ROXBURY, 21 Nov<sup>m</sup> 1705.

SR,—Williams the bearer brings Mr<sup>s</sup> Veach the good news of his arrival this morning from Quebec, and has occasioned an express of mine to Col. Skyler, which I have covered to Major Pinchon. It is of great concern & hast, & the messenger doubts of finding the way to Springfield. If you please to do mee the favour to express it, your messenger upon your note shall be paid by Sr, your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.”—Win-

throp Papers, part V., p. 317.

And, accordingly, on the twenty-fifth, Winthrop requested the council of Connecticut to cause it to be sent forward without delay, as follows:—

“. . . I desire therefore that it may be sent forwards without delay, and let the bearer of it take a receipt for it. The vessel has been six weekes from Quebec. Mr Williams was then in health, his son is returned and fine or six of those taken at the eastward, but I heare of noe more. . . .”—Ibid., p. 318.

In the note to chapter 51, ante, is given an expression of opinion by Pontchartrain that the illness of Courtemanche, which was his ostensible reason for returning to Quebec by sea, was assumed as a cover for illicit trade. In private act, number nineteen, mention is also made of the suspicions entertained in Canada that Vetch and William Dudley were abusing the privileges accorded them by Vaudreuil to acquire information that would be of advantage to the English in case of future hostilities. As if to avert some anticipated rebuke for his hospitality shown to Dudley's representative, Vaudreuil, in the same letter to Pontchartrain (October 19, 1705, mentioned in the note to chapter 51, ante), gave an account of the precautions he took to prevent the messengers from doing or contriving any immediate injury to the French in Canada or to their ships at sea, of which the following is an abstract prepared for, or by, the minister:—

“The King's orders having forbidden all trade with the English, he would have seized this vessel as a lawful prize had it not been for the conferences that he had with Mr. Dudley. He sent an officer to detain it within fifteen leagues of Quebec, where it would have remained until its departure, had he not feared that this vessel, having seen our fleet depart, might sail without orders, to give information at Boston about the state of our forces and the time of the return of our ships. That constrained him, at the request even of the Sieur Count of Arquiand, to have it come to Quebec and to hold it there up to the present time. He took the precaution to have its sails removed and to put a guard on board to prevent all trading.”—“Collection de Manuscrits, etc., vol. II, p. 450.”

Upon this statement by Vaudreuil the following comment was made by the minister or by his order:—

“The precautions that he takes indicate that the Sieur de Courtemanche ought not to have returned by sea, but to have waited for his recovery, in order to come by land as he was ordered.”—Ibid.

Vaudreuil next approaches the subject of the proposed treaty in a passage which is thus summarized:—

“Mr. Dudley the son, and Mr. Vetch, who commands the English vessel, have caused several requests to be made to him to know if he [Vaudreuil] had authority to conclude a truce. He had them informed after the receipt of the letter of June twenty-fourth, that they might make proposals. They are hereunto annexed.”—Ibid.

Upon this the minister briefly commented, as follows:—

“I think as I told him that could not fail to be advantageous to both colonies.”—Ibid.

Vaudreuil proceeds to recommend the treaty as worthy of the king's approval, at the same time explaining how it happened that Vetch had been permitted to land merchandise at Quebec to the value of a thousand crowns. The substance of this part of his letter is thus given:—

“He flatters himself that His Majesty will sanction this treaty in which the interests of the colony are preserved. He is persuaded, if they accept it, that it will be more advantageous to us than to them, if we consider only the coasts of Acadia which are protected thereby.

Mr. Vetch, having been detained two months and a half at Quebec, has contracted debts there, and in order to pay them he has been obliged to present a petition to the Sieur Randot who permitted him to take out of his bark one thousand crowns worth of merchandise that he destined for St. John in the island of Newfoundland.”—Ibid.

The comments of the minister on this portion of Vaudreuil's letter show that he penetrated the thin pretext under which the Governor-General sought to disguise the proceedings between himself and Vetch. He passes over Vaudreuil's remarks regarding the treaty, but approaches the subject of the commercial transaction thus:—

“The letter that Mr. Vetch writes to Monseigneur does not say that he was carrying his goods to St. John, but to Quebec, to indemnify himself by their sale for the expenses of the voyage which he undertook gratis to bring back the Sieur de Courtemanche who had encouraged him in the hope of being able to dispose of them there. Moreover, it appeared by the seizure that was made of ten casks which this Englishman wished to take out in his vessel (in which were found remains of beaver and seal,* the rest having been, apparently, abstracted), that he had not confined himself to the landing of goods for paying his debts, since he intended also to take back returns in beaver.” — Ibid., p. 451.

As an illustration of the system of secret espionage by which the ministers of Louis XIV. kept watch over their agents in governing the distant colonies of the kingdom, the following abstracts are here inserted from a letter to Pontchartrain dated just one week before the letter of Vaudreuil written by M. Claude de Ramezay, or Ramsay, whom Rev. John Williams describes † as “Governor of Montreal, and the Superior of the Jesuits:”—

“An officer of Boston having come to Canada with a passport (for a negotiation about the exchange of prisoners, which did not succeed) M. de Vaudreuil gave him entire liberty to learn everything that he wished to know, so that he told the Sieur de Courtemanche and those who accompanied him, that he had a perfect knowledge of Canada, and that it would be easy for the English to become masters of it.

When this same officer was at Montreal, M. de Ramsay took the precaution to have him accompanied by an officer and an interpreter with orders not to allow him to enter into private conversation.

The Frenchmen, who accompanied M. de Courtemanche to Boston, recognized there a French family which an Englishman named Vetch had brought there furtively four years ago on a voyage that he made to Canada. M. de Vaudreuil, who was informed of this, had made no mention of it. . . .

M. de Vaudreuil would propose a neutrality with New England and M. de Ramsay explains to Monseigneur the conditions which might render that neutrality advantageous.” — Ibid., p. 448.

Chap. 84. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 174. It is preserved in archives, vol. 11, p. 197.

The story of the attack on Deerfield, in which the Rev. John Williams was taken captive by the French and Indian enemy, is given in the note to resolve, 1704-5, chapter 6, and the particulars of the voyage undertaken by Vetch and William Dudley under a flag of truce for the recovery of the English in captivity at Canada are narrated in the note to private act, number nineteen. See, also, notes to chapters 51 and 83, ante.

Among the papers brought by the returned messengers was the following petition addressed by Mr. Williams to the General Court:—

I have for a long time (well known to your selves) been in a sorrowful state of Captivity under many exercising trials having so many Children Captivated with my self among the enemies & some of them among the heathen where they were reduced to many straits, so that i have been necessitated to be at considerable expences for their & my own Comfort, one of my Children came to me from the indians the 1st of may past without so much as a shirt upon him & unless i would be unmercifully cruel & have hardned my heart to all unnaturalness i could not avoid charges, i have for the honour of my Country & the comfort of my children expended 18<sup>u</sup> 6<sup>sh</sup> 9<sup>d</sup>.

These are humbly to request you to make payment of the same to Capt. Samuel Vetch who has been so charitable as to give me several things that he saw i had a need of, thò he had never seen me before. who has also put me into a Capacity to make payment of what i owed for my sons Clothing &c (i hope you will be so Generous as to reward the service that he has performed with such prudence & unfainting industry) & so charitable to me as to make him full payment of the abovesaid sum our adversaries upraid our religion that it falls so short of theirs in charity & good works, whom i have put to silence in assuring them our Charity to all in affliction, & good works of euery nature far exceeding theirs i promise my self your charity to me in my affliction & want (having lost what i had at Deerfield) without any repining will yet give me an occasion from my own experiences to refute their calumnies. your Charity herein will also be encouraging me still to keep my post (if God graciously return me) a post lost without any default of mine. wishing you the Guidance of God in all your publick affairs, & concerns i am.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 11, p. 197.

This petition was sent under cover to Paul Dudley, evidently to be used by him as the basis of a more formal draught; but Dudley sent it in with no other change than prefixing the address, as shown in the first two lines. It was accompanied by the following letter:—

i hope at the receipt of this you will be made right glad at the return of Mr Dudley who has merited the thanks & a great reward of his Country for the great service he has done them here. These are humbly to request that favour of you as to draw up a petition to the General Assembly on my behalf for the reimbursing Capt: Vetch mouny he has lent me for paying what i haue been forced to expend for my comfort & the necessary relief of my Children i have on the other side drawn up some minutes for to lay before the Quebeck octob. 10. 1705.

The petition appears to have been read, first, in the House November 22, 1705. On the twenty-seventh it was read again and a resolve substantially the same as the printed chapter was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

Chap. 85. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 192. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 175.

The articles for a truce mentioned in the preamble to this chapter are given in full in the note to chapter 83, ante.

In the present chapter the representatives advised the Governor against complying with Vaudreuil's proposals, but left the manner of communicating their declination to the discretion of the Governor and Council after advice from Cornbury. At the same time they expressed their satisfaction with the articles which Dudley had sent to Vaudreuil and with his letter to Cornbury.

The most objectionable feature in Vaudreuil's draught of a treaty was its requiring Dudley to assent to the claim of the French to territory which England also claimed, and which, by the province charter, was expressly included within the territory of Massachusetts.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 5, 1705.

By the account ‡ of the province treasurer it appears that White was paid thirty pounds for his services this year. The fourteen pounds allowed by chapter 47, ante, and the present allowance together make just that amount.

Chap. 91. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 189. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 176.

For particulars concerning the service rendered by Borland see the notes to chapters 51 and 83, ante, and the note to private act, number nineteen. The brigantine, as will be remembered, was procured for the voyage by Samuel Vetch, without expense to the province. The charge for which the owner was allowed the amount granted by this chapter evidently was for transportation and subsistence not included in the mere hire of the vessel.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account § shows that it was paid.

Chap. 92. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 191. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 176.

A like difference arose between the Governor and the members of the Council in respect to the compensation to be allowed to Captain Tuthill, the lieutenant of the Castle, as had been so long and zealously maintained by the two branches in regard to Povey's pay as captain, as shown in the note to chapter 32 of the resolves of 1704-5. By resolves, 1700-1, chapter 62, the lieutenant when performing the duties of lieutenant and gunner was to receive eighty pounds per annum. By resolves, 1702, chapter 59, the new lieutenant was granted fifty pounds for the current year, and Nathaniel Holmes, the former lieutenant, was retained as instructor in the art of gunnery, at thirty pounds—a regular gunner being also appointed at forty pounds per annum. It was claimed by the Council that these later resolves were not intended to affect the regular establishment made by the resolve of the year 1700-1, chapter 62, which they understood to be a permanent provision,—the later resolves being but temporary measures to meet new and peculiar exigencies. Eventually, however, they seem to have coincided with the House in their interpretation of the resolve of 1703-4, chapter 14; that is, that it was intended to effect a permanent reduction in the wages of officers as well as privates, and they therefore concurred in reducing the annual pay of the lieutenant from eighty pounds to sixty pounds. The Governor persisted in dissenting from this view, and from the time the first regular account, after January, 1704-5, was offered, with the pay of Lieutenant Tutbill stated at the rate of sixty pounds per annum, until he signed a warrant, in January, 1705-6, for the payment of the wages of the garrison due October, 1705, he continued to withhold his signature, and stubbornly refused to sign the accounts of wages which the law* required to be certified to the province treasurer every three months.†

It was during this unhappy dispute that the garrison began to show signs of discontent. The House seems to have been alive to their distress and to have made some attempts to relieve them. The following order in Council is the only practical instance of relief that has been found:—

“Aug. 17, 1705. There being seven Months pay and upwards due to the Garrison at the Castle, and the Muster Rolls thereof not being perfected; and the Souldiers complaining for want of their pay.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasnrer to pay the sum of Five hundred pounds into the hands of Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>re</sup> Commissary General, he to advance thirty pounds thereof to Lieuten<sup>t</sup> Tutbill, ten pounds to the Gunner, and that he pay to the other Officers and Souldiers of the Garrison at Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Castle their first three months wages, since the passing of the last Muster Roll. An Accompt thereof to be laid before the Board and drawn into the Muster Roll of that time. The Commissary General to be accountable for the overplus of the sd<sup>d</sup> money, if any be.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 212.

From the loss of the House Journals, however, it has not been found practicable to learn the precise nature of other remedies proposed, but that such attempts were made appears by the following entries in the legislative journals of the Council:—

“Sept. 15, 1705. A Resolve pass'd in the House of Representatives referring to the Pay of the Officers & Soldiers of the Garrison at the Castle, was Read & Sent back for Amendment.”—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 155.

“Nov. 15, 1705. A Resolve pass'd in the House of Representatives respecting the Sub-sisting of Soldiers, the Method of Passing Debentures and the Advance of Five Pounds per Cent. on Debentures coming into the Treasury, was Read, Debated & Voted a Non-Concurrence.”—Ibid., p. 169.

“Nov. 15, 1705. A Resolve pass'd in the House of Representatives respecting Rules to be observed in Paying off the Officers & Soldiers posted & to be posted at her Majesties Castle on Castle Island, during the present War with France & Spain was Read.”—Ibid.

These attempts evidently resulted in the passage of chapter 4 of the acts of the year 1705-6.

When, at length, the rolls were signed by the Governor it was done under a protest which he had entered upon the executive records of the council thus:—

“Jan. 12, 1705-6. His Excellency gave in the following Declaration in writing under his hand. viz:—

That the Muster Rolls of the Castle haveing been duely Offered for nine months past, according to the Establishment made by the Governour, Council and Assembly in the year 1700. but alway's refused to be agreed to by the Council, on account of the Article for the Lieutenant, to whom by that Establishm<sup>t</sup> Eighty pounds  $\text{P}^{\text{y}}$  Annum is assigned.

I having no other method to save the Garrison from starving for want of their pay, have this day signed the Muster Roll, wherein the Lieutenant is no more than sixty pounds  $\text{P}^{\text{y}}$  Annum, saveing to Her Maj<sup>ty</sup> the Right of that Establishment, and to the Officer his challenge thereupon.

Which was read and his Excellency ordered it to be entred.”—Vol. 4, p. 253.

On the fourteenth this complaint was read a second time and, as the memorandum shows, was ordered to be sent to the Council. How it got back to the House does not appear, but on the twenty-seventh it was again sent to the Council with the following order annexed thereto:—

“Ordered That His Excellency, be Desired to Order the Complainants, to appear before this Court, to Hear s<sup>d</sup> Complaint & Remedy the same, if they have been kept out of their just Dues that they are Allowed by this Province, and also Examine the Complaint made against the Commissary General, giving him Opportunity, to say (if so it have been) why he hath supplied them, with such mean Commodities, not fit or convenient for their Comfort, or service, that they say hath been such Discouragem<sup>t</sup> to them in their service.

Sent up for Concurrence.

On the same day the following vote was appended to the foregoing order of the House:—

The following is the record of the hearing had in accordance with the order:—

The circumstances which led to Cary's undertaking the voyage mentioned in the preamble to this chapter have been narrated in the notes to resolves, 1704–5, chapters 42 and 113, wherein also the unfortunate ending of that voyage has been described.* From the items which in his account hereinafter printed Cary gave of the expenses he incurred in his mission it appears, incidentally, that after his capture he was imprisoned first at Brest and subsequently at Dinan and St. Malo. The period of his captivity seems to have been between August 24 and September 14, 1704, when he purchased the release of himself and his companion and proceeded to London. He reached Dartmouth by the eighteenth, and seems to have begun his negotiations in behalf of the province on the twenty-sixth, on which day he charged the expense he incurred at Whitehall in presenting the memorial of the General Court, which, in some way not explained, seems to have escaped the vigilance of his captors.†

From this time forth his movements between Whitehall, the Tower, Westminster, St. James, and Woolwich are largely recorded down to April 21, 1705, when he paid thirteen shillings for lighterage of the stores aboard ship for transportation. The account continues thus with equal minuteness to the eighteenth of May, when he paid for lighterage of the guns aboard and for marking them with the province mark. After this he seems to have spent above five weeks at Portsmouth previous to embarking for home, which, apparently, he did on the eighth of September* in the ship Reward, Captain Benjamin Gillam, commander.

* For some idea of the condition of the province, with reference to supplies of ordnance and munitions of war, on account of hostilities then existing between England and France, see note to chapter 109, post.

† By the charge he makes under date of the twelfth of December it would seem that a copy of the address had also reached him at that time by the Gosport, man-of-war.

Gillam's arrival, bringing with him Cary and the ordnance and stores, is thus recorded by Sewall and the News-Letter:—

“Captains, Gillam and Mason are arrived from England at Cape Anne, and said to have seven Weeks passage from Plimouth.”—No. 82. November 5 to 12, 1705. See, also, No. 83.

A later issue of the News-Letter contained the following account of the landing of the ordnance and stores at the Castle:—

“By Capt. Gillam, The Governour received Her Majesty's Bounty to this Province, Consisting of Twenty Piece of Cannon, with all necessary Stores and Provision for their Monning, (which was Landed on Castle-Island† the 30th Instant) as a particular mark of Her Majesties Favour for the Defence of this Province.”—No. 85. November 26 to December 3, 1705.

The account mentioned in this chapter is as follows:—

— Mass. Archives, vol. 101, p. 302.

For payment of the whole balance stated in Cary's account, the Governor and Council ordered a warrant* to be issued to the province treasurer December 5, 1705, and this amount appears by his account † to have been duly paid.

By the following entry in the executive records of the council it appears that on the last of December, 1705, Colonel Redknapp applied to the Governor and Council for materials to be used in mounting the ordnance:—

"Dec. 31, 1705. A Memorial was presented by Capt<sup>n</sup> Redknapp Her Majty's Engineer of Plank necessary to be provided for mounting of the Cannon lately sent from Her Majty, at her Castle William, which was directed to be given to Mr Commissary General to provide accordingly. And also that he Examin the Stores what shot are there that will sute the s<sup>d</sup> Cannon, and in case there be none, to inform himselfe what will be the charge of Casting some, and to Report it." — Vol. 4, p. 250.

The work of mounting, however, was not begun until the next spring. The executive records of the council between April 29 and May 20, 1706, are missing, but a resolve of the Governor and Council, on the fifteenth of May, is thus supplied by the News-Letter of the twentieth:—

"On Wednesday the 15th Currant, It was Resolved by His Excellency & Council, That Capt. Redknapp Her Majesties Engineer for the Continent of America be forthwith supplied with Materials for Mounting 20 Pieces of Cannon at Castle William, and to repair the Works, and raise more as shall be judged necessary for the Defence of this Place." — No. 109.

Five days later another vote ‡ was passed, as follows:—

"May 20, 1706. The Govern<sup>r</sup> acquainting the Council, that his Excell<sup>y</sup> the Lord Cornbury Govern<sup>r</sup> of New Yorke &c<sup>e</sup> had written to Capt<sup>n</sup> Redknapp her Majty's Engineer to repair into that Province.

The Council unanimously desired his Excell<sup>y</sup> to direct his attendance in this Province for her Majty's service until the new Cannon be mounted at her Majty's Castle William, and the worke there now in hand be set in order." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 286.

By the following entries it would seem that the work was not completed until late in the summer:—

"Aug. 8, 1706. Ordered. That the new Carriages for the Cannon sent by Her Majty for Castle William, be primed, and that Elisha Hutchinson and Penn Townsend Esq<sup>ts</sup> be a Committee to joyne with Capt<sup>n</sup> Redknapp her Majty's Engineer, in agreeing to have it done, at a reasonable rate and with Linseed Oyle." — Ibid., p. 304.

† Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 254. See notes to resolves, 1710-11, chapters 34 and 113.

‡ This was published in the News-Letter of the twenty-seventh.

"Aug. 22, 1706. An Account of Plank and Timber Rec'd by Capt<sup>n</sup> Redknap Her Majesty's Engineer of Mr Peter Coffin for making carriages for mounting * the Twenty new Cannon sent by her Majesty for her service at her Castle William, amounting to Fifty one pounds, three shillings and nine pence was presented — And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to Mr Treasurer to pay the above sum of Fifty one pounds, three shillings & nine pence to the s<sup>d</sup> Mr Coffin accordingly." — Ibid., p. 309.

By the province treasurer's account † it appears that payment was duly made on the above warrant.

"Aug. 29, 1706. An Account of Thomas Child Painter, amounting to thirty pounds, for priming and painting twenty carriages for the Twenty new Cannon at Her Majesty's Castle William, according to agreement with the Committee, and so certified by them, was presented — And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of thirty pounds to the s<sup>d</sup> Thomas Child accordingly." — Ibid., p. 312.

By the province treasurer's account † it appears that payment was duly made on the above warrant.

The following executive orders were passed to provide and protect shot, etc., for the new guns: —

"March 8. 1705-6. Ordered. That Elisha Hutchinson, John Walley and Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup>s be a Committee to treat and agree on the best terms they can, for the casting of twelve rounds of shot for the new Cannon at Her Majesty's Castle William, lately sent by her Majesty and that they Advise with Capt<sup>n</sup> Redknap her Majesty's Engineer now at New York, about the said shot, if he return to this Province before the Casting of the same, which the season requires to be forthwith prepared for and set about." — Ibid., p. 268.

"Feb. 12, 1707-8. Ordered. That Colo Hutchinson Mr Commissary General and Capt<sup>n</sup> Tutill be a Committee to consider and direct the speedy providing of Stockados, Materials for the raising and Epoum<sup>t</sup> before the Powder house, and shot that are wanting for the great Ordnance at Her Majesty's Castle William." — Ibid., p. 534.

In the note to chapter 92, ante, some account has been given of attempts to regulate the wages of the garrison on Castle Island.

The following resolve and votes of the House remain in the archives and are given here exactly as written save an appended memorandum that they were read in Council in November, 1705. Since it has not been ascertained that they were not received as mandatory by the Council, or accepted by the Commander-in-Chief as expressive of a grant by the popular branch of the Legislature, they are here inserted: —

"In the House of Representatives. Nov<sup>r</sup> 28: 1705

Resolved That there shall not be Allowed above Sergeants Pay viz<sup>t</sup> nine shillings  $\Psi$  week, where there is not above twenty Souldiers, Posted at any Town: nor above Lieutenant's wages viz<sup>t</sup> fifteen shillings  $\Psi$  week, where there is not above forty Souldiers posted, and where there is between fifty & Sixty Captain's Pay, and no more viz<sup>t</sup> Thirty shillings  $\Psi$  week.

That there shall not be any wages Allowed for a Commissary at Saco, nor for any other Officer there, above a Lieutenants Wages, viz<sup>t</sup> fifteen shillings  $\Psi$  week, and s<sup>d</sup> Lieutenant Supplying the Commissary's Place, shall be allowed two shillings  $\Psi$  week more.

That there shall not be Allowed wages to above Thirty Officers, and Souldiers, at the Castle William, from this time unto the first of April next, nor for above Eighty Officers, and Souldiers, from the first of April next, unto the last of September, following.

Voted That His Excellency be Requested, That for a Supply of Souldiers, at Castle William, in time of Exigency, or when there is any Alarm, there shall five Souldiers, be freed from military Service, except watching, in each Company in Boston, that shall be Listed ready to Attend upon one hour's Notification, by the Signalls of an Alarm, as the law Provide's and ten at Charlestown, and ten at Roxbury, and ten at Dorchester these to Traine four Daies, at the s<sup>d</sup> Castle, in one Yeare, and that they may be freed from all other Impresses.

Voted That the Chaplain, at Casco ffort be Improved to Officiate in the place, of a Commissary, If His Excellency & Council think it Convenient, and s<sup>d</sup> Chaplain accept thereof, then he shall be Paid out of the Treasury ten pounds more than Chaplain's Wages.

Sent up for Concurrence.

THOMAS OAKES Speaker." — Mass.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 188.

The motion and resolve which constitute this chapter were adopted in the House on the thirtieth of November and sent to the Council for concurrence, where, on the same day, they were read. On the first of December they were concurred in.

As stated in the note to chapter 40, ante, this resolve does not appear to have been expressly consented to by the Governor. Another vote of advice respecting the pay and a reduction of the garrison was passed by the House the next year, as follows: —

"In the House of Representatives Nov<sup>r</sup> 11th 1706

. . . That it be humbly offered to his Excellency's Consideration, that the Officers, & Souldiers at Castle-William, be reduced, to the number following from the 1st of Novem<sup>r</sup> untill the 16th of April, & to be paid accordingly. A Captain or Lieutenant upon the place.

* By the following item it seems the work of mounting was completed on the third of August: —

"On Saturday last, by the great diligence of Capt. Redknap Her Majesty's Engineer, the 20 pieces of Cannon were mounted at the Castle of this place; The Garrison consisting of 200 men besides Artificers daily working there; so that now all is very compleat: A Regiment consisting of 500 men under the Command of Col. Hutchinson being always in readiness for the Service there." — Boston News-Letter, No. 120. July 29 to August 5, 1706.

One Chaplain. M<sup>r</sup> Will<sup>m</sup> Barnsdale or one Master Gunner, that Sustain's no other office. Four Quarter Gunners. Two Serjeants. One Drummer. Two Corporals. Twenty five Centinels. in all Thirty Seven.

This Number We hope will moderate the charge in that the last Muster Roll, from the first of Novem<sup>r</sup> 1705, untill the 30th of April 1706, amounted to £,573, .2, .1, which we cannot tell but may still amount to more, in that his Excellency hath (upon signing the Muster Rolle, dated July 22: 1706) Entred a Saving to Capt: Tuthill his further Challenge, when as he is paid after the Rate of Sixty Pounds,  $\Psi$  annum, as Lieut: & Gunner, contrary to the vote of this House, that he Should Sustain two offices at the s<sup>d</sup> Castle. . . .” — Ibid., p. 264.

To this, the Governor replied as follows:—

“ . . . I thank the representatives for their acceptance of any thing on my part & their advice, referring to the winter posture of y<sup>r</sup> Forces. I shall direct that the number of the Garrison at the castle be reduced as they desire saving the boats Crew which they have forgotten,

& Referring to the officers there I cannot be directed what officers to put together, nor receive any Nomination of military officers from the House of representatives in derogation of her Majestyes prerogative,

We are surpris'd That After so many years Experience of the The two offices of Lt & Gmner being together it should now be Impracticable, when at no time there has been a better officer suppoorting these places in my memory,

The saving for Captain Tuthills contayns thus much that since there was an Establishment at the Castel made by the Governour Council and assembly in Due form of law in the year 1700 and sent home to his last Majesty I dare not repeal that Establishment without her Majestyes direction & therefore underwrite a saving thereof. . . .” — Ibid., p. 267.

Chap. 95. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 177. It has not been found in the archives.

The following is the order for a warrant to the treasurer to pay both Carey and Sill:—

“Dec. 5, 1705. To Matthew Carey the sum of Ten pounds, sixteen shillings and to Thomas Sill the sum of nine pounds ten shillings and four pence for their service as Waiters on the Impost Office to the Thirtieth of November past.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 246.

For reference to the province treasurer's entry of payment of the allowance granted by this chapter see the note to chapter 24, ante.

Chap. 96. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 178. It is preserved in archives, vol. 101, p. 300.

This resolve originated in the House November 29, 1705, and was sent to the Council for concurrence. On the third of December it was concurred in, and signed by the Governor.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

Sheweth,

That On or about the Twentieth Day of August next Following the breaking forth of the Rebellion of the Indians, upon the same day that your Excvs declaracon of War\* was published at Natick by yor Excvs special Comand given to John Leverett Esq<sup>r</sup> Your humble Peticon<sup>r</sup> was Ordered to take Care of the Indians inhabiting the Plantacon of Natick, and to prevent the s<sup>d</sup> Indians from travelling or hunting beyond the bounds and Limits then set them by yor Excy, and afterwards Ordered and Appointed by this hon<sup>ble</sup> Court, and to  $\Psi$ form the Office and Service of A Serjant, w<sup>ch</sup> Service your peticon<sup>r</sup> hath  $\Psi$ formed faithfully according to the Orders and directions from time to time rec<sup>d</sup> either from yor Excy Immediately or from the afores<sup>d</sup> John Leverett Esq<sup>r</sup> Comissioned by yor Excy and the Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Council to Govern the s<sup>d</sup> Platacon and others the Plantacons of Indians wthin the bounds of the Late Colony of the Massachusetts Bay. For which service your peticon<sup>r</sup> hath as yet rec<sup>d</sup> but ten pounds and there remains unpaid and due to him One Year and three Quarters Wages, the want whereof is greatly to the disablem<sup>t</sup> of your peticon<sup>r</sup> in paying his duty to the publick, and other necessary Charges,

* This declaration was advised by the Council August 18, 1703. See note to resolves, 1703-4, chapter 53, p. 302, ante.

This petition was read, first, in the Council on the seventh, and next in the House on the fourteenth, when probably it was referred to the standing committee on claims, since the report of a committee on file apparently shows that their first report was recommitted on the thirtieth, and an amended report made on the fifth of December, as follows:—

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor on the fifth of December.

This is also the date of the warrant † to the province treasurer for payment of the allowance granted by this chapter, and this amount ‡ appears by his account to have been duly paid.

The Hon. John Leverett was appointed commissioner for the government of the Natick Indians by the following order in Council:—

“Aug. 5, 1703. His Excellcy nominated, John Leverett Esq<sup>re</sup> to have the Rule and Government of the Indians of the several Plantations, within the late Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, and to be Commissioned accordingly.

Which was Advised and Consented to.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 462.

In the foregoing petition it will be seen that he appointed, a few weeks after he received his commission, Sergeant John Fisher as his immediate agent in the performance of his duties of commissioner. Fisher, as sergeant, and Josiah Chapin, as captain, appear on the same pay-rolls; and it may be, therefore, that the former belonged to the company commanded by the latter. No other record than the above petition has been found of Fisher's appointment as Leverett's agent.

The ten pounds previously received by Fisher was under the following order in Council for a warrant to the treasurer:—

“Aug. 19, 1704. An Accompt presented by John Leverett Esq<sup>re</sup> Commissioner for the Rule, Government and oversight of the Friend Indians within the late Colony of the Massachusetts, of his necessary expences, with a Trooper in Journyng abt that Affair, amounting to the sum of ten pounds, & ten pounds to Jonathan Badcock for his care and Travail with and for the Indians at Puncapoag from August 13th 1703, to the 13th of August 1704 and ten pounds to John Fisher for his attendance on her Majty's service among the Indians at Natick, from November 21st 1703, to the 21st currant and twenty five shillings supplied them in ten bushels of Indian Corne, was read & allowed—and.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the s<sup>d</sup> sum of thirty one pounds, five shillings to the said John Leverett Esq<sup>re</sup> accordingly, on behalfe of himselfe and the other persons above named, there respective proportions thereof.” — Ibid., vol. 4, p. 58.

The entry in his account of payment for this amount is made as follows:—

Chap. 99. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 181. It has not been found in the archives.

Nothing has been found either in the archives or records throwing any further light upon the dishonesty of the Littlefields as implied in this chapter.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowances granted by this chapter was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that they were duly paid.

Chap. 100. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 181. It has not been found in the archives.

At the beginning of the second session this year Governor Dudley broke his comparatively long silence on the subject of the queen's commands concerning the establishing a permanent salary for the governor and lieutenant-governor. This he did in the speech most of which is printed in the note to chapter 52, ante, in which he communicated the letters of January 25, 1704–5, from the Privy Council.

On the next day the representatives, in their message in reply to the Governor, as shown in the note to chapter 52, ante, declared that the “settling of salaries” was one of two subjects of so great consequence that further opportunity would be required for considering them. In that note, also, is given the correspondence that followed between the Governor and the House, including the message of the eleventh of September, by the latter, the vote of the Council not to advise “the settling of a fixed salary for the governor and lieutenant-governor for the time being,” and the final adoption of an address to the queen instead of further legislative action.

† Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 246.

‡ Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 258.

Upon his failure to carry his point,* Dudley wrote to the Lords of Trade under date of the first of November, representing to them the obstinacy of the Assembly, as follows:—

“To the article of salaries they plainly answer they stand upon their rights they will not do it, and alledge their Charter for it, which says nothing thereabouts, but add that they will support their Governor but always as they please which has been hitherto about five hundred pounds of this Country money which amounts not to three hundred and fifty pounds sterl that will by no means support the expense of a table, servants & horses.”—“New England, Board of Trade,” vol. 35, p. 75, in Public Record Office.

In little more than a month after the sending his complaints to the Lords of Trade he rather ungraciously accepted from the House another “present” of two hundred pounds. The manner in which it was tendered, and acknowledged by the Council, thus appears on the record:—

“Dec. 5, 1705. Lient. Coll. Checkley Mr Jewett Mr Blagrove Cpt. Phipps and Mr Hol-yoke of the Representatives attended his Excellency with a Message & in their Name returned the Thanks of the House to his Excy. for his good Service in the Government, & presented him with a Grant of the House for the Sum of Two Hundred Pounds.

Upon Reading whereof James Russell Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster Andrew Belcher Penn Townsend Sam<sup>l</sup> Patridge Ephraim Hunt & Nath<sup>l</sup> Payne Esq<sup>s</sup> with the Secy. were Ordered by the Council to move the House to a further Consideration thereof. As also to consider the Expende of Mr William Dudley in his late Voyage to Canada.”—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 180.

The House firmly adhered to its tender of two hundred pounds “without any Augmentation of the Sum.”†

A warrant ‡ on the treasurer for the two hundred pounds was ordered on the same day. Not long after, he received in one sum the amount § of this grant and the three hundred pounds granted him by chapter 45, ante.

Chap. 101. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 194. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 181.

For an account of the services for which William Dudley was remunerated in this chapter see the note to private act, number nineteen.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed December 5, 1705, and the province treasurer’s account ‡ shows that it was paid.

In the message sent from the Council to the House in answer to the message of the representatives presenting to the Governor their thanks, together with a grant of two hundred pounds, the House was moved “to consider the expense of Mr. William Dudley in his late voyage to Canada.” The present chapter was passed as an answer to that message on the day it was received.

See note to chapter 100, ante.

Chap. 102. This chapter is from archives, vol. 58, p. 244. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 181.

The eccentric persons who excited the town and provoked the ire of the Legislature to the extent shown in this chapter were father and son. Their peculiar notions were probably the result of that tendency to depart from generally accepted views, and that strong impulse to proclaim original ideas, however fantastic, which is induced or greatly stimulated by persecution. They seem to have imitated the example of, and at one time to have fellowshipped with, the Quakers, and like them to have courted the rigorous treatment which was dealt out to the early Friends in Connecticut Colony, where the Rogerses belonged; † but they went far beyond their former brethren in their eccentric doings and teachings. Like all other sincere enthusiasts these Rogerenes attracted devoted followers, who applauded their eccentricities, and regarded their judicial punishments as tokens of their confessorship.

The immediate violation of law which called down upon the two Rogerses the retribution of the judiciary and the vengeance of the Legislature is thus narrated in the News-Letter:—

“Boston, On Tuesday the 23d Currant, Complaint being made to Edward Bromfield Esqr. One of Her Majesty’s Council, and Justice of the Peace; of John Rogers & Son, of New-London in Connecticut-Colony for Profanation of the Sabbath, in Driving of Cattle through the Town of Dehham to Boston for a Market on the 21st Instant, being the Lords-Day; And opprobriously answering those who dissuaded him there-from; for which being brought before the said Justice, and legally convicted, he was Sentenced according to the Direction of the Law in that case, to pay the Fine of Twenty Shillings: He Appealed to the Quarter-Sessions of the Peace, but obstinately refused to give Security to prosecute his Appeal, and therefore is Committed to Prison.

* “It was a great disappointment to be able to carry neither of these points, [i.e., the building of a fort at Pennaquid; contributing towards the charge of Piscataqua Fort; and the settling of fixed salaries on the Governor, etc.] which the ministry were very much set upon, and which it is not improbable they were encouraged might be obtained. Had they been matters less unpopular, yet the Governor’s weight at this time would have been scarce sufficient to have carried them through. The prejudices against him were great. The people in general looked upon him as an enemy, even to the privileges of the new charter.”—Hutchinson’s Hist. Mass., ed. 1795, vol. 2, p. 140.

|| Miss Frances M. Canlkins devotes a chapter in her History of New London to the story of the Rogers family and their religious vagaries.

It was thought meet at the Desire of several persons to Publish this as a Caveat to others, to let People know, That Open Profanation of the LORDS-DAY, will not pass Unpunished. As also, Because the man thus Fined, pretends himself to be a Sufferer for his Conscience, and has therefore even courted the Inconveniencies that are come upon him. And whereas the Quakers have a while since endeavoured by their False Addresses at home in England, to misrepresent the Government of this Province, for Making and Executing Several severe Laws, against their Friends, only for their Conscientious Dissent from the National Way and not for any Evil Fact done by them: The Publick may be informed what kind of Severe Laws those are, and what kind of Profanity may pass for a Conscientious Dissent, among those that Clamour against the Country for Persecution, in Executing the Laws of God and man, of our Nation of England and this Province." — No. 80. October 22 to 29, 1705.

For this breach of the acts for the observance of the Lord's Day they were arrested. Confident, as religious enthusiasts usually are, that they were the special objects of divine interest they looked for deliverance from Heaven. This comforting assurance they were not content to rest upon silently but communicated it to the Legislature, with an explanation of the reasons of their conduct, which looks something like an apology.

The following is the brief paper in which they made their case known to the General Court, being careful to intimate their desire that it be read in "the lower house first:" —

"From Boston prison, to the General Court now assembled in Boston this first day of the 9th mo 1705.

Hon<sup>d</sup> Assembly (we whose names are under written) haue sent you our belief in print concerning worldly Governm<sup>t</sup> And do signifie to you, that we are imprisoned by two judges for driving cattel on the 21. day of the last month which day we cannot worship: because there is one only true god, that made both day and night, whom we fear and worship: and therefore cannot worship the workes of his hands: tho' we are required so to do, by the commandment of men, and therefore we haue rather appealed to god for judgm<sup>t</sup>; and haue committed our bodyes to the prison for your security till he shall deliver us.

The elder Rogers had given offence to the authorities of Connecticut* in 1697, for "printing and publishing a book reputed scandalous and heretical."

The titles of the two pamphlets condemned in the present chapter have not been discovered in the public records. Sabin gives the titles of several tracts published by Rogers during that year in his American Bibliographies.

Thomasine, the daughter of William Elson, became successively the wife of David Harris and Erasmus Babbitt, to the latter of whom she was married November 18, 1700. By her first husband she had, among other children, two sons, Elson and Joseph. In January, 1699-1700, during her widowhood, she conveyed* to these sons the real estate which was the subject of litigation in the suit referred to in this chapter, and of which she was lawfully seised, and they in turn conveyed† the same, in 1705, to James Meinziez, mentioned in said preamble.

The petitioners named in this chapter having respectively recovered judgment against Erasmus Babbitt, in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk County, caused the executions issued upon said judgments to be levied upon said real estate, evidently supposing it to be the proper estate of the defendant. These levies, which, together, covered the whole estate, were made, respectively,‡ on January 13, 1702-3, and May 3, 1703; and the executions were duly returned by the sheriff, and the service recorded.

During the interval between the dates of these levies and Meinziez' purchase, Thomas Fosdick and Michael Newman, mariners, came into the occupancy of the premises as tenants to the petitioners. At the September term of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Middlesex County, therefore, Meinziez brought an action against Fosdick and Newman, jointly, in a plea of trespass and ejectment. The writ was returnable at Cambridge, the second Tuesday of September, 1705; and at a court held by adjournment on the eighteenth the cause was "Continued till the next Term pursuant to y<sup>e</sup> Law of the Province The Defendants being out of the Province at y<sup>e</sup> time of y<sup>e</sup> Service of the writ." §

At the next term, held at Charlestown on the eleventh of December, the cause was tried upon the plaintiff's declaration that the defendants "haue illegally Entered into, and Do refuse to Deliver un to ye plt the possession of" the premises as described, which "Do of right belong unto y<sup>e</sup> plt James Mienziez, as p<sup>r</sup> his Deed thereof to him made and Legally Executed, in Court produced, under y<sup>e</sup> hands and Seals of Joseph Harris and Elson Harris the Grantors Dated: 11th August: 1705: may more fully appear," etc. The ad damnum was two hundred pounds. The defendants were called and defaulted, "they nor Either of them appearing by them Selnes, or any lawfull Attorney for them." || Judgment was entered up for the plaintiff and execution was issued upon his giving bond as required by law in the case of absent defendants. ¶

Upon this execution Meinziez was put into possession of the demanded premises by the defendants.

In this suit the defendants did not avouch the petitioners as their lessors, and no appeal having been taken, there was no remedy left them but to apply to the Legislature.

This they did in the following petition:—

"Suffolke ss/ To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> generall & Governo<sup>r</sup> in cheife in and over the Province of the Massathusets Bay &c<sup>a</sup> And the honorable the Council and house of Representatives in Generall Court assembled

And notwithstanding y<sup>or</sup> Peticoners appeared by their Attorney in said Court yet for want of a Power of Attorney from their Tenants, Judgment went ag<sup>t</sup> them by Default, although there was one of the Tenants never was within the Province since the Commencing said Acon. § Middlesex Court of Common Pleas: Records, vol. 1, p. 76.

¶ Province Laws, 1700-1, chapter 20, § 3.

“Ordered That a Hearing be Granted upon this Petition on the Second Friday of the next Session of this Court, the Parties, to be notified And That Execution be stop'd in the mean time.” — Ibid.

In this order the Council voted a nonconcurrence, and on the same day, it seems, Meinziez appeared before the Board, and upon “his own free submission” the Council passed the order which constitutes this chapter, and sent it to the House for concurrence. It was concurred in forthwith, and consented to by the Governor.

By virtue of this chapter Pitts and Holland brought a writ of review in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, held at Concord for the county of Middlesex, June 11, 1706, when “ye Parties appearing The Defend<sup>t</sup> Pleading that the former Judgment is right and ought to be Confirmed, The writt read wth ye pleas and Evidences Respectively Tendered The Case after a full hearing thereof was Comitted to ye Jury who returned their verdict thereon finding for the Defend<sup>t</sup> Confirmation of the former Judgmt and Cost of Courts.”*

Judgment was entered up according to the verdict, and the plaintiffs appealed to the Superior Court of Judicature to be held at Cambridge on the thirtieth of July, following.

The plaintiffs' reasons of appeal were as follows:—

“Middx ss. To the honorable the Justices of her Majtys Superiour Court of Judicature to be held at Cambridge for the County aforesaid the last Tuesday of July 1706./

To these reasons the defendant made the following answer:—

The judgment of the Court is recorded as follows:—

By chapter 53, ante, the hearing on the petition of Susannah Amsden, which had been assigned to the second session by chapter 28, ante, was continued to the third session. The respondents, Isaac Amsden and others, it seems, appeared at that session and filed their answer (which is given in the note to resolves, 1706-7, chapter 106), and the hearing was again continued to the present session. By the order which constitutes this chapter the hearing was once more continued. On April 10, 1706, the selectmen of the town of Marlborough asked leave to withdraw their petition mentioned in the title to chapter 77, ante, upon which a hearing was ordered to be had this session.

For further action on the petitions of Abigail Watkins and Faith Waldo see note to chapter 53, 1706-7. The petition of Richard Carr, which, by chapter 76, ante, was ordered to be heard this session, appears not to have been acted upon until December 20, 1715.

The Samuel Butterfield named in this chapter is the same person who is mentioned in resolves, 1704-5, chapter 48, and note. His petition was as follows:—

This petition was read in the House on the day of its date, and the resolve upon it passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The province treasurer’s account* shows that the allowance granted by this chapter was duly paid.

The following is Penhallow’s account of Butterfield’s preservation from death at the hands of his captors:—

“A third was Samuel Butterfield, who being sent to Groton as a soldier, was with others attacked as they were gathering in the harvest; his bravery was such, that he killed one and wounded another, but being overpowered by strength, was forced to submit; and it happened that the slain Indian was a sagamore, and of great dexterity in war, which caused matter of lamentation, and enraged them to such a degree that they vowed the utmost revenge; some were for whipping him to death, others for burning him alive; but differing in their sentiments, they submitted the issue to the Squaw Widow, concluding she would determine something very dreadful, but when the matter was opened, and the fact considered, her spirits were so moderate as to make no other reply than, Fortune L’guerre. Upon which some were uneasy, to whom she answered, ‘if by killing him, you can bring my husband to life again, I beg you to study what death you please; but if not, let him be my servant;’ which he accordingly was, during his captivity, and had favor shewn him.” — Indian Wars, p. 47.

Chap. 108. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 185. It has not been found in the archives.

The warrants for paying the whole sum found due to Commissary-General Belcher were issued upon the following orders, respectively:—

Which Report was read, and the Council

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the said Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> the above sum of two thousand four hundred seventy one pounds, eighteen shillings and three pence the ballance of his account, and to advance the sum of one thousand pounds more to him towards the further growing charge, He to account for the laying out thereof." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 227.

"April 17, 1706. Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay to Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> Commissary General the sum of five hundred fifty nine pounds, nineteen shillings and three pence, being part of two thousand fifty nine pounds, nineteen shillings and three pence, reported by the Committee on his Accounts to be due to him from the Province on the 30th of March past, and accepted by the General Assembly (he formerly having a warrant* for fifteen hundred pounds of the same) as also to advance to the s<sup>d</sup> Commissary General the sum of six hundred pounds, towards the further growing charge, in all eleven hundred fifty nine pounds, 19. shill<sup>s</sup> & 3+ pence." — Ibid., p. 278.

The province treasurer's account † shows that these amounts were paid. The date of the first warrant is given by the treasurer as the twenty-second of October.

At the date § of the last purchase of gunpowder previous to the passage of the present chapter, Governor Dudley was still apprehensive of the designs of the enemy against the western frontiers. The correspondence between him and the Governor of Connecticut on this subject is given in the note to resolves, 1706-7, chapter 6. Notwithstanding the fact that Livingston's report upon his return from Canada had shown the groundlessness of the rumors of the assembling of a force of the enemy at Cowassic, the belief of the authorities of Massachusetts that the enemy were meditating an attack on the frontiers in considerable force was not overcome, nor their vigilance diminished, until late in the autumn, after Captain William Tyng had led a reconnoitring party a day's march beyond Pennecook, and thence to Lake Winnepesaukee, without finding, in their going and returning, any recent traces of the enemy, and Captain Lane and his company had returned from a similar expedition to Sebago Lake, seeing none of the enemy save two Indians at Black Point, on their return. ||

Dudley was so encouraged by the failure of the enemy to make any powerful demonstration during this year (which fact he attributed to the care he had taken to have the frontiers well defended) that he had gradually reduced the provincial forces until he felt safe in assuring the Legislature ¶ that "ten thousand pounds of the last year's charges" had been saved on this account.

The French records and accounts of military proceedings in Canada at that time, now accessible, afford further explanation of the circumstances which led to the suspension of hostilities. Although Vaudreuil had been deterred from venturing a repetition of Beaucourt's disastrous experience of the previous year he had not been idle. By his direction, a considerable number of French and Indians from Canada had been sent to join the force under Subercase in ravaging the English settlements on Newfoundland. This force, though much smaller than could have been prudently sent against New England, had done great damage, and their success had, in some measure, counteracted the spirit of disaffection among the savage allies of the French which the misfortunes of the previous year had engendered. There was, therefore, little reason to suppose that hostilities would not be renewed in case of the failure of the pending negotiations between Dudley and Vaudreuil ** for a truce; and it was only a wise precaution to lay in sufficient ammunition to supply the frontier garrisons and the soldiers likely to be called into active service.

But there were other circumstances calling for an unusually large supply of gunpowder. Besides what would be required for the twenty new cannon — the gift of the queen — which had been landed at the Castle on the last of November, †† the recent tidings from the West Indies were ominous of new danger. As early as March 25, 1706, the News-Letter had published the report from Barbadoes of the departure ††† of a powerful French fleet to attack St. Christopher, an account of which is given in the note to chapter 112, post. This fleet was believed to be under the command of Jean Baptiste Ducasse, an intrepid officer of the French navy, the rumor, early in October, 1704, of whose expedition to Martinique had greatly alarmed the merchants of Boston. The recent news was confirmed by reports* in subsequent issues of the same paper—one in April, of the progress of the fleet as far as Antigua, and another a week later, of the attack on Nevis and St. Christopher. These tidings, it would seem by the following extract from the Governor's speech † at the opening of the fourth session, were the chief inducements to his convening the Assembly:—

“Gentlemen—

At your Last recess I did not Intend to trouble you again until the ordinary season of your session, but we have lately had the advice of a french fleet in the west Indies of force enough to have Lookt this way & I thought it proper upon that head to have your advice what may be necessary for us to be in a readiness to prevent any Insult.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 41.

In continuing his speech the Governor thus referred to the subject of preparing for the defence of the frontiers:—

“It is also the time of year for the Increase of the forces in the frontiers which to save the Charge of the province during the Last four months I have retrenched to a Lower Number than at any time of this warr thereby to save the Charge of the province which I am sensible is very great

The Treasurer & m<sup>r</sup> Commissary Generals accounts will shew you the present state of your affayres & what is wanting.

Gentlemen of the Representatives.

I am Glad to tell you that at all times I have found you very ready to supply the Necessities of the warr, I have had no difficulty either for men or money for the defence of the province which I have always truly represented to her Majesty, our Winter Marches have discouraged the Indians and our Treaty for the prisoners with the french has diverted their motions & thereby occasioned our quiet, & above all the favour of Almighty God has blest our Endeavours That the frontiers are at this time sensible of more ease & security Then in any past troubles with the french & Indians.

I shall acquaint you with the present state of the forces for the winter past & what addition I think necessary & shall not desire a long session at this time The busy season of the year demanding your being at home & your anniversary meeting being so near. . . .” — Ibid.

The following is the vote of advice for a warrant to the province treasurer in payment of the cost of the gunpowder procured according to the order which constitutes this chapter:—

“July 22, 1706. Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to Mr Treasurer to pay the sum of two hundred & thirty pounds to John Walley Esq<sup>r</sup> for twenty Barrels of Gun powder purchased of him by the Committee  $\Psi$  order of the General Court at their Session in April past, for the use of the Provc<sup>s</sup>.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 297.

Chap. 110. This chapter is from archives, vol. 88, p. 345. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 186.

During the third session this year John Campbell, the postmaster, presented the following petition:—

* The following entry in Sewall's Diary gives some idea of the alarm these tidings caused at Boston:—

“Apr. 4, 1706. Last night I dream'd I saw a vast number of French coming towards us, for multitude and Huddle like a great Flock of Sheep. It put me into a great Consternation, and made me think of Hiding in some Thicket. The Impression remain'd upon me after my Waking. GOD defend!” — Vol. II., p. 157.

† April 10, 1706.

‡ From and after May 3, 1705, the general assembly of New Hampshire contributed on the average as often as once a year for several years an allowance of six pounds to Campbell for his service as postmaster. On July 2, 1703, a joint committee was appointed to consider Campbell's petition “for an encouragement of maintaining the post-office betwixt Boston and” Portsmouth. On February 11, 1703-4, apparently upon the recommendation of this committee, Campbell's account as “postmaster-general,” amounting to £21 4s., “for his trouble and charges in sending forward his Excellency's letters to Roxbury at all hours and seasons in the night, and for sending to and from Piscataqua extraordinary expresses,” was cut down to fourteen pounds. This amount was ordered to be paid to him, in full of his account, by the treasurer, out of the next province rate.

This petition was read in Council on the twenty-third of November. On the twenty-seventh it was read in the House and again on the thirtieth, when it was "referred to next session," Secretary Addington meanwhile endorsing upon it the memoranda * in brackets appended to the petition, as above.

This petition was read in the House on the eleventh, and on the twelfth the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed, and other proceedings ensued, as shown in the printed chapter, the Governor signifying his consent.

The province treasurer's account † shows that the amount granted by this chapter was duly paid.

The following items from the Boston News-Letter give an idea of the frequency and regularity of the mail service as then established between Piscataqua, and the western and southern colonies, and Boston:—

“This is to give Notice, That the Western Post, to Connecticut, New-York and Philadelphia Sets out on Monday the 4th Current, at 3 a Clock in the Afternoon, to return on Saturday next; and so to continue for once a week till December; he also carries with him the Southern Maile for Rhode-Island.” — No. 98. February 25 to March 4, 1705-6.

The following schedules of lengths of stay of post packets and the rates of postage between England and her West-India colonies were published in the News-Letter of October 22, 1705:—

“These are to give notice, That Her Majesty in regard to the great Expence She is at in maintaining the Correspondence by Letters between England and Her Plantation-Islands in America, and for the further improvement and benefit of Trade; Hath Settled Packet-Boats for the West-Indies, who are to go from Plymouth at the beginning of every Month throughout the Year, no accident preventing the same; who are to touch and stay at each of the English Island-Plantations in the following manner: Viz.

		Days & Nights	hours
Barbadoes, to stay no longer than		3
Antigua . . . . .		2
Being arrived at	Montserrat . . . . .		36
	Nevis . . . . .		36
	St. Christophers . . . . .		36
	Jamaica . . . . .	10

And thence to Return to England, and not to be stayed or delayed on any pretence whatsoever.

And Her Majesty in pursuance to the Statute made in the Twelfth Year of his late Majesty, King Charles II. for Establishing a Post Office, has Directed and Impowred Sir Robert Cotton Knight, and Sir Thomas Franckland Baronet, Her Majesty's Post-Master General of England and the Plantations, &c. to receive and take the Post of all Letters & Packets that shall be conveyed by the Post lately Established between the Post Office General in London, and the above-said Islands, according to the Rates following.

From England to the West-Indies each	One Sheet . . . . .	s. d.	} And in proportion to the same Rates for every Packet of Letters.
Letter not exceeding	Two Sheets . . . . .	1 3
From the Islands to England, each	One Sheet . . . . .	1 6	} And in like proportion for every Packet of Letters.
Letter not exceeding	Two Sheets . . . . .	3 0
For every Packet of any kind of greater Bulk for every	Ounce . . . . .	6

This is likewise to give Notice, That the Deputy Post Masters are appointed at each Island, to attend and regulate all matters concerning Letters and Packets, and to Correspond with the General Post Office in London about the same: And forasmuch as every Vessel hath performed her Voyage in the space of 150<sup>d</sup> days, or thereabouts. All persons Corresponding with New England, New-York, Jersey, Pensilvania, Maryland, Virginia, Carolina, and Bermuda, may have their Letters to the Respective Governments put up in Bags apart, in the method they are now sent to each Island; And the Deputy Post-Master of each Island hath Orders, where the next and most immediate conveyance is to be had, to send them to the Main of America, as hath hitherto been the practice for Conveying Letters from Barbadoes to Bermuda by Sloops, and other Embarkations, daily Trading between the said Islands and the Continent. By which means Returns may be as constantly made from the Continent to the said Post-Masters, and by them transmitted to England by the Packets in their Monthly Courses, whereunto their Orders oblige them, without any further Charge there than what is to be paid at the General Post-Office in London, (only the Inland Passage on the Main excepted) according to the above Rates.

* This should be one hundred days: see extract from News-Letter, No. 111, on p. 623, post.

These are also to give Notice, That Letters will be taken in at the General Post-Office in London, directed for New-England, New-York, New-Jersey, Pensilvania, Maryland, Virginia, Carolina, on the Continent of America, and the Island of Bermuda, on the same Post nights as those for the Plantation-Islands, with particular directions for those for the Continent, to be forwarded by the first opportunity.” — No. 79.

Chap. 111. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 186. It is preserved in archives, vol. 101, p. 308.

On the sixteenth of February the General Court was prorogued to the tenth of April by proclamation. In the mean time the Governor called the attention of the Council to the state of the province treasury and the need of a supply, as follows:—

“March 28, 1706. His Excellency acquainted the Council of the present demand of money, for fitting out of the Province Galley, for the purchasing of Provisions for the Garrisons at Casco and Saco Ports, and the Forces in the late Province of Mayn &c. and that there is not money in the Treasury to make that supply, or for other emergencies.

And therefore it is necessary the General Assembly should sit on the tenth of April next according to the Prorogation, and make a further grant, unless any other expedient could be Advised.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 269.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter originated in the House April 11, 1706, and was sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

See chapter 96, ante, and note.

Chap. 112. This chapter is from archives, vol. 2, p. 651.

This order having originated in the House of Representatives, and having received the approval of the Council and the Governor, lacks no requisite of a complete legislative act. The following account of the cause and nature of the distress, to assist in relieving which it was passed, is thus given by Captain Thomas Southey in his Chronological History of the West Indies, under the year 1706:—

“A French fleet, of five sail of the line, and twenty smaller vessels, in March, made a descent in St. Christopher’s: they were repulsed in their attack upon the fort, but they burnt the plantations and plundered the inhabitants. Information being given them that an English fleet was expected, they quitted the island, carrying off 300 slaves, and went to Nevis, where the inhabitants, upon their landing, fled to the mountains, and were pursued by the soldiers. After an unsuccessful resistance, they capitulated the next day, March 24th. By the capitulation the inhabitants were to be prisoners of war, but to remain on the island, and to procure a like number of French prisoners, to be released by way of exchange.

The French broke the capitulation in several respects, treated the inhabitants most barbarously, and forced them to a second agreement upon the 6th of April, by which the English were in six months to send to Martinico a certain number of Negroes, or money in lieu of them. The French carried off with them between 3000 and 4000 slaves. £103,000 was voted by the English parliament* to relieve the sufferers.” — Vol. II., p. 199.

The early reports † of these ravages of the French in the English West Indies did not indicate a purpose of the enemy to extend the field of hostilities to the English colonies on the Continent. Indeed, as late as the sixth ‡ of May, the hostile expedition was de-

* By stat. 9 Anne, chap. 23, § 88, there was appropriated, from the two million pounds sterling therein authorized to be raised by lottery, £103,000 lls. 4d. to be distributed amongst such proprietors of plantations in the islands of Nevis and St. Christopher, sufferers by this invasion, as had resettled or should resettle in those islands, in proportion to their losses, by debentures, to be issued by the commissioners for trade, at six per cent interest. By subsequent acts in the fifth and eighth years of Geo. I., the distribution of this aid was further regulated, and finally funded in a three per cent security by the government.

† See note to chapter 109, ante. The last of these reports there referred to (in the News-Letter of April 8) is given below in full:—

“Rhode-Island, April 5. This day arrived here Benj Cranston 6 weeks passage from Suranam, who sprung his Mast, & was forced to St. Christophers, where he arrived 7 days after the French Fleet had left it; They consisted of 4 Men of War, some of them 70 Gun Ships, and 28 Sail of Privateers, the Enemy Landed 3000 men; there was but 500 English to resist them; who did the best they could, and kept to their Forts; but sent several Parties out, who kill’d several of the Enemy, and the English lost but one man; the Enemy stayed there 4 days, who took the whole place, except the Forts, which they never Attacked: They did all the Damage they could, by burning the Towns, Mills and Canes, kill’d Horse and Cattle, and carried away several Negroes. Before the Enemy went to St Christophers, they lay two days at Nevis Battering there, but durst not Land; they never Attacked Antigua, only came in sight of it, and so went by Montserrat to St. Christophers. The Privateers quarrelled with the Men of War, because they did not Batter the Forts: It is supposed that the Enemy design next for Curacao. They daily expect from England a Fleet of 18 Sail at the Leward Islands to Attack Martinico.” — No. 105.

‡ The following is part of a communication from Boston in the News-Letter of that date:—

“The reason of the Frenches Effort thus, is said to be, That the French King at the beginning of this War borrowed a considerable Sum from New-Spain, with Engagement in 5 years to furnish them with 50000 Negroes for their Mines, which time of Contract being out, and his necessity requiring another Borrow; The Spaniards were Crusty, and would not Lend till the first agreement was answered; so he thought an Attack on these Islands to be the readiest way to accomplish his bargain, and designs, which hitherto in great measure has been frustrated; for in their coming out of Brest 8 of said Ships were lost by Storm, some put back again disabled, others of them, viz. 6 Sail of Men of War and some Transports arrived at Martinico, and were Joynd by some Privateers, who attempted in the Latter end of January, and beginning of February last to Land at Antigua and Nevis, the Wind blowing hard and contrary hindred their Attack: Our Forts at Nevis, Maul’d their Ships, and kill’d their Vice Admiral. The Enemy went then for St. Christophers, where they Landed 1600 Regular men from France, and as many Privateers, when they burnt and destroyed the greatest part of their Crop, Houses and Mills, &c. but could not take the Forts: And the Enemy hearing of a Supply going from hence to the Assistance of those Islands, The Enemy in a Confusion left the place, and returned to Martinico.” — No. 107.

scribed as being under the command of Ducasse, and sent forth to punish the Spaniards of Mexico for resenting the bad faith of the king of France. The menace to the Continental English colonies, though not wholly disregarded, was thought too remote to require active measures of defence on a large scale.

In his speech at the beginning of this session (April 10, 1706) Governor Dudley commended to the consideration of the Legislature the suffering of the inhabitants of the sister colony, as follows:—

“There is one other affayr which I am extreemly Vrged in my own Mind to offer to you, which is on the Consideration of the present distress of saint Christophers, who by the ravage of the Enemy are burnd & their stock & provision destroyed & the Inhabitants in the Last distress for subsistence, if this assembly so opportunely meet not withstanding our own Great distress sufferings & Debt upon us, should think we owe them a Charity if it were but one Load of provision to be given to the poor, I am humbly of opinion it woud be acceptable to god and Honourable to the English nation, & speak for us in time to Come as the Like action has done for our fathers in the Relief of the Bahamas about fifty years past, you will pardon me this proceeds from a true affection and Honour to your selves and the province in General.” — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 42.

In response to the Governor's appeal, the House, on the eleventh, passed the order which constitutes this chapter, and it appears to have been read in Council on the same day. That it was concurred in is inferred from the fact that (on the seventeenth) the Council passed the following:—

“Ordered. That a Briefe be issued forth for a Collection of charity to relieve her Majty's subjects of the Island of St Christophers lately Insulted and Ravaged by the French. And a Briefe was accordingly drawn up, and Samuel Sewall Esqr and Andrew Belcher Esqr appointed to be the Receivers of the sd Collection and to invest it in Provision &c to be forwarded by Direction from the Board.

J: DUDLEY.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 278.

In conformity to the above vote the following brief* was promulgated:—

“Province of the Massachusetts Bay. — By his Excellency the Gov:
A Briefe.

Whereas the Island of St Christopher's, some few weekes since, has been Insulted and ravaged by the French, And Her Majty's good subjects of that Island reduced to the last Extremity, by the spoyles the Enemy has made in burning of their Houses & mills, destroying and carrying off their stocks and Estate; so that they are left destitute both of Habitation and subsistance, most having lost every thing they had.

I have therefore, at the Desire of the Representatives in their late session, and with the Advice of Her Majty's Council, Issued forth this Briefe; Hereby Recommending to the Comisseration and Pity of all Charitable well disposed Christians, within this Province and the Province of New-Hampshire, the deplorable circumstances, and distressing wants of their sd Christian Bretheren and Fellow subjects; And Exciteing them to put on bowels of Christian Compassion and Charity for the Reliefe of the pinching necessities of their distressed Friends & Countrymen.

Which will be very acceptable to God, profitable for our selves and be remembred with the like grateful Acknowledgemt and Respect from this Island, as formerly.

The Money that shall be contributed & collected for this pious use, to be put into the hands of Samuel Sewall Esqr & Andrew Belcher Esqr by them to be Invested in provisions &c and forthwith forwarded by the Direction of my selfe and the Council.

And the ministers of the several Towns are Directed to read & publish this in their Congregations; And to stir up their People, notwithstanding their deep poverty, to a cheerful & liberal Contribution to this good worke.—

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston the 17th day of April. 1706. In the Fifth year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Anne.

By order of the Gov: & Council.

J DUDLEY

The result of this appeal to the benevolence of the people and the manner in which the collections were forwarded are shown in the following entries in the executive records of the council:—

“May 20, 1706. Ordered. That Samuel Sewall Esqr & Andrew Belcher Esqr who are entrusted with the Charity lately collected for the Reliefe of her Majty's subjects of the Island of St Christophers ravaged by the French, be directed and Impowred to Treat and provide for the speedy transportation thereof, and Report the same, when further direction will be given by the Board for Distribution of the said Charity.

A further account appeared in the next number of the News-Letter, as follows:—

“Boston, On the 5th Currant arrived here a Sloop from St. Thomas, Daniel Wyborn Master, 18 days passage; And by Passengers on board her that made their escape from Nevis, We are acquainted, That a French Fleet consisting of 12 Capital Ships, and 40 other Vessels on the 22d of March last, did Attack said Island, where the Enemy Landed 6000 Men, who had over-run the Island, and carried away all that was Valuable; only they left the Inhabitants with their Houses Standing; There was several of the Enemy killed by the Negros. The Enemy stayed there up-ward of 20 days. Several Vessels belonging to New-England, and other Places being Imbargo'd there, were taken by the French.” — No. 108.

* It was printed in the News-Letter, No. 105 (April 15 to 22, 1706), and from the following entry in Sewall's Diary it is to be inferred that it was read from the Old South pulpit on the twenty-eighth:—

“Lords-Day, April, 28. Brief is Read.” — Vol. II., p. 100. See, also, p. 94 * in the same volume for a copy of the brief.

"July 18, 1706. Samuel Sewall, and Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> Stewards of the Charity collected for the relief of the Inhabitants of St. Christophers, ravaged by the Enemy, acquainting the Board that they had invested about one halfe of the said Collection in Provision &c and shipt the same on the Sloop Hawke, Daniel Wyburne * Commander.

The Council do approve thereof and advise it be addressed to the Governour, to be distributed to the most necessitous, by the advice of her Majesty's Council on the place.

And direct that the sd Stewards do forward the remainder by the next good opportunity, & address the same accordingly, as above. J: DUDLEY." — Ibid., p. 293.

One of several letters of which, apparently, Cotton Mather was the author, printed, under the title of "The Deplorable State of New England", in the introduction to the second volume of Sewall's Diary, refers, under date of October 2, 1706, to this act of charity, as follows:—

"Sir

I may inform you of one Action lately done among us, which I know you will be pleased withal. Upon the advice of the extream Distress whereto the French Invasion had brought St. Christophers and Nevis, the People of New-England, in a most Christian manner expressed their Charity towards those, who perhaps would have hardly done the like for them, on a like Ocasion. We made a Collection for the Relief of their Necessities, the Collection was, as I am told, between 7 and 800 l. in this Collection, there were two Churches in Boston, the South and the North, one gave somewhat above a 100 l. the other gave a little under it. Certainly, a Country so ready to serve Her Majesty, and to help their fellow Subjects, ought to have a room in the Thoughts of all good Men in the English Nation." — *P. 42**.

Hutchinson thus summarizes the results of the brief:—

"[1706.] A small sum (£.600) was collected in the churches this year and sent for the relief of such of the poor inhabitants of St. Christophers as had been distressed by the enemy." — Hist. of Mass., ed. 1767, vol. 2, p. 163, note.

See, further, Sewall's letter to Governor Nicholson in his Letter-Book, vol. II., p. 24.

1706-7.

Chap. 2. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 218, and council records, vol. VIII., p. 194.

The passage of the resolve which constitutes this chapter followed the presentation of an account, which had been taken by order of the Council, of the stock of powder in the province available for public use, which, with the purchases authorized by the Legislature of the preceding year, was insufficient for the supply of the forts and garrisons on the frontiers, for vessels of war, and for soldiers likely to be called into service in view of the impending hostilities on the seaboard.

In the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapters 109 and 112, some account of the ravages of a French fleet upon the English West-India islands is given, and it is there shown that Governor Dudley was induced, through apprehension of a possible demonstration by the enemy against New England, by sea, to convene the Assembly in a fourth session, in order to obtain their advice as to what measures should be taken "to prevent any insult." The only legislative actions that followed in response to this part of the Governor's speech were the resolves, chapter 109, for the purchase of twenty barrels of gunpowder, and chapter 111, for a supply of the treasury for the defence of the province, etc.

The Assembly was dissolved April 12, 1706; and within one month thereafter not only further particulars in regard to the movements of the French fleet had been published in the newspaper † but it had transpired that the fleet was not under Ducasse, as had been * [Antigua, Oct. 3.] "Mr. Wyborne is arrived at St. Christophers with the Charitable Benevolence of the People of the Massachusetts-Province for the Relief of the Distressed Inhabitants of that Island, being a great favour (and as I am inform'd by Col. Crisp one of the Gentlemen of St. Christophers who is now here) is accepted and resented by them as such. Tobias Green of Boston who was bound thence to Barbadoes is at Nevis. Mr. Welch arrived here the 21st of last Month, having lost all his Horses in bad Weather." — Boston News-Letter, No. 134. November 4 to 11, 1706.

† The News-Letter of April 15, 1706, contained the following:—

"St. Christopher, March 8. Having had Intelligence of a French Fleet designing to attack some of the Leward Islands, 13 Sail of Vessels appearing in sight of Antigua the 29th of January last, caused an Alarm, but the next day 30 Sail appearing, gave assurance 'twas the French, and by their actions were designed to Land on that Island; two Sloops were sent out to discover the strength and designs of the Enemy, one of which exchanged several Shot with one of the French Privateers, most of the small Vessels came within a League of Five-Island Harbour, and some within the outwardmost Island, the Wind blowing strong Northerly, the great Ships could not come to Windward; in this posture they lay till the 3d day at noon, during which time the Commander in Chief (Col. John Johnson) had in Arms about 1000 of the Inhabitants, 2 Companies of the Queen's Soldiers, about 300 Marines, & 250 Negroes, in all about 2000 men, with which he designed to meet the Enemy at Landing: The Greyhound Man of War lay then on the Careen, and her Guns ashore, and the Captain brought his men ashore to joyn the Forces there.

The Wind still blowing very hard, about noon the 3d day the Enemy's Commodore fired a Gun, & their whole Fleet went before the Wind to Nevis, where they arrived the 5th of February, & presumed to Land, but the Wind blowing hard caused a great Sea, which hindered their designs, the English lying in their Trenches ready to receive them in case of their Landing, sundry shot from the Fleet were sent on shore, some of which 24 Pounds; they Landed in the night a French man and a Negro, who were to burn the Canes, thinking we should leave our Trenches to extinguish the Fire, that they might have an opportunity to Land without any repulse, and accordingly they burnt about 80 Acres of Canes, but our men would not hazard the loss of the Island by deserting the Trenches for any sinister end; a small party was detached to look for the two men aforesaid, which were both found, and after Examination and Tryal were hang'd.

reported; but that that officer and his squadron had been captured in the channel by an English fleet and he carried to Bristol as a prisoner. A week later the news arrived that the fleet which had done so much damage to the English settlement in the West Indies was commanded by the Sieur d'Iberville,* and that his men had divulged his purpose to attack New York after he had made a descent upon Jamaica.

Throughout the English colonies d'Iberville had justly acquired a reputation for indomitable courage and energy. His military and naval enterprises against the English had invariably been successful. He it was who captured the Newport Galley in 1696, and it was to him that Pasco Chubb soon after surrendered the fort at Pemaquid, rebuilt by Sir William Phips and generally believed to be impregnable. In 1701, unknown to the English, he had devised a plan for the conquest of Boston, which, in view of the defenceless condition of the town, at that time, against an attack by land, and of d'Iberville's unbounded influence in Canada, his control of the Indians, and his and their familiarity with the routes between Massachusetts and Montreal, seems hardly possible to have proved a failure. Though this scheme was abandoned through the opposition of the French ministry, he had previously completed the necessary soundings and surveys † of the approaches to New York, in contemplation of extending his conquest to that city.

The prospect of a visitation by a strong fleet under such a commander caused great alarm in New York. The News-Letters of May 27 and June 3, 1706, — the former containing the report of the determination of the enemy to proceed against New York, contained also an account of the enthusiastic action of the citizens in providing for defence by voluntary contributions of money in advance of the meeting of the Assembly. Gun-carriages for mounting cannon were promptly made, "Stockadoes and Plank brought to Town, for the making of Platforms, Breast-works, &c." ‡ while the people supplied themselves with arms and ammunition, and cheerfully took part in the labor of fortifying the city. By the third of June two hundred men were daily employed on the fortifications, besides "a great number" engaged in cutting and hauling "Timber . . . for making of Batteries, Platforms, &c.;" and there were already half completed stockadoes and a "Breast-work, with several Block-Houses at convenient places," extending across the city from the East River to the Hudson. At the same time another breastwork "all along Hudsons River, and several Batteries . . . fronting the Harbour" were preparing "there being Carriages ready for Mounting 40 or 50 heavy Cannon, & more making." § Retreats in the country were provided for the women and children, and it was estimated that four thousand men, well armed, could be mustered in the city within twenty-four hours. In the same paper it was announced that a body of soldiers from England was daily expected in a vessel bound to New York under convoy of her majesty's ships the Greenwich and Hazardous. This was the condition of affairs in New York, which induced Cornbury, the governor, to request Redknapp, her majesty's engineer, to leave his work on the Castle in Boston and "to repair into that province," as shown in the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 93.

Massachusetts, though not so demonstrative, was equally diligent in preparing for attack both by sea and land. The executive records of the council are missing from April 29 to May 20, 1706, and after the latter date until the sixth of June, so that the details of defensive operations during those intervals cannot be fully ascertained. They show, however, that the military companies in the towns adjoining Boston were detailed for duty at the Castle, || that the Governor was busy in reviewing the militia, ¶ and that

The Enemy finding it impossible for them to Land at Nevis, they went for St. Christophers, where they arrived the 10th of February at night, and Landed at three several places of the Island, and ranged from end to end, most of the Houses, Canes and Mills on the South-side were burnt, the North-side escaped, all but 5 or 6 Plantations ruined. The Enemy carried away some Negroes, the Loss sustained is considerable; our two Garrisons of Charles Fort, and Bristone-Hill were never attacked.

The General being in Antigua sent several Expresses to Barbadoes for Assistance; accordingly two Men of War came down to our relief, the French having notice of it on the 16th by an Express from Martinico, and supposing greater strength would follow, went away in great confusion. The Enemy's strength consisted of three 66 Gun Ships, 1 of 60, 1 of 58, 1 of 36, and 1 of 24 Guns, 4 Briganteens, and 21 Sloops, and near 3500 Men. From St. Christophers the 6 Men of War went to Tobago, and the rest for Guarditope. During these Alarms our Flag of Truce for Exchange of Prisoners was detained at Martinico, who gave an Account at her arrival in Antigua, that a Sloop from France to Martinico arrived some time before they Sailed, who said, that 8 Sail of Men of War Sailed from Brest two days before him, who were daily expected, and that their design was if possible, to take all the English Islands in the West-Indies.

The last Pacquet gave us an Account of Admiral Wishart's designing to stop at these Islands with 15 Sail of English and Dutch Men of War from England in their way to Jamaica, of whose arrival we are much desirous, being at present under seeming dangerous Circumstances. An Embargo hath continued since the 29th of January, and Masters and men in case of any Alarm are to leave their Vessels, and joyn the Land Forces, Strangers to be fitted with Arms and Ammunition by the Publick, and to have 18*d.* per day during their Service, and in case of loss of any Limb, to have *Eighteen Pound 15*s.* per Annum* during Life." — No. 104.

† This was effected in from four to six weeks, during which time, by the supineness of Lieutenant-Governor Nanfan, he was suffered to continue the work.

the frontier garrisons were inspected* by competent military officers under proper escort.

Although the work of mounting the great cannon which the queen had sent for use at the Castle was not completed until some months later,† a fair supply of serviceable artillery on the island was already furnished in the fifty old guns which had been formerly used on the breastworks. Undoubtedly it was during this time that the Governor and Council‡ took measures to ascertain the amount of powder in private hands, the account of which was transmitted to the representatives by the following order:—

“May 31, 1706. An Account taken by Order of the Board of Powder belonging to Merchants, & other private Persons, was sent in to the Representatives, by John Walley, & Penn Townsend Esqrs with a Message to Acquaint the House of the Lowness of the publick Stores, & to desire them to have the present Consideration what Quantity thereof they see meet to purchase, that the Remainder may be at Liberty, there being a great Demand of Powder from New York, & also in the Parts within this Province.”— Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 192.

No further action upon the subject-matter of the above message has been found until the passage of the present resolve.

The following extracts from the executive records of the council and from the account of the province treasurer seem to show the whole amount of powder purchased by the committee named in this chapter, together with the sum paid therefor:—

“Aug. 12, 1706. The Committee of the General Assembly appointed to buy a Quantity of Gun powder for the use of the Province, reported they had bought the quantity of Fifty six barrels and thirty eight pounds of John Walley, Eliakim Hutchinson, Andrew Belcher Esqrs Mr George and others.

The vote referred to in this order constitutes chapter 67 of the resolves of the year 1705-6.

The resolve of 1701-2, chapter 76, for presenting a piece of plate to Römer and another to his son seems never to have been carried out, and it was rescinded by the chapter last referred to.

As early as February 28, 1704-5, a message was sent from the Council to the House “to make a suitable Present to Coll. Romer her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Engineer now going Home, in Acknowledgement of his good Service done for this Province;” || but to this the House does not appear to have responded — probably because it was learned that Römer would not accept such a present.

On the last day of the third session, 1705-6, a warrant was ordered ¶ by the Governor and Council to be drawn on the province treasurer for the payment of thirty pounds to John Römer “as a gratuity for his service at her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Castle William.” This was in compliance with chapter 67 of the resolves of that year, which was passed in response to Römer’s statement in his remonstrance of October 24, 1705, printed in the note to the last-named chapter. But it does not appear that young Römer ever accepted this “gratuity.” The reason for his declining is suggested in the note to chapter 10, post.

† See note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 93.

‡ The records of the council of the province of New Hampshire contain the following entry which, apparently, indicates the substance and the approximate date of a similar proceeding in the Council of Massachusetts:—

“At a Council held at Portsmouth, on Wednesday, the eighth day of May, 1706. . . .

His Excellency’s Letter of the sixth of May instant was communicated to this Board setting forth that Capt. Strickley [Stucley] was arrived from Barbadoes and acquainted that the French Fleet were increased to 14 men of Warr, 40 Privateers, six thousand land men, and were like to carry all before them, if not diverted by a Fleet from England His Excellency also directs that the Sheriffe and other officers take exact accounts of all merchants powder in the Province, and commands that none be sold or sent out of the Province upon any pretence.

Ordered, that Mr. Secretary issue forth warrants to the Sheriffe to search into all houses, warehouses or elsewhere in this Province; and take an account of the quantity of powder in each persons custody, and return an account to the Secretary of the same, in order for the Secretary to write his Excellency thereof.”— Provincial Papers, etc., vol. II., p. 476.

§ The discrepancy between the number of barrels mentioned in the warrant and in this item (presumably caused by bringing them to a smaller weight per barrel) is not reconcilable by this theory; since, supposing each barrel to weigh one hundred pounds, the amount paid for seventy-one and  $\frac{38}{100}$  barrels at £11. 10s. per barrel would amount only to £820 17s. 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

What is related in the note to chapter 6, post, of the immunity of the frontiers from hostile invasion since the autumn of 1704, the constant expectation of an irruption, and finally the termination of the interval of quiet by Vaudrenil's permission to the savages to resume hostilities, particularly applies to western Massachusetts. The eastern frontiers enjoyed nearly the same exemption. There were, however, on a small scale, occasional raids, captures and murders in the seaboard settlements of Maine and New Hampshire by the savages, and inland collisions with their scouts; and the English had sent out reconnoitring parties.* Although Dudley in his opening speech to the legislature of New Hampshire in the winter session of 1705 had congratulated them upon the security they had enjoyed up to the date of their assembling,† he expressed his opinion that the time had arrived for the adoption of more active measures to repel invasion, as follows:—

“Gentlemen:—

It is eight months since your last recess, during which time by the favor of Almighty God, the Province has been safe in all parts, notwithstanding the scouts of the enemy look upon us everywhere. It is what I expected from the distance the Indians are now lodged from us; And therefore I abated any standing forces and counted a small marching party for a short time sufficient; but our security this winter must depend upon a large circular march once a month at least, for which I shall give speedy order; And if the ordinary marches of the forces in the Province of Maine be duly kept, and the poor people will bear the inconveniences of their strict Garrisons, we shall be safe.”—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. III., p. 314.

To this speech the representatives a few days later voted a favorable response, humbly acknowledging the Governor's care for the defence of that province and engaging to raise money in the spring to meet “whatever just Debts shall appear Dew from y<sup>e</sup> Province.”‡

In his speech to the Massachusetts Assembly at the opening of the April session, 1706, the Governor had recommended preparations against fresh incursions of the enemy, but owing to the loss of the executive records of the council, it has not been found practicable to ascertain if any extraordinary measures were decided upon.

Soon after the disappearance of snow in the northern parts of New England, the bands that Vaudrenil had let loose began their movement towards the English settlements of New Hampshire and Maine. The earliest public announcement of their approach appears to have been the following item in the News-Letter of May 13, 1706:—

“Dover, May 3d. On the 27th last, Some Sculking Indians about 10 or 12, came on part

* On the thirteenth of October, 1705, the scouting party under Captain Tyng returned from an expedition to the northward. See note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 109.

“The same night [the thirteenth of October] Capt. Lane and his Company Returned from Sabegoog Ponds, which lies about 50 miles N. W. from Casco, but made no other discovery than a few deserted Wigwams: This Pond is 20 miles long, and about 7 miles wide, very remarkable for Fishing, where our men were refresh'd with variety of Fish, especially Salmon Trouts, some whereof 2 foot long. In their Return they saw 2 Indians at Black Point, but being at a distance and they near a Swamp, made their escape; one thing remarkable is, That in their march they did not discover any wild creature excepting a Squirrel or the like, by which means the Enemy cannot get any manner of Sustenance in the woods near to us, which we hope will starve them.”—Boston News-Letter, No. 79. October 15 to 22, 1705.

The News-Letter of the twenty-ninth of October contained the following items, descriptive of assaults by the Indians at Cape Neddick on the twentieth:—

“Piscataqua, Octob. 26. On Saturday the 20th Currant, about 20 Indians appeared at Cape Nidduck, and Carried away 4 Sons of John Storer who were at a little distance from the Garrison, several others that were out of the Garrison, retired to it with all speed; on which the Enemy fired about an hour, then drew up the Children in sight of the Garrison, and marched off. At York 4 or 5 Indians were also discovered: Major Walton with a Company of men is gone in pursuit of the Enemy.

Capt. Browne at Wells hearing of the Enemy's unhappy Enterprize in Carrying away the 4 Children from 3 to 12 years of Age, went with his Company in pursuit of the Enemy with utmost Expedition; but there being 2 places over a little River lying near Sacho, about 2 miles distant which they usually pass, and not knowing which of the two they would take, Capt. Browne very prudently divided his Company into 2 parts, whereof one half went with Lieut. James March, who happened to discover the Enemy (without the least observation) as they were passing over a little Bridge, being within 15 rod of them; some few with the poor Captives were got over a minute or 2 before; and our men discovering several behind & on the Bridge, fir'd several Shot upon them, which being an unexpected surprisal, caus'd a most dismal Consternation among them, insomuch that some fell forwards, others backwards, and some into the River which was 10 foot deep, some throwing away their Plunder, others their Blankets & Snapsacks, till at last some few of the Enemy on the other side of the River fired at our men, killed one & wounded another: By this time Capt. Browne (hearing the Guns) came up to the rest of his Company, who drove the Enemy off, and pursued them; but they scattering among the Thickets, our men were made uncapable of making any further discovery of what damage we did them, but most probably several of them were slain and wounded.”—No. 80. See foot-note on p. 576, post.

Penhallow gives the date of the attack on Cape Neddick as the fifteenth, which may be correct since before the twenty-second the Governor again sent forth Tyng and Lane, as appears by the following in the News-Letter of that date:—

“Boston, By His Excellency's Direction, Capt. Tyng with about 50 men marched from Dunstable, and Capt. Lane with upwards of 60 men from York, to Search the Woods if could discover any of the Enemy.”—No. 79.

The News-Letter of January 28, 1705-6, thus records the marching of other scouting parties:—

“Boston, Capt. Brown from Wells, Capt. Tyng from Dunstable, and Capt. Stevens from Haveril, are Marched into the Woods with 40 Men each, and 15 days Provision, to Scout from Connecticut River to Sacho River, Forty Miles above the Heads of the Fronteers, to discover any Stragling Indians in the Woods.”—No. 93. See chapter 92, post.

of Oyster River, and suddenly Kill'd and Captivated 8 Persons, who had been Stragling abroad out of Garison." — No. 108.

Of this attack Penhallow gives the following account:—

"But as the spring came on, April 27th, 1706, a small body fell on an out-house in Oyster River, where they killed eight, and wounded two. The garrison which stood near, had not a man in it at that time; but the women, who assumed an Amazonian courage, seeing nothing but death before them, advanced the watch-box, and made an alarm. They put on hats, with their hair hanging down, and fired so briskly that they struck a terror in the enemy, and they withdrew without firing the house, or carrying away much plunder. The principal sufferer at this time, was John Wheeler, who thinking them to be friend Indians, unhappily fell under their fury."* — Indian Wars, p. 41.

The narrative proceeds with the following description of a tragedy near Kittery † about the same time:—

"Two days after, Mr. Shapleigh and his son, as they were travelling through Kittery, were ambushed by another party, who killing the father, took the son and carried him to Canada. In their march, they were so inhumanely cruel, that they bit off the tops of his fingers, and to stagnate the blood, seared them with hot tobacco pipes." — Ibid., p. 42.

Upon the assembling of the Massachusetts Legislature in the next General Court the Governor, in his opening speech, ‡ made no allusion to these assaults of the enemy, evidently deeming them so inconsiderable as not to be worthy of notice. Not long after, however, another Indian outrage was perpetrated at Cochecho, of which the News-Letter of the tenth of June gave the following report:—

"On Thursday the 6th Currant, there came an Express to His Excellency from the Province of Main, giving an Account, that 6 or 8 of the Skulking Enemy Indians on Tuesday last came unawares upon 3 or 4 persons that were working in their Field at Cachecha, and kill'd two of them being Young men [George and Maturin Riccar, says Pike, and a boy captured], e're they could escape to the Garison, as the other did." — No. 112.

Under the existing establishment, both in Massachusetts and New Hampshire, Dudley as commander-in-chief had full authority to repel invasion and to pursue and engage the enemy with the forces at his command, but additional forces could be provided for only by consent of the representatives. During the previous year he had had the assistance of a company of Moheags, from Connecticut, with the concurrence of the colonial council and the approval of the Legislature of Massachusetts. These friendly Indians were particularly serviceable as scouts because of their familiarity with Indian habits and modes of warfare, as well as their own experience in traversing the wilderness, and had proved an important accession to the force which Lieutenant-Colonel Hilton § led against Norridgewalk in the winter and spring of 1704-5. Dudley seems now to have determined to secure the services of these Indians in the most prompt and direct manner, without first applying to the Governor of Connecticut. His advances to this end are somewhat obscure, owing to the loss of the earlier correspondence between him and Owaneco, the principal chief of that tribe, and with Captain John Mason, who had been appointed trustee to Owaneco and his people, for managing all their affairs; but there is reason to infer that he adroitly managed to have it appear that the Indians made the first overtures, which were laid before the Council in the manner and with the results shown in this chapter. Mason, it seems, communicated Dudley's request to Governor Winthrop. The letter in which this communication was made has not been discovered, but that it was received by Winthrop before the eleventh of June appears by the following letter, in which the Governor resented this interference with his proper functions:—

"CAPT MASON, — I have your letter, & when I hear from Govr Dudley the necessity of such a party of Indians for her Majesty's service as you mention, will doe what I can to supply him; but in the meane tyme the Moheags nor noe other Indians must march out of the Government without leave. You are an officer in the Government and I doe recomend to you to take care in that matter. I am

Your loving freind,

J: WINTHROP.

NEW LONDON, June 11th 1706." — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 329.

Though Owaneco was the principal chief of the Mohegan tribe his son Mahomet, or Mahomet, who had been officially declared his successor, ¶ seems to have detailed this company. ¶ That they arrived before the twenty-second of June appears from the following order from Dudley to the Secretary of this province:—

I am not so well to day as to Comē to town adjourn to Monday afternoon Draw a Commission for John Ashcroft leutenant of Mahomets troop of Moheags.

they march on Monday morning from Roxbury

Your humble s<sup>t</sup>

J DUDLEY." — Mass.

* Belknap says that they killed Wheeler, "his wife and two children," and that "Four of his sons took refuge in a cave by the bank of the Little Bay, and though pursued by the Indians escaped unhurt." — Hist. of New Hampshire, ed. 1792, vol. 1., p. 339. Pike says that Bomazeen was thought to have done it, and that ten persons were killed, including John Drew.

† "... yesterday [June 6, 1706] Mr. John Shaplie and his Son being Riding on the Road near Kittery, their Horses were found all bloody without their Riders; a Party of the Garison that went out in Quest of the Skulking Enemy, found Mr. Shaplies Body, and his head cut off, but cannot tell what is become of the Son." — Boston News-Letter, No. 112. Pike (p. 142) says, that "Nicholas [the son] is come home again."

¶ Since Dudley refers to them as a troop they were evidently mounted.

On being informed of the departure of this company, Winthrop wrote to Dudley as follows:—

To this Dudley directed the Secretary to make the following reply:—

“BOSTON, July 1st 1706.

HONBLE SR, — The Governour is very ill at this time and his pain forbids him to write, but has directed me to acquaint your Hon<sup>r</sup> that he had your letter the last post, intimating your dissatisfaction with the march of the Moheags this way, and that he is much surprized that the assistance of twenty Moheags, at the direction of their sachem, & two English men voluntiers, to serve the Queen in this Province, should be grievous to you. The Indians have often pray’d him, since they have been put by their planting and improvements, that they might hunt in this Province, which he has for three years last past allowed, and lately that they might be employed in the service, at the pay and subsistance of this Province. That when they so applyed, his Ex.<sup>cy</sup> directed Mr Mason, their procurator & guardian, to acquaint y<sup>or</sup> Honour wth their desire and his Excellencys acceptance of their service, and that then they might come when they pleased, he should employ them & pay them English wages. That he has, at this time, one thousand men in pay for the necessary defence of the frontiers, and is greatly surprized that the service of twenty Indians who have a right to dispose of their own service, and two English men voluntiers offering to keep them company, should be such a breach upon you. Especially after her Maty<sup>s</sup> commands that this Province should be assisted by you in all things for the present service. His Excellency thinks he can tell where one hundred Massachusetts men are gone into Connecticut Colony to save themselves from taxes and service in the present war, & admires that two voluntiers coming from your Govern<sup>t</sup> should trouble y<sup>or</sup> Honour. However, if they have broken any law for their offering their service here, he remits them to it. Of any other men, Indians or English, than the abovesaid twenty and two, he knows nothing, and do’s not desire any more, since it is grievous to your Hon<sup>r</sup>, and supposes you will take y<sup>or</sup> own just methods to prevent them, nor do’s he intend to entertain any such. His Excellency commands me to give his service to your Honour & wishes your health. Hon<sup>ble</sup> Sr, your most humble servant,

p. 337.

Winthrop rejoined as follows:—

“NEW LONDON, July 4th 1706.

SR, — I have your letter of the 1st of July, w<sup>ch</sup> consists of severall paragraphs, but it is not mentioned that his Excell<sup>y</sup> has ordered that party of English and Indians to returne, that have soe disorderly withdrawne themselves out of this Government. What is mentioned of the Indians being put by their planting & improvements is utterly false, they being supported here with the greatest care & incouragement. Mr Mason’s pretensions to be procurator & guardian to the Moheags, w<sup>ch</sup> you mention, are idle & impertinent, and does very much debauch them & obstruct her Majesty’s service in this Government, & I know noe right they have to dispose of their service, but in their domestical ocations; and in all their motions abroad they are to be directed by the Government, as I presume those Indians are in the Province of the Mattachusets. Her Majesty’s recommendation to this Government for assistance is best interpreted by themselves, who will doe their utmost as they are able, having marched a detachment of sixty men into the county of Hampshire, w<sup>ch</sup> are now there, and wee strine with great difficulty to assist your Province to the oppression of our people. What is added in your letter of one hundred Mattachuset men come into this Government is unknowne here, and I have ordered that whatever young men are found in this Government belonging to the county of Hampshire, that they be immediately sent home, and if his Excell<sup>y</sup> please to point to me any persons that have deserted her Majesty’s service, they shall be secured. I must insist still that his Excell<sup>y</sup> will returne that party of English and Indians marched into his Province, being more then can be spared from our sea coast. Pray giue my service to his Excell<sup>y</sup> I mourne for his illness and heartily w<sup>sh</sup> his recovery. I am Sr,

Mr Secretary Addington.” — Ibid., p. 338.

By the following communication from Winthrop to the council of Connecticut at Hartford, it appears that before the tenth of August this company of Indians had returned and that by the eighth another and larger party had taken their place in the same irregular manner:—

“ . . . I communicated to the Council at your last meeting here that Cap<sup>t</sup> Mason, under colour of a letter from Gov<sup>r</sup> Dudley to the Moheages, have debauched 20 of them and two English, to serve at the eastward without any leane from me; but, quarreling among them selves, they came home; and I am informed that an other party of 30 of them upon the same acct withdrew themselves out of the Government two dayes agoe, w<sup>ch</sup> is fit for y<sup>or</sup> consideration as not to be indured, and may be of unhapy consequence when they finde themselves loose from the Government. Those Indians might have been a proper scout up the river towards Coasset, but that is frustrate now and I am not of opinion to send any of our men on that designe, as not very probable of succes, nor is it incumbent upon us. . . .” — Ibid., p. 340.

To this Winthrop received from the council the following reply, advising him to plainly inform Dudley that such conduct could no longer be endured, and threatening retaliatory measures:—

“HARTFORD, August the 13th 1706.

... In answer to the Moheges being so unaccountably drawn out of the Government, the Council here resent it very ill and would have your Hon<sup>r</sup> to be very plain with Gov<sup>r</sup> Dudley concerning the same; and in case such private intrigues be managed, having no liberty frō your Hon<sup>r</sup>, that we must forbear our help in the county of Hampshire. We do intreat your Hon<sup>r</sup> no longer to bear such indignities.” — Ibid., p. 341.

Following the advice of his council Winthrop again wrote to Dudley, peremptorily demanding the return of the Indians, as follows:—

“NEW LONDON, Aug. 15th 1706.

SR,—I am surpris'd yo<sup>r</sup> Exc<sup>ly</sup> should yet farther intermedle with our Indians, being inform'd you have entertayn'd 30 of the Moheags who, with others here about, were designed to assist us in this quarter, whilst wee spared to your [town] to garrison yo<sup>r</sup> townes in Hampshire, and, upon the earnest sollicitation of Coll: Partridg & yo<sup>r</sup> other officers, wee sent out 50 men more the last week, who are now in yo<sup>r</sup> service. I desire therefore you will presently send home those Indians with what English are with them, but if I heare not from yo<sup>r</sup> Exc<sup>ly</sup> of their returne by the next post, I will the same minute call home all our forces that are in the county of Hampshire, as of absolute necessity for the safety of her Majestye's intrest & her subjects in this Government. I am Sr,

By the following extract from a letter by Winthrop to Sir Henry Ashurst, the agent of Connecticut at London, it will be seen that the second company of Moheags received by Dudley into his service was with him as late as October:†—

I must not forget to observe to you that Gov<sup>r</sup> Dudley, since his being at Stonington, has whedled 2 Companies of our Indians to come into service in his Government (one of w<sup>ch</sup>, of about 30 men, are now with him) without so much as informing mee of it. Whereby the Indians are encouraged to cast off y<sup>t</sup> duty & respect we<sup>e</sup> yo<sup>r</sup> have always shewn to this Govern<sup>t</sup>. I wrote to him and shew'd him the mischief of such proceedings, and he knows y<sup>t</sup> upon a line to mee from him the Indians might have been sent upon y<sup>t</sup> service, as heretofore they had been, without any such disorder or inconvenience to this Government; but he takes no notice of it, but, by means of Mason, did privately encourage yo<sup>r</sup> company of Indians now with him to go upon y<sup>t</sup> service without any leave had (as formerly) from this Government, and this after I had wrote to him as above; which I cannot judge to be so much for any occasion he has of their service as to make y<sup>m</sup> disaffected to this Govern<sup>t</sup>. I also send the copies of 2 lett<sup>rs</sup> from Coll. Partridge & Mr Stoddard, principall persons in yo<sup>r</sup> County of Hampshire, by w<sup>ch</sup> you will see how little reason G<sup>vt</sup> D. has to complain of our not assisting his Province.” — Ibid., pp. 349, 354.

Ashurst, whose antipathy to Dudley was intense, and never concealed, writing from London under date of April 24, 1707, reported to Winthrop Dudley's disingenuous representation of his controversy with Winthrop in regard to the Mohegans, as follows:—

“Dudly writes to the Lords of the Trade an abstract that you are discontented that the company of the Mohegan Indians are listed in the Queens service under him.” — Ibid., p. 380.

By the following passage in Ashurst's letter of May 21, 1706, it would appear that the agent had some ground for suspecting that Dudley had turned to his own pecuniary profit the services of the Moheags in New Hampshire the year before:—

“I am told he [Dudley] took money of the New Hampshire Government and made you send the men to guard them; let this particularly be inquired into.” — Ibid., p. 327.

Chap. 5. This chapter is from archives, vol. 3, p. 415. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 197.

The following is the petition mentioned in this chapter:—

The above petition was read, first, in the House on the sixth of June. On the next day it was read again, and the order which constitutes this chapter was passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the same day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

Chap. 6. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 198. It has not been found in the archives.

It is doubtful if the Governor submitted to the representatives more than one letter for their approval at this time. Certainly the only letter that has been discovered which could possibly have been intended is the following, which does not show the day upon which it was written:—

“BOSTON, June [blank] 1706.

S<sup>r</sup>—I am very much urged by the Assembly of this Province now sitting, to acquaint you that besides the just expectation that we are in of the French fleet by sea, we are every day alarm'd by the enemies scouts upon the inland frontiers. We have had three mischiefs in ten days time in the Province of Mayn & eastward by the loss of severall people; and the enemies scouts are certainly to the westward in the county of Hamsheir, which is your own frontier, as well and more than ours. I have one hundred men there in pay, but there is absolute necessity of one hundred more constantly to reside, besides a good force of two or three hundred to march into a distress. It is not less than thirty thousand pounds will support this years expence upon this Province, which we are not able to supply, and it will be the last mischief to me to be forced to ease my charge by drawing in any of the frontiers. I most earnestly desire your just consideration of the present distress, and that you will send one hundred men to reside at the upper towns in a proper proportion; and if I must feed them, I will, rather than lose their service. And further that you will let me be assured of the readiness of a greater force to support them; the first is necessary to save their lives till the last comes. Otherwise I only expect your people will come to their funerall, as has been sometime done heretofore. I desire you will let me have your answer, that I may know what I may expect from your Governmt I have by no means had any service from your people for near eighteen months past. I earnestly wish your health, & am S<sup>r</sup> your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.

Indorsed by Fitz-John Winthrop, ‘Copy intended to be sent to Hartford.’—Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 330.

That the foregoing was what the Legislature intended by the word “letters” is rendered more probable by the mention of but a single communication in the following subsequent letter from Dudley to Winthrop:—

“BOSTON, 17th June, 1706.

S<sup>r</sup>,—Besides what I wrote you last post, I have now news from Albany of a great descent intended upon us from Quebeck, and preparations made and a new tribe of Indians entertained for that service. Our intelligence from thence has been often true, and I am more suspicious of it at this time because they adde that Shelden and my messengers are restrayned to be sure they are not returned; nor any letters from them, which I strictly instructed him to send. The time is elapsed that he might well have been here, and the French are encouraged by their late success at Nevis to make a tryal upon us. I most earnestly desire you will not delay a party of one hundred men to take their quarters in Hampshire presently, as well as a greater force to be in readiness to support them. I am at a very great charge to cover the Province of Maine and all the frontiers of Essex, Middlesex and Suffolk, and pray that I may soon be advised of your march, which I shall willingly discharge upon better notice. I am S<sup>r</sup>,

Your humble servant,

p. 331.

The response which the council of Connecticut made to Dudley's application is shown by the following letter from the secretary of that colony:—

“NEW LONDON, June 19th 1706.

S<sup>r</sup>,—Your Excellencies letter by the last post, and that which came by the post this daye of the 17th instant, have been considered in Councill, and in answer therennto I am comāded to signifie to you that a company of sixtie men are ordered to march forthwith into your countie of Hampshire, and that the Government are at the standing charge of four hundred men, ready at an hour's warning to march for the relief of your townes in that countie. Which are so ordered that it will not require more than a dayes march to afford them assistance; and that will not be out of season, if your scouts keep a good eye upon the enemies motion, in case they intend a descent. And it is concluded that this is what we may adventure to do at this present juncture, when we are alarm'd by sea and in expectation of the enemies fleet from the West Indies, and may be necessitated to improve our forces for the safetie of our townes on the shore. This is what I am comāded by his Hon<sup>r</sup> and Councill to acquaint your Excellency with. I am

Your Excellencies most humble obedient servant,

ELEAZAR KIMBERLY, Secry.

By order of his Hon<sup>r</sup> and Councill.”—Ibid., p. 332.

After Beaucourt's repulse at Lancaster* Dudley continued firmly impressed with the idea that Vandreuil meditated another attack upon the western frontiers.† During the spring and summer of 1705, even after Livingston had convinced him that his apprehensions as to the gathering of the Indians at Cowassic were unfounded,‡ his confidence in the security of Hampshire County was only temporary. In the following letter he had proposed to Governor Winthrop that the latter send a force of Moheag Indians to join with forty men from Massachusetts in another expedition to Cowassic:—

“BOSTON, 14. May, 1705.

S<sup>r</sup>,—By a captive late from Quebeck I am assured of a great strength of Indians from thence, & where they will make their impression we cannot tell. I pray you will give orders that a very considerable strength be ready at an hours warning to march into West Hampshire; & if in the mean time you will send a small troope of the Moheags to joyn with forty of our soldiers & inhabitants to see Coasset, I think it may be well, & if it be done within ten dayes I beleave it best. I am S<sup>r</sup> your humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.

I expect Captain Livingston in ten dayes.”—Ibid., p. 294.

The assembly of Connecticut responded to this suggestion by ordering a detail of ten Englishmen and twenty friendly Indians to hold themselves in readiness for that service;* and the Governor replied in a letter, from which the following extract is taken:—

“NEW LONDON, May 30th 1705.

S<sup>r</sup>,—I haue yo<sup>r</sup> Excellencye's letter of the 14th instant, w<sup>ch</sup> I haue laide before the Gentl Assembly and they haue appointed 400 men to be ready at an houre's warning, and did alsoe order that a party of Indians and ten English should be raised for a present scout to joyn those your Excellency appoints at Hampshire.”—Ibid.

After reporting his ill success in his endeavors to enlist Owaneco's Moheags, and the cause of the Indians' refusal, as shown in the note to resolves, 1704-5, chapter 54, the letter proceeds as follows:—

“However, I am sending an officer (who I intended to goe with this scout) to the Moheagen Indians to gaine, if he can possibly, ten of them to joyn with ten more of the Pequots upon the designe proposed. I am very much indisposed since my returne hither and can onely (as some of my last good wishes) desire your health and prosperity, and am S<sup>r</sup>,
Yo<sup>r</sup> Excellencyes very humble servt,

J: WINTHROP.

On the ninth of July Dudley again communicated to Winthrop his fears of “an impression of the enemy,” in the following letter:—

“BOSTON, 9 July 1705.

S<sup>r</sup>,—I have reason to expect an impression of the enemy with a large number, at harvest if not before, on the county of Hampshire, & therefore they will need one hundred of your men to reside there constantly, as well as three or four hundred in a readiness for an assault. I am sending forces at this time to make this Province [illegible], & you will pardon mee to tell you you will be very much wanting to her Majestyes expectation, as well as your own security, if I have not your share. I heartily wish you health & am S<sup>r</sup>,
Your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.”—Ibid.,

p. 300.

To the above letter Winthrop replied, three days later, as follows:—

“NEW-LONDON, July 12th 1705.

S<sup>r</sup>,—I have yo<sup>r</sup> letter of the 9th instant & am sorry for the danger of Hampshire. I will presently communicate it to the gentlemen of the Council at Hartford, who have orders all ready for the defence of that county upon any exegency. But I should be glad if yo<sup>r</sup> Exclly would informe me the reasons you have to expect the enemy there, w<sup>ch</sup> would very much encourage our people in the service. Tis difficult to raise men this busy tyme, being not enough for y<sup>e</sup> harvest. I hope yo<sup>r</sup> Exclly will be better informed of the enemy, and that the danger may be over. I wish yo<sup>r</sup> Exclly health & hapines, whatever becomes of,

The doubt which Governor Winthrop intimates in the above letter respecting the existence of any grounds of apprehension of a hostile demonstration against the western frontiers of Massachusetts was justified by a letter † from Peter Schuyler to the council of Connecticut of the same date as Dudley's, in which he reported that “the principal sachems of the 2 castles next to Mount Reall in Canada did come down the river with me in order to confirm a peace and to stopp all inrodes upon the English for the future, which is done,” adding some things that indicated that pacific relations with other Indians formerly hostile were likely to continue.

No raids or other warlike demonstrations by the enemy that were deemed important occurred during the summer and autumn—a circumstance which Dudley made the subject of congratulation in his speeches ‡ of the twenty-fourth of October, to the Legislature of Massachusetts, and of the thirteenth of December, to the legislature of New Hampshire. This quiet continued until the next spring, which led Dudley in his speech of April 10, 1706, to make the declaration respecting the “ease and security” of the frontiers which is quoted in the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 109.

This state of quietude, however, was interrupted later in the spring. The failure of the pending negotiations for a truce between Dudley and Vaudreuil resulted in the renewal of hostilities by the latter,* in expectation of which, probably, Dudley had advised the preparation recommended in his speech last above referred to. Even during the winter, and while it was possible that a truce might be agreed upon, the leading men of Hampshire County were not without anxiety in regard to the indifference of their neighbors and their want of preparation, and were in constant fear of invasion. The following from the Winthrop Papers shows this state of feeling:—

† Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 299.

‡ See notes to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 109, and chapter 4, ante. The capture of children at Cape Neddick and the outrages at Kittery were what Dudley referred to in his declaration that the enemy had occasionally “looked in upon” the frontiers. In April, 1706, Rous was instructed to demand of Bonaventure the captured children. See note to private act, number nineteen.

RIGHT HONORABLE SR,—The occasion of these are to acquainte you that I am commanded by his Excellency or Govern<sup>r</sup> to make application to yo<sup>r</sup>self, refferring to the p<sup>r</sup>sent hazzards we daily labour under of an approaching enemy, for a suteable strength to be in a readyness for the reliefe of these uper towns, upon any intimation of discovery made of enemys; especial in the next ajacent towns of yo<sup>r</sup> Colony. Wee have but 21 men, besides inhabitants, at Derefe<sup>d</sup>, 16 at Brookfeild & 3 at Hatfeild; in all 40 men; & can have no reliefe in depth of winter but from yo<sup>r</sup> selfs. Therefore entreat yo<sup>r</sup> especiaall care for us. We endeavor to keep a scout out above Derefeild & have a great burthen of it & watching, but wth few else but o<sup>r</sup> own men, & if we neglect a true watch & scout we fear betraying as formerly. I intreat, Honorable Sr, yo<sup>r</sup> care & directions in these respects, & I take leave to subscribe my self yo<sup>r</sup> humble servt,

To this the editors append the following note:—

“NOTE.—It has been thought desirable to omit several similar letters from Colonel Partridge, imploring help. The Connecticut authorities were inclined to attribute supineness to some of the Massachusetts towns. John Livingston, when serving as a Connecticut officer for the relief of Massachusetts, wrote to his father-in-law from Northampton, Jan. 10, 1705: ‘Here are ye most carelish pepell in ye world; hardly such a thing as a watch in ye towne, nor had a scoute all this winter; but yesterday did resolve to send one.’ He intimated his belief that one hundred determined men could carry the place by sudden assault.”—Ibid., p. 321.

But it was not until after the actual approach of the enemy at the eastward, as shown in the note to chapter 4, ante, that Massachusetts formally appealed to Connecticut for help, in the letters of Dudley printed in the beginning of this note.

The petition mentioned in this chapter is as follows:—

The Humble Petition of John Cary of Boston Brewer

Sheweth

That yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner was formerly an Inn holder and kept the Green Dragon in Boston, where in the space of five years he paid ninety odd pounds Excise, but the sixth year what through the greatness of his Rent & Excise, and Losses, he was forced to break up Housekeeping, having spent what he had formerly gotten by his Industry, so that he was made incapable of paying his Creditors, and the Excise for that year which was twelve pounds, was and still is unpaid, and yo<sup>r</sup> petition<sup>r</sup> not Capable of paying the Same, but is liable to be sued for it and put to great tronble and charge.

Wherefore yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner humbly prays the favour of this Great and General Assembly, That the said sum of Twelve pounds may be Remitted, and he wholly acquitted from the payment thereof

And yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner (as in duty bound) shall ever pray &<sup>ca</sup>

JOHN: CARY.”—Mass.

Archives, vol. 111, p. 80.

This petition was read, first, in the Council, June 8, 1706, and sent to the representatives, where, on the tenth, it was read and the resolve thereon was passed and sent up for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

It will be remembered that about one year before Cary offered to pay his debt in beer, and that the offer was accepted. See resolves, 1705-6, chapter 2, and note.

* See resolves, 1705-6, chapter 83, note. Vandrenil wrote twice to Pontchartrain confessing this action, once singly and again jointly with Raudot. The clause in the second letter which relates to this subject is given in the note to chapter 54, post. In the former letter he wrote as follows:—

“This induced M<sup>r</sup> Dudley to send me a deputy by land, with a letter about a month ago, but as it is not sufficiently explanatory, and as M<sup>r</sup> Dudley, according to appearances, is seeking only to gain time, the term I had fixed in my answer to these propositions having expired, I permitted several small parties of our Indians to recommence hostilities in his government, in order to force him to declare himself, and I am persuaded, My Lord, that it will have a good effect, for I am advised by some of our prisoners who have returned, that the Country people around Boston who have to bear the entire brunt of the war, absolutely desire their governor to accept my proposals, and I flatter myself you will have found these to comport with your intentions, the good of his Majesty’s service, the interest of this Colony and particularly of Acadia.

Quebec, 2nd April 1706.”—Documents relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IX., p. 776.

Chap. 8. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 199, and archives, vol. 40, p. 859.

The gist of the issue between Keene and Shepard was really a question as to the binding effect of a judgment-at-law in a controversy wherein important evidence was not accessible at the time of the trial but which came to light after judgment.

John Shepard, senior, claimed title under a selectmen's grant or allotment of what was supposed by them to be common land, as follows:—

"Wee the Selectmen of y<sup>e</sup> Lower part of y<sup>e</sup> town of Kittery have given and granted unto John Shepard a tract of land in y<sup>e</sup> Spruce creek of ten acres of land to him & his heirs for ever to be taken behind John Balls at y<sup>e</sup> western end of y<sup>e</sup> creek and to goe upon y<sup>e</sup> same line as John Shapleighs lott goes Provided it be in no other mans Propriety June y<sup>e</sup> 20th 1671

This grant was confirmed and definitely located by order of the inhabitants more than twenty years later, as follows:—

"Att a Legal town meeting held at Kittery March: 19. 1693/4

Voted that Cap<sup>tn</sup> John Wincoll Christian Remick Enock Hutchins & Richard Briar are to lay it out.—

It would seem that the laying out of the land as certified by the committee above named was unadvisedly done and that the title was in dispute. The surveyor employed by the committee found that the lines bounding the land claimed by Shepard conflicted with the claim of Keene, who had long been in possession. He therefore wrote as follows to the justice who issued the warrant for locating the land:—

But upon the representation of Shepard, and for want of record evidence to the contrary,—the court records having been carried off by the Indian enemy,—the committee were induced to go on with the location, and prevailed upon Wincoll to fix the boundaries of the grant according to Shepard's claim.

Keene, it appears, claimed, through mesne conveyances, from one Ephraim Crockett, to whom the land in question had been granted by the town, and regularly laid out, June 3, 1672; and it was this original grant and location that could not be established by the record. Another irregularity in the record-title was that the date of the assignment to Keene's grantor was twenty-one months later than the deed from the latter to Keene; but this was no defect, inasmuch as the former was apparently made to confirm a previous agreement and both were executed before the laying out to Shepard.

Some time after this, but just when does not appear,—probably some ten or eleven years later,—a copy of the original grant and location to Crockett was found, whereupon Keene entered upon the premises and did acts of possession under claim of title, for which Shepard, June 13, 1705, sued Keene in an action of trespass, before a justice of the peace; but the defendant having appeared "and justified, and demurred on title," the cause was removed to the Inferior Court of Common Pleas at the July term. The case was continued to the October ‡ term, when Shepard, who, just before the trial, § had conveyed the estate in controversy to his son, John Shepard, junior, obtained judgment against Keene for two shillings damage, and costs of court. Keene now appealed to the Superior Court of Judicature at the November term, held in Suffolk County, when the judgment of the Inferior Court was reversed, and Keene recovered against Shepard his costs, taxed at nine pounds thirteen shillings, etc.

Encouraged by his success in the action of trespass, Keene now brought suit against the son, in a plea of trespass and ejectment.* The writ dated December 12, 1705, was returnable at an Inferior Court of Common Pleas to be held at York upon the first Tuesday of January. The defendant, failing to appear at the return day, was defaulted, but the default was taken off upon his appearing later and moving for a continuance on the ground that he had not received reasonable notice, being out of the county. His request was granted upon his paying the plaintiff full costs, who was ordered to enter his case de novo at the April term. At this term the record shows that "The Case being fairly Debated & Evidences on both Sides, the Jury were Sent out thereon who Returned their ve[r]dict viz! they find for ye<sup>e</sup> plt ye<sup>e</sup> Land in Controversie and Costs of Court, It is therefore Considered by ye<sup>e</sup> Court that ye<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> Kene shall Recover against ye<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> John Shepard Jun<sup>r</sup> ye<sup>e</sup> Land Sued for & Costs of Court."†

From this judgment Shepard appealed to the Superior Court of Judicature to be held at Boston at the May term, 1706.

At the trial, both in the Common Pleas, and in the Superior Court on appeal, Keene produced the affidavits of the selectmen of Kittery for the year 1693, who had insisted on Wincoll's laying out the land to Shepard, confessing that they had been in error; that it now appeared to them by record evidence that twenty years before that time Shepard had had his ten-acre grant laid out to him, bounding upon, and therefore excluding, the very land in controversy, of which fact they were then ignorant, and declaring that they were satisfied the land was rightfully the property of Keene and that he was in possession of it at the time of the location and had erected fences upon it which they had wrongfully removed against his protest.

The appellants' grounds of defence appear in his reasons of appeal, as follows:—

"Suffolk To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Justices of her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Superiour Court of Judicature to be holden at Boston in the County of Suffolk the first Tuesday in May Anno Domini 1706: in the fifth year of her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Reigne./

1st Reason the Appellant Sayth the Judgment is Erroneous & ought to be Reversed for that the Appellee the then plaintiffe made noe Manner of Title to the Land in Controuersie. for he Sett forth in his writt that the said John Shipperd did withhold from him the possession of a certaine Tract or parcel of Land, containing tenn Acres with the Appurtenances thereof scituat lying and being in the Town<sup>sh</sup> of Kittery at a place called Spruce Creek, on the west side thereof between the Land of m<sup>r</sup> Shapleigh and the Land of said Shipperd beginning at the waterside, and soe Running back till tenn Acres were accomplished which tenn Acres the then plt the now Appellee affirms in his writt was given by the Town of Kittery to Ephraim Crockett, and laid out to him by the select men of the said Town the third day of June 1672: but neuer produces in Court any such Town Grant or lott layers returne neither euer can he therefor he hath made out noe Title by Town Grant &c: as alleaged in his writt. (without which Grant & returne he cannae haue noe Right by his writt to the Land in Controuersie.)

2<sup>d</sup> Reason the Appellee the then plt produced a Deed dated the 16th: September 1672 (as he sayd) Signed Sealed, and Deliuered by Ephraim Crockett to Charles Ograddo, but not acknowledged, or any Witnesses sworne to the Signeing and Sealeing thereof not Executed with Liverye or seizin therefor of noe validdity and altho Recorded is of noe effect being contrary to Law. further the said Kene produced, a Surrender of Charles Ograddo vnto m<sup>r</sup> Robert Elliott dated the fifth day of Aprill 1689 of all his Right title &c: to Crocketts Deed; but neither acknowledged or Witnessed and soe of noe effect; then the said Kene produced a Bill of Sale from m<sup>r</sup> Robert Elliott to himselfe dated the third of July 1687 but not Executed with Liuey or Seizin, therefor of Little Esteem. this is all the Title the then plaintiffe the now Appellee made to the Land in controuersie therefor the Appellant is humbly of opinion that the Appellee hath made out noe manner of Title to the same/

3rd Reason the Appellant Sayth that he made a legall and Just Right and title to the Land in Controuersie, by producing a Grant from the Town of Kittery to his father John Shipperd dated the 20th June 1671: (being a yeare before the Appellees Grant mentioned in his writt if euer he had any) Afterwards at a Legall Town Meeting March the 19th 1693 It was there voted that the Tenn Acres of Land which was Granted to the said John Shipperd (the father) should stand good; And it was then likewise voted that Captaine John Wincall, Christian Remock Enoch Hutchins and Richard Bryer should lay the same out, And accordingly March the twenty first 1693 the same was laid out by the said Lott Layers to the said Shipperd, who found the said Shipperd in possession of the Same by fenceing &c: by which Grant votes and Lott layers returne reference being had will more fully appeare.

3rd Reason the Appellant sayth his Title to the Land in Controversie is further strengthened by the oaths of Thomas Rice & Edmond Hammonds who swears that great part of the Land in Controuersie had been in the possession of John Shipperd (the Appell<sup>t</sup>s father) for twenty years or vpwards; these oaths were taken in May 1694 soe that now the Appellant and his predecessors hath been in possession of the same for thirty two years or thereabouts./

4th*Reason John Shipperd the Appellants father At her Majesties Inferiour Court of Comon pleas holden at york the 4th July 1694 Comenced a suite in Law against the said Nathaniel Kene for the Land in controuersie, and Rewndred Judgment for the same, and was putt legally into the possession thereof in the year 1694 by Joseph Curtis Esq<sup>r</sup> High sheriffe of the said County of York as by Returne on the back side of the writt of possession or Execution Reference being had will more fully appeare. And the said Joseph Curtis Esq<sup>r</sup> is ready to make oath that the Land in controuersie is the same Land he gaue John Shipperd (the father) possession off as abonesaid./

4th*Reason the Appellee to Evade the Just Right and Title of the Appellant produced m<sup>r</sup> Robert Ellotts oath sworne in the year 1694. that John Shipperd (the father) was very Earnest with the said Ellott to purchase Coromocks Land And tendred him forty Coad of wood which was tenn pounds And that he desired said Shiperd to shew him the Land and Bounds which he did And asked said Ellott leave to cutt Timber vpon the said Land and he gaue him leaue, and that it was the Land then in Controuersie &c: which oath the Appellant sayth ought not to have been admitted into Court for that the said Robert Ellott had sold the said Land to the said Kene long before as by his Deed now vpon Tryal dated in the year 1687: will appeare by which Deed the Appellee Kene now Claimes a Title to the Land in Controuersie. soe that m<sup>r</sup> Ellott is an Evidence in his own Case to make good his own Title which he has sold haueing noe Right thereto. therefor the Appellant humbly hopes yor Honours and the Gentlemen of the Jury will see Just cause to invalidd that Evidence And to take noe notice thereof./

5th Reason the Appellee further to Enade the Just Title of the Appellant, produced a Subscription signed by William fiernald John Shapleigh, and Joshua Downing dated Kittery March the 30th 1706. (by what Meanes procured Knows not) wherein they sett forth they did at the Request of John Shipperd (the father) vpon the 16th day of March 1694 Impower the said Shipperd to Improne a Grant of Tenn Acres of Land Granted vnto the said Shipperd the 20th June 1671: being the Land Now in Controuersie. And say that they now see their Error. And that the same Tenn Acre Grant was laid out to the said Shipperd before &c: To this subscription the Appellant vtterly denyes that they the subscribers Impowered his father as Expressed in their subscriptions but that he was Impowered by a Legal Town Meeting whereof the subscribers might be part of that meeting. And that all the Remainder of the Town Meeting can see noe Error in Impowering the said John Shipperd, to Improne such Grant as aforesaid. And further the Appellant sayth that noe person can be safe in their Estates and possessions; if after they haue a Town Grant, and haue Improued it thirty twenty or twelve years and Expended to the value of the Land or more in the Improneing of the same by Labour or otherwise that two or three Inhabitants of the Town perhapps for their own interest or through prejudice shall come after soe long Improneement and say they were mistaken in such Grant or vote. And putt in a paper called a subscription to a Court barely setting their hands to the same And not vpon oath Therfor the Appellant humbly conceines the said subscription to be of noe validite or vse, and ought not to be admitted in this case./

6th The Appellee hath putt in a draught pretending to describe the Land how it lyes but the Appellant Knows nothing about itt & was not present at the doeing of the same soe the Appellee may Lay it out and bound it as he pleases therefor humbly pray your Honours the said draught may not goe to the Jury./

7th Reason. That Ephraim Crocketts Deed doth not mention any Bounds as Breadth Length, Course, or Line. soe that it is Impossible that Crocketts Deed, can giue the Appellee any Title to the Land in Controuersie. And further the Appellant can sufficiently proue that the Land in Controuersie Lyes within the Bounds of the Lott Layers returne, and according to the Town Grante as Giuen his father, by the Town of Kittery in the year 1671. All which Reasons with what other pleas may be made vpon Tryal of the Case by the Appellants Councill. It is humbly hoped by the Appellant that your Honours and the Gentlemen of the Jury will see Just cause to Reverse the former Judgment; and Grant your Appellant Costs of both Courts/as to the 3<sup>d</sup> reson its answerd y<sup>e</sup> Appellant has not yeat no neuer can onestly & Justly mak out A title to this Land in contreuery: first because all that euer was produced in Court is only A grant mad June y<sup>e</sup> 20<sup>c</sup> 1671 — which plainly Apers was Layed out & bounded by corromks Land 2dy: though through Sheperds Instegations or requet deduded y<sup>e</sup> select men telling them he had not his grant granted in y<sup>e</sup> year 1671: Jun y<sup>e</sup> 20<sup>h</sup> & desired Liberty to Improne that grant which sd select men gaue Liberty for Improne-ment therof not knowing it was Layed out may years befor to sd Sheperd: now all that y<sup>e</sup> select men did & all that y<sup>e</sup> towne did in conforming what y<sup>e</sup> select men had don was only Liberty to Improne sd Land neuer inted to giue it to Sheperd nether ded so that Sheperd can pretend no Right to Any Land there but what granted as afore sd June y<sup>e</sup> 20<sup>h</sup> 1671 — all which it will playnly aper hes has in posestion & aboue 5 accers more without Corromoks Land allsoe the then selectmen haue giuen in vnder their hands that they haue seen their Error. & aferm y<sup>e</sup> sam 10 accers was Layed out to Sheperd befor which is trow — mind that y<sup>e</sup> grant to Sheperd is to Runn on y<sup>e</sup> sam poynt that Shapligh Lin Runeth so that by that grant the return cant not be Right viz: to run on A west & be north Lin but Shapligh Lin is west sowest as Apers by record which will Content all thos persons swaring that according to y<sup>e</sup> return y<sup>e</sup> Land in contreuery is within Sheperds Lin: but that is sertenly a mistake: for it neuer was Layed out Any other ways then y<sup>e</sup> grant & y<sup>e</sup> grant as Shapligh Lin Runeth: but that Lin to say the west & benorth Lin takes in all Corromks Land: & great part of Shapligh Land: so that thos euendences signefy nothing but all Coms through y<sup>e</sup> mistak of y<sup>e</sup> poynt: entering mind the draft in 2<sup>d</sup> Cas which sheweth y<sup>e</sup> Lins: as y<sup>e</sup> Land was Layed out & now If.”* — Ibid.

The judgment of the Court upon the appeal was as follows: —

“ . . . Both Parties Appeared The Writ Judgment Reasons of Appeal & Euidences in the Cause produced and Read Its Considered by the Court that the s<sup>d</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> his Action is barred the Land sued for being formerly taken from him by Execution that the Judgment of the Inferiour Court be and hereby is Reversed and that the s<sup>d</sup> John Sheppard Recover of the s<sup>d</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> Keene Cost of Courts Taxed at Ten pounds Eighteen shillings and Three pence.” — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 177.

Execucion issued accordingly, which the sheriff returned, satisfied, May 22, 1706. Having thus failed in the judicial tribunal, Keene as a last resort applied to the Legislature at the first session, this year, for relief from two judgments, both of which he believed would be reversed if the bar raised by the earlier judgment could be removed and he be permitted to review the case in the light of the new evidence. This he did in the following petition: —

“ To his Excellency Joseph Dndley Esq<sup>t</sup> Capt General and Governor in Chief in and over her Majesties Provinces of the Massachusetts Bay &c. And To the Hono<sup>ble</sup> the Council & House of Representatives now in General Court assembled May 29th 1706: —

The Humble Petition of Nathaniel Keen of Kittery in the province of Main,† Sheweth.

That Whereas yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner and his predecessors, viz<sup>t</sup> Ephraim Crockett, Charles Ogrado, Robert Elliot Esq<sup>t</sup> & yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner who purchasod a Tract of Land, of about ten acres in Spruce Creek Granted by the Town of Kittery in or about the year of our Lord 1670. to the sd Crockett and laid out by the select men and surveyor, and in the Possession of the afores<sup>d</sup>: Persons and yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner, till about Twelve years ago, John Sheppard by Deluding the select men of Kittery got Liberty to Improve ten acres of Land, and took that Land which yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner had purchased and fenced and cleared it. an Action being then commenced at the Inferiour Court at York by s<sup>d</sup> Sheppard against yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner, Judgment was rendred for the pl<sup>t</sup> for the possession of Land afores<sup>d</sup>: By reason of the Liberty given by the selectmen as afores<sup>d</sup>: as also because y<sup>e</sup> Town Grant to Crockett could not then be found. now yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner hath what is good Testimony, as also a Copy of the Grant & Return which proves the Land to be theirs. with a Declaration from the select men of their Error, in Sheppards Imposing on them in that Grant on which Grounds yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner commenced an Action at York Court last past for said Land, where he made it clearly to appear to be his Just Right, and had a Judgment for it. Sheppard appealed to the Superiour Court held in Boston the seaventh of may last, where the action was Barred by reason of the former Judgment and Costs allowed Sheppard. Now yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner being the True and Rightful owner of sd Land, and having disbursed a Considerable sum of money to purchase a just & honest Title, and the Judges being of opinion that the Judgment bars yo<sup>r</sup> petition<sup>re</sup>: Right

So yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner with his Family may have just Cause to pray &c<sup>ca</sup>

This petition was read, in the House, on the seventh of June, when the following order was passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence: —

* This is the abrupt ending, but there is no indication that any other answer was made.

† This was followed by the words “ for himself & Robert Elliot of Portsmouth in the Province of New Hampshire Esq<sup>r</sup>.” which appear to have been cancelled.

“Ordered That a Hearing be Granted, on this Petition upon the second wednesday of the next Session of this Court the above mentioned Shepard to be notified thereof, and served with a copy of this Petition, by the Petitioner, & And* That Execution, for Costs, against the Petitioner be suspended, until the end of the said next Sessions.” — Ibid., p. 859.

On the eleventh the petition and order were read in Council and the latter not agreed to, but the order which constitutes this chapter was substituted therefor, and being sent to the House on the same day was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

On the last day of the final session of 1705-6, an order was passed in Council, apparently in furtherance of the will of the Legislature, as expressed in chapter 67 of the resolves of that year, which is thus recorded:—

“April 12, 1706. Ordered. That the Secretary and the Commissary General be a Committee to provide the piece of Plate granted by the General Assembly as a present to Cole Romer her Majesty's Engineer within this Continent.

J: DUDLEY.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 276.

This project seems also to have failed from Römer's invincible objection to receiving any gratuity whatever. It was thereupon decided to offer to young Römer, not as a gratuity but as a reward for services rendered, a sum equal to what had been proposed as the sum of the gratuities to be tendered to both.

This resolve being passed in the form in which it appears in this chapter, young Römer had no scruple against receiving the amount allowed, and accordingly he was paid † upon a warrant which, July 18, 1706, the Governor and Council ‡ ordered to be drawn therefor upon the province treasurer.

Chap. 11. This chapter is from archives, vol. 63, p. 14. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 202.

The Flying Horse, the sloop in which Vetch made his voyage eastward, sailed for Plymouth as soon as it was learned by her owners and Vetch that she was suspected of having been engaged in illicit trade. She was pursued by Captain Calley, the representative from Marblehead, and captured, together with the sloop Resolution, which had followed her to Plymouth to take off her cargo. See the letter of John Winthrop to his uncle, Governor Fitz-John Winthrop of Connecticut, in the note to chapter 14, post, in which he states that this capture was first proposed by the representatives. See, also, chapter 17, post, and note.

For the particulars of Vetch's conduct which led to the order which constitutes this chapter, and for subsequent proceedings against him, see note to private act, number nineteen.

The apprehension both in New York and Boston of danger from the French fleet which was ravaging the English West-India islands in the spring of 1706, the defensive works which were thereupon begun in and about the city of New York, and the purchase of ammunition, and the other military preparations made in Massachusetts, are described in the note to chapter 2, ante.

Although the contemplation of formidable naval hostilities by France appears to have been seasonably known in England (which knowledge may have conducted to the liberal response by the queen to the legislative memorial § asking for a supply of cannon, etc.) it would seem that the danger was not so definitely anticipated in the colonies. From the beginning of the war until the autumn of 1704 depredations upon Anglo-American commerce had been made chiefly on the high seas, by privateers under the French flag or by single men-of-war acting as convoys to French merchantmen to and from the Windward Islands, and Port Royal, in Acadia; but the rumor, in October of that year, that Ducasse, || with a fleet of ten men-of-war and two bomb vessels, was expected at Martinique, where two light frigates of his squadron had already arrived, induced merchants ¶ of Massachusetts engaged in the West-India trade to urge Governor Dudley to take measures for the release of the large number of English prisoners of war on that island,—a number which it was likely would soon be greatly increased. Before advice could be received from England upon the subject of this application by the merchants, which, on the recommendation of the Council, Dudley had transmitted to the Lords of Trade, the cartel described in the note to chapter 15 of the resolves of 1705-6 was availed of to obtain the relief sought. Meanwhile, to lessen the chances of the capture of prisoners at sea, and at the same time to reduce the havoc on English vessels, and prevent the enemy from preying on the cargoes of English merchants and fishermen, the Governor and Council resorted to some expedients which they had found necessary at the beginning of the war but which had been discontinued when it appeared that the danger of invasion from Europe was not imminent. One of these was to protect the fisheries by the fitting out a sloop with thirty men, to guard the fishery "for their first Fare, and until the coming of the next General assembly." * This was ordered early in April, 1705. The other was the laying an embargo in October following "on all Merchants Ships and Vessels bound to Barbadoes, or the Leeward Islands, that they may have the benefit of the Convoy of Her Majesty's" ship the Deptford, "none to be permitted to sayle before her without special Licence." †

The following proclamation for an embargo was accordingly issued and published in the News-Letter of November 5, 1705:—

"By His Excellency JOSEPH DUDLEY Esqr. Captain General and GOVERNOUR in Chief, in and over Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION,

For an Embargo on Ships and Vessels bound to Barbadoes, and the Careeby Leeward Islands.

Whereas Her Majesties Ship Deptford, Captain Charles Stucley Commander, is fitting and making ready speedily to Sail to Barbadoes, ‡ and from thence to proceed to Salt-Tertudos, to Guard the Ships designed thither to lade Salt for carrying on the Fishery.

I have therefore thought fit, by and with the Advice of Her Majesties Council, to Order an Embargo upon all Ships and Vessels Outward Bound for Barbadoes, or any of the Careeby Leeward Islands; And that none be permitted to Sail thither without my special Licence; until Her Majesties said Ship Deptford be made ready, and then to attend her and take the benefit of a good Convoy.

And all Officers of the Custom's Naval and Impost Officers, and Commanders of Castles and Forts within this Province, are hereby Comanded to take notice of this Proclamation, and Conform themselves accordingly.

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston, upon Wednesday the 30th § of October, 1705. In the Fourth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady ANNE, by the Grace of GOD, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, QUEEN, Defender of the Faith, &c.

By Order of His Excellency the Governour, J. Dudley with Advice of the Council, Isaac Addington, Secr.

GOD Save the QUEEN."—No. 81.

Until the date of this embargo the Province Galley and the Deptford had been kept busy in defending the harbors, the fisheries, and the coastwise trade, and some ships of the royal navy had done similar service along the coast east and south of New York; but the fishing season being past, and the danger of navigation on this coast in the winter being such as to remove any reasonable apprehension of invasion by a foreign fleet, or * Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 164. One of the articles of advice to the Governor by the representatives in the resolve of March 20, 1703-4, chapter 100, was "That the Fishery and Coasters may be guarded with a Sloop or two suitable for their Security."

† Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 232. Cornbury had proclaimed an embargo in New York in the preceding June. The proclamation of the former embargo in Massachusetts has not been found, but its substance is shown in the following entry in the executive records of the council:—

"March 20, 1702-3. His Excellency being informed, that a considerable number of Frenchmen from Cannada are lately arrived at Port Royal, for the manning out of Privateers, to infest and annoy this Coast, and that two private Men of War are lately fitted and set forth from that place, to make spoiles and depredations upon her Majesty's subjects and their Estates.

Advised. That his Excellency emit a Proclamation for laying an Embargo upon all outward bound ships and Vessells until further order.

That the Ship Greyhound Capt<sup>n</sup> Andrew Wilson Commander be forthwith taken up; equipped and fitted out on her Majesty's service, for Guarding of the Coast and the securing of Navigation.

That Jeremiah Dummer Esq<sup>r</sup> and the other owners of the s<sup>d</sup> Ship be desired forthwith to prepare and fit the s<sup>d</sup> ship for the sea and to direct the working upon her to morrow if need be.

That Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup> be directed to victual the s<sup>d</sup> Ship, and to put in provisions for seventy Men for the space of one Month."—Vol. 3, p. 120.

A year later the representatives advised, "That the Embargo be minded" (resolves, 1703-4, chapter 100); but on the fourteenth of September following it was ordered to be "released and taken off."—Ibid., vol. 4, p. 67.

‡ By the News-Letters of December 10, 17, 24 and 31, 1705, it appears that the fleet under convoy of the Deptford was advertised to sail on the twelfth, but that on the seventeenth and twenty-fourth it was lying windbound at Nantasket and that on the twenty-sixth it sailed. The same paper, under date of March 25, 1706, reported that a large ship believed to be the Deptford had been seen going into Barbadoes; and again, on the first of April, that she had arrived there "with the vessels under her convoy all safe." On the fifteenth this last report was confirmed, save that Barnes, in a sloop, had been "taken and carried into Martinico." The date of the Deptford's arrival out was given in the News-Letter of the sixth of May as "the latter end of January," but in another place it was stated that the attack of the enemy on Nevis had occasioned an embargo on the return fleet so that Captain Stucley was obliged "to leave them behind." Finally, the same number of the News-Letter contained the announcement of the arrival of the Deptford at Boston, on Thursday, the second of May, after "about a month's passage."

§ May, 24, 1706. Capt. Stukely arrives from Barbados in the Deptford, 3 weeks passage; was not suffer'd to bring the Fleet with him, neither can they go for Salt; but are embargod at Barbados. This much fear'd that Nevis is Taken."—Sevall's Diary, vol. II, p. 161.

The fleet returned to Boston unexpectedly on Saturday, the fifteenth of June, causing a great alarm, it being taken for d'Iberville's hostile squadron.—Boston News-Letter, No. 113, and letter from John Winthrop in note to chapter 14, post.

§ Sic: a mistake for thirty-first.

depredations by pirates,* it was felt that the Deptford might safely be spared for a convoy.

The active operations for defence, commenced when the report of the designs of d'Iberville to attack the northern colonies had been confirmed, are described, in part, in the note to chapter 2, ante. The Governor, in his opening speech to the new Assembly this year,† not only dwelt upon the danger to be feared from this quarter, and the preparations he had made to resist an attack, by putting the militia on the seacoast in readiness to move to the assistance of "any oppressed part," and by provisioning the Castle and strengthening the garrison, but he added the following recommendation:—

"... There is some Thing further necessary to be done for the security of this Town at the Batteries & else where, as well as at Salem, Marblehead, and Cape Ann, Which I shall desire you forthwith to enter upon, The Season of the Year being far advanced, and proper for the Enemy to look this Way. . . ."—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 191.

This recommendation of the Governor seems to have been immediately taken into consideration by the House, who appointed a committee to report what action should be taken thereon.

On the third day of the session the Council passed the following order, proposing a joint committee upon the same subject:—

"May ult. 1706./.. In Council./..

Ordered That Elisha Hutchinson, Samuel Sewall, John Phillips John Walley, John Higginson & Samuel Legg Esq<sup>s</sup> be a Committee of the Board, to joine with a Committee of the Representatives to consider what is requisite to be done for the necessary Fortifying and providing for the present defence of the sea Coast and In-land Plantations against the Insults of the Enemy, in this time of common danger; The Enemy being very powerful at this time in america; And to make their Report with all speed."—Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 212.

This order was immediately sent to the House, for concurrence, whereupon it was returned with a message that the House "had a Committee already ont to consider of what"‡ the Council proposed. Upon this the Council resolved, "That, notwithstanding the Message from the other House, the Committee of this Board do proceed, and sit too morrow by eight in the morning, And Report their Opinion on the heads proposed."§ On the next day the committee of the Council made the following report:—

"Whereas wee the subscribers were a Comitte appointed by his Excellency & Council to Consider what was requisite to be done for the necessary fortyfying & provideing for the present defence of ye Sea Coast & Inland plantations against the Insults of the enemy in this time of Comon danger The enemy being at this time very powerfull in America & to make a Report with all speed

June. 1. 1706.

This report was immediately read, "and unanimously approved as necessary to be forthwith put in Execution," and this vote was sent to the House for concurrence, where, on the same day, the report and vote were read a first time, and again on the fourth, on which day certain proposals from the House "for the better Security & Defence of the Province in this Time of extraordinary Danger," † which had been sent to the Council for concu-rence, were read at the Board and left for further consideration. The two branches failing to agree in the plans proposed by them, respectively, the Council, on the fifth, moved for a conference. On the same day the House, by message, signified its willingness to attend a conference, "but desired it might be defer'd till After-noon," at which time, by direction of the Governor, "Mr Speaker & the House accordingly came up to the Council Chamber, Where the Conference was managed between the Houses upon the Articles proposed referring to the Defence of the Province." ‡

On the seventh, Captain John Redknap, the engineer, presented to the Council the following memorial and estimate:—

"Boston June ye 7th 1706

On the eighth, a committee of the Council was sent to the representatives with a message "to enquire of the House what Resolutions they had come to referring to the Fortifications, and Provision for Defence of the Province; The Messengers returned Answer, that the House were upon it."*

The House, also, on the same day "Ordered That a Message be sent up to the Board that this House have Considered Captain Redknap's Proposals, and Refer themselves, to their former vote, Pass'd the 4th inst: as their answer thereto except, the two articles of Providing fire-ships, & a flat bottom'd Boat, which shall be further Considered." †

On the tenth, the inhabitants of the town of Boston, in town meeting assembled, passed the following votes: —

"Voted that a Committee be appointed to Consider of what Shall be needfull to be done about Fortifieng the Town for its defence against the Enemie: And that the S<sup>d</sup> Committee do make application to his Excellency the Governor for his Approbation therein. And to make report to the next Town meeting of what they Shall thinck proper to ‡ Lay before the Town relating thereunto.

Voted that the S<sup>d</sup> Committee do also make report to the next Town Town ‡ meeting of what they Shall thinck proper to be done for Securing the Powder within this Town." — Boston Town Records, vol. 2, p. 282.

This was succeeded by another town meeting, two days later, of which the following is the record: —

"At a meeting of the Free holders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston duly qualified and warned According to Law, being Convened at the Old meeting House in Boston aforesaid the 12th day of June Anno Dom<sup>i</sup>: 1706 did then and there agree, conclude & declare as followeth Viz<sup>t</sup>.

By the committee's report, ratified at this meeting, it would seem that the approval of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief had been obtained before the plan proposed by the committee was submitted for confirmation. The following proceeding took place the same day in the council chamber: —

"A Committee of the Town of Boston attended his Excellency in Council to Acquaint him that the Town had Consented to grant One Thousand Pounds towards the Repairing & Setting in Order the Fortifications within the same, And a Vote was drawn up for Confirmation of the said Grant, & sent in to the Representatives to be pass'd by that House in the first Place." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 201.

The confirmatory vote referred to as having been drawn up in the Council and sent to the House is the resolve which constitutes this chapter, as printed on page 108 of the first volume of the Province Laws.

Upon receiving the draught of this vote, the House having taken one day to consider the subject passed the following order: —

"In the House of Representatives June 13: 1706

Ordered That a Message be sent up to the Board, That this House are of Opinion, That the Law well Provides, That any Town may with His Excellencys approbation, Raise, & Lay out any sum or Sums of money, for their own fortification, & Defence, without any further allowance or sanction from this Court, as hath been frequently Practised by diverse Towns in this Province

Sent up for Concurrence.

THOMAS OAKES Speak<sup>r</sup>

Die ¶dict. Read." — Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 225.

The Council, thereupon, having considered the message of the House, unanimously passed the resolve, together with the preamble, beginning "Whereas the town of Boston," and sent it to the House, for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The fate of the proposals (no copy of which has been found) that the House submitted to the Council is shown in the following entry: —

"June 14, 1706. The Proposals offer'd by the Represent<sup>ves</sup> for the better Security & Defence of the Province in this Time of extraordinary Danger sent up for Concurrence, And Read the fourth of June Instant, & left to further Consideration, Having been Read several Times since & Debated, And now The Question being put for Concurrence, It was carried in the Negative." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 203.

The Governor, as commander-in-chief, now ratified the selection of the town committee by issuing to them the following commission and instructions: —

Whereas I am Informed, That her Majesty's good Subjects of the Town of Boston, Upon the Representation of the Imminent danger of an Attack from her Mat<sup>ys</sup> Enemys the French, and the despair the Fortifications within the s<sup>d</sup> Town are fal'n into, Have voluntarily granted, and Consented to the raising of a Sum of money, to be Applied with Allowance and Direction from myselfe, for putting the same into a posture for her Mat<sup>ys</sup> service and the defence of the said Town And having Trusted Elisha Cooke, Elisha Hutchinson and Penn Townsend Tho: Brattle Esq<sup>rs</sup> Lt Col<sup>o</sup> Checkley, Capt<sup>o</sup> Tim<sup>o</sup> Clarke & Captain Oliver Noyes, wth the care of laying out the s<sup>d</sup> money accordingly

The vote of the representatives affirming the authority of the town to raise money for defence seems to have encouraged the inhabitants to make a further appropriation for an additional fortification and the incidental improvement at Merry's Point* for the benefit of the town, as shown by the following entry in the town records: —

"At a meeting of the Free holders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston duly Qualified and warned according to Law, being convened at the Town house the 21th day of October 1706, did then and there agree conclude and declare as followeth Viz! . . .

Voted that the Inhabitants of this Town will proceed to grant a further Supply of money for the Secureing & finishing the wharffs already begun and placed at Merrys Poynt, and for the Fortification to be placed there: And also for some Additionall wharfe to face the old wharfe where the guns formerly Stood, in order to improve the Same for an income to the Town.

Long before the inhabitants of Boston voted these last supplies for completing the harbor fortifications in front of the town the great emergency which prompted both town and province to active measures for defence against foreign invasion had passed, by the death of

In 1653-54 the town of Springfield passed the following vote, appropriating a tract of land on "Chicopee Plain," which lay on the western side of the Connecticut River:—

Whereas there hath bin a psell of land over y<sup>e</sup> greate river at y<sup>e</sup> lower end of chikkuppy plaine reserved for y<sup>e</sup> Townes use, & yet notwithstanding some of y<sup>e</sup> sd land hath bin disposed off to pticular psons so y<sup>t</sup> there is now but about thirty acres thereof left. & some psons desiring y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> sd thirty acres may also be disposed off & distributed to severall psons The Towne took it into consideration whether to yeild thereunto, & y<sup>e</sup> Major pt of y<sup>e</sup> Towne for several reasons doe resolve not to dispose of y<sup>e</sup> sd Thirty acres of land to any pticular pson or psons as theire ppriety; But doe hereby order y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> aforesd thirty acres of land at y<sup>e</sup> lower end of chikkuppy plaine over y<sup>e</sup> grt river shall be reserved in y<sup>e</sup> Townes hands, as y<sup>e</sup> Townes land for y<sup>e</sup> Townes use, either for y<sup>e</sup> helping to maintaine a scholemaster or ruling Elder or to help beare any other Towne charges according as it shall hereafter be concluded on But not to be disposed off frō y<sup>e</sup> Townes ppriety or appurtance And further it is ordered y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> select Townsmen shall have liberty to let out y<sup>e</sup> sd land for yeare or yeares to bring in some yearly rent to y<sup>e</sup> Towne if they can find any to take it."—Springfield Town Records, vol. I., p. 94.

A portion of this land which had been granted for private uses November 15, 1655, was resumed by the town about three years later, on the ground that it had not only been forfeited by the grantee but that before his grant it had been "otherwise disposed of" by vote of the town. The vote for resuming the land is recorded as follows:—

"At a Towne meeting ffeb<sup>r</sup> 7th 1658[-9].

And y<sup>t</sup> Sañ Terry may have noe wrong by any Rates w<sup>ch</sup> he may have p<sup>d</sup> for y<sup>e</sup> sd land, it is ordered & agreed y<sup>t</sup> what Rates he hath p<sup>d</sup> that hath bin raised on y<sup>e</sup> sd Land, The Townsmen shall take notice thereof, & pay y<sup>e</sup> same back againe to Sañ Terry."—Ibid., p. 172.

Compensation was subsequently made to the grantee, as follows:—

"March 13th 16<sup>53</sup>/<sub>4</sub>

There is also granted to Samuel Terry two little peeces of Land above the brook at the head of chickuppe plaine on the west side of the great River wch parcells of Land conteyne Seaven Acres more or less: . . .

Memorandum that the above mentioned grants of land to Samuel Terry is upon condition that he doe quitt & release all or any right wch he p<sup>t</sup>ends to have in any Land wch lyes toward the lower end of the said Chickuppe playne wch land he pleaded to have been granted to him by the Plantation."—Ibid., p. 207.

From the mention in the above vote of 1653-54 of the support of a school-master as one of the purposes to which the income of this land might be applied it is not improbable that a school or schools were established soon after that date, † and if so, they continued, probably, until some time before March 30, 1675, when, at the County Court held at Northampton, the town was presented "for want of a Scoole for teaching & Educating of Youth in Reading & writing, who are to answer for it at y<sup>e</sup> next Corte at Springfield; " ‡ but no record showing that a schoolhouse was erected has been discovered § until the following vote:—

* "Nouvelle Biographie Générale," etc., tome 30, p. 640.

† An entry in the town records shows that, as early as 1677, William Madison, school-master, was allowed "Admittance & entertainment . . . he taking three pence of those  $\Psi$  weeke whom he teaches to read English, & four pence  $\Psi$  weeke of those he teaches both to read & write, as also four pence of those whom he teaches writing wholly; the Parents or Persons being to allow noe more: But the Town for this yeer as an encouragement to Him in the work doe agree to allow him y<sup>e</sup> Rent of y<sup>e</sup> Town land in Chickuppy."—Vol. III., p. 91.

‡ At a town meeting held April 10, 1678, "It was voted & Concluded to give to m<sup>r</sup> Daniel Denton twenty pounnes Salary for his encouragement in the worke of a Schoolmaster for the present yeer he continuing in that worke y<sup>e</sup> terme of an whole yeer or in Case It should so fall out y<sup>t</sup> m<sup>r</sup> Denton attend not that worke the winter season, then the vote of the Inhabitants was to give him twelve pounnes, & to allow him time to Plant & dresse two Acres of Indian Corne, in Case he cant provide it to be done for him for his money In this worke y<sup>e</sup> Parents & masters of such as send y<sup>r</sup> children or servants, being to allow to y<sup>e</sup> Towne according to y<sup>r</sup> manner of their allowance to the Schoolmaster the yeer past."—Ibid., p. 96.

§ Hampshire Probate Court Records, vol. 1, p. 163.

§ On the ninth of October, 1678, the town voted "that the watch house to y<sup>e</sup> New-meeting house should be, or serve instead of a schoole house; vntil such time as the Town shall see Cause to order otherwise."—Springfield Town Records, vol. III., p. 97. The next January there was paid "to the schoolmaster" six pounds from the town and six pounds ten shillings from "Chickupi."—Ibid., vol. II., p. 132.

Either that year or the next a school seems to have been kept in "Goodman Mirricke's" house, and in the latter year Mr. Denton was paid ten pounds "for his Labo<sup>r</sup> in schoole worke."—Ibid., p. 138.

The following entry, dated 1682, seems to indicate the existence of a primary school:—

"[The] Select men agreed wth Goodwife Mirricke to encourage her [in the] worke of teaching children to ["Training v<sup>p</sup> children in," written above the preceding three words] read that she [receive] 3<sup>d</sup>  $\Psi$  weeke for every child that she takes to  $\Psi$  forme [that exce]llent worke for."—Ibid., p. 159.

“ At a Town Meeting, being a legal meeting : May. 7th 1679 :

It was voted & concluded 1st that there should be an house erected for that noble designe & vse of Learning the youth in those so necessary peices or parts of Learning Videl: reading & writing.

& 2<sup>d</sup>. That this house should be twenty & two foot in Length. & eighteen foot in breadth. & 3<sup>d</sup>. That the select men should be appointed, or betrusted to agree wth any meet Person or Persons to frame this said building, & when y<sup>e</sup> Town shal have deliberated & determined where to sit it viz, y<sup>e</sup> school house, y<sup>e</sup> same appointed persons are likewise to finish it or fit it for school vse.” — Ibid., vol. III., p. 99.

The record of the action of the selectmen in carrying out the above vote is as follows :—

At a meeting of the select men, being p<sup>sent</sup>: Deacon Benja : Parsons. Jn<sup>o</sup> Dumbleton Henry Chapin Jn<sup>o</sup> Holyoke,

It having been formerly at a Town meeting propounded to y<sup>e</sup> Town, that they would set vp a schoole house for the Town, they concluded that such an house should be erected, & appointed the Select men to bargain wth any meet person or persons to build such an house for such a Vse: accordingly they have bargained wth Tho: Stebbein Jun<sup>r</sup>, to get timber for such a building & frame it, whose Length is to be 22 foot ; & breadth .17. foot : & stud 8 foot & halfe & he the said Thomas Stebbein is to carry the frame to place & to nail the clapboards close on both sides & ends, & to Lath & shingle the roofe, & to make three light spaces on one side, & two lights on one end, & to set vp a mantletree. & set vp a rung Chimney, & to daub it, & the said Thomas is to have for his worke so done fourteen poundes paid him by the Towne, & in Case it so prove that the said Thomas Stebbein shal have an hard bargain, It is hereby agreed that he shal have 10<sup>s</sup> more of the Town :

THOMAS STEBBINS.” — Ibid.,

vol. II, p. 119.

By the following entry in the town records it would seem that the building of the school-house was not begun, nor its site determined upon, until about two months after the record of the contract between the selectmen and Stebbins :—

“ At a Town meeting. Aug: 4th: 1679 :

At this meeting It was voted & concluded that the schoole house shal be set som where in the lane going to the vpper wharfe, the select men to agree about & determine the particular place.” — Ibid., vol. III., p. 100.

The lane referred to was what is now Cypress Street; so that the schoolhouse was about half a mile distant from the meeting-house.

Towards the end of the winter of 1680-81 it appears that it had been proposed to have the schoolhouse, then unfinished, removed to the centre of the town. Upon this proposition the inhabitants in the town meeting on the first of February passed the following vote :—

It does not appear that the schoolhouse was moved, but, by the following entries in the town records, it seems that the school was removed to near the centre of the town, and that a dwelling-house, with the land upon which it stood, was purchased for that purpose and the old schoolhouse let for a dwelling-house :—

“ Octo: 21 : 1685 :

At a Town meeting, warned to consider about the purchasing of Edwards Stebbins his house for a schoole house &c :

It was voted & agreed that the select men should treat wth Edward Stebbins, & With Sam<sup>l</sup> Ball vpon whose Land the said house of Edward Stebbins standeth, for the purchasing of the said house & the Land w<sup>on</sup> it is, & to know at what terms the said house may be purchased & to make a report y<sup>of</sup> to the Town.” — Ibid., p. 133.

“ nouember 12th 1689

the select men haue hired out to Beniamin Thomas the lower roome in the scoole hows at the widow Bals for which he is to a lowe the Towne foure shillings for the first quarter if he stay longer its lefte to further conserdatyon also Richard waight is to pay for the use of the other scoole hows at the up end of the Towne five shillings for his lining in it till the first of march next he is to repare gratis what may be for his comfort in the meanetym.” — Springfield, Records of the Selectmen, vol. III.

The first school-master who taught in this schoolhouse appears to have been Mr. John Richards of Hartford, who was engaged by the selectmen to serve for three months. The record of the contract with him is dated May 22, 1683; and for his service the selectmen agreed to see him paid seven pounds,—“ one third in wheat & one Third in Pease & one Third in Indian Corne, & as much of this Corne as is not disposed of in this Towne is to be paid at Hartford Landing place.”* At the expiration of the quarter, Richards was re-

No record of the keeping of a school in the town in 1687 has been discovered, but the next year the following record appears:—

"The Select men of Springfield haue agreed and Bargend with m<sup>r</sup> pelatiah glouer to keepe scoole in this Town to instruct and teach al Children as shall be sent to him: to read and write and Cast a count and what may be needfull for Children and he Capable of doing for which pains of his the select men promis to pay him twelfe pounds for halfe a yeaere he is to haue that rent of Chicopy land and the rest of his pay in maner as the Town rat is paid and he the saide m<sup>r</sup> glouer is to begin y<sup>e</sup> 3<sup>d</sup> day of September in this present year 1688 and so to Compleat sixe mounthis

In 1689 it appears, by the records of the County Court held at Northampton in March, and Springfield in September, 1690, that the office of school-master had again been vacant, but that the vacancy was filled in 1690.¶ The new appointee was Pelatiah Glover, mentioned above, son of the minister of that name, as is shown by the following entry in the records of the doings of the selectmen:—

"May: 12: 1690. At a meeting of the Select men the Munday following their choice, according to the vsual manner: al present

PELATIAH GLOVER, Jun

For the three years next after Glover's release no record of the appointment of a school-master has been found, but in 1694 Glover was again appointed to serve for a half year from the twentieth of May, and to receive sixteen pounds therefor. He was succeeded the next year by John Holyoke, who engaged to serve one quarter of a year upon the same salary that had been paid to Glover. This contract, it seems, was to be renewed quarterly until the next town meeting in March; and for the last term "they agreed to give him twenty shillings and the said school-master's pay." The extension of this contract to March (made originally May 25, 1695) was ratified by the selectmen on the third of January.

At a meeting of the selectmen March 23, 1695-6, Joseph Smith of Hadley was agreed with to succeed Holyoke for half a year ending January 14, 1696-7, and to be allowed for his services "seven pounds ten shillings in money, and ten pounds in wheat pease barley and rye in equal proportion." At the expiration of this term Smith was engaged for another quarter, for which he was to be paid "eight pounds money." The next contract with Smith, recorded March 15, 1696-7, is indefinite as to its continuance save that the selectmen agreed that he should receive "eight pound in mony or Corne at mony prisce for a Quarter of a yeaere march 31. 1697." ¶

On the seventh of June, 1698, the selectmen made a permanent agreement with Smith, which is recorded as follows:—

"It is agreed on and Between m<sup>r</sup> Joseph Smith and the Select men of this town in the behalf of this s<sup>d</sup> Town to keep boath English and Gramer Scholl: as also to lern all Sch<sup>l</sup>ors that shale be sent for that end boath Writing and Arithmatick and for Recompence for euery quarter as he dos Continue in this our time. forward and from the time as we was Chosen to se payd a Cording to town orders the full and Just sum of eight pounds  $\Psi$  quarter in Cash or Grain at siluer price." — Ibid.

At a town meeting held on the twenty-fourth of November succeeding this agreement of the selectmen the inhabitants, evidently deeming the settlement with Smith too onerous, passed the following votes: —

“it was noted that the general Court be petitioned unto that this Towne may be freed from keeping a grainer scoole and that they keepe three or foure scoole masters or scoole dames to teach to reade english and the worshipful Colanell pinchon and Jonathan Burt senyr ar desired to lay the Curcomstances before the honered Court of this Towne . . .

noted that m<sup>r</sup> Joseph Smith keep scoole till the 14th of Feruary next ensuing and those scolars as haue gone to him to scoole pay toward it and the rest the Towne pay.” — Springfield Town Records, vol. III, p. 268.

No trace has been discovered of the presentation made by the agents of the town, in conformity with the above vote, of any petition or of any motion, or of any action of the Legislature upon the subject-matter.

By the selectmen's records it would seem that in 1699 Smith was succeeded as school-master by Stephen Hosmer of Hartford. By another entry in the same records, under date of 1701, it appears that in the latter year Nathaniel Channey, afterwards minister of Durham, Connecticut, was appointed school-master. On the twenty-seventh of October, 1705, the selectmen engaged Mr. David Parsons to keep the town- or grammar-school for one quarter of a year, for which he was to be paid ten pounds in grain and pease at the following prices per bushel, corn at two shillings and sixpence, rye and pease at three shillings, and barley at three shillings and sixpence, and not to be paid “above one-fifth part in barley.” This contract was renewed on the thirtieth of January following for one year, and the salary to be paid was forty pounds. In March, 1706-7, the contract was again renewed, indefinitely, “the school-master to give timely notice of his leaving the school.”

There may have been other teachers the record of whose engagement has been overlooked or not made; but the foregoing sufficiently show the continuity of a grammar school in the town proper under a school-master with a stated salary, regularly assessed upon the inhabitants, up to the time of the passage of the order which constitutes this chapter.

The profits of the lands appropriated in 1653 to the maintenance of a school in the town seem not to have been applied to that purpose before the year 1696. Possibly no income may have accrued from them. However that may be, the following vote by the inhabitants appears to have been the first attempt to realize and apply an income from these lands and at the same time to set apart other lands for the same purpose: —

“At a Town Meeting, March, 19th 1695

Voted that the Ancient appropriation of Chicknup Land on the West side the Riuer be to the maintenance of a schoole in the Town of Springfield, Also voted that the six acres of meadow be it more or Less on the East side of the Riuer Lying between the meadow of Colonel John Pynchon on the south East & the meadow of Edward Stebbins on the North West side be appropriated to the same vse & is now granted unto that use, viz. towards the maintenance of a schoole in the Town of Springfield for euer.

This provision seems to have been designed for the support of a grammar school such as the law* required to be maintained in all towns of one hundred or more families or householders. Towns of fifty householders or upwards, also, were required* to “be constantly provided of a school-master to teach children and youth to read and write.”

In compliance with the foregoing vote the selectmen nearly a year later executed the following lease: —

“Thes presents Testify that the Select men for & in behalfe of this Towne have leased & to farme let the School land at Chickcuppy contening about forty Acres more or less vnto Ensigne Joseph Stebbin Edward Stebbin & David Morgan for the Tearme & space of seaven years next ensuing the Date hereoff on Conditions followinge vizt that the abovenamed Jos : & Edward Stebbin & David Morgan doe well & truely pay or cause to bee paid vnto this Towne The Just sum of Seaven pound five shillings in Marchatabe peass Barley Rye & Indian Corne in Equall proportion at The Towne price, every year vntill the leass bee expired, or in default thereof to pay four pound Eighteen shillings ¶ anū : in Currant money of this Province, it is further concluded & it is the intent of this agreem<sup>t</sup> that if it bee for the better conveniency & accomodation of a school in regard of maintenance or better setling of a school master, that then the Towne have free liberty & power to reassume sd Land, & the said Stebbin's & Morgan doe promise to deliver up sd land again, Also they doe engage to make & maintain a good & sufficient fence upon said land, & to leave such a fence on it provided the Towne dos not reassume it into there owne hands before seaven years bee expired w<sup>ch</sup> if they doe then a reasonable satisfaction is to bee allowed for the fence : in Testimony whereoff wee have herevnto sett or hands this 6th March 1696/7 :

Four years after the first lease the meadow granted by the town on the east of the river was leased as follows: —

" March th 18/1700 th Select men haue lcte out th s<sup>b</sup>coole medow which Lyeth Against Edward Stebbins to John Hitchcock jvn<sup>or</sup> for the Terme of six years & for which hee doth Ingage to fence In partivclar & also to boge & Clear th hole of sd Medow fite for mowing & fiv<sup>r</sup>ther hee doth Ingage to doe an eqvall proportion of dreening th sd medow: when th propriators shall see Cavs to dreene th same provided thay doe it In th above sd terme of six years & In Confirmation of th above written bargain th abouesd John Hitchcock jvn<sup>or</sup> hath hear vnto set his hand & seall th Daye & date aboue written

It has been shown that the town schoolhouse was on the east side of the river and remote from the centre of the old town. It was more remote from the village of Long-meadow, on the south of the town, and still more inconveniently located for the inhabitants on the west side of the river, both which places were increasing in population. In 1701, therefore, it was proposed to apportion the time of the annual service of the grammar-school master among the inhabitants of these three settlements, as shown by the following entry in the town records: — where as there was a writing presented to the Towne that the grammer schoole might be kept seamen months in the yeare on the west side of the riuier and at the long meadow: and the Towne plot to haue it fiv<sup>e</sup> months the Towne voted they would Condensd so farr as that those on the west side of the riuier and long meddow should haue him six months and the Towne plot six months for this yeare only." — Springfield Town Records, vol. III., p. 272.

" At a generall Towne meeting march 11th 170<sup>9</sup>

This arrangement, made for one year only, may have been continued for two or three years, but no subsequent vote to that effect has been discovered. In 1705 a new arrangement was made by vote of the town, as follows: —

" march 26. 1705. At a Town Meeting.

It was voted to pay out of the Town Treasury an Addition of sixteen pounds to encourage the Inhabitants on the west side of the great Riuer, & of the Long-meadow to promote the Learning of their children for the present year. & the Select men are to se to the disposing of said sum according to their best discretion." — Ibid., p. 280.

Probably the money thus voted, though nominally only for that year, was intended as an equitable allowance for the school expenses of the west side, to be renewed in succeeding years. It was certainly continued the next year.*

This provision, however, was not satisfactory to the inhabitants on the west side of the river who, from their situation, were practically denied the privilege of the school, and having no authority, independent of the votes of the inhabitants of the whole town, to maintain a school among themselves they applied for advice as to the course they should pursue to the justices of the county convened in the Court of General Sessions who, by law,† were required to see the laws for the maintenance of public schools duly observed. The following is the record of this application and of the action of the Court thereupon: —

" Anno, RR<sup>gine</sup> Annæ; Quinto

After this action by the Court of Sessions, a town meeting was duly warned and held, of the proceedings at which the following is a copy of the record: —

" May. 30th 1706. At a Town Meeting of the Inhabitants of Springfield.

This vote of the town did not avail to stop the application to the Assembly. Of the two persons requested by the Court of Sessions to present the subject to the General Court, Partridge was a member of the Council, and Parsons was the Representative from Springfield. It has not been ascertained that either of these gentlemen made a motion as requested by the Court of Sessions; but the following was read in Council on the eleventh of June:—

Upon “consideration of the above petition” the order which constitutes this chapter was passed by the Board, and sent to the House for concurrence. On the fourteenth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

By this chapter West Springfield secured for seven years the benefit of regular free tuition in reading and writing, but no provision for the higher education of the grammar school. The determination of the inhabitants of this precinct that their children should receive the benefit of free tuition, notwithstanding it added considerably to the pecuniary burden incurred on account of the pending war with the French and Indians, appears all the more creditable from the fact that the representatives of other towns were asking, as shown in the following petition and abortive resolve in the previous Assembly, for a temporary suspension of the penalties of the school laws:—

The message which constitutes this chapter was sent up after the Council had passed the order mentioned in the note to private act, number nineteen, “That the Judges forthwth do therein what appertains to Law,” † in which order the House had not concurred.

The following extract from a letter to Fitz-John Winthrop, Governor of Connecticut, written by his nephew John Winthrop, at Boston, after June 15, 1706, gives a graphic picture of the exciting events immediately preceding the message of the House communicating the written evidence laid before the Council:—

“Cap<sup>t</sup> Veatch has been absent three monthes from this place; nobody knew where he was gon. He returned yr last Thursday, and as soone as he came, yr Speaker of yr House of Representatives, by ord<sup>r</sup> & consent of the whole House, sent a messenger for him to appear presently, to give an account where he had been, &c. The master of yr vessel tooke his oath before all yr court y<sup>t</sup> he went loaden from here wth provition, guns, ammunition, &c. to trade wth yr French & Indians along yr coast, and y<sup>t</sup> he had bartered those commodities wth the enemies for furs &c. The deputies made M<sup>r</sup> Boreland (who is also concern<sup>d</sup>) give a thousand pound bond that Veatch should be forthcoming in a week, or else a prisoner. The deputies are in a rage about it and say y<sup>t</sup> it put knives into the hands of those barbarous infidels to cut the throats of or wives & children. It was wth much difficulty they were p<sup>rs</sup>waded to take yr bond; most of them were so furious as to have him confined in yr stone cage, for fear he should get away. A lett<sup>r</sup> from yr Gov<sup>r</sup> of Canady to or Gov<sup>r</sup> was read in yr Assembly last week, in w<sup>ch</sup> was such a passage as this:— ‘Sr, you need not wonder, neither can you blame me, about yr repeated murders committed upon yr people by yr Indians, w<sup>n</sup> yr owne vessels come privately & trade instruments of war wth yr salvages. It is impossible for me to keep them in, w<sup>n</sup> you whet their swords yr selves.’ I am sorry yr accident has hapned about Veatch at this time, w<sup>n</sup> a parcell of resolute rusticks sit upon yr bench, who have perhaps some of them had friends or relations slain by those heathens. Chap. 15. This chapter is from archives, vol. 62, p. 525. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 204.

The following appears to be an imperfect draught of a warrant to impress laborers and seamen for the voyage of the brigantine Dragon, equipped to intercept any who might be carrying on illicit trade with the enemy:—

"By his Excellency the Govern<sup>r</sup>

To the Sheriff of the County of Suffolk, his Deputy's and Constables of Boston and every of them Greeting.—

On the other side is a specification of the number of laborers and seamen wanted, and the need of an order for stores, a warrant to the sailing master, and a commission and instructions to the commander. It seems to have been prepared by Captain John Calley, or by some one for him, as it uses the pronoun of the first person, and begins with, "Mem<sup>os</sup> abt fitting out Capt<sup>n</sup> Calley." It reads as follows:—

"20 Labourers, to Clear & Ballast the vessel & hele Her of into the Road.

2 Lighters, 1 to fetch Ballast, the other to Take out what is in her.

an order to Beat vp for volunteers in Capt: John Blews name forthwith.

and a Warrant to mr John Blew to be master of the vessel.

The flying Horse lately seiz'd to be sent with me. & a warr<sup>t</sup> for the master of her 10 men." — Ibid., p. 215.

This project was abandoned upon the Governor's tendering the Province Galley for the expedition. See a particular account of the whole proceeding in the note to private act, number nineteen; also note to chapter 17, post.

Chap. 16. This chapter is from archives, vol. 63, p. 18. The following is the proclamation issued in response to the request mentioned therein:—

"By his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Captain General and Governor in Chief in and over Her Mat<sup>ys</sup> Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New-England, and Vice-Admiral of the same.—

The circumstances which led to the issuing of this proclamation are narrated in the note to private act, number nineteen.

Chap. 17. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 206. It has not been found in the archives.

In the note to chapter 15, ante, it is stated that the project of employing the brigantine Dragon was abandoned upon the offer of the Province Galley in her stead. This change was effected by the present chapter.

The Dragon, commanded by Captain Blew, was published in the News-Letter of the seventeenth of June as "outward bound" for Montserrat,† and again, on the fifteenth of July, as having cleared for Fayal.* If it were possible that, in the mean time, she made a voyage to Montserrat and back, it is not probable, in view of the fact that the order for discharging her from the province service was so late as the nineteenth of June. It is more likely that the earlier advertisement was a ruse to mislead spies and informers who were in communication with the enemy.

The Governor had previously made a proposition for furnishing a tender for the Deptford, which was agreed to; and the vote in this chapter requesting that she be ordered out on a cruise was only the advice of the representatives in furtherance of the Governor's design. The record of the Governor's proposition is as follows:—

“June 17, 1706. His Excellency proposed the Taking up a suitable Sloop for a Tender on her Majesties Ship Deptford with a Master & a Boy to be borne upon her; & to be man'd &c, out of the Friggott, And made out a Warrant to the Marshal of the Admiralty to take up a Vessel accordingly with the Advice & Direction of the Commissary General.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 204.

From the following entry in the executive records of the council it would seem that Calley, in his trip to Plymouth to capture the Flying Horse and the Resolution, sailed in the sloop Plymouth:—

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Twenty nine pounds two shillings and eight pence to the s<sup>d</sup> Capt<sup>n</sup> Calley and Company accordingly, The hire for the Sloop Plymouth to be paid to Ephraim Cole the Master.” — Vol. 4, p. 362.

The province treasurer's account ‡ of the payment of this muster-roll shows that only £23 15s. 8d. was actually paid to Calley. The reason of this discrepancy has not been discovered.

On the third of July the Province Galley touched at Piscataqua, bringing tidings of the result of her cruise to that date. Of this the News-Letter of the eighth of July published the following report:—

“Piscataqua, July 5th. Capt. Southack in the Province Galley came in here on Wednesday last, he has taken a French Sloop of 60 Tons in the Bay of Port-Royall, the Enemy all fled, and 'tis supposed she was going for Stones and Timber to build some Fortifications, The Prize Sloop and Capt. Cawley was left by Capt. Southack in Casco-Bay.” — No. 116. The next issue (No. 117) credits Captain Calley with the capture of this sloop.

The cruise of the Deptford was apparently an independent undertaking. This surmise is strengthened by the following extract from a letter of the twenty-fourth of June by Wait Winthrop to his brother, the Governor of Connecticut, showing that the Province Galley, commanded by Captain Southack, and the Flying Horse, which accompanied her, made this voyage under the immediate direction of Captain Calley:—

“Cap<sup>n</sup> Cawly of Marblehead, who is one of the House (and was sent to sease the other sloops who put in to Plimoth to leaue their bever, &c., with one Murdoc, a Scotch trader, who dwells there, and brought them in here), is gon with the galley and sloop, and Cap<sup>n</sup> Southwick is to follow his orders and doe as he directs.” — Winthrop Papers, part VI., p. 142.

The Deptford may have made several short cruises under the order which concludes this chapter. It is certain that she had returned to Boston by the fifteenth of July, for on that day a notice was published in the News-Letter, calling upon certain marines therein named, who had deserted, to return to their duty on board, and offering rewards for their apprehension, they to be delivered to their captain, Thomas Sutton, and in case they should be brought to Boston while the Deptford was at sea, they were to be delivered to John Campbell, postmaster.

The only record that has been discovered of the actual employment of a tender to the Deptford is the following entry, which shows that the sloop Hannah and Ruth served in that capacity from the fifth of July to the third of October:—

“Jan. 27, 1706-7. A Muster Roll of the Sloop Hannah and Ruth William Walter Master, Tender on her Majesty's ship Deptford containing an account of Wages for the service of the s<sup>d</sup> Master and one Man & Sloop hire from the fifth of July to the Third of October 1706 amounting in the whole to sixty four pounds, twelve shillings and eight pence, haveing been examin'd by Mr Commissary Gen<sup>l</sup> was presented and.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of sixty four pounds, twelve shillings and eight pence to the s<sup>d</sup> William Walter on behalfe of himselfe Company and Owner.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 373.

The province treasurer's account § shows that the amount above mentioned was paid.

“To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Cap; Generall & Governr in Chief in and over her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay And to y<sup>e</sup> Hono<sup>ble</sup> her Majt<sup>ies</sup> Council and house of Representatives now in Generall Court assembled at Boston within & for said Province May the 29th 1706. —

The Humble Petition & Complaint of Samuel Lillie of Boston Merchant. Sheweth

That Whereas Mess<sup>rs</sup> Samuel Keeling & Charles Chauncy of Boston Merchants at her Majt<sup>ies</sup> Superiour Court holden at Boston in November last past recovered a Judgement against your Petitioner for the sum of Two hundred and ninety Pounds five shillings and four pence Current money of new England and Three pounds fifteen shillings Cost of Suit, and afterwards took out Execution for the same directed to Giles Dyer sheriff for the full Satisfaction of which Execution, Your petitioner on the fifteenth day of Decem<sup>r</sup>, last past delivered to the said sheriff Three Baggs of money Viz<sup>t</sup> Two Baggs Containing in Reals and quarter peices the Quantity of 5625 Reals, all of them to your petitioners appearance fair money & unclipt according to the Law of this Province, which he accordingly received, which at 8<sup>d</sup> p<sup>er</sup> peice amounts to one hundred Eighty seven pounds ten shillings, The other Bagg containing 302 ounces which at 17<sup>d</sup> wt for six shillings, is one hundred and six pounds Eleven shillings & Eight pence, both which summs amounted to Two hundred ninety four Pounds one shilling and Eight pence which is Eleven pence more than was due which together with Eleven ounces and  $\frac{3}{4}$  three fourths at 17<sup>d</sup> wt for six shillings was by the Petitioner delivered to the said sheriff as aforesaid in full of the said Execution and his fees in Levying the same. Notwithstanding which, the said sheriff did not satisfy the said Keeling & Chauncy but kept the sd Baggs & Quarter peices & Reals in his hands until the Superiour Court in May last, when the sd Writ of Execution was Returnable alledging that many of the sd Reals and Quarter peices were Peru, and Clipt; Whereupon the Court Ordered, that Three skillfull Goldsmiths should look them over who accordingly did, and Returned That there was a sprinkling of Peru and Clipt peices among them (not mentioning any Quantity) upon which the Petitioners Attorney in Court, openly Tendred and offered to Change all such Peru, or Clipt peices that should be found amongst them into seventeen pennyweight, or good New England shillings and prayed the Benefit of the Law of this Province, That all the Quarter peices and Reals that were not Peru, nor Clipt, contained in sd Baggs might be delivered by Tale and not otherwise. But the said Court without any regard to the said Tender & motion, and without Ordering those few Clipt, & Peru, quarter peices & Reals to be taken out and severed from those that were good, and according to Law, did notwithstanding order the whole quantity to be delivered by weight at 17<sup>d</sup> wt for six shillings and accordingly the said sheriff delivered the same two Baggs of Quarter peices and Reals of your Petitioners to the said Keeling & Chauncy by weight as aforesaid. And further the said Court have Ordered an alias Execution to be granted against your Petitioner for :17 :18 :6 which the said sheriff is Endeavoring every moment to Levy upon your Petitioner which is so much to your Petitioners damage (besides Cost & Charges) as well as Contrary to Law for that :1st the said Quarter peices and Reals of your Petitioners if Levied not as money, but as Goods or Estate ought to have been appraised, and your Petitioner himself have had the Refusall of them, when instead of that they were at once without the notice of your Petitioner delivered to the sd Keeling & Chauncy.

2dly for as much as by the Law of this Province for ascertaining the value of Coines, It is Enacted that Quarter Peices and Reals of Sevil, Pillar or Mexico Coin shall go by Tale Viz<sup>t</sup> the first at 16<sup>d</sup> and the Latter at 8<sup>d</sup> p<sup>er</sup> p<sup>er</sup> p<sup>er</sup> vided they be not diminished by washing &c<sup>a</sup> — and as such shall be the Current Lawfull money of this Province Now if all the species of money under half peices of Eight must go by weight a great part of the Law above cited was made in vain and will be of no use or Effect.

Whereupon Your Petitioner humbly prays the advice of this Great and Generall Assembly not doubting but your Excellency her Majt<sup>ies</sup> Council & the Representatives of this Province will take Effectual Care to honour and support the Laws of this Province and oblige all Other Courts and Officers whatsoever to Conform themselves thereunto and Order Your Petitioner such Relief in the Premises and to your wisdom and Justice shall seem meet withall praying that the Parties Concerned may be notified to attend att such times & places as your Excellency & Hon<sup>rs</sup> shall appoint

And Your Petitioner, as in duty bound shall ever pray —

The case in which the judgment mentioned in this petition was rendered was an appeal from the judgment of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk, held at Boston October 3, 1705, wherein Keeling and Chauncy were awarded “the Sum of Two hundred and Eighty Eight pounds Twelve Shillings and four pence Curr<sup>t</sup> Silver money of New England (being y<sup>e</sup> Chauncery of said Bond unto it's just Debt and damages) and Costs of suit.”*

The above petition sets forth the essential facts of the controversy. By Judge Sewall's memoranda, which are printed in full in the note to chapter 53, post, it would seem that Lillie had previously filed another petition, for which the present paper was substituted on account of some reflections on the judges contained in the former. The arbitrary manner in which the substitution was made and the paper sent to the House without action thereon by the Council is also narrated in the note aforesaid.

The first execution against Lillie bears date November 26, 1705, and the return thereon by Sheriff Dyer, together with the first receipt of the creditors to him, is as follows:—

“Suffolk ss Boston xber 15th 1705

By Vertue of this Execution I have Levied it in pt upon the money's of the within-named Samuel Lillie which was shown unto me by sd: Lillie to be his Estate and have paid and satisfv'd the Creditors with Two hundred and seaventy six pounds two shillings and three pence in p<sup>t</sup> of this Execucon as p<sup>r</sup> receipt and there yet remains to satisfy it Seaventeen pounds Eighteen shillings and six pence.

Execution for Self & Comp<sup>a</sup> SAMUELL KEELING." — Suf- folk Court Files.

The creditors refusing to receive by tale the remainder of the money levied, the sheriff applied, as follows, to the Court for instructions as to his duty:—

"Suffolk ss Boston Decem<sup>r</sup> y<sup>e</sup> 15th 1705

By Vertue of this within Execution I have Levied it in part upon a parcel of Money of the withinnamed Samuel Lillie's which was show'n unto me by s<sup>d</sup>: Lillie to be his Estate. Three hundred and two ounces of mixt money, being ps of Eight and N England shillin at seaven shillings  $\frac{1}{2}$  once being one hundred & five pound four shillings the Creditors reced: as  $\frac{1}{2}$  their receipt the other part being quarter p<sup>s</sup> & reals they refused to receive by tale because they did not judg them to be equivalent to p<sup>s</sup> of Eight at 17 $\frac{1}{2}$  which q<sup>r</sup> p<sup>s</sup> & reals they offered to receive by w<sup>t</sup>: at 7<sup>s</sup>  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz as they received the other money but Mr Lillie would not Yeild to it. Therefore I pray your Hon<sup>rs</sup> to give your Judgment wheth<sup>r</sup> those quarter p<sup>s</sup> & reals will be sufficient money to satisfy this Execution According to Law GILES DYER Sheriff." — Mass.

Archives, vol. 40, p. 853.

The following memorandum, containing a specification of the kinds of money, seems also to have been presented by him to the committee:—

"Royalls *

5625 att 8 $\frac{1}{4}$  a p<sup>cs</sup> is . . . . . £ 187 : 10 : 0

— Ibid., p. 852.

Thereupon the Court, at the May session in Suffolk, appointed a committee of goldsmiths, as stated in the petition. The record of this order is as follows:—

The following is their report:—

"Boston May 10th 1706. Wee whose names are under written being Ordered by this Court to view a parcell of Spanish Money Shown us by the Sheriff do find a Sprinkling of Perew & some clipt money amongst it.

JOHN CONEY.
EDWARD WINSLOW.
JOHN NOYES." — Mass.

Archives, vol. 40, p. 856.

Upon considering this report the Court at the same session passed the following order:—

"It is ordered that an alias or plures Execution be made out against the s<sup>d</sup> Sam<sup>l</sup> Lillie for the Rest." — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 180.

This order of the Court was the grievance of which Lillie complained, since, evidently upon the assumption that by ordering an alias or plures execution upon the former judgment the Court intended to ratify the original levy, the sheriff felt justified in making the second payment, which was receipted for to him on the original execution, thus:—

"Boston y<sup>e</sup>:10th May 1706

£170:18:3 Recēd then of Mr Giles Dyer Sherriff one hundred and Seaventy pounds
Eighteen Shill 3<sup>d</sup>: being in part of this Execution I say Reced for Self & Co

folk Court Files.

An alias execution was issued May 27, 1706, to satisfy so much of the judgment as remained unpaid conformably to the sheriff's return; viz., — £17 18s. 6d.

Upon this ahas execution the sheriff made the following return:—

"Suffolk ss: Boston Junne y<sup>e</sup> 10th 1706

By Vertue of this Execution I Served it upon the person of the withinnamed Samu<sup>el</sup> Lillie and have since received the money and satisfied the Creditors as  $\frac{1}{2}$  receipt above GILES DYER Sheriff." — Ibid.

Four days after the date of this return one of the plaintiffs had signed the following receipt, endorsed on the execution:—

* Sic: reals.
† Reduced to provincial currency values.
‡ Sic.

“Boston June 7th 1706

The above or second petition appears to have been read, first, in the Council, on the eighteenth of June, and the order thereon passed and sent to the House for concurrence. On the twentieth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

See, further, chapter 53, post.

The following is the proclamation issued in accordance with the desire expressed in this chapter, which originated in the House on the day of its passage:—

“By His Excellency JOSEPH DUDLEY Esq. Captain General and Governour in Chief, in and over Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England and Vice-Admiral of the same. A PROCLAMATION against false and illegal Traders.

Whereas sundry Persons have been detected of late holding a false and illegal Trade with Her Majesties Enemies, the French and the Indian Rebels and Enemies, in and about Nova Scotia, and other parts and places Eastward, giving them Supplies: And there being just reason to suspect that other Persons, not yet known, have been concern'd in such false and illegal Trade, and the Effects conceal'd.

I Do therefore, by the Advice of Her Majesties Council, hereby strictly Command and Require all Her Majesties Loving Subjects that have any Knowledge, or can make discovery of any such false & illegal Traders, or any Goods or Effects Employed therein, or the product thereof, That they forthwith disclose and make known the same to My Self, or one of Her Majesties Judges of the Superiour Court of Judicature, in Order to their being apprehended, Examined and duly proceeded with, and the said Goods Secured.

And the Person or Persons that make the first discovery shall be Entitled to the benefit of Informers according to Law.

And all Justices of the Peace are commanded to be assisting to the apprehending Seizing and Securing of any Persons or Goods as abovesaid.

Given at the Council Chamber in Boston the 21st of June 1706. In the Fifth Year of Her Majesties Reign.

Major John Cutler, the record of whose trial and sentence by court-martial is given below, was the son of Deacon John of Charlestown, blacksmith. He was born about 1650 and died August 12, 1708. Appointed to take command of a company detached by Major Francis Wainwright of Ipswich to serve on an expedition to the eastward, he abused his trust by committing the frauds charged against him, as hereinafter shown. The prosecutor, Captain Matthew Perkins, was of Ipswich, where he died April 15, 1738, aged 72 years 9 months and 23 days.

Perkins's complaint against Cutler appears to have been considered by both branches of the Legislature before December, 1703, since the neglect to act upon such a complaint was one of the grievances* alleged by the House on the second of that month. To this alleged grievance the Governor promised redress by court-martial, as appears by the following record:—

“Dec. 13, 1703. . . . As to the Articles relating to Major Cutler . . . His Excellency declared, that at the first setting of a Court Martial, inquiry should be made into those matters, when all persons that have ought to say, may be heard.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 3, p. 499.

The convening of this Court was delayed until the eleventh of February following, when it was held at Newbury and the trial proceeded, as shown by the following copy of the record:—

“Province of The Massachusetts Bay in New England

"The Proceedings of a Court Martiall so called to be held at Newberry Feb: 10th on Thursday, but held on Friday: Feb: 11th 170<sup>3</sup> the Major Generall assembled with 12 more, viz: Coll: Pierce, Coll: Noyce, Major Wainright, Major Saltonstall, Capt Summersbee, Capt Boington, Capt True, Capt Brown Capt Prebel, Capt March, Capt Wadly, Capt Pier-son. Major Davison Clerk

A Souldier came to my Chamber, and said the Major Generall would speak with me; who when I came in said to the Clerk, read the Evidence; I prayed liberty to speak before Evidence was read, and then prayed a sight of my Accusation signed by my Accusers, and it was denied me; I refused to plead without it, and denied the Jurisdiction of that Court. There was no opening the Court, no Commission read, no Judges sworn as the Law for Courts Martiall directs, no standard flying no persons admitted into the room the Judges as it was said were sworn to secrecy. I prayd my Pleas might be enterd, but it was refused although Mony was offerd the Clerk for it I was told I should not have liberty of this Province law but be tryed by a law to me unknown. I was told by the Judge I had cheated the Queen before I had spoken one word for myself, or had put in any Evidence I was threatned with a prison, for saying this was not a Court Martiall here established by law, and y<sup>t</sup> the Queens Law for Courts Martiall in Flanders was not the law of this Province. I had no Accusation laid, Mutiny Desertion or Sedition were the only things tryable in a Court Martiall. The new Law for forming a Court Martiall was made since the facts were said to be Committed. I was brought in by a Souldier on Saturday and then asked if I would plead; I then as before denied the Jurisdiction of the Court, and prayd Cuncell, but was told I should have none, nor any Copy of my Accusation, then on Saturday I was brought in again, and then asked what my Cuncell said, I answerd your Honours allowd me none, then the Judge said what have you to say for your self; I answerd as before then Sentence was read, I was then told there was a Copy of my Accusation, I demanded a copy of my Sentence but was denyed it.

p. 14.

These papers were then "sent up" to the Council, whereupon, on the same day, the Board passed the following order, and sent it to the representatives, for concurrence:—

“March, 21<sup>o</sup> 1703. In Council

The Council being well Satisfy'd by the Account given at the Board by the Honorable the Lieut Govern<sup>r</sup> referring to the proceeding of the Court Martial against Major Cutler That the representation Signed by him and sent into this Court, is very false and full of Insinuations tending to the Hurt of Her Majesty's Government, have and do direct that the said Cutler be sent for before m<sup>r</sup> Secretary Addington and bound over with Surety's, to the next Superiour Court to be holden within the County of Middlesex to Answer for his false and evil Suggestions in the said Paper, And that he be of good behaviour in the mean time.” — Ibid., p. 27.

The House declined to act, for the reason given in the following vote :—

“In the House of Representatives March 22 : 1703. Resolved That it is necessary that Copies of the Establishm<sup>t</sup> & Proceedings of the Court Martiall be laid before this House, in order to their passing upon the abovementioned vote.

JAMES CONVERSE speaker.” — Ibid.

The order having been returned to the Council with this vote of the House thereon, the former immediately transmitted to the House the copy of the record of the trial and sentence of the court-martial as printed above, where it was read on the same day, and thereupon the following vote was passed :—

“In the House of Representatives March 22 : 1703

The Question being Put whether the House Concurre with the Board in their vote on the other side ?

It Pass'd in the negative.*

JAMES CONVERSE speaker.” — Ibid., p. 28.

No further action appears to have been taken in the matter until the next session, when Matthew Perkins presented the following petition and “bill of cost :” —

On the twenty-first the House "Ordered That the further Consideracon of this Petition be referred to the next Session of this Court."*

In the next Assembly the subject was resumed June 28, 1704. Perkins's former petition, presented at the April session previous, was again read in the House and sent up, but no further action thereon appears of record until the first session of the General Court of 1706-7.

On the twenty-fifth of June, 1706, another petition presented by Perkins was read in the House and ordered to be committed. It ran as follows:—

"To His Excellencie, Joseph Dudley, Esq; Capt; General, and Govern<sup>or</sup> of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England: And Honourable Council, And Representatives, Assembled in General Court at Boston May: 29th 1706.

The Humble Motion, and Supplication of Mathew Perkins, of Ipswich, is as followeth, Whereas, I Petitioned your Excellencies, and Honours, and Honours, to Consider the Cost, and Charge that I was at, in Prosecuting Captain John Cutler, for His Ill Management of Himself, in the Conduct, Committed to Him, at the Eastward, when I was His Leutenant, by reason of His Imbezling, the Stores Comitted to Him, and taking Money, of Soldiers, to Obtain their Release, when (By His Excellencie) they were Discharged from the Service; By Reason of your Multiplicity of Busines, and other Weighty Affairs then Impending, I had no Allowance made, for said Charges, that I Expected would have been Discharg'd, at that Court Martial, that Sentenced Him, and Condemned Him for the said Irregularities, which I formerly Craved Your Allowance of: I am Constrained again, to Renew my suit in that respect, which in sum, amounteth unto Thirteen Pounds, and Ten shillings; for that I am not able to bare the said Charge, without great Damage to My Family.

Therefore I Pray, Your Excellencies, and Honours, farther Consideration at this Time, if it may be; I beleiving, that therein you, will do God, and the Province good service, in not Discouraging, but Countenanceing such, as shall make future Discoveries of any, that may be Offenders in the like Kind, if any Happen to be. I am sorry, that I am forced to put you, in Remembrance hereof; And, were I able, to Pay the Charges, that I was Necessitated to be at, with respect to Witnesses, that then attended; I should not have given You the Trouble, of Perusing this further Motion. But in Hopes, to be Heard at this Time. (When Publique Affairs do not so much, or greatly Incumber Your Hands,) I Crane, and Beg in all Humillity, of Your Excellencie, and Honours, That I may have Justice done unto me, who am Humbly Desirerous, to Serue Your Excellency, and Honours, to the vtmost of my Ability, as You shall Imploy me at all Times. So still Prayeth, Your Excellencies, and Honours, Most Humble, and lowly servant.

MATTHEW PERKINS."—Ibid.,

p. 198.

On the twenty-sixth this petition was again read in the House and the order which constitutes this chapter was thereupon passed with the following preamble thereto:—

"Whereas the Petitioner being Examined by this House, before the Prosecution of Maj; Cutler for his Mismanagem<sup>t</sup> of himself, in the Betrustment, Comitted to him and was not only Desired, but Enjoyed, by the s<sup>d</sup> House to Prosecute him for the same."—Ibid.

The order was concurred in by the Council, and consented to by the Governor on the same day.

A warrant for paying to Perkins the sum voted in this chapter was ordered † July 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid accordingly.

“Read and not agreed with the Representatives in their Vote, as not being Indebted to Major Whiting; but are willing to present him for his good Services with that or any lesser Sum.” — Ibid.

Upon receiving this vote of the Council, the House, on the same day, passed the resolve which constitutes this chapter, with the following additional clause after the word “province:” “and that otherwise he is like finally to Lose His money paid as aforesd,” and prefaced the resolve with the following preamble:—

“Whereas Majr William Whiting the Petitioner Did Pay (as he Saies) the Sum of forty Pounds to the Indians mentioned in this Petition, in expectation of being Reimbursd by this Province, Supposing a Law thereof intituled the sd Indians to the sd Præmiun.

And Whereas He has made Application to the Government of Connecticut Colony, to whom of Right it appertains, to Reward the Services performed by the Souldiers in their Pay, as the sd Indians were: but can obtain nothing.” — Ibid., p. 229.

The resolve, with the preamble thus prepared, was sent to the Council, for concurrence, and agreed to on the next day with an amendment striking out the preamble and the additional clause aforesaid. On the twenty-seventh the House concurred in the resolve as thus amended.

See resolves, 1704-5, chapters 53 and 54, and notes, for further particulars relating to the service on account of which Whiting made the payment for which he was reimbursed in this chapter.

The order which constitutes this chapter originated in the House on the day of its passage.

One week after the date of this chapter the act* for erecting a powder-house within the town of Boston was passed.

The total outlay for this structure seems to have been not less than six hundred pounds. Warrants† for one hundred pounds, one hundred pounds, two hundred pounds, and two hundred pounds, respectively, were severally drawn January 14, 1706-7; June 5, 1708; August 28, 1708; and March 10, 1708-9, and the province treasurer's accounts ‡ show that these were paid.

See resolves, 1708-9, chapter 142 and note.

Chap. 28. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 215. It has not been found in the archives.

The hearing upon Allen's “remonstrance and petition” was appointed for the first week of the first session of the Legislature of 1705-6, and the persons claiming the estate were to be notified thereof. § Accordingly, on the first day of June, which was the third day of the session, the petition was again read in the House and the following order passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence: —

“Ordered That the Praier of this Petition be Granted, & a Hearing Attended, forthwith, if both Parties are prepared for it otherwise on the next Tuesday at 3 a clock afternoon.” ||

“Upon Reading whereof [in the Council on the same day] & Debate thereon A Message was sent by Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, Penn Townsend Esq<sup>r</sup>s & the Secy. to the Representatives, to lay before that House the Consideration how far it is proper for this Court to enter into that Cause, The whole Matter referring to Wills & Instruments &c by the present Charter being in the Government of the Governour & Council, And the Judgement now petition'd to be reversed being of near thirty Years standing under another Constitution, The Members of that Court & the Persons concerned being almost all dead, The Alterations since made of the Estate & the Statute of Limitation having Effect, Besides the Train of Consequences attending the Unravelling of Matters determined by the Supreme Court within the Government at that Time.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 120.

At this stage the petition was met by the following answer of Edward and Rebecca Watts of London: —

That true it is, as the Petitioner sett<sup>s</sup> forth That Richard Bellingham late of Boston afores<sup>d</sup> Esq<sup>r</sup> Deced, dyed seised of a very Considerable Estate in Houses and Lands, and there was also a sort of a last will & Testament to the purport of what the petitioner sett<sup>s</sup> forth, which was pretended to be the sd Bellingham's, tho<sup>o</sup> for very wise and just Reasons declared and adjudged to be void and of none Effect by the General Court of this Country Anno 1676. the Judgment of which Court yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent hopes this great and General assembly will not suffer now to be called in Question, much less Revers'd, and therefore yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent opposes the petitioners being heard vpon his Petition. and

I whereas yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner in his first Reason saith That that Court at that time had not the Jurisdiction or Cognizance of Wills but the County Court only. Yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent answers, That true it is, the County Courts at that time had the Cognizance of Wills &c: But from whence did they derive it, but from the General Court, who therefore had power in extraordinary Cases when they saw occasion to Exert that power themselves, it being too great a thing for any Inferiour Court to make void a Will that might have the Common proof attending of it: omne majus continet in se minus, is a known Rule in Law, Besides, this pretended Will of Mr Bellinghams had Labour'd so long in the Inferio<sup>r</sup> Courts without any Effect or Issue, That the General Court were Resolved to take it into their own hands, & make a final Issue thereof, especially having directions so to do from y<sup>e</sup> Crown of England, and with all submission yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent humbly offers, that the General Court under the first Charter, except in some few things had the same powers and authority that the present General Assembly hath, as being the supreme and Legislative power of the Country.

2 Whereas the Petitioner urges, that the s<sup>d</sup> Will was really and bonâ fide the last Will and Testament of ye s<sup>d</sup> Richard Bellingham Esq; dece'd and so prov'd to be and not all the English Laws could sett aside or Controul such a Will. Yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent answers

(1) That there are many things absolutely Necessary to make a last Will and Testament good according to Law, for thò the s<sup>d</sup> Bellingham might towards his Death sign that Instrument called his Will, yet if he were then non Compos, and understood not what he did, but managed and Imposed on by others, or if the Writing it self had not the nature of a Will in it, the General Court had very great and good Reason for what they did.

2 It shall not now be with the Petitioner to say the s<sup>d</sup> will was a good Will &c when the General Court has passed upon it and determined it to be no Will; and that no doubt with due regard to the Laws of England; and with a just value of Last Wills and Testaments.

3. Yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent opposes the hearing of this matter for the great Inconveniency of it
1 In General, That the Acts of the General Courts of this Country, should after so long a time be reexamind or Revers'd.

2 ffor that since this Judgment of the General Court in 1676. there have been so many purchases Mortgages and Conveyances of that Estate, that an unspeakable mischief and Confusion would Ensur now to Reverse it.

4. Yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent prays it may be Considerd how strange & unreasonable it will be for this great and General Assembly to raise a Will to Life again that has been buried near thirty years: or rather in truth to make a Will at this day, for the s<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Bellingham. for no doubt of it, the petitioner in the day of it made the strongest Efforts that could be made to support the Will, & yet all fail'd., & certainly if his proof would not serve him then, it can never be supposed to do so now.

5. Yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent opposes a hearing for that the Petitioner really petitions that a Will be made for the s<sup>d</sup> Bellingham, for he prays for a power to dispose of his Estate so, & so, whereas in the very Instrum<sup>t</sup> which the petitioner would have a Will, M<sup>r</sup> Bellingham devises not one jot of his Estate to his feoffees nor could they by Law (had that Will stood to this Day) ever have meddled with any of the real Estate of M<sup>r</sup> Bellingham without the Consent of his heir at Law.

6 ffor that by the Law of this Province now in being for the Quieting of men's Possessions, not only all actions in Courts of Law, but also all Processes are forbidden after the time limited by that act, and Yo<sup>r</sup> Respondents and those they Claim under having been at all times in the peaceable possession of the s<sup>d</sup> Estate, therefore hope this great and General Assembly will support and maintain their own Laws, by allowing no further proceeding in this matter And upon the Whole yo<sup>r</sup> Respondents hope This great and General Assembly will do that Justice and Honor to the former General Court of this Country as to Ratify and Confirm their Judgment in reference to M<sup>r</sup> Bellingham's pretended Will by Dismissing the petitioner.

and yo<sup>r</sup> Respondent shall ever pray

This answer was presented on the day of its date and read, first, in the Council and sent to the House, where it was read twice on that day.

On the fourteenth the following order was passed by the House and sent to the Council for concurrence: —

“Ordered That a previous Hearing be Attended before this Court, on this answer, & M<sup>r</sup> Allen Serv'd with a Copy thereof the Board to appoint the time.” — Ibid., p. 152.

On the twentieth the Council voted not to concur in this last order. Here the matter seems to have rested until the fourth of July, 1706, when both branches agreed upon the order which constitutes this chapter.

Some time after the passage of this chapter, the House seems to have revived its vote of June 14, 1705, for ordering a hearing on Allen's petition without notice to adverse claimants; for on the thirteenth of July such a vote was read in the Council and “disagreed to.”

On the twenty-seventh of August, being the twenty-first day of the next session, Allen's petition “and the order of the representatives thereon” were read in the Council; but on the twenty-ninth this order was disagreed to by the Board. Five days later the following entry appears in the legislative record of the Council: —

“Sept. 3, 1706. A Resolve pass'd this Day in the House of Representatives upon the Petition of Mr James Allen; Viz, That the Will of the late Rich<sup>d</sup> Bellingham Esq; refer'd to in the Petition was legally proved, Being Read at the Board, & Voted that the annex'd Print being a very faulty Copy, & without the Attestation of an Officer, ought not to be received or Considered by the Court: And further Considering that the Probate of Wills & Testaments is by the Charter vested in the Governour & Council, The Council therefore Disagree to the Vote of the Representatives.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 241.

In the third session the subject was resumed, and the petitioner and Mr. Stoddard were permitted “to offer any further Pleas in Writing for Confirmation thereof.”* This was on the sixth of November, and, on the next day, additional pleas were accordingly offered and an order was thereupon passed “that M<sup>r</sup> Joseph Hiller Attorney of Edward Watts have a Copy thereof, & forthwith make Answer, If he see Cause.”*

On the ninth, the case was disposed of, for the time being, by the nonconcurrence of the Council. Hiller having filed an answer to the pleas of Allen and Stoddard, “a previous Vote was put, Whether the Council would be ask'd upon the” above resolve of the House. This having been decided in the affirmative, the question was put whether the Council concurred in the resolve, and it was voted in the negative. A third vote was thereupon passed, permitting any of the Council to “draw up & offer to Consideration some Thing in Lieu of the afore said Resolve.”†

† Ibid., pp. 255, 256.

At this stage, Judge Sewall, who was about to set out for Salem on the next day to attend the November term of the Superior Court, wrote, on Sunday, the tenth of November, to Wait Winthrop, his friend and associate in the Council, reminding him of “two things of very great moment now before them,” on one of which he comments as follows:—

“... As to Mr Bellingham’s will, Mr Allen seems to insinuat it was written by himself, whereas it is Mr Allen’s own hand; and there is a base reflection upon Mr Saml Bellingham, a worthy gent. Indeed I have purchased a small peice of land y<sup>t</sup> was Govr Bellingham’s; but it is not mentioned in y<sup>e</sup> will at all, and I hold it of the heir. However, it would be much more for my interest to have y<sup>e</sup> Winnisimmet lands go to settle a minister there than otherwise, tho I should lose my purchase; and yet I cañot see with what face we can go about now to set up that will, thirty years after its being declared null by the Gen<sup>l</sup> Court that then was. That is most certain which by contest, & after contest (ex dubio), is made certain. I fear it would be much to the dishonor of God, as things now stand with us, to undo that w<sup>ch</sup> was done in 1676, when parties and witnesses were alive. It would in probability create a great deal of trouble to the Province, and come to nothing in the end. We should be thought unjustly selfish, unwilling y<sup>e</sup> estate should go to persons in England.” — Winthrop Papers, part VI., p. 148.

Another effort to annul the decree disallowing Bellingham’s will was made November 15, 1709, when it is recorded that upon reading an address signed by several of the clergy and the “Resolve pass’d thereon in the House of Represent<sup>ves</sup> Viz.

That the Act of the General Court Septem<sup>r</sup> 6th 1676, referring to the Will mentioned in this Petition was wrong & ought to be made null & void: — Voted a Non-Concurrence.”*

No further action upon the matter of Bellingham’s will has been discovered, in either the legislative or executive records of the Council. Bellingham’s estate included four considerable farms at Winnisimmet, now Chelsea. For nearly a century numerous suits-at-law grew out of the question of the probate of the will, and of its construction. The facts relating to these suits and to other historical incidents concerning the descent and division of Bellingham’s farms at Winnisimmet have been industriously gathered by the Hon. Mellen Chamberlain, and published by instalments in the Chelsea Telegraph and Pioneer. A collection of these contributions bound together under the title of “Studies in Chelsea History” is in the library of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society.

Archives, vol. 31, p. 7.

The resolve on this petition was passed in the House on the fifth of July and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the eighth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The first order for a warrant to the province treasurer under this chapter was as follows:—

“July 18, 1706. To Ben-Indian wounded in her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service the sum of three pounds for smart money to be put into the hands of the select men — of Situate, to be paid out to him as they shall judge best for his supply & support.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 295.

It would seem that the Indian did not avail himself of the permission to serve as a private sentinel, so the foregoing order was suspended the next year by the following vote:—

“Aug. 14, 1707. Pursuant to a Resolve by the General Assembly at their Session in May 1706. viz<sup>t</sup> that Ben Indian of Situate, wounded in her Majesty's service be allowed three pounds for smart money, and forty shillings P<sup>er</sup> annum for the next two years, one of which is expired, all to be paid to the select men of Situate, to be laid out for him according as they shall judge best for his supply and support.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above mentioned sum of Five pounds to the Select men of Situate for the use of the said Ben Indian.”—Ibid., p. 453.

The province treasurer's accounts show that this amount ‡ was paid and also that the selectmen were subsequently paid two pounds § more for his use.

The petitioner, son of Joseph Parker (who is variously described as of Dunstable and of Chelmsford) by his first wife Margaret, was born at the latter town, March 30, 1653. He died at Grotton, administration on his estate being granted June 24, 1725. The petition gives the parentage of his first wife.

Administration on the estate of Richard Blood was granted to his widow, October 7, 1684, at a County Court held at Cambridge.* The administratrix returned an inventory † in which the "house, land, npland and meadow" of the deceased were appraised at one hundred pounds.

The above petition was presented at the third session of 1705-6. It was read in the House on the third of November and referred to a committee, following whose report the House, on the sixth, voted that it "be referred to next session," etc. On the eleventh of June, 1706, it was again read in the House, and on the next day the following preamble and resolve were passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence: —

"In answer to the within Petition.

Resolved That all the Lands which Richard Blood, late of Grotton dec<sup>d</sup> Died seized of, lying in the s<sup>d</sup> Town, be Given and Granted, to Joseph Parker, the Petitioner his Heires, and Assignes for ever in Considera<sup>com</sup> of the charge, the s<sup>d</sup> Parker has been at, in the maintenance of the within mentioned Isabel Blood for fourteen years last past Provided that the s<sup>d</sup> Parker Give her also a meet and comfortable Maintenance during her naturall life, and a decent funerall at her Decease." — Ibid., p. 342.

On the thirteenth the Council refused to agree to this resolve but substituted therefor the resolve printed in this chapter. This was concurred in by the House on the twelfth of July, and consented to by the Governor.

In a petition ‡ presented by Parker to the Assembly in 1708, it appears that he had not availed himself of this legislative direction to the justices of the Superior Court, and so renewed his application.

This petition was read, first, in the Council June 26, 1706, and sent to the representatives. On the twenty-seventh it was read in the House and referred to a committee. On the twelfth of July the order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House, apparently as reported by the committee, and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The following warrant was ordered to be drawn on the province treasurer for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter: —

“July 18, 1706. To M<sup>r</sup> Benjamin Choate Minister at Deerfield the sum of Twenty pounds, as a full recompence for his labours there, in the worke of the Ministry the year curr<sup>t</sup> beginning the seventh of November last, over & above the twenty pounds, granted for the support of the Ministry in the s<sup>d</sup> Town of Deerfield.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 295.

While the results of the address to the queen (1705-6, chapter 56) remained uncertain, the Governor forbore to urge the Assembly to comply with her majesty’s commands in regard to fixed salaries. The only motion this session affecting the question of the salaries of the Governor and judges was the following, which seems to have met with no response: —

“July 13, 1706. Amsden's petition was disposed of at the third session. See chapter 106, post, and note. When the foot-note to this chapter, on page 184, ante, was prepared, the subjects chiefly in mind were the doings on the petitions of Waldo and Watkins. Sewall's account, given below, of the conduct of Governor Dudley in Lillie's case was not considered in connection with the recorded memoranda in that case.

Sewall's narrative is as follows:—

"June, 6. [1706]. . . This Court Mr. Lillie Prefer'd a Petition about his Reals not accepted by the Snper. Court to go by Tale, which was Untrue in one material Article as to matter of fact, and the Justices much reflected on. Mr. Paul Dndley was Attorney for Mr. Lillie. I pray'd the Petition might be dismiss'd, or those Reflections abated: the Govr brake forth into a passionate Harangue. . . Finally, at another time it was agreed that there should be a Hearing, only Mr. Lillie should first come into Council, make some Acknowledgment, withdraw that Petition, and file another. The Govr was very hot and hard upon me at this time, insomuch that I was provok'd to say, It was a Hardship upon me that the Governour's Son was Mr. Lillie's Attorney. At which the Govr Storm'd very much. Some days after Mr. Lillie came into Council. The Govr presently said, Sir, shall I speak for you, or will you speak for your self, and so fell a speaking— at last Mr. Lillie said with a low voice, I have prefer'd a Petition which I understand is not so satisfactory; I did not intend to reflect upon the Judges, and desire that petition may be withdrawn, and this filed in the room of it. Withdrew, Govr ask'd it might be so, and that the first petition might be Cast and Null. Secretary whisper'd the Govr that the Petition had been read twice in Council, whereupon the Govr took the pen and obliterated the Minnte of its having been read on the head of the Petition. And then after the Hearing before the whole Court, when the Deputies were Return'd, the Govr bundled up the papers and sent them in to the House of Deputies, without asking the Council whether they would first go upon them, with whom the Petition was entered. After many days, the Deputies return'd the papers agen by Mr. Blagrove, expressing their desire that the Council would first act upon them, seeing the Petition was entred with the Secretary.

Some time after, the Govr sent in the Papers agam, and then the Deputies voted upon them and sent it in, but before any thing was done in Council, the Court was prorogued to the 7th of August, &c., &c."— Diary, vol. II., p. 162.

The following entry in the legislative journals of the Council confirms Sewall's statement as to the hearing before the whole Court:—

"June 21, 1706. According to the Order pass'd the eighteenth Curr't the Representatives upon a Message to come up to the Council Chamber attend'd the Hearing of the Complaint of Samuel Lilly contained in his Petition, All Parties concern'd being present; And the Papers were sent to the Represent<sup>es</sup> for that House first to consider of."— Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 207.

On the thirteenth of July the House passed the following resolves and sent them to the Council, for concurrence:—

Archives, vol. 40, p. 855.*

On the same day Lillie's petition, with the others named, was, by this chapter, referred to the next session. On the twenty-ninth of November the House voted to revive the above resolves and sent their vote to the Council, but no further action upon it has been discovered.

The case of Faith Waldo, which by resolves, 1705-6, chapters 103 and 106, was continued to subsequent sessions, was again continued by this chapter. In the mean time, however, she had been heard, the persons adversely interested being present, as appears by the following entry:—

"June 25, 1706. Also Faith Waldoe Widow Relict of Jeremiah Jackson late of Boston Mariner Dec<sup>d</sup> was heard upon her Petition to be Impowred to make Sale of a House & Land of her said Husband Jackson's, Jeremiah Jackson only surviving Son & Heir of the afore said Jeremiah Jackson Dec<sup>d</sup> being notified of the said Hearing, Appeared and made his Exceptions to the said Petition."— Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 210.

No further action upon her petition has been discovered.

Mrs. Waldo, by deed of grant and quitclaim, dated August 12, 1708, released to the said Jeremiah Jackson, whom she describes as her son, "All that message or tinent, with the land, members and appurces thereunto belonging which was my s<sup>d</sup> late husband Jackson's, and whereof he dved seized, lying scituate in Boston afores<sup>d</sup> fronting to a certain lane there, commonly called and known by the name of Atkinson's lane towards the west with the land of Jonathan Balstone towards the North, with the land of Theodore Atkinson to the East, and with the land of James Webster to the South.”*

The consideration named in this deed was “divers good causes and considerations me thereto moving, more especially for and in consideration of the sum of sixty pounds in the present current money with the Merchant in New England.”*

Abigail Watkins’s petition, which had been likewise continued by chapters 104 and 106 of the resolves of 1705-6, was finally disposed of by chapter 138, post.

Chap. 54. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 226. It has not been found in the archives.

It will be remembered that Dudley in his letter to Vandreuil in July, 1705, had requested the latter to send a messenger by land to inform him what to do in regard to the exchange of prisoners, but that no reply had been received, and that Dudley had proposed to communicate with Canada by an Indian messenger from Albany. Upon the return of William Dudley and Vetch with Vandreuil’s draught of a treaty, and the failure to receive the coöperation of Cornbury, Governor Dudley laid before the Council the draught of an answer to Vandreuil conformably to the advice of the Assembly of the thirtieth of November. The following is the record of the order of the Council thereupon:—

“Jan. 17, 1705-6. Agreeable to the Order of the General Assembly at their last Session, referring it to the Governr and Council, to return an answer to the propositions from Mr Vaudrille Governr of Canada, referring to a Truce and Exchange of Prisoners &c

His Excellency offered the draught of a Letter in answer thereto, which was read and approved, to be dispatch’d to Quebeck by Mr John Shelden, attended with a servant or two and accompanied with two French prisoners of War.

Ordered that Mr Commissary General do advance the necessary clothing and provisions for Mr Shelden and his attendants &c on their journey to Quebeck, and bring the same to accompt.

By the statement of Shelden in his petition for compensation for his service, it appears that he had been engaged for the mission two days before† the passage of the above order of Council. No mention is made by him of the two French companions allowed him in the order, and there would be no evidence that Joseph Bradley of Haverhill, whose wife was in captivity, and John Wells of Deerfield were not appointed in their stead were it not for a passage in the letters which Vandreuil wrote to Pontchartrain April 28 and 30, 1706 (the latter jointly with Raudot), in which the “two Frenchmen”‡ are expressly mentioned as having come with him. Bradley accepted the commission on the twentieth and Wells on the twenty-fifth, but just when they started on their journey to Canada has not been discovered.§ On the thirtieth of May an express from Albany to the Governor conveyed the intelligence of their safe arrival at Quebec,|| and by the twenty-fourth of June the News-Letter stated, “His Excellency the Governour has Account from Quebeck, That Mr. Shelden his Messenger is well there, and is Returning by Sea with a number of the Prisoners, and may be daily expected.”¶

The messengers sailed from Quebec in the French bark Marie bearing a flag of truce. The exact date of her departure does not appear, but it was evidently after the second of June, the date of the letter which Shelden brought from Vandreuil to Dudley. Although Vetch contemptuously describes Shelden as “a Connyr Farmer who was not Master of the [French] Language nor of Address suitable to that Character”** [i. e., of envoy], he seems to have been very successful in this business, having been employed on a similar errand the year before. He conducted the affair with notable economy, and so circumspcctly as to have avoided giving offence to the Canadian authorities and people in arranging the details of the release of an unprecedentedly large number of prisoners, whom he brought safely home, much to the joy of their friends and kindred.

The Marie was detained for a long time at Port Royal, probably because of some question on the part of de Bronillan as to whether Vandreuil’s conditions for her proceeding thence had been complied with. She arrived in Boston on the first of August, bringing forty-four †† of the released captives in charge of Shelden and his companions. It would seem that the two Frenchmen who accompanied him to Canada were also of the party, one or both of them charged with a message from Vandreuil to Dudley.

* Suffolk Registry of Deeds, lib. 24, fol. 263.

† That is, the fifteenth, the date of Dudley’s letter to Vandreuil.—“Collection de Manuscrits,” etc., vol. II., p. 452.

‡ Probably these were Marchand and Kartier, who, according to Vandreuil, had been sent to him by Dudley.—See Vandreuil’s letter of June 2, 1706, post.

§ Hon. George Sheldon in his History of Deerfield says that Shelden, Bradley and the two Frenchmen left Boston on the twentieth, that Wells joined them after their arrival at Deerfield, and that they all started thence for Canada on the twenty-fifth. But except a receipt from Partridge, dated the twenty-first of January, for money brought to the latter from Boston by Shelden, he cites no authority for these dates in the itinerary, and leaves us to infer that he got them from Shelden’s petition, which is printed in the note to chapter 88, post.

|| In the Redeemed Captive “the beginning of March,” 1706, is given as the date of Shelden’s arrival in Canada, probably at Montreal. In the joint letter to Pontchartrain, hereafter quoted, dated at Quebec, April 30, 1706, Vandreuil and Raudot state that he arrived there “about a month ago.”

¶ No. 114. June 17 to 24, 1706.

** Private act, number twenty.

†† Vandreuil gives the number as “forty-three;” the executive records of the council as “forty odd;” the News-Letter, and Penhallow, who seems to have followed that authority, say “forty-five;” while Shelden in his petition states that “they arrived here with forty-four of the said captives.” These apparent discrepancies may be reconciled by the conjecture that Vandreuil referred only to prisoners released by his authority, and that Shelden included one more, procured directly from the savages; and, in confirmation of the News-Letter’s report, still another may have been added at Port Royal.

The following record of a meeting of the Council on the day after the arrival of the Marie shows that the Governor had received the long-looked-for reply from Vaudreuil:—

“Aug. 2, 1706. His Excellency communicated to the Council his Letters and proposals relating to the Exchange of Prisoners received yesterday from Mr Vaudreuil Govern<sup>r</sup> of Canada, by a Flag of Truce with forty odd English prisoners.”—Ibid., p. 303.

Unfortunately, no trace has been discovered of the existence of a copy of the letter from Dudley which evoked Vaudreuil's reply above referred to. The joint letter from Vaudreuil and Randot to Pontchartrain, hereinbefore referred to, would seem to indicate conclusively that Dudley's failure to obtain the concurrence of the neighboring governments in the proposed treaty was the means of defeating the negotiations. The important portions of this letter are thus summarized by Pontchartrain:—

Monseigneur,

“Quebec, April 30,* 1706.

. . . Mr. Dudley sent to him [the Sieur Vaudreuil] overland a deputy who arrived here about a month ago, who informs him that up to this time it has been impossible for him to confer with the other governors of New England, as had been requested, on the subject of the treaty.

The Sieur de Vaudreuil, Monseigneur (seeing that this discourse only aims to gain time), in order to force them to conclude, has allowed several little parties of Indians to go to war against the government of Boston. We do not doubt that that will have the good result with regard to the English by hurrying them to conclude, and a still better one for the Indians, who, being entirely naked, on account of the dearthness of goods and the low price of beaver, can find clothing among the English without expense to themselves.

Mr. Dudley also informs the Sieur de Vaudreuil in his letters that he has sent away to Port Royal fifty-seven Acadian prisoners; which has been confirmed by two Frenchmen who came with his envoy. We are pledged to send him an equal number. To this end, we have chartered a vessel which will sail the end of the month . . .

VAUDREUIL.
RAUDOT.”—“Col- lection de Manuscrits.” etc., vol. II., p. 451.

The letter which Vaudreuil sent in reply to Dudley is not preserved in the state archives, but the following is a translation of it as it appears in the “Collection de Manuscrits,” etc.:—

“Quebec, June 2, 1706.

I received the letter you wrote me dated the fifteenth of last January. I thank you for your obliging offer respecting my children, and I am sure that if they should ever find themselves in your government, you will entertain them to the best of your ability.

It is true, sir, that the proposals you sent me have reference chiefly to the exchange of prisoners; but your son and Mr. Vetché having made me some overtures looking to peace, I have thought it needless to reply on the subject of the exchange.

However, sir, since, as you write me, you have arranged for the sending of fifty-seven prisoners to Port Royal, of which I have no intelligence except from you, although no exchange has been ordered or signed by either party, I send to Port Royal, by the Marie, commanded by Thomas Moure, forty-three of your prisoners (of whom I give you a list), with an order to the Sieur de Brouillan to forward them to you at Boston.

I have also ordered the Sieur de Bronillan to send you the ship Marie with Mr. Sheldon, and to detain your prisoners that I send him, and to return them to you only when you shall have restored all the French captives without distinction.

I should have despatched your envoy with the prisoners much sooner if his errand to Montreal to try to recover his daughter from the Indians, had not prevented.

I would have sent you a canoe † if I had not thought it useless, hoping that the vessel I send from here would arrive as soon.

The Sieurs Marchand and Kartier, whom you sent to me, have volunteered for this voyage.

I will say, sir, with regard to the treaty of exchange, that I shall not alter it; and if you wish to accept it as it is, you will keep one copy of it, which is signed by me, and return the other to me signed by you. The two copies have been given to the Sieur Marchand, who will have the honor to present them to you. In it I ask for all our prisoners, and I shall not return yours until mine shall arrive at Port Royal. I ask also your promise to return those who are at sea. You will also find in it an article, which you can accept if you wish, relating to the Indian prisoners that you may hereafter have, since you tell me you have none at present, — which is a very great misfortune for those of your people who are now in the hands of the Indians.

I was greatly surprised, sir, not to hear of the return to l'Acadie of the Sieur Baptiste, relying on your promise to send him back to Port Royal. On the contrary, I learn that he is still in prison; I learn also that you treat Fenoe ‡ with equal, it may be said, with greater, severity, since his children have not yet been permitted to see him. This does not wholly agree with your statement that you treat our prisoners with all possible kindness and humanity. As for me, I have always treated yours well. Of this, your son, Mr. Vetché, and Mr. Sheldon are witnesses.

If you continue, sir, to hold in prison the Sieurs Baptiste and la Fenoe, and not to treat my prisoners without discrimination, I shall be obliged to change my treatment of yours; and I can assure you that they shall answer to me for the manner in which you treat mine.

* Vaudreuil wrote a letter to Pontchartrain of the same purport on the twenty-eighth, part of which appears in the foot-note on page 577, ante. See Documents Relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York, vol. IX., p. 776.

† Evidently in compliance with Dudley's request in the postscript to his letter of July 4, 1705.— See p. 513, ante.

‡ According to Miss C. Alice Baker, to whom the editor is indebted for information upon this, and other obscure points, this name, “Fenoe,” should be Le Fèvre, wherever it occurs.

If I were not persuaded, sir, that upon the arrival of the vessel, you would release the Sieurs Baptiste and la Fenoe I would have two of your men imprisoned. I shall await the return of the vessel before doing that; and I pray you not to compel me, by your treatment of my prisoners, to use yours with equal severity.

I confess, sir, that the manner in which you act towards the Sieurs Baptiste and le Fenoe seems to me all the more harsh because it ill agrees with the mild treatment of your people in captivity here, and with the pains I have taken to redeem them from the Indians, and with the humanity of the people of this country in furnishing money to purchase their release from slavery.

I am surprised, sir, that in your letter you should speak to me again about prisoners who are in the Indians' hands. I wrote to you upon this subject, and told you that I would return only those prisoners who are held by the French; and that in regard to the others, I would do my utmost to redeem them, as we have always done.

Concerning what you write me — of your being obliged to communicate to the other governors the propositions of peace made to you by me upon those made to me here in your name by your son and Mr. Vetché — I shall await further advice from you on this subject.

We have redeemed from the Indians the three men of whom you speak in your last letter: I send them back with the others.

I send to you, sir, two of your prisoners, James Adam and Fletcher, who have been accused here of making marked cards,* and convicted by their own confession. An action against them was begun here, solely to find out how many they had made, and if they had not some French accomplices with them. The trial ended there and would not have been begun if it had not been absolutely necessary to know these things. I have acted in this affair, sir, in the same spirit and with the same kindness that you showed in dealing with two of my people who merited punishment in like manner with these.

With regard to the Frenchmen who, you say, have escaped from Boston, I say nothing, since four Englishmen have escaped from us, of whom I require no account.

The man named Louis Allain informs me, sir, that he went to Boston with a Dutchman, who had labored hard to take the place of the Sieur de Chaufour and to have him returned in his stead, or else go back himself a prisoner to l'Acadie. This Dutchman has not kept his word, since the Sieur de Chaufour is still in Boston, and he himself remains there.

I do not doubt, sir, that in the matter of this complaint, you will, immediately on receipt of my letter, either return the Sieur de Chaufour to Port Royal, or you will send back the Dutchman, who surely is lacking in good faith, his excuse as made to the Sieur Allain, being in no way reasonable; since he says that in Europe no Dutchman can be imprisoned. That is true, and if I had any here I should send them back at once; but it applies to the Dutch who are subjects of the States-General, and not to those who are subjects of England.

I took pleasure, sir, in honoring the letter of credit upon me which you gave to Mr. Sheldon. He has made a very prudent use of it and has asked for only seven hundred and fifty livres, French money, for which he has given me a bill of exchange on you which I entrust to the Sieur Louis Marchand, whom I send to you as bearer of my despatches. I pray you to deliver this sum to him so that he may bring it to me here.

As the Marie, which I send you, will return directly from Boston hither, I pray you to send me the prisoners from Canada whom you have, and who are of this region; namely, the Sieur Gourdean and family, 'Dion,' 'Pierrottiere,' and le Fenoe with his children.

I pray you to allow the ship to go as soon as it is ready and your permission shall be asked — the return to this country being extremely difficult.

I pray you to treat the captain and crew of this vessel with the kindness and humanity which it is customary among all nations to extend to vessels bearing a flag of truce; and as I have no doubt, sir, that you will do me the honor to write to me, you can entrust your despatches to the Sieur Marchand, who will deliver them to me on his arrival here.

I am, sir,

Your very humble servant,

Five days after the above letter had been laid before the Council, the Assembly convened in its second session, and were thus addressed by the Governor upon the subject of the treaty, and of preparations for hostilities, which, he evidently believed, would be continued with renewed vigor in case of the failure of negotiations for peace: —

" . . . I shall only further ask your advice upon the Treaty for the Exchange of prisoners with the Governour of Quebeck which admits of no delay & also recomend to your Consideration the revival of some Act, for the reward of such as shall kill or take prisoners any of the Indian rebells which I hope may revive the Courage & diligence of the forces to take all advantages in the service, & I shall Expect no further attendance in this troublesome time." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 45.

On the next day the vote of advice which constitutes this chapter was passed.

On the ninth, the House, evidently anxious to prevent all communication to the enemy of the proceedings pending in the Legislature against the persons under arrest for illicit trading with the French and Indians of Acadia, passed the following resolve, which, though not formally concurred in by the Council, was probably deferred to, both by them and by the Governor: —

" Resolved, That all y<sup>e</sup> French Captives be Emediatly Gatherd together at Cambridge where they May be in Readiness to be sent to y<sup>e</sup> places Intended; y<sup>e</sup> y<sup>e</sup> province May Not

Before this committee was appointed, the brigantine Adventure had been thought of by the Council, and an order passed fixing a monthly rate of compensation for her use, as appears by the following entry:—

"Aug. 10, 1706. M<sup>r</sup> Commissary General proposeing, that the Brigant<sup>e</sup> Adventure John Huddy Master, be taken up and Employed in the present service with a flagg of truce to Canada, for bringing home the English prisoners from thence, she having been employed in the like service to Port Royal the last Winter; the Owners complaining that the hire did not answer her Outset and Charges.

The previous year, the Hope had been purchased of her captors, at Port Royal, for her former owners, by Captain William Rous, as shown in the note to private act, number nineteen. The conditions of the purchase had not been complied with by the owners; and hence, on the fifteenth, the Council passed the following order, which, however, was not concurred in by the House:—

"aug<sup>t</sup> 15th 1706./.. In Council.

Sewall, who objected to the proceedings on the ground of the illegality of the method of trial proposed, gives us the following glimpses of details throwing light upon the progress of the case against Vetch, and upon the views of some of the judges of the highest judicial court of the province as to the jurisdiction of the novel tribunal:—

"Friday Augt. 16. [1706.] Capt. Vetch was brought to his Trial in the Afternoon, in the Court Chamber. Note. I came home on Wednesday morn. and went not again till the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council sent for me by Mr. Winchcomb Friday morn... Depts* would have had Mr. John Eliot, and Cousin Duñer M. A. to have assisted Mr. Attorney: Gov<sup>r</sup> did not consent: they insisted so long that the Forenoon was spent, and I fairly got home. Augt. 17. I am told Mr. Borland and Lawson are brought to their Trial. Mr. Borland pleads that he was a Factor in the management of this Affair.

Note. Gov<sup>r</sup> would have had the Judges manage the Conference, I declin'd it because was against the procedure. And so declin'd joining with the Judges to prepare for it because I was against it. Col. Hathorne was at Salem with his sick Son; so that only Majr Walley, and Mr. Leverett were active in the matter. And Mr. Leverett said at the Board that he did not interpret that Clause in the Charter of imposing Fines &c. as if it did impour the Gen<sup>l</sup> Court to Try delinquents." — Diary, vol. The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter:—

“To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Capt General and Governour in Chief in and over her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England And To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Council and House of Representatives now in General Court assembled in and for sd. Province May 29th 1706./—

The humble Petition of David Jeffryes of Boston Merch<sup>t</sup>

Sheweth

That on the thirteenth day of July 1697. yo<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> had five Great Guns (wth as  $\Psi$  margin) Imprest from him into his late Maj<sup>ties</sup> service at the Castle, where they have been detained ever since, which was and is very prejudicial to yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner in regard that Guns were then in great demand, and might have been Sold to good advantage:

Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner therefore humbly prays That the said five Guns may be Return'd to him again together with such allowance for their Use as to this Great and General Court shall seem reasonable; or that he may be paid for them—

This petition was presented in the first session this year. It was read, in the House, on the first of July and referred to a committee, but no further action thereon appears to have been taken during that session. It came up again in the second session. On the thirteenth of August it was again committed, and on the fourteenth, the committee, apparently reported the resolve which constitutes this chapter, which was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor, on the same day.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed September 13, 1706, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

This petition was read in Council and sent to the House on the day on which it was presented to the Board. On the thirteenth it was read again in the House, and the resolve which constitutes this chapter passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence.

An order was passed in Council † September 13, 1706, for paying the amount of this allowance in the words of the resolve, not designating any particular payee.

On the seventeenth of April, 1707, another order § was passed for the same payment to Sergeant John Fisher, “to be by him Employed and deliver'd out for the benefit of the said Simon Sinkawah & family (if any he have),” according to the resolve.

The province treasurer's account || shows that it was paid.

The order which constitutes this chapter was passed in response to the following petition:—

“Jo English, as he was called, was much distinguished for his attachment to the white inhabitants. In a preceding war with the Indians, he had been taken a prisoner from the vicinity of Dunstable and carried to Canada, from whence, by his shrewdness and sagacity, he effected his escape, with one English captive, and returned to his friends in Dunstable. The Indians had for a long time endeavored to retake him, and he was peculiarly obnoxious to them; and at the time abovementioned,* while he was accompanying Capt. Butterfield and his wife on a visit to their friends, they pursued him, and just as he was upon the point of gaining a thicket, they shot him through the thigh, which brought him to the ground, and they afterwards dispatched him with their tomahawks.”—New Hampshire Hist. Coll., vol. 1, p. 49, note.

By this time Vetch, who probably would have been the Governor's first choice, was in disgrace.† The reappointment, as envoy, of the plain farmer, Sheldon, would not be so likely to enure to the Governor's advantage as the selection of a person of eminence, or one whose preferment would be likely to gratify some member of the Council, or conciliate some leader of the opposition in the popular branch. The Governor, therefore, first nominated the brother of Sewall, the distinguished councillor and acting chief justice of the Superior Court. The record of this proceeding is as follows:—

“Aug. 10, 1706. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that he had spoken wth Major Stephen Sewall, and that he was willing to serve the publick in the Intended voyage to Canada, and the Council manifested their satisfaction and good acceptance of his service.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 305.

Probably in a matter of such importance Major Sewall, according to his custom, sought his brother's counsel, and, if so, the latter, who was suspicious of Dudley's designs, and who, though his integrity was proof against all blandishments, always endeavored to avoid the appearance of evil, undoubtedly advised him not to accept the appointment.

Sewall's declination was followed by the vote of the House recommending John Leverett, a councillor and eminent citizen, and well known to be the political friend of the Governor, whom Dudley's enemies would prefer to have out of the way during the approaching trials; but, failing to secure Leverett,‡ both branches concurred in choosing Samuel Appleton.

Appleton was a councillor, and a resident of Ipswich. He was a friend of the Sewalls and courted by the Governor. He was prominent in public affairs, and, later, as an officer in the militia, won distinction in actual military service at Port Royal. The choice appears to have been acceptable to all parties. See, further, chapters 67, 107 and 125, post, and notes.

The House appears not to have added a member to the two committeemen named by the Council in this chapter, who, therefore, made the following report, which was accepted on the same day:—

“In Observance of the within Order we the the § Subscribers have Agreed with Capt John Bonner to goe Master of the Brigentene Hope ffor Quebeck And this place for the Exche of Prisoners he to haue five pounds P<sup>r</sup> m<sup>o</sup> During the Uoyadge, And Twelue pounds more as a gratnety for his incoradgment to be paid at his retorne

On the second of January, 1706-7, the following order was passed in Council for a warrant to the province treasurer:—

“A Muster Roll of the Briganteen Hope, John Bonner Commander in a voyage to Canada wth a Flagg of Truce, containing an account of Wages for the service of the s<sup>d</sup> Commander and Company with the Interpreter and Vessel hire, from the 14th day of August to the 26th of November 1706, amounting in the whole to the sum of two hundred thirty nine pounds eighteen shillings and nine pence, whereof thirty four pounds sixteen shillings and nine pence being subducted for Commissary, rests due two hundred and five pounds, two shill<sup>ns</sup> having been examin'd by M<sup>r</sup> Commissary General, was presented—And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to His widow and two children received a grant of money from the government because ‘he died in the service of his country.’ He was daring, intelligent, of manly bearing, and always faithful to the English people. His grandfather was Masconomet, Sagamore of Agawam, now Ipswich.” See foot-note on p. 702, post.

And that the Masters wages be not paid until M<sup>r</sup> Commissary General Certify, that he has adjusted his accounts with him for sundry Provisions & stores." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 364.

The amount* actually paid on this warrant was £202 7s. 5d. The difference of £2 14s. 7d. was probably retained to balance the account of the master's wages as certified by the Commissary-General.

See chapter 125, post, and note.

"Kittery July the 31: 1706

The above papers were read in the House on the eighth of August On the fourteenth they were read again, "and committed," and on the next day the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence, where, on the twentieth, it was "read and agreed to," and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed August 21, 1706, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

Chap. 66. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 234, and archives, vol. 40, p. 870.

The suit brought by Andrews against English was an action of trover under the designation of "trespass upon the case," in which the plaintiff claimed that in June, 1705, he was in possession of certain goods and merchandize; namely, — molasses, sugar, rum and lime juice; also vessel's furniture, such as shrouds, main-stay, jib-stay and two pennants, belonging to a sloop of sixty tons; also a thirty-two-gallon kilderkin of "Angelicó water;" together with a chest containing sundry specified articles of clothing, and pieces of eight (Barbadoes money) of seventeen and one-half pennyweight each, consigned to him, and in his possession, to the value of seventy-eight pounds; all of which the defendant fraudulently converted to his own use, and had refused to deliver to the plaintiff upon demand made. The writ was dated March 8, 1705-6, and was served on the twelfth.

On the return day the parties appeared and the defendant pleaded the general issue, and, after trial, verdict was rendered for the plaintiff and judgment thereon recorded, as follows: —

"Essex ss. 'At Her Majesty's Inferiour Court of pleas holden at Ipswich March 26. Anno Dom. 1706.

Nicholas Andrews of Marblehead Marriner Plant u Philip English of Salem Merchant Deft. In an action of Tresspass upon the Case &c according to Writ. Its Considered by the Court that the Plant<sup>t</sup> Recover the goods Money & Merchandize sued for according to Writ and Costs of Court." — Mass. Archives, vol. 40, p. 895.

The defendant appealed, as stated in the petition, and filed his reasons on the twenty-ninth of April, as follows: —

Philip English Appell<sup>t</sup> } The Appellants Reasons of Appeal from a Judgment of Her Nicholas Andrews Deft } Maj<sup>ties</sup> Inferi<sup>or</sup> Court of Common pleas held at Ipswich the last Tuesday of March last past viz 1706.

2. For that Indeed a factor Can never bring an action of Trover for goods that are Consigned to him for that in Trover there are but two things to be tried. 1. the property of the plaintiffe and 2. the Conversion of the Defendant. Now in this Case upon the plaintiffes owne Showing the property of the goods was not in him but in another. So that if the plaintif were really Dispossessed of them he ought to have brought his action of Tresspass or Detainure in Case they had been Delivered to the appell<sup>t</sup> by the Appellee

3. a great part of the goods Never Came to the Appellants hands as the Rummie Lime Juice Money and Some others and it is very unreasonable to Make the Appellant Answerable for all because Some of them are in his hands this will appear from the Masters Manifest which Mentions Nothing of Rummie or Lyme Juice or Angellico and yet these the appell<sup>t</sup> is Sued for now the Master by law is obliged upon oath to give a true account of what he has Imported

4. The Oath of the Appellee Ought not to be Received in this Case for. 1. it is Contrary to the oath of the Master and. 2<sup>d</sup> it is Notoriously false in It Selfe for that he Swears his book was left in the Appellants hand and Detained by him when the Contrary is knowne and will be proved by undoubted Eye Witnesses

5: what goods the Appellant truly has in his Costody were delivered to him by Elias Fortune and his Order with positive Direction that they Should not be parted with till the freight and Necessary Charges thereof are paid Now the Appellant is accountable onely to the Said Fortune for these goods and his * liable at any time hereafter to be Called to an account by him but not by the Appellee with whome the Appellant never had any thing to doe as to these goods Nevertheless the appell<sup>t</sup> is willing and ready to Deliver them to any proper person that will pay the freight and Charges and Indemnifie him from the Said Fortune and till then he thinks himselfe neither Safe nor Obligated to part with them but however that be the appell<sup>t</sup> Conceives that he is not Guilty as the Plaintiffe Charged him and Doubts not but this Honourable Court will See abundant Cause to Reverse the former Judgment and award the Appellant his Costs

p. 896.

On the eleventh of May the parties filed with the clerk of the Inferior Court the following certificate of their agreement to refer their controversy to arbitration:—

“Essex ss To Stephen Sewall Clerke of the Inferiour Court for the Countey of Essex

These are to Certifie you that whereas there was an Action depending betwixt Nicholas Andrews Plaintiffe and Phillip English Defendant at the last Inferiour Court holden at Ipswich on the last Tuesday of March last and an Appeale thereon depending to be heard at the next Superior Court to be holden at Ipswich on the third tuesday of this Instant May and bond given by Said English the Appellant for prosecution of the Same

Wherefore wee Phillip English and John Calley attorney to Nicholas Andrews haveing agreed to Referr the Said Cause to Arbitration doe acquitt Each Other as to Said bond or any thing referring thereunto and noe Advantage to be taken on Either Side as Witness our hands 11th day of May 1706: the Judgment and Every thing relateing thereto being Included in this Agreement

English having failed to enter his appeal in the appellate court, supposing that the award of the referees would effectually end the case, and the time having passed for the appellee to move to enter it by complaint to the court, Andrews sought equitable relief from the Legislature, which was granted by this chapter.

The cause of the failure of the arbitrators to agree upon an award appears in the petition. It is more particularly shown in the depositions of the two arbitrators, Belcher and Lillie, which are printed in the note to the resolves of 1707, chapter 9.

That the said Phillip English appealed from the Inferiour Courts Judgm<sup>t</sup> to the Su<sup>p</sup>ior Court of Judicature to be holden at Ipswich afors<sup>d</sup> the 2<sup>d</sup> Tuseday in May, and pending the appeal the parties submitted the Controversy to the Arbitram<sup>t</sup> & award, of Cap<sup>t</sup>

That the P<sup>tyes</sup> concern'd mett the arbitrators in ord<sup>r</sup> to determine the difference ab<sup>t</sup> the 9th of last June when the partyes were heard & the Arbitrators desiring further time til the last of June. the partyes by Consent enlarged the time in their Bonds of arbitration but thro<sup>t</sup> the defect or designe of the s<sup>d</sup> Phillip English, who nev<sup>r</sup> afterwards would meet, or his arbitrator Mr Lillie for him the whole matt<sup>r</sup> dropt to the ground, & the s<sup>d</sup> Phillip English knowing the Su<sup>p</sup>ior Court to be over, & that the s<sup>d</sup> Nich<sup>o</sup>s Andrews. could not have the benefit of the Inferiour Courts Judgment nor any Complaint to affirme ye Judgment in the Su<sup>p</sup>ior Court. for want of the appelt's prosecuting ye s<sup>d</sup> appeal, takes advantage thereof vterly refusing to satisfy ye s<sup>d</sup> Judgment supposinge the s<sup>d</sup> Andrews to be now without remedy

nicklos Andrews." — Ibid.,

p. 869.

On the fourteenth of August, 1706, this petition was read, in the House, and referred to a committee, upon whose report, apparently, the following order was passed on the fifteenth by the House and sent to the Council, for concurrence: —

"Ordered That M<sup>r</sup> Phillip English be notified with a Copy of the Same, to give reason if any he have, before this Court, next Saturday, the 17th instant why s<sup>d</sup> Cawley shall not have the benefit of the Judgment, of Court, Granted against him the said English at Ipswich, the 26th March 1706. by Taking out Execution thereon to the satisfaction thereof, (said English not having Prosecuted his Appeal from s<sup>d</sup> Judgment, of s<sup>d</sup> Court to the Superiour Court, in the month of May last which he appealed unto.)

THOMAS OAKES Spear." — Ibid., p. 870.

On the twentieth, the Council refused to concur, and as a substitute passed the order which constitutes this chapter and sent it to the House, for concurrence, where it was read twice and concurred in, and on the same day consented to by the Governor.

For subsequent proceedings in this case, see the note to chapter 9 of the resolves of 1707, above mentioned.

For the particulars of this voyage and for the payment of the commissioner, see chapters 56, 57 and 62, ante, and chapters 107 and 125, post.

As soon as Appleton was chosen commissioner preparations for his departure were begun. His commission and instructions have not been discovered, but it appears that the Hope was to sail under a flag of truce, and, from entries in the council records,* that she was to touch at Port Royal on the way to Quebec; for, on the nineteenth, Dudley communicated to the Council and representatives the draught of his letters to Vandreuil, and to Bonaventure at Port Royal, "by ye Flag of Truce now going thither."

The following entry indicates that Marchand, who came as Vandreuil's messenger in the Marie, was to return about the same time: —

"Aug. 20, 1706. A Memorial presented by Mons<sup>r</sup> Marchand Messenger from Mons<sup>r</sup> Vandreuil Governour of Canada of several Things he desired to purchase, & carry with him for the Use of his said Master, Was Read & approved, One Article excepted." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 234.

On the twenty-third the following order was passed in Council for victualling those of the prisoners who were bound to Port Royal, and for granting extra pay to the mate of the Hope: —

"Aug. 23, 1706. Ordered. That M<sup>r</sup> Commissary General do supply fourteen day's provision for victualling of the French Prisoners to be returned to Port Royal, to be transported upon the Stone boat † lately brought from thence, which boat under the present care of M<sup>r</sup> Commissary he is ordered to deliver to M<sup>r</sup> Chafour for that service, and that John Price Mate of the Briganteen bound to Canada be allowed six p<sup>ds</sup> over and above his stated Wages.

Sewall, mindful of the comfort of the captive minister of Deerfield, and desirous that, upon his return, he should appear in clothing befitting his station, makes the following minute in his diary under date of Friday, August 16, 1706: —

"I went [to the council chamber] though I had a cold; spake that a suit of Cloaths might be made here for Mr. Williams." — Vol. II., p. 165.

The Hope sailed for Quebec from Nantasket on the thirtieth of August. On the same day sailed from the same place the Marie, also bound to Quebec, and a sloop bound to Port Royal. These vessels carried seventy French prisoners, and, by order of the Governor, were convoyed for ten leagues east from Cape Ann by the Province Galley, under command of Captain Cyprian Southack. These incidents were published in the News-Letter ‡ of the second of September.

* Vol. VIII., p. 233.

† This, undoubtedly, was the third vessel, "the sloop," that, according to the News-Letter, sailed with the Hope and Marie from Nantasket. See pp. 595, ante, and 678, post.

‡ In a marginal note on Sewall's copy of the News-Letter which announced the return of the Hope, he wrote "N. Mr. Appleton Sailed Aug<sup>t</sup> 30, 1706. from Nantasket." — No. 136.

Anticipating some delay in assembling the English prisoners in Canada preparatory to their return with Captain Appleton, it appears by the same newspaper that about the twentieth of August Dudley had sent two men overland to Montreal with letters to Vaudreuil asking that the prisoners might be seasonably got together.

Under this resolve the following order was issued for a warrant upon the province treasurer:—

“Dec. 18, 1706. Pursuant to a resolve pass'd by the General Assembly at their Session begun the seventh day of August last, that the sum of fifty pounds be allowed out of the Province Treasury to Samuel Appleton Esq<sup>r</sup> as a Compensation for his service in a voyage to Canada to negotiate the affair of Exchange of Prisoners, Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Fifty pounds, to the said Samuel Appleton Esq<sup>r</sup> accordingly.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 352.

The amount of this warrant was paid* at the same time with the amount voted to Appleton in settlement of his account by chapter 125, post. The Hope having returned November 21, 1706,† he received only fifty pounds, the smaller compensation fixed by the resolve.

On the twentieth the resolve which constitutes this chapter was “voted” in the House and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day the Council voted to concur, and it was consented to by the Governor.

Samuel Hill, who had returned to Quebec with Vetch and Courtemanche, as shown in the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 51, assisted in getting the prisoners together, and went at his own expense from Quebec to Montreal for that purpose. See his petition printed in the note to chapter 124, post.

Chap. 68. This chapter is from archives, vol. 63, p. 44. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 235.

The General Court had been prorogued to the seventh of August particularly for the purpose of making all necessary preparations for trying the persons accused of illicit trading with the French and Indian enemy. The accused having been tried, this chapter was the judgment of the Court thereupon. Bills for the punishment of each were accordingly prepared, and are given in full in the private acts, numbers twenty to twenty-five inclusive.

For previous and subsequent proceedings in these cases see the notes to private act number nineteen and to the other private acts above enumerated.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed September 13, 1706, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

Chap. 70. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 236, and archives, vol. 62, p. 518.

No other draught of an address, as contemplated by chapter 52, ante, has been discovered, than the address to the Lords Commissioners for Trade, which is hereunder given.

In the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 110, are printed from the News-Letter of October 22, 1705, schedules of lengths of stay of post packets and rates of postage between England and her West-India colonies. The need of similar accommodation for New England seems not only to have been felt by the merchants of Massachusetts but to have been brought to the notice of the home government.

A project favorably entertained by the Lords of Trade for establishing a regular monthly packet boat between the province and England had been transmitted by them to Dudley and by him communicated to the Assembly in their last session in 1705-6, as appears by the following entry:—

No record of any action upon this communication by the Governor has been discovered during the legislative year 1705-6. During the first session of the next Assembly the News-Letter contained the following advertisement, correcting an error in the former publication and giving notice of further postal regulations for the convenience of the people of New England:—

“These are to give Notice, That in our Numb. 79 We gave you an Account, That Her Majesty, for the better maintaining of Correspondence between England and Her Plantation Islands in the West-Indies, and for the further Improvement and Benefit of Trade, had settled Packet-Boats, to go from Plymouth every Month in the year, and being arrived at Barbadoes to stay no longer than 3 days and nights, at Antigua 2 days and nights, Monserrat, Nevis and St. Christophers at each 36 hours, at Jamaica 10 days and nights, and thence to Return to England, and not to be stay'd or delay'd on any pretence whatsoever.

And whereas in the said Account by an Error of the Press, it is said every Vessel hath performed her Voyage in the space of 150 days or thereabouts: These are to give Notice, that it should be but 100 days, which according to the first Proposition* laid down by the Honourable Edmund Dummer Esq<sup>r</sup>. is de facto found practicable to accomplish the same

In the said Account we also informed you, That by virtue of the Act of Parliament for Establishing the Post-Office, Her Majesty had Directed and Impowered the Honourable Sir Robert Cotton Knight, and also the Honourable Sir Thomas Frankland Baronet, Her Majesty's Postmaster General of England and the Plantations, &c. to take and receive for the Port of all Letters and Packets so conveyed to and from the Plantations to England, according to the Rates following. From England to the West-Indies, each Letter not exceeding one Sheet 15d. double not exceeding 2 Sheets 2s. 6d. and in proportion to the same Rates for every Packet of Letters. From the Islands to England single 18d. Double 3s. and in proportion for Packets, and for Packets of greater bulk 6s per Ounce.

We also acquainted you that Letters would be taken in at the General Post-Office in London, directed for New-England, New-York, New-Jersey, Pensilvania, &c. On the same Post nights as those for the Plantation Islands, which would be put up in Separate Bags, for the Continent, with Direction † to the several Agents of Her Majesty's Packets in each Island by the very first Embarkation that presents from either Island, to put said Maile on Board for the Continent, where said Letters are to be dispatched to the Respective Governments by the Post-master of the Place where the said Vessel does first arrive.

These are also to give Notice, That the Agents of the Packets in each Island, and the Post-masters on the Continent, are ordered to Correspond with each other in order to promote and carry on this Publick Good. As also the Post-masters of the several Provinces on the Continent are hereby desired to acquaint each other from time to time of all Vessels Outward bound from their Precincts to any Port of the West Indies or Beyond Sea, as well as those that do arrive from any Foreign Port; whereby all Persons may know how and when to send Letters by said Vessels for Conveyance by the Monthly Packets to England, or any other Ports.

It is also hereby further Notified to all Persons who at any time have a mind to send any Letters or Packets for England, either directly when Embarkations offer, or by the way of the West-Indies by said Packets, either from this or the Neighbouring Provinces, that all due care shall be taken by the Respective Post masters to put said Letters on board the Vessel for England, and if to the Plantations, to put up the said Letters in a Maile directed for the Agent, where the first Embarkation offers, by him to be put on Board the first Packet for England: The Owners of said Letters or Packets, first having pay'd the Inland Postage and usual allowances of 2d. each Letter for the same.” — No. III. May 27 to June 3, 1706.

The petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is as follows:—

The Humble Petition of Several Merchants & Traders of Boston &c in behalf of them selves and others. —

Sheweth

That Whereas a frequent and Steady Correspondence from the Kingdom of England to this Country, especially in this time of War, would be of very great advantage, and service to the Government and Trade of New England, and all manner of public affairs and Designs depending between our Nation and us, the Sooner known, and carried on with success, as is already seen and known in the West Indies, since the Paquet Boats have been settled there; and being Inform'd, That an humble Address of this Great and General Assembly to her Maj<sup>ty</sup> would be the most likely and effectual means to obtain the like favour for us. —

* See this Proposition printed as a supplement, on p. 802, et seq., post.

Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioners therefore are humbly bold to Represent this matter before you, and to submit it to yo<sup>r</sup> wisdom and Care, and that if it might be her Majesty might be humbly address for the settlement of packet Boats to New England.

Archives, vol. 62, p. 518.

This petition was presented at the first session and read in the House June 10, 1706, but nothing further seems to have been done upon it that session.

The committee appointed to prepare the address mentioned in chapter 52, ante, having reported the draught of such an address, which was accepted by the Council and sent to the representatives on the twenty-fourth of August, the present chapter was passed proposing the insertion of a clause.

On the thirty-first the following draught, which seems to have been intended for the “clause” in the address to the queen, was reported in Council:—

“To the R<sup>t</sup> Honorable The Lords Commissioners of the Council for Trade and Plantations.

The Memorial and Adresse of the Council and Representatives of Her Maty<sup>s</sup> Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England in General Court Assembled —

May it Please your Lordships.

Whereas Her Majesty in Her Princely wisdom, for the more speedy Dispatch of the Affaires of State, as well as for the benefit and advantage of Trade and commerce, by a constant Setled Intelligence has thought fit to Establish a monthly Packett from England to Her Maty<sup>s</sup> Island Plantations in America.

We are humbly of Opinion, That it would be a further service to the Crown, and an advantage to the Trade of Her Majesties Plantations on the Continent; If Her Majesty will be Graciously Pleased to Order a Packet for these Her Maty<sup>s</sup> Provinces on the Shoar.

And are therefore humbly bold to Represent the same unto your Lord<sup>sh</sup>ps And humbly to pray your Lord<sup>sh</sup>ps Favour therein. —

Most Obedient humble Servants.

In Council. August. ult. 1706./

Read and pass'd to be Engross'd and Signed by the Secretary and m<sup>r</sup> Speaker, In the Name of the Council & Representatives.” — Ibid., vol. 20, p. 107.

This draught and the subjoined memorandum were sent to the House for concurrence, where, on the same day, they were read. On the fourth of September they were read again in the House, and a vote of nonconcurrence passed thereon.

These proceedings are thus recorded in the legislative journals of the Council:—

“Aug. 31, 1706. A Memorial & Address to the Right Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords Commissioners of the Council for Trade & Plantations, Representing the Service of the Crown & Benefit to Trade, If her Majesty would be graciously pleased to Order a Packet for these her Majesties Provinces on the Shoar, Humbly Praying their Lordships Favour therein, Was Voted & Ordered to be Engross'd & Sign'd by the Secretary & M<sup>r</sup> Speaker in the name of the Council, & of the Represent<sup>es</sup> — W<sup>ch</sup> Memorial being sent for Concurrence, Was Return'd with a Non-Concurrence of the Represent<sup>es</sup>.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 240.

By the following entry it would seem that not only the above “clause” but the address itself was defeated by the disagreement of the two branches, since no evidence has been found that the House receded from its proposal to amend:—

“Sept. 4, 1706. The Draught of an Address to her Majesty reported by the Committee & unanimously Accepted in Council, was sent up from the Representatives with some Leavings out & Alterations made therein; W<sup>ch</sup> the Council Disagreed to, & Voted that they do unanimously insist on their former Vote, & return'd it again to the House.” — Ibid., p. 243.

See chapter 59, post, and note.

The duty upon imported tar, etc., under the general tariff of the provincial impost acts was one penny in the pound ad valorem. The present chapter was passed to remove the discouragement to importation in order to increase the amount exported to England from the province. The success of this experiment may be inferred from the following letter by Governor Dudley to Mr. Secretary Popple, dated at Piscataqua, October 21, 1706:—

“S<sup>r</sup>

The years papers of both provinces are in the Dover, This is by Captain Eason only to acquaint you thereof & to pray you to present my duty to their Lordships and to acquaint them I have used all diligence to put forward & regulate the business of Tarr. & Turpentine by all orders & encouragements, so as there is shipp<sup>t</sup> ten thousand barrells of Tarr & Turpentine on these shipp<sup>s</sup> now coming I hope it will well arrive to be good, I shall not fayle to encourage the other article of hemp.

I pray you to make my service acceptable to their Lordships & I am well rewarded.

I am, S<sup>r</sup>, Your very humble Serv<sup>t</sup>

J. DUDLEY.” — “New England, Board of Trade,” vol. 9, Q. 66; in Public Record Office.

Chap. 72. This chapter is from archives, vol. 11, p. 213. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 240.

In the archives the order which constitutes this chapter is preceded by the following, which seems to be the report of a committee:—

“Mr Benjamin Choate went to dearfeild by his Excellencies order & ye desire of ye Representatues Nouember 1704 & hath Continued there Euer since: he was allowed by the order of this Court for the first half year 20<sup>li</sup> towards his support there: expecting y<sup>t</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Inhabitants there would haue allowed him soe much as would haue been a Just Compensation for his Labo<sup>r</sup>s wth them. which he hath not Received not with standing y<sup>e</sup> Good Intentions of y<sup>e</sup> Honrd Court: But soe it is he hath bene there Euer since & If he be not payd Either by them or by ye Inhabitants soe much as might be Justly Expected y<sup>e</sup> sum of 40<sup>li</sup>  $\Psi$  Annu & his diet discharged he is a Great sufferer, y<sup>t</sup> hath attended their seruice there, & ventured his life amongst them in such perilous times; hoping that his Excellency & this Court will not se him Cut short of that w<sup>ch</sup> he might Justly Expect for his seruice: he submits him self to y<sup>e</sup> Justice of sd Court. for all y<sup>t</sup> he hath yet Rec<sup>d</sup> is noe more but 20<sup>li</sup> towards his support for y<sup>e</sup> time expended with them.”—Mass. Archives, vol. 11, p. 213.

The order was passed in the House and sent to the Council for concurrence August 27, 1706, and on the thirty-first it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The following is the vote passed in Council for the payment of the allowance:—

“Sept. 13, 1706. To Mr Benjamin Choate Minister after the rate of Forty pounds  $\Psi$  Annum for the time he has preached to the Town of Deerfield, the Twenty pounds he has already received to be accompted part thereof. Over and above which Twenty pounds above mentioned, the General Assembly at their Session begun the 24th of October 1705 Ordered the payment of the further sum of twenty pounds, and he having preached there by the space of one year and seven Months, there remains to pay the sum of twenty three pounds, six shillings and eight pence in full of his service.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 316.

The following item in the province treasurer’s account shows that the above account was paid:—

“Paid Mr Benja Choate minister at Deerfield in full for his service for 1. year & 7. monthes he having received £20 .. .. — formerly Allowed by y<sup>e</sup> General Assembly . . . . . 43 6 8.”

The money granted in this chapter, added to the previous appropriation (resolves, 1704-5, chapter 75), was still so inadequate that the building of the fort was not attempted, and the money under both these chapters remained in the treasury until after May, 1708.

The services rendered by the Attorney-General in the prosecution of the persons accused of illicitly trading with the enemy are described in the notes to private acts, numbers nineteen to twenty-five, inclusive. For these he had received the grant of thirty pounds,§ but he was not satisfied. He was evidently alive to the opportunity which the heavy fines recently brought into the province treasury, partly by his exertions, offered for securing a requital of the services he had rendered the queen in her provincial government since July 6, 1702, when his father appointed him to the post of attorney-general.

He therefore presented the following petition:—

That Whereas yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner was above four years since appointed by the Governot and Council of this province to serve her Majesty's Government here, in the Office of Attorney General, in which Station yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner has Continued ever since, in the faithful discharge of his Duty according to his Capacity, and opportunity, particularly in Several Journeys that he has been forced to take to Bristol, Plymouth and Ipswich Superiour Courts for the prosecution of many Capital Offenders; besides the Constant prosecution of all other Offenders, nearer home,

But forasmuch as there is no allowance from her Majesty, nor any Salary or profits settled to or on yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner's Office afores<sup>d</sup>: Except it be a single fee in Case the Criminal be convicted & not otherwise, which might Be A.Temptation rather than an Encouragement. And forasmuch as the other public Officers of the Government have from time to time some allowance from this Great & General Assembly. and particularly yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner's predecessor Cap<sup>t</sup>: Checkley had one year with another about thirty pounds allowed him for his service.

Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner in all humility and respect hopes this Honob<sup>le</sup> Court will order him that which may in some Measure Encourage him in and to the faithful discharge of his Duty to this Honob<sup>le</sup> Court, and the Interest of her Majt<sup>ies</sup> Governm<sup>t</sup> & people of this province/.

“May it please your Excellency And the Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Council & Representatives. In General Court Assembled

It's now three years past, since at your desire And choice, I have Transacted the Affairs of this Province Relating to the Office of Commissary General

In all which time I have with Utmost diligence and sincerity, According to the best of my Ability, performed the Duty of said Office— And for the more speedy dispatch of said Affairs, I have for most part of the time supported And paid at my owne cost and charge two to Assist me, & one servant which have Constantly Attended said Office

And Indeed the many preseeing Affairs. have taken up both their and my time— And the rewards which you have granted me for the service of said Office. at all times hath been as much as reasonably might be expected in such A time of great charge on the Province

Never the less I crave leave to Informe you. that When Two y<sup>t</sup> Assist me are. paid and a servant supported, I have not forty pounds of said reward Left for my self

True it is I never served my Country for Profit but In Duty & the love I bare to it— And Am well satisfy'd with the rewards granted me from time to time— And must needs Owne the kindness of his Excellency and Council. In Absence, of this Assembly, to support me in said Office And y<sup>e</sup> whole Assembly when together to do the same,

But so it is. that by reason of weakness And Infirmy of body. I am not Able to Manage & Transact said Affair. as I have heretofore done— having in A late sickness. This petition was read in the Council on the twenty-eighth, and an order thereon was passed and sent to the House, for concurrence, agreeing with the order which constitutes this chapter, save that the last three lines read as follows:—

"Lawful issue, if any such be, when it shall be demanded; the allegations in the petition having been made certain."

On the next day the representatives concurred, with an amendment, supplying the omitted words, to which the Council agreed, and the order was consented to by the Governor.

On the seventeenth of December, 1706, Mary Ward, the petitioner, conveyed to Andrew Faneuil, in consideration of seventy pounds paid by him in money at the rate of eight shillings per ounce Troy weight, the grantor's interest in the premises described in the following extracts from the deed, to hold the same in fee simple, with appropriate words of grant and warranty:—

"Know yee That Whereas in the Partition and Division of the Housing and Lands of the said Ephraim Sale to and among his Children Pursuant to his Last Will and Testament bearing date the Second day of December One thousand Six hundred Eighty Six, There was Alotted Assigned and set forth unto Sammel Sale Second Son of the s<sup>d</sup> deced<sup>d</sup> for his Single Share thereof part of a certain Brick house and Land Situate in Boston afores<sup>d</sup> fronting partly on the Street leading from the Townhouse to the Governours Dock commonly so called, and partly on another highway or street leading towards the Town Dock Viz<sup>t</sup> such part of the s<sup>d</sup> house and Land as is bounded Five foot upon the said Street leading from the Town house Twenty Seven feet tenn Inches upon the other Street or highway leading towards the Town Dock including half Mr Thomas Clarks wall, and an Entry of Four foot wide five foot Northerly by the house of the s<sup>d</sup> Clark, and Westerly by the other part of the s<sup>d</sup> house set forth to Hephzibah Sale &c<sup>a</sup>/ And Whereas the . . . The particulars of the journey out of Shelden and his companions on their mission to the Governor-General of Canada, and of their return to Boston from Quebec in the bark Marie, are given in the note to chapter 54, ante.

As has been shown, the General Court, which stood prorogued to the seventh of August, assembled in its second session upon the day appointed. Early in this session the following petitions praying for compensation were presented, and read first in the House, apparently on the tenth:—

August 8th 1706

The Petition of John Shelden, in behalfe of himself, Joseph Bradley, and John Wells. Humbly Sheweth.

That your Petitioner, with the aforementioned Bradley, & Wells, were Sent by Your Excellency and Council, the last winter by Land to Canada, to Obtain the Return of the Captives, wherein they have so far Succeeded, as that on the 2<sup>d</sup> instant, They Arrived here with forty four of the s<sup>d</sup> Captives, Your Petitioner Entred upon the said service, on the 15th day of Janry last, the said Bradley on the 20th day, & the s<sup>d</sup> Wells, on the 25th day of the same month.

Your Petition<sup>r</sup> therefore humbly Pray's Y<sup>r</sup> Excellency, and this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court, to Take into your Consideration, their service afores<sup>d</sup> and the extraordinary, Difficulty; Hazard and Hardship, they have undergone & the time spent therein, and Order Them such Allowance, & Consideration, for the same as in your wisdom you shall think meet:

p. 236.

Nothing further appears to have been done upon either of the above petitions until the fifth day of the third session (the twenty-eighth of October), when Shelden's petition was read again, apparently in the House, and referred to a committee, and on the next day the resolve which constitutes this chapter was reported, passed, and sent to the Council, for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Govern<sup>r</sup>.

The order in Council* for the payment of these allowances was passed November 5, 1706, and the province treasurer's account † shows that they were paid.

Filed with these petitions are the two following papers:—

An account allowed by the Council July 22, 1706, includes a charge for “Mr Shelding’s expences in his journey to Canada.” This account “having been examined by Mr Commissary General,” and “presented with the particular accompts from whence it ariseth,” was approved and a warrant upon the province treasurer was ordered for discharging the same by paying “five hundred twenty two pounds one shilling and seven pence to Lieut<sup>t</sup> Col<sup>l</sup> Samuel Partridge on behalfe of the several Towns and persons respectively concerned.” †

Shelden went to Canada a third time, in the same capacity, April 17, 1707. See resolves of that year, chapter 38, and note.

The following is Campbell’s petition:—

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>t</sup>, Capt General and Governour in Chief in and over Her Majesty’s Province of the Massachussets-Bay in New-England, &c. And to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Her Majesty’s Council, and the House of Representatives convened in General Assembly, and now sitting in Boston the 29th day of May 1706.

The Humble Petition of John Campbell Post-Master of New-England.

Sheweth

That Whereas it has been usual for your Petitioner to have an Annual Allowance from this Province, the better to enable him to a faithfull discharge of his Post, (seeing the Proprietour thereof is not able by the Incomes of the said Office, which is Less then the Necessary Charge, to give him any Tollerable sallary proportionable to the Trouble and Charge attending it) In which he has now served three years and nine Months, and has only had Two years and an haltes Allowance paid him.

And That your Petitioner for a Publick Good above Two years ago has been at the Cost and Charge to print a weekly Letter of Intelligence of both floreign and Domestick Occurrences, which was sett at a More Moderat price then it was in some part of England, notwithstanding the Charge here is above four times dearer then it would cost here, yet your Petitioner has not had sufficient Encouragment to defray the Necessary Charge thereof.

Your Petitioner therefore Most Humbly Prays.

That yor Excell and this Great and General Assembly will be Pleased to take the same into your most Mature & wise Consideration so as to Enable your Petitioner to a faithfull discharge of both Trusts.

And yor Petitioner as in Duty bound shall ever Pray being always.

This petition was read, first, in Council on the fourteenth of June and sent to the House. On the twelfth of July it was read in the House, but no further action upon it during that session is recorded. In the third session it was read, first, on the twenty-eighth of October and again on the thirtieth, when the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed. It was read and concurred in by the Council, and consented to by the Governor, on the same day.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer’s account § shows that it was paid.

In the note to chapter 70, ante, is given an advertisement, copied from the News-Letter, of improvements in the foreign mail service previous to the passage of that chapter. The following additional items relating to the Boston post-office, from the same paper, are given as appropriate to the present chapter:—

“THese are to give Notice, that by Virtue of a Direction in the Act for Encouraging a Post-Office in this Province: The Post-master of Boston does send out every Two days after that the Post comes in, and after the Receipt of Foreign Letters by Sea; All such Letters and Packets that remain in the Office uncalled for; And if the Persons they are directed to cannot be found, or that the said Letters or Pacquets are for any Persons in the Neighbouring Towns out of the Post Road; Then the Names of the said Persons are every day to be seen on a fair Alphabetical List for the Surname, with the name of the Town they

On the thirteenth of August the petition was again read in the House and referred to a committee, who seem to have reported by the twenty-ninth of October the resolve which constitutes this chapter.

In the mean time Baker had procured and filed another certificate from the physician, as follows:—

“Concord Sep<sup>r</sup> 26: 1706

On the thirtieth the resolve was passed in the House and sent to the Council, for concurrence, and on the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

Chap. 92. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, p. 261. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 250.

This chapter is based upon the representation made in the following petition:—

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Captain General, and Governour in chief of her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England, & To the Honorable the Council. & Representatives

The Petition of Benjamin Stevens

Humbly Sheweth

That Your Petitioner being Comission'd by y<sup>r</sup> Excellency to Comānd a Company of men, march'd with them into the woods in quest of the Indian Enemy in July last, † in which time Y<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup>s House was broken up, and severall things of value stolen from him, amongst which were five Certificates of Wages, due to him & souldiers, that serv'd Her Majesty under him, in a march made in January and february last; Three of the s<sup>d</sup> Certificates were ordered to be paid by three Constables of Boston amounting to the sum of £,73, 7, 9, another by the Constable of Bradford, for the sum of £,6, 15, 8, the other by a Constable of the Town of Haverhill, for the sum of £,4, 15, 4, the whole amounting to the sum of £,84, 3, 9, which your Petitioner has ever since made diligent search after, and Us'd his utmost Endeavour, to find out, & Recover, but can by no means hear thereof, or see any probability of Obtaining them

And Y<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> with the men that serv'd under him are all without their Pay (except two paid by a Certificate on Boxford Constable) and have no Prospect of ever Procuring it unlesse by Y<sup>r</sup> Excellency, & Hon<sup>r</sup>s favour & Authority.

Your Petition<sup>r</sup> therefore humbly Pray's Your Excellency, & Hon<sup>r</sup>s to Order the Treasurer to Deliver, to him, five other Certificates, of the same Tenour, with those abovementioned, stolen from him Or give such other Direction, as in your wisdom shall be thought best, whereby your Petition<sup>r</sup> and those that serv'd under him may Obtain the wages due for their service, aforesaid.

This petition was read in the House on the tenth of October. It next appears in the Council on the thirtieth, when the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the House, for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council of the twenty-second of July for a warrant to pay the muster-roll mentioned in the preamble to this chapter is as follows:—

“July 22, 1706. A Muster Roll of the Foot Company under the command of Capt<sup>n</sup> Benjamin Stevens, containing an Accompt of Wages due to the Officers and Souldiers for their service from the 22<sup>d</sup> of January 1705 to the fourteenth of February following, the Captain beginning sooner and ending later, amounting to the sum of seventy eight p<sup>ds</sup>, twelve shillings and two pence, whereof nine pounds four shillings & two pence being subducted for Commissary, rests sixty nine pounds, eight shillings, and fifteen pounds ten shillings and five pence remaining due for subsistance to his Company on their march to Norridgwock, & fifty four shillings for Posts, makes in all eighty seven pounds twelve shillings and five pence, haveing been examin'd by M<sup>r</sup> Commissary General, was presented—And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of eighty seven pounds twelve shill<sup>s</sup> and five pence to the said Capt<sup>n</sup> Stevens and Company accordingly.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 299.

The following is the entry of payment in the account of the province treasurer:—

* Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 353.

‡ See note to chapter 149, post.

The apparent discrepancy between the amount ordered by this chapter and the amount actually paid is owing to the fact that the certificate to the constable of the town of Boxford, amounting to £3 8s. 8d., was not one of the stolen certificates.

The News-Letter's report of the beginning of the march, which Stevens refers to in the above petition as "made in January and February last," is given in a foot-note to chapter 4, page 570, ante. The following report of the return of his company and of the others who went out with him appeared in number ninety-six of the same paper:—

"[Boston.] Last week returned Capt. Brown, Capt. Tyng and Capt. Stevens with their Companies all well and in health after 17 days march into the Woods, 50 miles above the Heads of the Frontiers from between Connecticut River & Merrimack, in the late great Storm of Snow, but neither discovered nor met with any of the Enemy."—February 11 to 18, 1705-6.

The muster-rolls of Captain Stevens and Captain Joseph Brown* were approved at the same time. Captain William Tyng's † muster-roll was approved April 19, 1706. The payment of those of Brown and Tyng likewise appears charged in the province treasurer's account. ‡

The particulars of the extraordinary services of the Governor, Council and Assembly, as a reward for which this allowance was granted, are narrated in the notes to private acts, numbers nineteen to twenty-five inclusive.

The following are, respectively, the order in Council for a warrant to the province treasurer to pay the sums granted, and the charge of payment in his accounts:—

"Nov. 13, 1706. Pursuant to a Resolve pass'd by the General Assembly in their present Session, that the several sums & allowances, ordered for his Excellency, the Members of the Council, and the Representatives for their extraordinary service the last Session of this Court be forthwith paid out of the publick Treasury, without any reference to the fines laid in that Session: That is to say.

That the sum of Fifty pounds be paid to his Excellency
To the Members of the Council the sum of Forty two pounds eighteen shillings, being after the rate of two shillings ½ diem each.

To Mr Speaker and the Representatives the sum of one hundred twenty nine pounds, eighteen shillings,

And that his Excellency be desired to give out Warrts accordingly.
Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Fifty punds, to Edward Bromfield § Esqre and the above sum of Forty two pounds, fourteen shillings to Edward Bromfield Esqre on behalfe of the Gentlemen of the Council, & the further sum of one hundred twenty nine pounds, eighteen shillings to Mr Thomas Oakes Speaker for himselfe and the house respectively."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 333.

Dole's account, mentioned in the preamble to this chapter, has not been found. The order in Council || for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account ¶ shows that it was paid. Captain Henry Sommerby, to whom the treasurer was ordered to make payment in Dole's behalf, was the representative to the General Court from Newbury.

The order in Council ** for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account ¶ shows that it was paid.

Sargent ran the lower ferry between Newbury and Salisbury. As shown in the note to resolves, 1693-4, chapter 12, he had taken a lease of it from John March. This was apparently in the year 1691-2. †† On the third of September, 1703, an order was passed in Council † for a warrant to the province treasurer to pay him 35s. 2d., "for Ferriage of Souldiers and Posts in the year 1702 and for refreshment of Posts," ††† which sum was accordingly paid. §§ The account upon which was based the resolve that constitutes the present chapter was for ferriage of soldiers and horses during the next four years.

The suit brought against March in the Inferior Court of Common Pleas, at the September term, 1693, it will be remembered, was stayed by the operation of resolve chapter 12 of that year. Five years later* March recovered costs against the plaintiff for not prosecuting that suit: the parties, the magistrates, and the clerk of the Court seeming to have entirely lost sight of the vote which constitutes that resolve, save that the Carrs appear to have had some recollection that "a letter of advice" to such effect had been received from the Governor.

The proposal made November 22, 1687, by March, and accepted by the town of Salisbury, for connecting that town with the ferry at King's Island, is printed in the note to resolves, 1693-4, chapter 12.† By 1701, this way was so defective that on the thirtieth of September of that year the Court of Sessions ordered the parties interested to repair it in accordance with their contract. This order proving ineffectual, the Court of Sessions held at Ipswich, March 30, 1703, appointed Major Francis Wainwright and Captain John Whipple of Ipswich, and Captain Joseph Boynton of Rowley, a committee to view the situation and report upon the expediency of laying out a highway over the same route. At the same Court the following order was passed for establishing the ferry, by which, it would seem, that March's or Sargent's ferry had not been run regularly, owing, wholly or in part, to the bad condition of the Salisbury causeway leading thereto:—

"There having been for Several Years last past Many complaints Made to this Court for want of a ferry duely stated Over Merrimack River Nigh Capt Edward Serjeants betwixt Newbury & Salisbury & Sundry Motions made from time to time Referring to the Same & now renewed applications Made by Newbury & Salisbury that a ferry be kept at ye place aforesd and yt the keeping & profit thereof might be stated, & Settled upon the said Townes & a Boat to be constantly kept on each side duely to attend ye said ferry vizt One by Newbury & ye other by Salisbury. This Court having Considered ye necessity & Conveniency of the premises do approve of the same in manner following

1. That there be a ferry kept over Merrimack River hence forward from Newbury to Salisbury Nigh where Capt Serjeant now dwells.

2. That there be Two Sufficient & Suitable ferry Boats for the Transporting of Men & horses ye one kept at Newbury & the other at Salisbury Side provided & Maintained respectively by said Townes & Sufficient skillfull men Constantly to ply in the same and yt each Town do on their Shoars respectively make convenient Causways or other Comodious places for ye Safe & easy boarding & landing horses & men & yt each Town do give Two hundred pound by Two sufficient men for ye performance of this Court order according to ye true intent & meaning thereof that the publick may be faithfully Serv'd.

3. That the profits of the said ferry shall redound to the sd Townes as their own particular boats shall Earn

4. That the fare of said ferry be four pence for a horse & Two pence for a man & proportionable for other things.

5. That inasmuch as Newbury Common Land or high way comes to ye ferry aforesd so yt they have no Occasion to purchase a way thro any proprietors or otherwaies on Salisbury side wherefore in regard Newbury hath halfe the way to the said ferry Therefore they shall pay ye one halfe of ye first purchase of any high way on Salisbury side as it shall be laid out from said ferry to ye Common Land of Salisbury when it may lay thro any particular proprietaries as it shall be necessary according to Law but shall not be obliged to pay any part of making or repairing of the same either now or hereafter."

— Essex County Court of Sessions, 1706-1708, p. 110.

This proposition, as tabulated, for the ferry the cost of which was to be apportioned upon the two towns, was immediately brought before the Court, was approved and accepted by the inhabitants of Salisbury at a general town meeting held April 20, 1703, as follows:—

Resolved to accept & approve of the design of the quarter Sessions concerning the ferry. Mr J. Long & Mr. P. Greely appointed to give bond in behalf of the town in compliance with the order of sd court town to save them harmless.

Selection & sd Commrs to provide a boat & hands & what else is necessary for keeping sd ferry in the town's behalf & to prosecute any persons who shall carry over any persons contrary to law." — Town Records.

At the Court of Sessions held at Salem, June 29, 1703, the committee appointed at the March term reported the necessity of a highway at the place designated, and a warrant was ordered directing the sheriff to summon "a jury to lay out and appraise the same."

During the above proceedings, March was in active service as lieutenant-colonel of the forces at Casco Bay detailed to repel the French and Indian enemy. As soon as he was informed of what had occurred in his absence, he applied to the Court of Sessions to be restored to the use of the ferry, under the grant made to him in the time of Sir Edmund Andros and afterwards confirmed by the justices of Essex and virtually ratified by the subsequent action of the General Court. The following is the record of the decision and order of the Court of Sessions, held at Ipswich, March 28, 1704, upon March's petition:—

"Upon reading ye Petition of Lieut Coll<sup>o</sup> Jno March of Newbury for his being restored to ye ferry, called Marches Ferry at Newbury aforesd over Merrimack River. sd March producing ye Governour & Councils Grant & other Papers of ye former Justices referring to ye Settlement of ye sd ferry on him we this Court was not apprised of ye last March Court we being Considered by this Court, tis Ordered & Concluded, that ye sd Jno March be in ye Possession & Improvement of ye sd Ferry as formerly, accord-§ to ye Grant made

In conformity to the above order, March gave bond to the county treasurer April 22, 1704, which, on the same day, was sworn to by the subscribing witnesses, before William Browne, one of the justices of the county. It ran as follows:—

"Know all Men by these presents that Wee John March of Newbury in the Countey of Essex in New England Gent<sup>m</sup> as Principle and John Traske Sen<sup>r</sup> of Salem In the Countey aforesaid miller and John Rogers of Ipswich within said Countey sadler as sureties are held and firmly Bound unto John Appleton Esq; Treasurer for said Countey of Essex and his successors in said office In the full and Just sum of four hundred pounds Currant mony of New Enland to be paid unto the said John Appleton Esq; or his successor In the office be fore named of Countey Treasurer or any or Either of their Attourneys the wich payment well and Truly to be maid wee the said John March John Rogers and John Traske Sen<sup>r</sup> do bind and obldge our selves our heirs Execontors and administrators Jöyntly and severally for the whole and in ye whole firmly by these presents Sealed with our Seales this 22<sup>d</sup> Day of Aprill anno Dom. 1704.

March also instituted criminal proceedings against Thomas Moody and John Tappan "for that ye s<sup>d</sup> Thomas Moody & John Tappen several Days Since ye 28th Day of March last past [the date of the above decision of the Court of Sessions restoring to him his ferry], have presumed (without a License) to keep a Ferry over Merrimack River at ye Ferry called March his Ferry in New England afores<sup>d</sup> by carry * over Men and Horses cross said Ferry each having a Boat employed in that Service and for taking and receiving Money of Passengers so carried Over They not being Licensd thereunto, w<sup>e</sup> is contrary to Law &c. as p<sup>o</sup> Complaint at large appears." †

The defendants being bound over to the Court of Sessions by Francis Wainwright, the justice before whom March entered his complaint, that Court, on the twenty-seventh of June, passed judgment as follows:—

"On due Consideration whereof ye Courts Judgment is that it is not Cognizable here at this Court being a Trespass betwixt Subject and Subject, & therefore its dismiss." — Essex County Court of Sessions, 1696-1718, p. 136.

March next applied to the Court of Sessions for an order upon the towns of Salisbury and Newbury to account to him for the tolls received by them during the time they or their agents ran the ferry under the adjudication of the Court of Sessions of March 30, 1703, and to enjoin them against further interference with his franchise. The following entry shows the purport of March's petition and the order of the Court thereon:—

"Att a General Sessions of the Peace holden at Newbury Sept<sup>r</sup> ye 26. 1704 . . .

On reading ye Petition of Lieut<sup>t</sup> Collo: Jno March y<sup>t</sup> pursuant to a former Courts Ord<sup>r</sup>: This Court would order and appoint ye towns of Newbury and Salsbury to render an account of their Dishursments on ye Ferry called Marches Ferry over Merimack River allowing and deducting ye Profits of ye Same during such time as they have held ye same, that so he might know what to pay them, and that ye s<sup>d</sup> Towns of Newbury and Salsbury may be by this Court strictly injoyned not to ply or carry Passengers over s<sup>d</sup> Ferry. that Probably at this stage the Carrs renewed their efforts to recover their lost monopoly of the ferriage between Newbury and Salisbury, since, within a year, the claims of Richard Carr were again considered by the town of Salisbury, and the following entry, under date of March 20, 1704-5, indicates that further proceedings in the Court of Sessions were anticipated:—

No record of further proceedings at the November, term, 1704, on March's petition has been discovered, but on June 26, 1705, the following entry appears:—

This deed, containing a proper covenant of warranty, was acknowledged the next day, and duly recorded.

The above conveyance was ratified by the Court of Sessions, and a provisional arrangement made by which any bond † given by or for the town of Salisbury on account of the ferry was annulled, and the whole income of the ferry assigned to the town of Newbury, as appears by the following record:—

† The bond in two hundred pounds, as required by the second clause of the order of the Court of Sessions, March 30, 1703.

Whatever the controversy was that was pressed upon the attention of the justices at Ipswich, in March, 1705, it was postponed until November 27, 1705, and then again to the term to be held at Salem the following June. This corresponds, in some particulars, with the case before the General Court, mentioned in the note to resolves, 1705-6, chapter 76, and thus justifies the inference that Carr pursued his claim, first, against the town of Newbury, and, subsequently, against Newbury and Salisbury, as the assignees of his former adversary, March. That he failed in his application to the General Court appears by the note last above mentioned. That the town of Salisbury claimed an interest in, and some control of, the lower ferry is equally evident by the following entry, by which it further appears that Richard Carr was specially advised with by the town committee on the subject of disposing of the ferry, and was probably offered the refusal of it:—

At the general town meeting on the nineteenth of February a proposition by Sargent to run a ferry free to all the inhabitants of the town, upon certain conditions, was accepted by the town, as shown by the following extracts from the town records:—

“To The Inhabbitance of The Town of Salsbury now Mett Together february The: 19th: 1705 6

On the twenty-seventh of March following the date of the last town meeting, Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Noyes, Major Daniel Davison, and Captain Henry Sommerby, a committee of the town of Newbury, “Remised released Confirmed and forever quit Claimed,” in behalf of said town, to Edward Sargent and Thomas Moody of said Newbury, “for & in Consideration of y<sup>e</sup> Sum of one hundred and Twenty pounds of passable & Current money with y<sup>e</sup> Merch<sup>t</sup>s in y<sup>e</sup> province afores<sup>d</sup> to them Secured to be paid<sup>d</sup> by the grantees, a moiety of the estate conveyed to the town by March in his deed above named.

Having thus succeeded to the whole title and claim of the inhabitants of Salisbury in and to the ferry and its appurtenances, by their acceptance of his proposition, and having succeeded, jointly with Moody, to one-half of March's former right in the ferry. — the whole of which the latter had conveyed to Newbury, — Sargent continued to run the ferry in his own name, and, accordingly, he received on his sole account the legislative grant of this year, and was granted a further allowance the next year for his services to November 28, 1707. ‡

The bond which, by the contract between him and the town of Salisbury, Sargent was required to furnish, was dated March 11, 1706-7, and ran as follows:—

This bond does not appear to have been accepted until May 14, 1711, — evidently after the last of the four stipulated annual payments had been made by the town. This is the only conceivable explanation of the following entries: —

This account was read, in the House, November 16, 1706, when the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the same day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of this allowance was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account § shows that it was paid.

The order which constitutes this chapter originated in the House and was sent to the Council for concurrence November 2, 1706, whereupon the order was read, "And John Walley & Penn Townsend Esq<sup>s</sup> were sent on a Message to y<sup>e</sup> House, to propose That a Fund be granted for the said Bills, to accompany the Order," || which was done by resolve chapter 127, post. On the nineteenth the order was again read and concurred in by the Council, and consented to by the Governor.

It will be remembered that the last bills of public credit ordered to be printed and signed June 30, 1705, ¶ were not finished until the following November.** The reasons for the delay appear in the note to chapter 127, post.

The names of the committee mentioned are given in chapter 48 of the resolves of 1703-4. The continuation of the proceedings in the third session that led up to the passage of the order which constitutes this chapter was as follows: —

"14th Novemb<sup>r</sup> 1706./ In Council./

Ordered That Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, E<sup>m</sup> Hutchinson Esq<sup>s</sup> and the Secretary, Together with such as shall be named by the House of Representatives, and m<sup>r</sup> Treasurer, be a Committee to consider of waies and meanes for Supporting the Credit of the publick Bills, and of Methods for the payment of Souldiers and others without the further use of Certificates. —

The following is the record of the order for a warrant on the province treasurer to pay the committee for their service:—

"March 17, 1706-7. An Accompt presented by James Russell Esq<sup>e</sup> of the Bill Committee for their charge of Paper and other materials, Imprinting, signing and numbering of fourteen thousand five hundred ninety two Bills of credit on this Province, amounting to ten thousand pounds by order of the General Assembly at their Session in October past, according to the allowance for the last parcel they made, one hundred twenty six pounds, fifteen shillings and six pence, and sixteen pounds, eight shillings & six pence more for engraving a plate, materials and imprinting fifteen hundred sheets of the Escutcheons or stamps of the eight several sorts of the Bills of credit; in the whole one hundred forty three pounds, four shillings was allowed — And.

Advised and Consented, that a Warrant be made out thereon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of one hundred forty three pounds, four shillings, accordingly, to the s<sup>d</sup> Mr Russell for himselfe and the rest of the Committee." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 382.

The province treasurer's account † shows that the above amount was paid.

Proceedings upon the petition printed in the note to the resolves of 1705-6, chapter 28, and mentioned in the present chapter seem to have been regularly continued from time to time. The second, or September, session of 1705-6 was fixed for the return required of the judge of probate by chapter 28 before mentioned, but no such paper has been found.

All the unfinished business of that session was continued by chapter 53 of the resolves of 1705-6 to the next (third or October) session. During this session the following answer was filed by the heirs of Jacob Amsden, who, it appears by the memorandum subscribed thereon, were actually in attendance at that session:—

No further record of the continuance of this matter, specifically, has been found during the year 1705-6; but as by chapter 106 of the resolves of that year all the unfinished business of the fourth session was continued to the second Wednesday of the first session of 1706-7, and as by chapter 53 passed during that session (July 13, 1706) Susannah Amsden's petition is expressly continued to the second session of this year, it is to be presumed that in the making up the record many years after the original books were destroyed by fire this vote was inadvertently omitted, or not preserved in the minutes. At the session last named the matter, together with other business, was again continued by chapter 64 to the present session.

The petitioner seems to have been in attendance at some, if not all, the times appointed by adjournment. In the first session, she had filed a reply to the answer of the heirs, and with it a certificate signed by two of her neighbors, as given below:—

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Govern<sup>r</sup> and to the Council and Assembly now sitting in Boston July the fifth 1706 —

The Reply of Susanna Amsden Relict Widow of Jacob Amsden late of Cambridge dece<sup>d</sup> to the Answers of Isaac Amsden &c to her petition preferred to this high and Hono<sup>ble</sup> Court, at their Sessions on the 30th day of May 1705./—

Humbly Sheweth

In the first answer. My Brethren were pleased to say that they were not Informed, neither sensible of my wants; w<sup>ch</sup> is I believe true, for their kindness was not so much, as to be willing to be inform'd or sensible of it—though it is evident I was in great want.

In the second, They set forth that they knew not whether I had made oath to the Inventory or not, I answer, that was only because they would not take the pains to see whether I had or not—

In the third place;—They averred that there being not yet any settle<sup>mt</sup> on the Estate, & that I might have my subsistance out of their rights, & keep my own, I reply, there hath been a settlement as far as was in my power, & If I had of my own, sufficient for my necessary subsistance, I should not now have petitioned this Hono<sup>ble</sup> Court for this Liberty —

As to the fourth Whereas they say that if there were any settle<sup>mt</sup> on the Estate, that my share would be sufficient for me; I leave the whole to the Judgm<sup>t</sup> of this Hono<sup>ble</sup> Court, there being but about fifty shillings Income; of the whole & my self, being a very sick & Weakly Woman

Therefore I pray that my Petition may be Granted, the Estate not coming by heirship but gotten by us since our marriage

And I yor Petition<sup>r</sup> as in Duty bound shall ever pray &c<sup>s</sup>

SUSANNA AMSDEN.” — Ibid.,

The order which constitutes this chapter, as well as the order of the House, dated June 19, 1705, and the order substituted for the latter by the Council and which constitutes chapter 28 of the resolves of 1705-6, were successively written upon the same leaf as the petition which is given in the note to the chapter last named.

The present order was passed in the Council on the nineteenth of November and sent to the House, for concurrence. It was concurred in on the twenty-first, and consented to by the Governor.

On the twenty-fifth of February, 1706-7, Susannah Amsden of Cambridge, “widow woman,” in consideration of fifteen pounds, conveyed by warranty deed † to John Wellington of the same town, yeoman, “Three acres and three quarters of an acre of Swamp Land Situate lying and being within the Limits and bounds of the aboves<sup>d</sup> Town and County, and is butt<sup>d</sup> & bounded Easterly wth the Land of M<sup>r</sup> John Whiteing, Northerly wth the Land of y<sup>e</sup> aboves<sup>d</sup> John Wellington Westerly wth the Town highway and Southerly wth the Land of Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>r</sup>,” she covenanting that she was seized in her own right and in fee of the estate, and making no allusion to the authority to sell conferred by the Legislature.

Mrs. Amsden died testate the next October, ‡ her will, bearing date the fourteenth, being admitted to probate the twentieth of that month. Her estate was appraised at £51 19s. 1d., and no real estate is included therein nor mentioned in the will.

On the thirtieth of October, by a decree of the judge of probate, one-half of the remaining personal estate of Jacob Amsden was given to the executors of his widow, “He having left no Children,” and the other half was ordered to be divided “Equally to and amongst the next of kin in Equal degree &c.” The real estate was assigned to Isaac Amsden, “Intire, he being the Onely Brother of the s<sup>d</sup> dec<sup>d</sup> of the whole blood, and so next of Kin Inheritable.” §

The particulars of the departure of the brigantine Hope, in which Samuel Appleton proceeded to Quebec as commissioner to bring back the English captives in Canada, are given in the note to chapter 67, ante. The Hope returned to Boston on Thursday, the twenty-first of November. Of her arrival the following notice appeared in the News-Letter of the twenty-fifth of November:—

“[Boston] On Thursday the 20th Currant arrived here Capt. Samuel Appleton Esq. Commissioner sent by His Excellency our Governour a Flag of Truce to Canada for the Exchanging of Prisoners, who has brought with him in the Briganteen Hope, whereof

The date given in the News-Letter is clearly wrong, since Thursday was the twenty-first; and the latter date corresponds with the following entry in the council records: —

"Nov. 21, 1706. Samuel Appleton Esq<sup>r</sup> return'd this Day from Quebeck with the English Prisoners, who were sent for up to the Court." — Vol. VIII., p. 262.

Among the captives who returned in the Hope was the Rev. John Williams, the minister of Deerfield — the personage in whom the interest of the whole community was centred. An account of the attack on Deerfield in which he was made prisoner is given in the note to resolve, 1704-5, chapter 6, and he has frequently been mentioned elsewhere in connection with the ministry in that town, and the negotiations between the authorities of Massachusetts and Canada concerning a treaty of peace or for the exchange of prisoners.

The attentions that were shown him upon his return strikingly illustrate the deference and respect, approaching to reverence, which the people of New England habitually paid to the clergy, even after confidence in the doctrines expounded from the pulpit had been shaken by the connection of some of the leading ministers with the witchcraft delusion.

The following items from Sewall's Diary afford glimpses of the courtesies he received during his stay in Boston before his return to the scene of his former labors, which was on the twenty-eighth of December: —

"Decr 3. [1706. . . . Cotton Mather] tells me Mr. Williams is to preach the Lecture." — Vol. II., p. 172.

"Decr 5th Mr. John Williams Preach'd the Lecture."* — Ibid., p. 173.

"Decr 7. 1706. . . . I invited the Gov<sup>r</sup> to dine at Holms's. There were the Gov<sup>r</sup>, Col. Townsend, Bromfield, Leverett, Williams, Capt. Wells, Shelden, Hook, Sewall." — Ibid.

"Decr 20, feria sexta, . . . Came home to the Meeting at Mr. Bromfield's, Mr. Williams of Deerfield preach'd." — Ibid., p. 174.

He was again in Boston in March, 1706-7, probably supervising the printers at work on his Redeemed Captive.† During this time he was more than once entertained by Sewall,‡ — the last time in company with the Governor and Captain Samuel Appleton.

See chapter 126, post, and note.

When the House on the nineteenth of November voted a nonconcurrence in the vote of the Council upon the report of the joint committee on ways and means, as shown in the note to chapter 104, ante, they passed and sent to the Council the following order: —

"Ordered That a Bill be drawn That Debentures, Passe again as formerly they have done, in the room of Certificates, untill the end of the Session, of this Court in may next." — Mass. Archives, vol. 101, p. 317.

This order was read and debated in the Council on the twentieth, and read again on the twenty-first, when it was "put to the vote and not concurred."

The attempt to avoid the need of increasing the issue of paper money, by reviving the use of debentures, having thus failed, the Council, on the twenty-sixth, passed and sent to the House for concurrence the first draught of the order which constitutes the present chapter. The House immediately concurred in this draught with two amendments, which were agreed to by the Council, and the order thus amended was consented to by the Governor.

The item in the province treasurer's account referred to in the note to chapter 104, ante, includes a charge "for y<sup>e</sup> Esentecheon to prevent fraud."

Bridger's assumption of his new duties, and the rumor of his intention to settle in New London, had been heralded to Fitz-John Winthrop by the agent of Connecticut in London in the following letter:—

MUCH HONRD SR, — I hope my packets of the 21 of the last you have. This is only a short letter to tel you one Bridger is coming to live with you, on pretence of making naual stores. I haue no good carracter of him. He is a frind of yor enemies, hath spoken for those Indians, and against yor charter. I hear hee intends to settle at New London. I thought itt my dntiy to give you this hint of itt, and you may have another leter from mee befor the shippes goe. I am enery day at court, attending yor<sup>s</sup> concerns. Remember mee to all my frinds.

His commission was read before the council of New Hampshire as early as October 16, 1706,* and two days later he presented to that board a memorial similar to, but shorter than the memorial referred to in this chapter. It ran as follows:—

"The memorial of John Bridger, Esq., was read at this Board, in hæc verba:

To his Excellency Joseph Dudley, Esq., Capt. General and Governour in Chiefe of her Majesty's colonies of the Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire, and to the Council and General Assembly of New Hampshire:

The memorial of John Bridger, Surveyor General of all her Majesty's woods, on the Continent of America,
Sheweth:—

That whereas her Majesty has been most graciously pleased by Her Commission to me granted and instructions commanded, to preserve and keep as much as in me lies, all her Majesty's woods from spoil and waste that shall or may be made for the future, by any of the inhabitants of her Majesty's colonies in America, pursuant to a clause in the charter of the Massachusetts Bay, which reserves all trees to her Majesty's use of twenty four inches diameter at twelve inches from the ground and upwards, from being cut, felled or destroyed, on the penalty or forfeiture of one hundred pounds to her Majesty, her heirs and successors, for every such tree cut, felled or destroyed, without her Royal license first had and obtained for the same:

And whereas there have been complaint made unto her Majesty of the spoil and waste made in her Majesty's woods;—I therefore in her Majesty's name, and by the authority to me granted, do for the time to come forbid all her Majesty's subjects to cut, fell or destroy any of the trees reserved as aforesaid, And do hereby request of his Excellency, &c., that he would be pleased to move and recommend the same to the Gentlemen of the Assembly; that they give notice accordingly to the inhabitants of their respective Comities or Towns, particularly to those whose livelihood chiefly consists in Logging and working in the woods, that they be very careful what Trees they fell in logging, &c.; especially those in the upper towns and Rivers adjacent; which trees if preserved would much lessen the charge her Majesty is now at in masting her royal Navy.

And I do hereby promise for my own part, that I will by no means or ways whatsoever restrain or hinder any of her Majesty's Loving subjects from all lawful freedom, but will on all occasions and at all times, be ready and willing to be aiding and assisting to them or any of them, to the utmost of my power when the same shall be desired." — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. III., pp. 336, 337.

Bridger's memorial, referred to in the preamble to this chapter, was as follows:—

"To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Captin Generall and Comander in Cheife of Her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England. to the Council and Generall Assembly:/"

The memorial of John Bridger Surveyor Generall of all her Majesties woods in America
Sheweth

That whereas her majestie has most gratically been pleased by her Commission, and Instructions to me granted, & there by appointing me Surveyor generall of all her majty<sup>s</sup> woods in America, and to Instruct the Inhabitants of her majty<sup>s</sup> Dominions & Provinces. in the best way of raising naual stores, her majty has been pleased to Encourage the same by an Act of Parliament, and Commands me to move your Excelency council and assembly to the making such laws as shall most promote this great desigene, of being supply<sup>d</sup> with naual stores from those Provinces, which her majestie and Kingdom have a great Dependance on, wch i presume is fully proved, by there passing the late act of parliament. (before which) I had the Honour to be consulted and advised wth and did nominate, such rewards, as I thought would give life and Encouragment enough to put this desigene into Execution, which was approued of, and Pas<sup>t</sup> wthout amendment, and are such as I hope have mett wth your good liking in all respects

It now Lyes wth your Excelency and the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Council, and generall Assembly, Not only to Exe<sup>cute</sup> those good laws you haue already made, which tends much to the promoting of this great vndertaking, but likewise to pass such other laws wch you shall think

* The record of the action of the Council thereupon is as follows:—

"[Oct. 16, 1706.] Mr. Bridger's commission was read as surveyor of her Majesty's woods, &c., and the Governour acquainted the Council that from letters from the Rt Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Lords Comms of trade and plantations, he was commanded to be assisting to the said surveyor, and to put forward the . . . after which Mr. Bridger's memorial was read, and ordered to be sent down to the Representatives. And the secretary was further advised on Friday, to lay before the Assembly the present Laws for the securities of Great Timber, that the Surveyor may further propose what is necessary for her Majesty's service in putting forward naual stores." — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. III., p. 333.

will be most for the benefit and promotion of this Designe, and thereby fully answer her majty's and nations Expectations. of being hence supply'd with naval stores./

This designe once perfected will take of that Dependance we now lye vnder to forreigne Princes, and turn the trade and navigation of England to those provinces, the advantages are so many. and so great, that would accrue to this Province, by such a turn of Trade, that I have not here roome to mention a tenth part of them, but this I m[ay*] with truth say it will not only make constant and good returns, but be a means to keepe all money brought hither, that together with your own labour, and Industrie, will Enable you to keepe the ballance of trade in your own Power

For the contray will ever be capable of constant supplys of naual stores if the Laws are duly Executed which preserues the tar trees, and that which regards the Quality, and Quantity, of naual stores here to be raised./

For tis of the greatest consequence and of absolute necessity, that all stores be clean, free from Dirt, Dross, sand, Leaues, stones &c<sup>a</sup>, the Hemp well Cured, sound, bright, watter Retted, and marchantable, Barr<sup>ls</sup> full gage, which faults if mended will retrieve the lost reputation this Province lyes under, and if not timely prevented will I feare prove fatal to this designe

I saw in London a Barrell of Entire sand ship't hence in Lieu of Tirpentine, and is now return'd by Capt Pitts, and may be seen to the great scandal of trade and its reputation, What the Effects of such Dealing must be I humbly leaue to your Excelency &c<sup>a</sup> to Judge of

Tirpentine I have seen a quantity in London w<sup>ch</sup> was not one 3<sup>d</sup> part Tirpentine but Dross sand &c<sup>a</sup> Tarr is generally made with notts which has a firey quality in it and so, not fit for Cordage, and is generally full of water on the top of the barr<sup>l</sup> and at Bottom, Dirt, Dross, stones, sand, &c<sup>q</sup> w<sup>ch</sup> I hope will be prevented by the Laws already pass'd/ and here take leaue to Informe the Gent<sup>le</sup> of the Assembly that for the future all Pitch pine trees Designed for Tar, be first Prepared in this manner. Barke the tree so as to Leane roome belowe to fell the tree and 6 foot up at least and on that side where there is most Limbs, Leane on the barke six inches broad at least (when the sapp is fully up prepare the tree) and (let none be so prepared but what are 12 inches Diameter at 3 foot from the Earth, vnder the penalty of 5 pounds as the Law Directs w<sup>ch</sup> was passed in England for Inouraging the Importation of naual stores from her majty's own plantations.) the tree to stand 2 years at least so Prepared And would pray that you Informe the People of the severall Counties w<sup>ch</sup> you represent of the same. and if this Direction be not perfectly vnderstood by any I am Every Day ready to attend any Gentleman or a Committe of the Generall Assembly to Informe them fully in this, or any thing I am Capable of relating to y<sup>e</sup> Raising of naual stores./ Or will come to any that will send for me./

Then as to Tirpentine I would for the preservation of the tar tree forbid any person whatsoever to box any tree in more places then one. for the vsual way is to box 4 sides together w<sup>ch</sup> kills ye tree in one year, w<sup>ch</sup> otherways would continue to yeild Tirpentine 4 or 5 years, and then Let alone as many years, would make Tar at last./

As to the making of Barrells for naual stores, I would that they be [*] with Pitch, or white Pine, that wood not admitting the tarr to Dreig[ n *] as oake staues do, (besides twould saue a great Quantity of Oake tim[ber*] w<sup>ch</sup> in my Opinion will be of great seruice to this Countrey, for no[w in*] some places tis very scarce) (but as to that part I shall say no mor[e] *)

Then as to the make or forme of those barrells, I propose that the staues be of sound, good, Pine, not old, nor Worme Eaten, the staues to be at least Inch & halfe thick when Wrought, for the barrell should haue no Bulge, but less at the bung then any where els and there the hoops to be Look't, and Drone to Each head, then your Barrell would stoe better, nor need you fear any barrells being staued into Each other by weight, for this way all the straine would Lye on the head w<sup>ch</sup> is the strongest part, so that no tarr would come to the pompe, nor your shipp in danger, w<sup>ch</sup> is impossible to prevent (the Common way now used the barrells are so thin that a Quantity would Bulge one another the great hazard of Life and goods)

Then I would aduise that no Pitch be sent home, for in the first place the reward is the same to tarr, as to Pitch; 2<sup>thly</sup> the Labour together wth [*] not answer to the Difference in value, and 3<sup>thly</sup> the kingdom of England will be much better pleased to haue the manufacturing of it tho; It cost them thrice the value./

And as I am willing In all things that tends to the furthering this great worke so I would do all that is in my power to make the last addition thereto, and shall think no seruice to Dificult, or Labour to hard, for me to Do, wherein I may be thought seruisable to this Colony, and whereas there is an Act, pas't w<sup>ch</sup> appointes a surveyor to Inspect both caske, and Comodity, on whose Judgment, Integrity, and probation, the Comodity is marchantable or not, and so must stand or fall in England. I take leaue to Offer my seruice, and if it shall be thought I can be seruisable in that affaire I promise to Do my vtmost Endeavours therein;/

and Lastly pray leaue to add that as I am one no way concerned or Intrested in any thing that I have here offered but what pointes at the publick good of this prouince and all her majesties Loving subjects (so I pray it may be taken) and Doe believe if this Designe be heartily carried on by a vnanimus consent. it cannott faile of making this Province (not only) a favorite of her majestie and kingdoms, but a flourishing and Wealthy people, humbly submiting what I haue here say'd and proposed to your Excelency council & assembly; to Enact or otherwise, as you In you[r*] Wisdoms, shall see most Convenient." — Mass. Archives, vol. 1, p. 64.

This memorial was read in Council November 22, 1706, and sent to the representatives "for consideration." It was read in the House on the twenty-third, and again on the twenty-sixth, when the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence, where it was immediately read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

* Manuscript mutilated.

In compliance with the request of the General Court in this chapter Bridger prepared an essay which was printed as a broadside, a copy whereof, accompanied by two paragraphs of an act* of parliament about preservation of timber, is bound up in the New York Historical Society's collection of News-Letters, between numbers one hundred seventy-three and one hundred seventy-four, as follows:—

“INFORMATIONS

AND DIRECTIONS

I. For the making of TAR, and choice of Trees for the same, as in Finland, &c
AS for Trees, Take none that have any dead branches on the Top; that being a certain Indication of the decay of that Tree; but those that are flourishing, full of Limbs: Tall Trees seldom produce much Tar. In May, June, July or August, the Tar Tree may be prepared, but if the Sap be all up in the Tree, then prepare the Tree, be it in any Month; but the Spring wholly governs this, for as in different Climates the Spring is more late or early: So here, some Springs are sooner some years than others. This must be your guide as to the Time when to prepare the Tree; the Manner is as follows, Viz.

II. Two foot from the Earth strip off the bark eight foot up; only leave the bark on a hands breadth upon that side that has most Limbs: Thus the Tree must stand Two years; the Third, cut it down; and in the middle, which will make proper lengths for the Pit; split it into pieces four inches square, or there-about: Prepare no Trees less than Twelve inches Diameter.

III. As to making the Kill'n, or rather Pit: 'Tis thus, Eight foot deep, Twenty wide at the Top, so sloping towards the bottom; there the spout must be fix'd for carrying the Tar to the Barrel-bung: and Sleepers must be lay'd cross the bottom to lay the Wood on, and to raise the Wood as soon as possible end-ways, that being the natural way of the Pores, the Turpentine will sooner be forced out of the Tar-Wood with less heat: The Tar-Wood may be raised Seven foot above the Earth; and there must be great care taken in covering it, for if the Air get to the Fire, 'twill blow all up, and burn the Tar: It must be covered with Thrff and Sand very close; and then with thin Splinters of Tar-Wood set on Fire, put it into the Pit, which will set it on Fire: Such a Pit is three days in burning, generally.

IV. In Vasa in the same Province, though some Difference, yet not much, they use another way, and in my Opinion the best; where their Clay ground, near the Pitch-Pine tracts: 'Tis thus, In the Spring they bark one part of the Tree, the next another part, and so on till four years are expired, then they cut down the Tree: And the Pit is made eight foot, at the bottom, broad, Fifty or Sixty foot at the Top. All round the in-side they lay white Pine bark, to keep the Tar from running into the Earth, when burning: They as well judge 'tis less waste and much better, to set the Tar-Wood End-ways in the Pit, which I much like and approve of; and likewise the making of the Pit, but (not this way of preparing the Tree) therefore advise to the former, or your own way: and if any Knots, mix them with the other Wood, but not alone, they making the Tar of so fiery a nature that it burns all Cordage that is made with it.

V. As to Dreining the Water from the Tar, they do it in the Barrel, the Water always is uppermost; and may with ease, if care be taken, take off the only Objection that is made in England, which is Water in the Tar. And if after the cost and labour of making the Barrels & Tar, the Sale in England should be lost for want of Dreining off the Water, I hope none will plead Ignorance for the future; and that there be no Sand, Leaves, Dross, or anything but pure Tar, which will in some measure regain a Reputation, which at present this Tar, Pitch and Turpentine has lost, to the great Scandal of Trade, and this Province in general.

VI. I would advise to make all Barrels with Pine-Staves, one inch and half thick at least, when wrought: the bulge to be the least part of the Barrel, the Hoops to be locked there, and drove to each head: this will stow in less room, is much stronger and sooner made: For I would not have any unnecessary work on the Barrel; as the smoothness of the inside, neither need the out-side be made only fit for the Well-Hooping of the Barrel: this would save much Labour (and the end as well answered) which I have in all these Directions endeavoured at; and are the best methods I can advice to be followed here, where Labour is so much wanted: All which is Submitted to by

This chapter was passed upon the report of a committee appointed by the General Court to attend the Governor on a visit to Castle Island to view "what was necessary for the better securing the works there." This report is given below, by which it will be seen that it is not only signed by the chairman of the committee of the Council that cooperated with the committee of the House in presenting Redknap's report, as shown in the note to chapter 67 of the resolves of the year 1705-6, but that the recommendations in the present report embraced substantially such of the alterations proposed by Redknap as remained unfinished, together with the additional changes suggested by the former committees.

Although no record of the appointment of a new committee has been discovered it is probable that a joint committee was appointed, comprising most or all those who served the previous year for the purpose mentioned above.

The report of this joint committee is as follows:—

"Boston Novbr 5. 1706.

The Coñitte appointed by this Court, to waite on his Excellency the GOV<sup>r</sup> to Castle William on Castle Island, Viewing what was Necessary for the better Securing the Works there, are humbly of opinion — That its needfull that a Wharfe be built before the West & East Demie Basti at the lower battry, and the Wharfe by the Block house be Repaired.

The Coverd Way that goes from the East Powder house in to y<sup>e</sup> East Bastion at the lower battry be finished.

The finishing the blinde for Security of the East Powder house be don with Timber. — .

The Sod work to be well Repaired.

That a Cirbe be made over the well at the lower Battry.

That the top of all the Walls of the fortification, be well poynted and then covered with Shingles to Secure them from the Voyolenc of the Weather.

It would be very beneficial and save a growing charge, to have a Mason and a Carpenter allways upon the place, to poynt the Walls, Repaire the platforms &c constantly to attend the worke of their owne trade, as there may be occasion, & be freed from Mounting the Gard, w<sup>ch</sup> may be but a little more Charge then a private Centinall.

ELISHA HUTCHINSON

Archives, vol. 71, p. 262.

On the eighteenth of November this report was read and accepted in Council, and a vote passed thereon and sent to the House, for concurrence, "That his Excellcy. be Desired to cause a Mason and a Carpenter to be Enlisted as Centinels in the Garison; And the Representatives are Desired to consider the Charge of Repairing the workes above mentioned, and to make Provision accordingly." †

On the nineteenth this vote was read in the House, but no record of further action thereon has been found until the thirtieth, when the order which constitutes this chapter was substituted, in the House, for this vote of the Council and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The following orders in Council were passed to carry out the provisions of this chapter and to provide for the payment of the cost:—

"Dec. 28, 1706. Ordered. That Elisha Hutchinson & Penn Townsend Esq<sup>rs</sup> with Capt<sup>n</sup> Zechariah Tuthill be a Committee to provide the Materials, and to Oversee the making and laying of the Wharves, and the other works directed by the General Assembly, at her Majesty's Castle William, at their Session in October past.

By the province treasurer's accounts it appears that a payment of thirty pounds* was made to Zechariah Tuthill, commander of Castle William, in 1707-8, and another payment of ten pounds† in 1708-9.

From entries in the executive records of the council ‡ it would seem that James Taylor, province treasurer, having presented an account "of money advanced by him to Capt<sup>n</sup> Zechariah Tuthill Commander of her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Castle William, for provisions, fire wood & Candles from the 12th of January 1705. to the sixth of April 1706. and for arrear of fire wood in the year past, & towards the charge of the Quarter now running, amounting in the whole to three hundred seventy three pounds, seven shillings and nine pence," the following order was passed:—

"April 17, 1706. Ordered. That John Walley, Penn Townsend & Andrew Belcher Esq<sup>rs</sup> be a Committee to consider and state proper Rules for the fire-wood, Candles and other incidental petty charges for her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Castle William, by the day or week, and to offer the same to the Board for consideration, as soon as may be."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 277.

On the same day the Council advised and consented that a warrant be made out to the treasurer to pay himself the amount charged as above, which he accordingly did, as appears by his account § from May 31, 1705, to May 31, 1706.

Before the committee of the Council had made their report, the representatives formulated a list of grievances, in which, among other things complained of, they designated the following:—

"4 The great Expence of Candles at the Castle William it being twenty one pounds for nine monthes

5 The allowance of wine & sugar to Capt<sup>n</sup> Southack for haling y<sup>e</sup> Gally ashore & Incidentall charges. 18<sup>l</sup>: 9<sup>s</sup>—6<sup>d</sup>

The grounds of objection were thus stated in the preamble to the list of grievances:—

"In the Hous of Representatives

This list, which appears to have been written out as early as the seventh of July, and "offered" on the fifteenth, bears an endorsement in the handwriting of the Secretary, dated the seventh of August.

No further action on the matter of this chapter has been discovered until the thirtieth of November, when the following report by the committee of the Council was read at the Board and accepted, and sent to the House for concurrence:—

Captain Nathan Hayman, or Heyman, of Charlestown, died at Bristol, July 27, 1689, leaving a widow, Elizabeth, daughter of Captain John Allen, (whom he married March 11, 1673-4,) and six children; viz., Nathan, born January 25, 1674-5; Elizabeth, born February 21, 1676-7; Sarah, born August 22, 1679; Mary, born June 17, 1682; Grace, born January 3, 1684-5, and John, born December 22, 1687. The eldest daughter, Elizabeth, was married to the Rev. William Brattle of Cambridge, November 3, 1697, and in her family, as appears by the papers referred to in a later chapter,* her sister Mary resided after her father's death.

Captain Hayman removed to Bristol before the birth of Grace, and resided there until his death. Nathaniel Blagrove of Bristol, who married his widow, June 18, 1690, was appointed administrator of his estate, February 15, 1695-6, by John Saffin, then judge of probate † for the county of Bristol. Blagrove having rendered an account of his administration to Judge Saffin—which was allowed June 20, 1702, but which was claimed to be imperfect in the particulars specified by Judge Byfield in his objections hereinafter set forth, and therefore not final—and he having neglected to render a second account during the minority of Mary, and having made no satisfactory settlement with her, she applied, by petition, to Nathaniel Byfield, ‡ who had succeeded Saffin as judge of probate, for an order or decree directing the administrator to assign to her her portion of her father's estate. The date of her petition was January 8, 1704-5. It appears to have been prosecuted by Paul Dudley, and was probably drawn by him at the suggestion of her brother-in-law, Brattle, between whom and Blagrove sundry letters concerning the settlement of the estate passed before the administrator was cited to render his account. The citation ran as follows:—

Upon the day above appointed Blagrove appeared before the Judge of Probate, who stated certain objections to the account allowed by Saffin. These were minuted by the Register, and further time allowed to the administrator in which to prepare and present a new account, as appears by the following certificate:—

The administrator having thus failed to comply with the order of the Judge of Probate, and continuing to disregard it for more than two weeks after the time appointed for his rendering an account, the Judge, of his own motion, brought suit, in his official capacity, upon the administration bond, in which John Burge and Nathan Hayman, both of Bristol, were sureties.

The writ, dated May 23, 1705, and in the ordinary form of capias and attachment, was returnable before the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Bristol at the next term, being the second Tuesday of July. The ad damnum, to the plaintiff “qualified as aforesaid,” was laid at six thousand pounds, which was the penalty of the bond. The plaintiff de-

The sheriff served the writ by arresting Blagrove on the day of the date thereof, who gave bond.

On the return day the plaintiff filed the following assignment of a breach of the bond:—

“The Breach assign<sup>d</sup> by y<sup>e</sup> p<sup>l</sup>t is y<sup>t</sup> he y<sup>e</sup> Def<sup>t</sup> hath not rendred an acct accord. to law

The case having been argued and given to the jury, they found a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of six thousand pounds and costs of court, whereupon judgment was awarded accordingly.

From this judgment, as well as from the judgment of the Court upon the pleas in abatement, the defendant appealed to the Superior Court of Judicature. The next term of the appellate court in that county was to be held at Bristol, on the second Tuesday of September. On the twenty-fifth of August the appellant filed his reasons of appeal, as follows:—

Thus far the reasons given were in support of a motion or plea in abatement which has disappeared from the files. The following is in support of the plea on the merits: —

"7 That if upon such a writ 'tis possible a faire and right Issue might be tryed, ye now ap<sup>t</sup> then deit<sup>s</sup> is allwales ready to shew y<sup>t</sup> he hath already accounted for his admist<sup>con</sup> &c: to John Saffin Esq<sup>r</sup> (whome ye then pl<sup>t</sup> now ap<sup>t</sup> owes to be his p<sup>re</sup>decessor) (& who granted to ye ap<sup>t</sup> ye Lt<sup>ts</sup> of Administration and to whome ye bond was made payable) who Examind allowed and approved of ye s<sup>d</sup>: acct: and order<sup>d</sup> ye same to be regist<sup>red</sup> as of record appears, and ye law of ye Province fol: 6: direct<sup>s</sup> y<sup>t</sup> any p<sup>er</sup>son aggrieved at any sentence ord<sup>r</sup>: &c. may have an appeal to ye Govern<sup>r</sup> & Council

Some extraordinary legislative and judicial business rendering it inconvenient for a quorum of the justices of the Superior Court to hold the regular term at Bristol, it was adjourned to the twenty-fifth, that being the last Tuesday in the month.

At the adjourned session Paul Dudley, for the appellee, filed the following answer to the appellant's reasons: —

The Appellee's Answer to the Appellant's Reasons of Appeal: and first the appellee prays the Judgm<sup>t</sup>: of this Court whether the appellant's Reasons ought not to be quashed for insufficiency for that it is not s<sup>d</sup> what the action was = nor what Judgment: nor who were parties to the Judgm<sup>t</sup>: at the Inferiour Court, t'is onely said the appellants Reasons of appeal from the Judgm<sup>t</sup>: of the last Inferiour Court of pleas holden at Bristol . . . As to the appellants Reasons the Appellee Answers as followeth —

- 1: That the Judgm<sup>t</sup>: of the Inferiour Court was Right and ought to be Confirmed —
- 2: that it is not necessary in this Case for the Appellee who is the successor to Avvert that the money Due upon the obligation was not paid to the predecessor but onely matter of forme for that the successor may not be Knowing to what the Predecessor has done. Or Received: But further it is sufficiently Implied in the Writ for It is avverted that the oblig: money is yett Due to the appellee which it Cannot be if Ever It were paid to his predecessor and if any such paym<sup>t</sup> was Really made that ought to come on the appellant's side to plead it in Discharge of himself: so is the law of obligations: pag 360.
- 3: as to the 3<sup>d</sup> Reason the Appellee Answers and saith that it is not necessary for the plaintiff in an action of Debt upon an oblig: with a Condition to set forth the Condition in His writ nor was it Ever Known or Done in the Kingdom of Enzland and the Authoritys Cited by the appellant are against him for that the Case Cited in Hob. 199: Runs thus: A: brings an action of Debt upon an oblig: agst B: who pleads that it was upon Condition that he should perform the award of two and that they 2 with a 3<sup>d</sup> made no award: this is nought But if the Plaintiff doe alledge award: (i.e.: in his replication) by the 2 or by the 3 and alledge not a Breach whereby it may appear to the Court that he had Cause of action he shall never have Judgm<sup>t</sup>: now it is plain that the Breach must be assigned in the Replication for that 1: the Condition is in favour of the obligor and the plaintiff dos not Know what the Deit<sup>s</sup> will plead And the Case Cited in Crook is also clear against the appellant for it is thus Debt upon oblig: conditiond that such a living were Dischargd of all Incumbrances: the Breach was assigned by the plaintiff: But when not in his writt But in the Replication after the Defend<sup>t</sup>: had pleaded Conditions performed: for the Book said that the Defend<sup>t</sup>: Rejoynd and pleaded that he had not Incumbrd as the plaintiff had set forth and then the plaintiff surrejoynd And so they went to Issue
4. as to the 4th Reason of appeal the appellee saith that It is certain as the Appellant saith when a particular Day is limited In a Bond, in that Case the Declaration will be brought Upon Request: But where there is no Day as in the present case there the declaration must be upon the Request and the Case Cited in Crook was not upon an oblig: with a Condition But upon a single Bond for the paym<sup>t</sup>: of so much money at a Day Certain: Besides the Condition of the Bond Now sued on is not for the paym<sup>t</sup>: of a particular sum of money at a particular time — and so no ways parallell with any Case the appellat Cites.

5. as to the 5th Reason the appellee saith that his writ is not without precedent or warrant But has innumerable precedents to Justify it: for that there is no other method or practice in England in suing upon Bonds with Condition — But to Declare on the obligatory part and leave the Condition for the Defend<sup>t</sup>: unto whom it Belongs — for the Condition of a Bond appertains not to the obligèè: and the practice in N: England for some years last past has been agreeable to the law of England in actions of Debt upon Bonds to Declare onely upon the Obligatory part Both for the Reason and Brevity of it —

6th as to the sixth Reason: the appellee humbly offers that really it Can be no Reason of appeal at least no Reason to Abate for that the Continuance of a Cause is the act of the Court and no ways concerns the Writ or process: and if this hon<sup>ble</sup> Court should be of opinion that the appellant ought to have had an Imparlançe yet that can't set aside the Judgm<sup>t</sup>: But Besides the appellant offered no manner of Reason to the Inferior Court why his Cause should be Continued But onely Insisted on it that it ought which Can be no Reason in law —

7. to the 7th & last Reason the appellee saith that a very fair & Just Issue might be and was tryed in this cause viz whether the Appellant had performed the Condition of his Bond If not the Bond is necessarily forfeited: & as to what the Appellant pretends of his having accounted and Administred according to law that is what the appellee Denys and will take Issue upon and will prove that he has not accounted & administred according to law — and as to the proceedings of the late Judge of probate of Wills &c. in this county relating to the administration of the appellant; the appellee saith 1: that they were manifestly contrary to the law of this province in that Case made and provided as will appear in many Instances — & 2: whatever the Judge of probate will Doe or have an administrator to doe yet the Administrator must look to it that he administer according to law and If he does not 'will not Excuse him or his Bond to say that what he did was by the opinion & Consent of the Judge of probate & — for the Judge gives no security for his office But the Administrator must give Bond: & 3. the Common law is not to be Controwled By the proceedings of the Court of Probate of wills &c: as for Instance a will that is proved in the Common form by the ordinary are often times set aside and overthrown By the Common law — and mens Estates whether Reall or personall are to be Determined & Governed By the Common law: upon the whole matter unless the appellant can prove that he has in all things accounted and administrd upon the Estate of the late m<sup>r</sup>: Heyman according to law he has forfeited his Bond: now the Appellee can give severall Instances of the male administration of the appellant and sundry considerable summs that he has Rendred no account of whereby he has broken his Bond whereupon the appellee Doubts not but that this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court will affirm the former Judgm<sup>t</sup>:

† The term began September 12, 1706, by adjournment from the tenth, and the entries quoted are to be found in the records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 187.

At the adjourned session, before Samuel Sewall, acting chief justice, John Walley and John Leverett, two of his associates, “. . . the Writ Judgment Reasons of Appeal & all things touching the Same being fully heard the whole was Committed to the Jury who were Sworn to try the same and Returned their verdict therein upon Oath That is to say They find for the Appellee Confirmation of the former Judgment & Cost of Courts. . . .”

The appellant then “. . . Moved that the Bond might be Chancer'd down to Its Just debt & damage,” and filed his reasons therefor. These reasons have not been found in the files but the answer made to them by the appellee was as follows:—

Nathaniel Blagrove Appell<sup>t</sup>

Nathaniel Byfield Esq; Appellee

} At a Superior Court of Judicature held
} at Bristol for the County of Bristol the 13th
} of September 1706 by adjournm<sup>t</sup> from the } 10th of said Month

- 1 That it is certain that the Law of this Province gives [no ans*]wer to the Courts of Law to Chancery the penalty's of Bonds & to the just debt and damages [*] and the reason is apparent for that there is a certainty to Chancery the same to./ and for noe other reason./
- 2 That there being noe certain summe to Chancery this Bond to the Conclion of the same being to performe a certain Act (and one of very great moment) the Appellee conceives & doth averr that the bond cannot come any wayes to be Chancery'd the nature of it being such that the same will admitt of Noe Chancery within the intent of our (or any) other Law in the universe./
- 3 The method pscribed by the Appell<sup>t</sup> to chancery the bond is altogether contrary to Law & contrary to His own Act for that he having not performed the Conclion of the said bond by contemptuously refusing to doe the same can never expect any Chancery./
- 4 That the Appell<sup>t</sup> woud pretend really that the Appellee ought to shew forth what Items were omitted out of the Acco<sup>t</sup> &c that the bond may be chancery'd down to the same
- 5 Which thee Appellee<sup>t</sup> saith is contrary to Law because by Law tis the Appell<sup>t</sup>s Duty to doe the same as well as his own Act (to wit) the Bond then which nothing can be stronger./
- 6 That if the Appell<sup>t</sup> can have noe other releif the Appellee saith 'tis his own fault & volenti non fit injuria for he having given bond to render a just & true acco. upon Oath of his Admicon & the former being found not true he hath had a twelve months time to perfect the same which done according as the Law directs will ease him sufficiently from the mighty hardship he at present pretends to lye under by the Jury's Verdict./
- 7 That notwithstanding what the Appell<sup>t</sup> saith there hath been noe Acco<sup>t</sup> rendred hitherto pursuant to the conclion of said Bond for according to his own shewing there are but severall paym<sup>t</sup>s made which shews noe completion but an Imperfect Act
- 8 That the Judge of the Probate the now Appellee having proved the pretended acco<sup>t</sup> not a true acco<sup>t</sup> according to ye demands of the bond saith he hath done his Dnty & it is incumbent upon the Appell<sup>t</sup> to render a true acco<sup>t</sup> pursuant to the said Bond — And as to the president cited by the Appell<sup>t</sup> 'tis not to the purpose the breach laid being 20<sup>l</sup> certain & noe more insisted upon by The Judge of Probate & soe might well be chancer'd to ye just summe demanded

All which is humbly submitted to this honorable Court by

The above answer was filed on the fourteenth. The record of the case is made up as of the twelfth, but it must have been pronounced after the filing of Byfield's answer, since it concludes as follows: “And the Court was of opinion that the Bond would not Admitt of a Chancery. Its therefore Considered by the Court that the s<sup>d</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> Byfield qualified as afores<sup>d</sup> shall Recover of the s<sup>d</sup> Nath<sup>l</sup> Blagrove the Sum of Six thousand pounds Money debt & Cost of Courts Placed at five pounds Eighteene shillings.” †

Execution was issued October 23, 1706, for the full penalty, in accordance with the judgment; but the appellant intending to present to the General Court, at the session which began on that very day, his petition praying that the execution be suspended, no service seems to have been made upon it until some ten months later.

about Some disputable matters referring to the Intestates Estate, herein after mentioned; Commence his Action of Debt against Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner upon the Said penal Bond of 6000<sup>l</sup>; and at an Inferiour Court of Common pleas held at Bristol for the County of Bristol, recovered Judgement for the whole penalty, from which Judgem<sup>t</sup> Yo<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> appeal'd to the Superior Court of Judicature of y<sup>e</sup> County, where the former Judgem<sup>t</sup> was affirm'd, whereupon Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner timely moved y<sup>e</sup> Judges (as is constantly done in like cases) that the Bond might be Chancer'd alledging (when he found some demurr & delay) 'That by an act or Law of the Province, 'the Justices of the Courts of Law were possibly directed & impowred to Chancer all Bonds, mortgages specialties &c<sup>s</sup>, where the forfeiture was found and to Enter up Judgem<sup>t</sup> according to Equity & good Conscience, and that the reason declared in the preamble of the act was to give great ease & satisfaction to the subject & to prevent Oppression & delay. That there could be no reason against a Chauncery but where the damage assign'd did equal or surmount y<sup>e</sup> penalty; or where a prisoner in Execution for Debt, for whom Security is given Escapes; then, indeed Judgem<sup>t</sup> was to be Enter'd up against his Sureties for the whole penalty, without chauncery, are the very express words of the Law, which was a strong argum<sup>t</sup> that this was the Only kind of Bond, and that there was no Other, Excluded or Excepted by our Law from Equity. That if it was the Genuine Sence of the Law, that administration Bonds could not be chancer'd, who would adventure to administr<sup>e</sup> or become security on such Bonds.

It was further Urg'd & argu'd That Your Petition<sup>r</sup> ought to be reliev'd; because 'twas apparent to the Court, that the penalty of 6000<sup>l</sup> found, by the Jureys verdict, was incomparably beyond any damage, the Judge of Probate, had assign'd, or could possibly assigne for breach of the Condition; that therefore it Could not consist with Justice & Equity that the Court should enter up Judgem<sup>t</sup> for the whole?

That it was also plain Yo<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> as admin<sup>r</sup> had accounted, & had, made severall payments to y<sup>e</sup> Intestates children & others, which so farr was good That Judgem<sup>t</sup> could not in the case at barr be Enter'd up for more then was due; for that the children Could only claime their severall equal parts of their fathers Estate, and the Judge could distribute no more, that as for the Judge himself he neither had, nor ought to p<sup>r</sup>tend to any benefit by y<sup>e</sup> penalty, who was but the medium or Instrum<sup>t</sup> of the suit, what then was to be done with the surplus, or exorbitant part of this penal 6000<sup>l</sup>?

And May it Please this Honour'd Court

Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner therefore Humbly Prays this Hon'ble Court that a speedy Remedy may be provided for this great mischief & Oppression, That the Law mentioned (as he Humbly conceives) being sufficient to relieve him; The writ of Execution may forthwith be success'd, and the Judges of the Superior Court be Order'd at their Next sitting to Chancer the said Bond to the Just debt & damages, before another Execution Issue; or that some other Effectual Care be taken without delay That Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner may be Judged according to the rules of Equity & good Conscience, and not by the Utmost rigour and Severity of the Common Law, And your Pet<sup>r</sup> shall ever pray &c<sup>s</sup>

This petition was read twice in the House November 5, 1706, and a third time on the sixth, when the following order was passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence:—

"Ordered That the Praier of the Petitioner be Granted, and the writ of Execution, be forthwith superceeded, and the Judges of the Superior Court, be ordered, at their next Sitting to Chancer the Bond refer'd to in this Petition, to the just Debt & Damages before another Execution Issue." — Ibid., p. 891.

This order reached the Council on the sixth, when it was "read and ordered to be shown to the judges." On the nineteenth the judges "were heard, who offered the grounds and reasons why they did not chancer the same," whereupon the Council "voted a nonconcurrance." On the same day the representatives passed the following order and sent it to the Council, for concurrence:—

"Ordered nemine contradicente That Execution be forthwith superceeded and that no other Execution be Issued out until this Court shall make an act, for relief in this, & the like cases by Direction to Chancer all administration Bonds & in the mean time Mr Secretary be directed to draw an act accordingly." — Ibid., p. 889.

In the Council this last order was read on the twenty-sixth, and the Board voted not to concur, "Judging the Law already Sufficien' in that respect."* On the twenty-eighth the House passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence, another order, as follows:—

"Ordered That the Execution be Suspended until the last of May Session next, and in the mean time and assoon as possible, the Petitioner render an additional acct, of his administration to Cole Nathan<sup>ll</sup> Byfield, Judge of Probates &c<sup>s</sup> & upon the s<sup>d</sup> Judge's non-acceptance of s<sup>d</sup> acct<sup>s</sup> the Petitioner apply himself, to the Governr and Council for the making up of the Same & when adjusted the s<sup>d</sup> Judge shall upon the Record acknowledge Judgment satisfied, for the six Thousand Pounds." — Ibid., p. 888.

On the thirtieth the Council refused to concur in this order, and at the same time passed, and sent to the House for concurrence, the order which constitutes this chapter, save that instead of the words, "until ye last day of May next," in the first line of the order, it contained the words, "by the Space of Ninety days from the date hereof." This order was read in the House on the thirtieth, and again on the second of December, when it was concurred in, with the amendment changing the limit of suspension of the execution to the date which appears in the order. In this vote the Council concurred, and the order was consented to by the Governor.

While the subject was before the Council, Sewall † manifested deep interest in the legal question involved, and wrote thus to Wait Winthrop, one of his associates on the Board:—

* Mass. Archives, vol. 40, p. 889.

† In a letter to Byfield, written eight days earlier, Sewall shows how anxious he was that equity should be done by agreement between the contestants, if possible. His rebuke of Byfield's censoriousness was sharpened, no doubt, by his intense antipathy to anything in a judge that savored of personal interest in any issue of which he had cognizance. Byfield, who, as judge of probate, was nominally plaintiff in the action on Blagrove's bond, was also chief justice of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas of Bristol, before which the case was tried. The letter is as follows:—

"Novr 2. 1705.

SIR,—Yours of Oct 11th was delivered me just after Lecture, Oct 25th, 1705, wherein are these words,—'by all which it seems very apparent that the said Admin<sup>r</sup> is guilty of Perjury: and yet nothing was said to him in Court, of his having done amiss: but my self (who as Judge of the Probat of Wills &c. in the behalf of Orphans, and in pursuance of the Law, and my Oath, appeared there to Answer the Appeal) was very much discontented by your Hon<sup>r</sup>, to my great dissatisfaction.'

This [is] a groundless and injurious Charge. Indeed in the morning, when I declared that the Court's Opinion was the cause should proceed; I also expressed my earnest desire that the parties might yet come to an Agreement among themselves; which would be acceptable to the whole Court and did say that though she were not mentiond, nor present, yet Mrs. Blagrove was very nearly related to the cause, being Mother of the children, for every of whom she had gon down into the valley of the shadow of death, that they might come abroad, and live in light, and therefore it was to be desired, that Differences might be taken up, to prevent any alienation of Affection between Madam Blagrove and her Husband, on the one hand; or her, and her Children on the other hand. The greater the cause was, of the more importance it was for the parties to agree. This Motion for Agreement I made in my own Name, and in the name of the Court; and did not speak to the Court or Jury; but to the Parties. And not being heard of, I was willing the Law should have its free course. How this should reflect upon the Law, or your self, I can't imagine.

Your Appearance for Orphans is made something dim, by reason that Four of the Six, by Instrument under their hands, disavowed the Action; and declared themselves very well satisfied with the Management of Mr. Nathaniel Blagrove their Father-in-Law.

As to not speaking to Mr. Blagrove of his Perjury, he was not in Court to such purpose. You might have persued him Criminally, if you had pleas'd, But he was in Court as an Appellant in a Civil Action, to be Tried by a Jury; in which much Time in pleading was taken up, and many papers filed. I had taken Notes, and was just ready to have sum'd it up to the Jury; and contrary to my Expectation, was prevented by your Attorneys making a Motion to have the Action continued to the next Term; which was complied with by the Appellant, Entred by the Clerk. Read in open Court, and agreed to by the Express consent of both parties. I was doubtful about the Method, and therefore said, If it may be safely done. Here was an end of the Action till September 1706.

Mr. Saffin would have justified his proceedings as Judge of the Probat; the Court declind receiving his Paper as not being orderly brought before them. I canot discern any reason why this should be gravamitous to you. I canot charge my memory with all said in Court; if there were any thing omitted to be spoken that should have been said; my three Brethren having the same freedom of speech that I had; why must I bear the blame alone?

And I am of the Opinion, it was no Extravagant favour granted Mr. Blagrove, who is now Representative for Bristol that he was admitted to speak a few words to clear his Credit. Which proceeded not from the Court, but his almost irresistible Impertunity. If an Indictment of Forgery had been found against him by the Grand Jury; yet Mr. Brattle's Letter ought not to have been read once, much less left upon File; it containing only Hearsay, and insinuating a very balmous Crime. Madam Brattle should have been present face to face. And therefore it seemd unreasonable to have the Letter read over agen whenas no Release was produced in Court; nor that Sum charged in the Account. It was late in the day; and had a Mile to walk on foot to Mr. Makentashes to Dinner, whether his Honor the Lieut. Governour was gon before; and it was indecent for his Honor to wait for the Justices of the Court. And if there was any abruptness in the Court's Adjourment; yet if you duly consider the Deference you require to have paid you when you sit as Judge; and your Licentious way of expressing your Resentment of that Adjourment; you will find your Account overbalanced, and will not expect any further satisfaction from “BOSTON, NOV 10, 1706.

SIR, — I know not whether I may return from Salem before the Court rises. There are two things of very great moment now before them, viz. : that of Gov<sup>r</sup> Bellingham's will,* and whether a bond of administration when sued out ought not to be chancered. It seems plain to me that it ought; for none else can chancer it, and the party lyes open to the whole sum Malum est posse malum. If the Judge of the Probate be a party, as some would have it, it looks illfavourdly for him also to be judge whether any thing of the rigorous penalty shall be abated or no. I discoursed with Mr. Secretary [Isaac Addington] before I went to Bristol Court, and he was then of the opinion an administration bond ought to be chancered by the Court; and it was so done in Grigg's case† in Boston Inferiour Court, wherein Mr Addington's name was used as Judge of the Probate. . . . As to that of ye administration bond, if ye Gov<sup>r</sup> would condescend, I could be glad there might be a full Council when that is voted. Shall hasten from Salem as fast as may be, and Mr Brattle & his sister may be notified in the mean time. . . .

Sir, your humble serv<sup>t</sup>;

The order which constitutes this chapter was “read and debated” in the Council December 2, 1706. On the third it was “read and voted” and sent to the House, for concurrence. In the House it was immediately read and concurred in, and a vote passed that it be printed. On the same day this was “agreed” to by the Council, and the order was consented to by the Governor.

Chap. 119. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 271, and archives, vol. 63, p. 72.

On the fifteenth of November, 1706, the following draught of a bill, with the preamble prefixed and the vote annexed, was read in the House of Representatives: —

“Whereas some of this present Assembly now Sitting at Boston in November 1706 are Representatives for divers Towns on ye Sea-Coast in New England, and being well acquainted with ye whale men, doe Credibly informe us at this Generall Court, That it is the desire and request of Such men as fitts out Boats, and allsoe of ye men y<sup>t</sup> goes out in Such Boats to take whales, That an Act of ye Assembly may be granted to Thomas Houghton now living in Boston Marchant, or to his Assignes for ye Improvement of ye Lean of ye whales after ye fatt and ye Bone are taken away by Such as ownes them, hee or they paying Eight shillings for ye Lean of every whale hee or they shall cutt up, or cause to be cutt up and carryed away, from ye place where ye Bone and fatt are taken off by such as owns them, the Lean being worth nothing at present to any Body, but is left to rott, and be washt away by ye Sea, and noe benefiet made of it, Soe that if any Improvement can be made of ye Lean it will not only be an Advantage to those y<sup>t</sup> takes whales, but to many other persons for these Reasons following first . . . It will cause more Barrells made, and Soe more Coopers Sett at worke, and more hands imployd to make Staves

Secondly . . . It will cause houses to be built, and Severall people imploy'd to cutt it up and Cart it to ye houses or places where it is to be wroupt up

Thirdly . . . It will imploy our Sloopes to cary it to Boston, or where hee or his Assignes would haue it

* See note to chapter 23, ante.

† The case referred to was a snit in the Inferiour Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk County, April term, 1706, upon the bond of administration of William Griggs, administrator of the estate of his brother, Isaac Griggs. Addington, as judge of probate, was plaintiff. Administration having been granted in 1690, during the inter-charter period, the bond, which was in the penal sum of five hundred pounds, ran to the county treasurer, Adam Winthrop, his executors, administrators, successors or assigns; and the plaintiff therefore declared as assignee, in the usual form of debt, with a profert of the bond. The case was continued, by consent, to the July term, when the defendant appeared and pleaded performance of the condition of the bond, and, upon issue joined, and “after a full hearing,” the case was committed to the jury, who found for the plaintiff the whole penalty of the bond; whereupon judgment was recorded, as follows. —

“. . . It's therefore Considered by the Court that the s<sup>d</sup> Isaac Addington in his Capacity afores<sup>d</sup> shall recover against the said William Griggs and Joseph Bridgham, or either of them, the sum of Twenty One pounds four shillings and six pence money (being the Chauncery of the said Bond unto its just Debt and damages) & Costs of suit — taxed at £2, 15s, 4d, 3/4.” — Records in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court in Suffolk County.

The intestate left a widow and two daughters. Nathaniel Balston was appointed guardian of one of these daughters, Sarah, who survived her sister. By comparing the accounts of the guardian and the administrator, both of which were presented to Addington for allowance, it appears clearly, that, of the balance of £256 8s. 6d. in the hands of the administrator, the guardian had received and accounted for £196 1s. 6d. A receipt on file shows that the administrator had paid to the guardian six pounds seven shillings more than he had charged in his account, and that, of the sum remaining in his hands, an unsettled claim for his disbursements towards the maintenance and education of Sarah — to be determined by agreement between the administrator and the guardian — was by the decree of the Judge left open to be deducted when ascertained. The balance of fifty-four pounds shown by the account as remaining in the administrator's hands was thus reduced, apparently with the knowledge and approval of the Judge of Probate, £32 15s. 6d. before action brought on the bond; thus leaving the administrator accountable for £21 4s. 6d., the amount for which execution was issued upon chancering the bond.

The essential difference between this case and Blagrove's is that the latter was for failure to account, so that there was no certain basis for chancering the bond without the intervention of the Probate Court, which the defendant declined to invoke; whereas, in the former, the account had been allowed, and the indeterminate balance finally adjusted, so that there was no dispute as to the amount due by the administrator.

Fourthly . . . If any Improvement can be made of it fitt for Exsporation, it will not only be an Advantage to Boston, by helping to Make Returns for old England, but to many of ye Inhabitants of New England, by Severall wayes not here mentioned: In consideration of which, ye whale men humbly desires yt an Act of ye Assembly may be granted to ye said Thomas Houghton or his Assignes he haueing promised Severall of ye whale men, to disburse a Considerable Sum of money, to try if any Improvement can be made of it, provided an Act be granted him, with a Restraint and prohibition to all others dureing his time: &c:

On the next day the above paper was read a second and third time and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the eighteenth it was read in Council and nonconcurred.

These transactions seem to have preceded the presentation of the petition referred to in this chapter, which was in two parts. The first part was as follows:—

“To ye honourable Assembly now Sitting at Boston, The humble petition of ye Inhabitants of Eastham and other places near Cape Codd: &c:

The latter part was a proviso expressing, it would seem, the condition upon which the rest of the subscribers were willing to join. Forty-six words of the first draught of this proviso were cancelled before it was signed. It is on the same sheet with the rest of the petition and was signed, probably, by those who did not approve of the original draught without qualification. As amended it ran as follows: —

Item that s<sup>d</sup> Thomas Houghton shal pay to every whale man one shilling in mony acknowledgement for each of their several shares in the Lean of the whale fishes that they shal take for the space of ten years.

One or both of these petitions were presented as early as November 19, 1706, when the House passed a vote which was not concurred in by the Council.

Both the bill and the vote of the House having thus failed, Houghton addressed the following letters to the Governor, and to the Governor and Council, respectively: —

The proposition made by Houghton in his last letter, to demonstrate the practicability of his invention within five years or forfeit his monopoly, so closely corresponds with the limit of time allowed him in this chapter in which to try his experiments that it is not unlikely that his willingness to thus restrict his privilege was a prevailing consideration with the Legislature.

On the fifth of December the order which constitutes this chapter was passed by the Council and sent to the representatives, for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

No response having been received from the address to the queen, in which the Governor's salary was one of the subjects presented for her consideration, Dudley, in his speech at the beginning of the first session, again forbore to urge compliance with the royal commands for the establishment of stated salaries, and again he accepted a grant from the Legislature, as tendered in this resolve.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was founded upon the following petition:—

The Humble Petition of Samuel Hill of Wells.

Sheweth

That on the Tenth day of August 1703 yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner was taken (amongst others) by the french and Indians and carried Captive to Canada where he Continued until the arrival of Capt Levings-ton at Quebeck when yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner was sent with two french men with a Packett to yo<sup>r</sup> Governour and arrived at Piscataqua the fourth of May, 1705. & from thence came to Boston, and staid there till the time that Capt Veeth sailed for Canada, when yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner returned with him to Quebeck being upon his parole; and there staid until the arrival of Samuel Appleton Esq<sup>r</sup> who was sent with a flagg of Truce, to Quebeck, when yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner was sent by the Governour of Canadas Permission, up to Mont Royal for the hastening and Dispatching away of the English prisoners. Now may it please this Great and General Assembly Yo<sup>r</sup> Petitioner when he was here with the french men, had no Quarters allowed him, but bare his own charges, as he likewise did in his going up to Mont Royal, both which times, but especially in his coming from Quebeck he underwent great fatigues, and hardships and was at great Expences, and was Encouraged to hope that he should be allowed not only his Expences, but something for his trouble in the Country's service, which not having Yet reced:

This petition was read in the House on the fourth of December. On the fifth it was read again and the resolve thereon passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

For the services in which Hill incurred the "expense and trouble" for which he asked the allowance granted by this chapter, see, besides his petition, the notes to resolves, 1705-6, chapters 36 and 51.

The order in Council advising a warrant to pay Jonathan Boaden and company for transporting Hill and his companions on their journey to Boston to bear despatches from Vandreuil to Dudley is as follows: —

"Jan. 2, 1706-7. A Muster Roll of a Shallop, Jonathan Boaden Master, taken up by Colo<sup>l</sup> John March May 24 1705. to Transport Sam<sup>l</sup> Hill and two French-men from Casco Bay to his Excellency, containing an account of Wages for the service of the sd Master & Company and Boat hire, amounting to three pounds, three shillings and six pence; having been examin'd by Mr Commissary General, was presented — And.

Advised & Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of Three pounds, three shillings and six pence to the sd Boaden & Company accordingly." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 363.

By the province treasurer's account it appears that Boaden was paid £1 13s. 6d. for his wages and the hire of the shallop, ‡ and that four mariners under him were paid one pound ten shillings for seven days' service. §

|| The following is a translation of the tavernkeeper's account on file, but it amounts to twenty-two livres less than was allowed to Appleton. It is rendered in livres and sols, the character used in the footings to designate the former being identical with the character used to designate pounds in English. The sol, of course, was the modern sou. The word "Doibr" is evidently an abbreviation of "doivoir," a variation of devoir, the archaic form of devoir: —

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowances granted by this chapter was passed December 18, 1706. The record of payment in the province treasurer's account † includes fifty pounds granted by resolve, chapter 67, ante. For the final payment in settlement of draughts upon Vaudreuil by Appleton and Sheldon, see note to chapter 38 of the resolves of 1707.

For an account of Appleton's service see chapters 62 and 107, ante, and notes.

Chap. 126. This chapter is from archives, vol. 11, p. 220. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 273.

See chapter 107, ante, for an account of Williams's return from captivity. He arrived November 21, 1706, and on the thirtieth the town of Deerfield voted to send "Capt. Jonathan Wells, ens. jno. Sheldon and Thomas French, to goe down to y<sup>e</sup> bay for them, and in their be half to act and treat with their pastor the reverend mr. jno. Williams, in regard to his resettl<sup>g</sup> with them againe in y<sup>e</sup> work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry; as also to take advice and counsel of y<sup>e</sup> Elders in our County for the management of that work; as also to put up a petition to y<sup>e</sup> generall court or counsel, for a grant of money for y<sup>e</sup> encouragement of y<sup>e</sup> reverant mr. jno. Williams in his resettelment in said work with y<sup>m</sup>; and in all thes particulars to act and doe according to y<sup>e</sup> best of their discretion." ‡

It was probably in response to the petition or motion of the above committee that the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed.

The following extracts from the News-Letter serve to show the universal joy with which the return of the Deerfield pastor to his flock was hailed as an event auspicious to the settlers of the western frontier:—

“Hatfield, January 9 The People of this County are fill'd with Joy, for the Arrival of the Captives; especially, for the Return of the Reverend and Pious Mr. John Williams, to Deerfield again, upon Saturday the 28th of December last: which is esteemed a general Blessing. All thankfully acknowledge His Excellency's effectual Care of us therein. And a Design is formed for Rebuilding the Town more Commodiously, and regularly Fortifying of it. Wednesday, the 8th Currant was a Day of Thanksgiving there, to Praise GOD for His great Goodness. The Reverend Mr. Solomon Stoddard, and Mr: William Williams assisted at the Solemnity, each Preaching a Thanksgiving Sermon. During Williams's absence from Deerfield Benjamin Choat officiated as minister in his place and received compensation * therefor from the province treasury.

The order in Council † for payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 15, 1707, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that payment was made, although erroneously entered as for the year beginning December 6, 1707.

In the draught of the resolve which constitutes this chapter, and which originated in the House November 14, 1706, an important omission was detected in the Council. Thereupon the Board proposed an amendment, supplying the omission. This was on the twenty-first; but the House having taken no action on the amendment a message was sent from the Council, as shown by the following entry:—

And that the House would speedily proceed to determine the Things lying before them, That the Session may draw to an End.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 264.

On the seventh of December the resolve was passed as it is printed in the notes to the acts of this year, and it was consented to by the Governor.

See the note to chapter 104, ante.

Barnard was of the North End, and father of the Rev. John Barnard of Marblehead. The beacon which he built was set up to replace another on the same site. The first beacon in Boston was erected by an order of the General Court of March 4, 1634-5, on Sentry Hill, now Beacon Hill, which received the name it still retains from that circumstance. The pole of the beacon was topped with an iron crane from which was suspended a cradle or “skillet” for holding the combustibles to be burned. The flames could be seen many miles from Boston in every direction.

Barnard's account is as follows:—

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 18, 1706, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

Chap. 130. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 277. It has not been found in the archives.

Sewall thus records the exercises on this occasion:—

"Friday, March, 7, 1707. Several Ministers prayed at the desire of the Court; began a little after Ten; Mr. Willard, Wadsworth, Bridge, Colman, Pemberton, C. Mather, Dr. I. Mather. Prayers were made with great Pertinency and Variety; I hope God will hear. Several pray'd that God would speedily, by some Providence, or one way other, let us know what might doe as to going against Port-Royal. Gave Thanks for the News of the 18. Indians kill'd, and one Taken last Tuesday; which heard of just after the Appointment of this Day. Sung the two first staves of the 20th Psalm, York Tune, which I set, Mr. Willard used my Psalm-Booke. Left off about ½ hour past Two. Council gave the Govt and Ministers a Dinner at Homes's." — Diary, vol. II., p. 181.

For the particulars of the killing and capture of the Indians at Cox's Head, the news of which arrived so opportunely, see the note to chapter 142, post.

The following are those portions of the Governor's speech of March 5, 1706-7, referred to in the resolve which constitutes this chapter:—

"I am also Sensible with what readiness on the Part of the Souldiers, The Incursion was made into the French Plantations Eastward, two years Since, And what benefit we had thereby; I have now a New Neighbour in Those Parts, who will do what is possible to obstruct our fishery & Disturb our Trade, Their Port lying so proper & Advantagious for Such mischief.

I was Therefore willing to See you at This Time, And to have your advice if any thing may be done to prevent those Inconveniencies.

You are very good Judges of our Powers both of men & Money for any Expedition, And I Shall therefore freely refer it to your consideration, Assuring you that on my part I Shall to the utmost put forward the honour of Her Majestys victorious Armes, and the benefit & Security of These Provinces—

Your own Affairs at this Time of year, As well as the Season of action will demand of us soon to Determine, I Desire our Consultation & Resolve herein may be unanimous. And as Secret as may be That we may the better & more Successfully proceed." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 46.

The first action taken upon the Governor's message appears to be a vote of the House, which, together with its reception by the Council, is thus recorded:—

"March 8, 1706-7. A Vote pass'd in the House of Representatives That it is the Opinion of this House, That it is highly adviseable & expedient That an Expedition be forthwith made to subdne the French Enemy in Nova Scotia, & particularly to take the Fort at Port Royal, If all Things requisite for such an Expedition can be obtained:

Which was Read at the Board." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 278.

Sewall thus records this important proceeding in his diary:—

"Feria Septima, Martij 8<sup>o</sup> 1707. . . . Deputies sent in for going to Port-Royal to take it; if what was necessary in order to it might be provided." — Vol. II., p. 181.

The Council, on the tenth, responded to this vote by sending down the resolve which constitutes this chapter.

Thereupon "Mr. Jewett, Mr. Epes, & Mr. Blazrove of the Representatives attended with a Message from the House, Desiring to know Whether his Excellency & Council have considered the Vote of the House sent up on Saturday last, And Whether there be an Inclination in his Excellency & the Board to the Expedition therein proposed." †

The Council then sent "A Message by Coll: Higginson & Mr Payne To Acquaint the House that the Govt & Council are in Earnest to proceed in all Things referring to the Prosecution of the War, that is within their Power for the Honour of her Majesty, the Subduing of her Enemies & the Quiet of her good Subjects. And pray that the Comm<sup>es</sup> may be settled & go forward forthwith." ‡

To this message the House returned another "Message by Cpt: Savage & Cpt: Somersby . . . to pray their Vote on Saturday last, If the Board have not acted thereupon, And then the House would proceed to consider of a Committee

And their Vote was accordingly sent to them." §

Having thus got possession of their vote of the eighth, the record shows that "The Vote of the Board for Appointing Comm<sup>es</sup> of both Houses was return'd from the Representatives with the Concurrence of that House thereto, & the Names of their Committee" ¶ inserted therein, as shown in the chapter.

The order of the Governor and Council referred to in the preamble to this chapter is as follows:—

“Jan. 10, 1706–7. Ordered. That John Foster, Elm Hutchinson & Edward Bromfield Esq<sup>s</sup> wth Lieut<sup>col</sup> Cole Checkley and Capt<sup>n</sup> Ephraim Savage be a Committe to sort and take an Account of the Bills of Credit on the late Colony of the Massachusetts lying in the Treasurers hands.

And of such and so many of the Bills of Credit on this Province as are defaced, worne out & rendred useless, and to seal them up, the Colony and Province Bills, each by themselves in distinct papers & prepare the account thereof to be laid before the General Assembly at their next sitting in order to the disposal of them as they shall think fit, that the Treasurer may be discharged of so many.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 365.

The account of the burning of the bills mentioned in this chapter is given in chapter 135, post.

Chap. 133. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 280. It has not been found in the archives.

One entry only was made in the province treasurer's account* for the exchange of Blagrove's unendorsed bill, and also for the bill held by Jonas Bond, ordered to be exchanged by resolves, 1707, chapter 31.

Chap. 134. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 281. It has not been found in the archives.

The order in Council † for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed April 17, 1707, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

Chap. 135. This chapter is from archives, vol. 101, p. 331. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 281.

The province treasurer's accounts § show that he had credit for all the bills mentioned in this chapter as having been burned. The amounts are expressly carried out in pounds, shillings and pence, except the first, May, 1700, of which he says he had discharged himself in a former account, not now in existence. The charge of eight hundred twenty-two pounds and six shillings was increased to £863 8s. 3d. by including the five per cent advance, which was allowed separately in the other cases.

The petition referred to in the preamble to this chapter is printed in the note to chapter 104 of the resolves of 1705-6, together with the action of the Legislature thereon.

For the votes postponing action upon it see chapter 53, ante, and the foot-note on page 184.

It was read again in Council on the seventeenth of March, this year, and the order which constitutes this chapter passed upon it and sent to the House, where, on the next day, the order was concurred in. On the same day it was consented to by the Governor.

The balance remaining in the hands of the administratrix, as shown in her account, printed in the note to chapter 104 above mentioned, was £136 8s. 4d.

An additional, and apparently final, account was rendered by her June 8, 1710. On the fourteenth the judge of probate approved this account and ordered it to be registered.

A sermon by Mather, entitled “The Doctrine of Singular Obedience,” appears to have been the one referred to in this chapter. No copy professedly printed by order of the Council or General Court has been discovered; but a pamphlet copy, printed by Timothy Green from a short-hand report, is in the library of the late John Carter Brown. A copy of the edition printed by authority is believed to have been purchased, at the Brinley-Library sale, for the Library of Congress; but repeated applications have failed to produce a copy of the title-page, hence it cannot be certainly affirmed that this is the sermon referred to.

A warrant † for paying Nicholas Boone £3 6s. 8d., for two hundred copies of Colman's sermon, was ordered by the Council July 28, 1707, and another, ‡ for paying Samuel Gerrish for paper, and for folding and stitching Mr. Williams's sermon, was ordered December 24, 1707; but no express order has been found for printing a sermon of Mather's this year. The province treasurer's account § shows that Boone and Gerrish were paid for printing “several sermons.”

Chap. 142. This chapter is from archives, vol. 71, pp. 283 and 284. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII, p. 286.

The depredations of the Indian enemy in Massachusetts proper during the month of July, 1706, are described in the notes to chapter 149, post, and chapter 53 of the resolves of 1707.

As shown in the note to the former of these chapters Dudley had promptly informed Colonel Partridge of the attack on Dunstable on the third of July, and the latter had communicated the information to the Governor of Connecticut. No record of reinforcements from that colony, however, sent in response to this intelligence, has been discovered until after the attacks upon Brookfield and Hatfield.

On the twenty-third, tidings were brought to Colonel Partridge, by four Indian messengers || sent from Albany, that another body of hostile French and Indians was on the march towards New England. Only the day before, the News-Letter had announced the return of Captain William Tyng, who had been sent into the woods from Dunstable in pursuit of the enemy, and of Colonel William Tailer, who had been detailed ¶ to aid in putting the frontiers “in a good posture of defence.” The former returned without having met any of the enemy, “who,” continues the News-Letter, “are judged to have had a great many wounded men, with whom they are drawn off at some good distance.”** On that day, also, Dndley embarked †† in the Deptford, man-of-war, for his seat of government in the province of New Hampshire, ‡‡ He did not set out on his return voyage until the thirtieth. §§

* This sermon was advertised in the News-Letter, No. 157, as for sale by “N. Boone.”

¶¶ “Piscataqua, Aug. 1. On Tuesday the 30th of July His Excellency our Governour went on board the Province-Gally, in order to return to Boston for his other Government of Massachusetts-Bay.” — Ibid., No. 120.

Meanwhile hostile demonstrations by the enemy were made both on the western and eastern frontiers. On the twenty-third four men were killed and three taken captive near Exeter.* On the evening of the very day on which Dudley embarked in the Province Galley to return from New Hampshire there was one man killed and another wounded by the Indians at Wells;† and two days later, near Hampton Falls, a man was murdered and a lad carried away captive.‡

The public, however, had been seasonably warned by Dudley, who was not only solicitous that every precaution should be taken against surprise by the enemy coming overland from Canada, but that adequate preparations should be made to repel d'Iberville,§ whose powerful fleet had been looked for from day to day with serious apprehension. As early as the seventh of July, convinced that a hostile force was on the march from Canada, he had written to his council of New Hampshire "signifying that the enemy were designed for Piscataqua, and that we might expect them every hour, ordering that all people go to Garrison at their utmost peril, and that one half of the Militia at least be in readiness to march in a minutes warning, &c."||

Upon this intelligence the following order in council was passed on the eighth:—

"Ordered that Mr. Secretary write to the several Captains of this Province to command all people to Garrison at their utmost peril, and every Captain have the one half of their Companies in readiness for a march upon a minutes warning."—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 479.

A body of men enrolled under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Hilton having been detained nearly a month for want of rations, stringent measures were taken by the Council, on the ninth and tenth, for providing subsistence for them, as follows:—

"[9th] . . . Whereas there is certain intelligence that the enemy is near upon us in a great body, and there being orders for the marching out of sixty men in pursuit of the enemy, and provisions being wanting for the fitting out of the said sixty men;—

* Penhallow describes the attacking party as "French Mohawks," and says they killed four of the English, wounded one, and carried three captive; so that out of ten, only two escaped; that two of the prisoners ("Edward Hall and Samuel Myak") subsequently returned home, after subsisting, for three weeks together, upon only "a few lilly roots and the rhimes of trees." The News-Letter, however, gives the following account:—

"Piscataqua, July 25th. On Tuesday the 23d. Current eleven men about a Mile from Mr. Hilton's Garrison at Exeter mowing in a Field, were insulted by about 40. Indians, One of the two that stood Centinal fired at them, but the other 9 being hard at work, were intercepted from their Guns, of which 2 in the whole were slain, one desperately wounded, two more made their escape, and six wanting, which are supposed to be either kill'd or taken Captive.

§ Besides the action taken by the council of New Hampshire May 8, 1706, as printed in the foot-note on p. 569, ante, the following records of meetings of the board on the fourteenth and twenty-third show that orders for preparations passed the previous year were renewed and put in execution upon receipt of subsequent letters from the governor:—

"His Excellency the Governours Letter dated the 10th instant, relating to news from the West Indies about the French Fleet, and about tenn men more to be posted at her Majestys Fort Wm. and Mary, at New Castle, for a steady watch &c. and that Colonel Packers House in Portsmouth be forthwith fortified in good form, to receive the women and children, &c. was communicated at this Board.

Ordered, that the Treasurer forthwith provide provisions for the tenn souldjers last Imprest for her Majestys service at her Majesty's Fort William and Mary.

As to the fortifying Colonel Packers house, the Gentlemen of the Council was pleased to inquire of the Secretary whether there was not some former order of Council relating thereto; and upon searching the Council Book, found there was an order of Council of the 20th of September last, for fortifying the said Colonel Packers house.

Ordered, that Mr. Secretary send a copy of the said order of Council to his Excellency, that his further pleasure may be known therein."—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 477.

"His Excellency the Governours Letter, dated Boston, 20th May 1706, was read at this Board, signifying that Capt. Redknapp had attended his Excellency with papers, referring to the fortifying Colonel Packers house, and that he had sent the same to the Secretary to be communicated to the Council, and then to be delivered to Capt. Phipps &c. (as on file) which papers were accordingly Communicated at this Board."—Ibid., p. 478.

Ordered that Mr. Secretary immediately send out his warrant for the Impressing of two Barrels of pork, and one hoghead of Biskett, for supplying of the said sixty men. And that the officer have power to search all houses or ware houses within this Town for the finding of the same; and also to impress three men and a boat to carry the said provisions to Lieut. Col. Hiltons." — Ibid., p. 480.

"[10th] . . . Pursuant to his Excellency's Letter of the 7th of July instant, 10 of the clock ante meridiem, Ordered that the Selectmen of the town of Hampton do forthwith send a Barrel of pork to Lt. Col. Hilton's house, out of their Town Stock of provisions for scouting; as he shall see meet, and that the Secretary issue forth his warrant to the Selectmen accordingly." — Ibid., p. 481.

These measures were rendered imperative by the failure of the inhabitants to respond to the repeated calls of the Governor with the promptness and liberality which a realizing sense of their peril would induce,* owing, doubtless, to the fact that for several weeks they had enjoyed a respite † from the murderous assaults of the savages, which were continued in Massachusetts.

Dudley's apprehensions of the approach of the enemy were first excited by reports from Canada, received by him from Albany about the seventeenth of June, as shown in his letter of that date printed in the note to chapter 6, ante; and the appearance of the enemy at Dunstable on the third of July seems to have impressed him with the belief that these marauders were pioneers of the expected army now close at hand. Hence his despatches to Partridge, and through him to Governor Winthrop, which induced the latter to send, in addition to the sixty men ‡ already gone forth from Connecticut to defend the frontiers in Hampshire County, fifty men § with dogs, to scout the woods.

Lieutenant-Colonel Hilton, who was charged with the duty of keeping up a regular scout in New Hampshire, known as the "province scout," had been, as previously intimated, greatly obstructed in that enterprise for want of provisions, and, after having received the above-mentioned orders for marching sixty men, was obliged shortly to disband his force (which he had increased to sixty-four men), for the reasons given in the following record of the council held at New Castle on the sixteenth of July: —

"Lt. Col. Hilton appeared at this Board, and being desired by the Lt. Governour to give an account to this Board relating to the state of the Province and about the Enemy, &c.

Answered, That the Garrisons were all in good order and as to the little Scout, alias Province Scout, he was forced to leave it off, there being eight of the soldiers from Hampton, and the town of Hampton had no provisions for them as the law directs. And as to the sixty four men which he lately marched in pursuit of the Enemy, they are now disbanded by reason he could have no provisions for them, without which he is not capable to goe any more in pursuit of the Enemy." — Ibid.

The next day the house of representatives was called upon to take action in this emergency, when the following proceedings took place: —

"Mr. Secretary Story was sent as a message to call the House of Representatives to this Board, who accordingly came, and his Honour the Lt. Governour made the following Speech, in hæc verba sequen (viz.):

Gentlemen, — The pressing occasions of the warr, both by sea and land, prevents his Excellency's meeting you in person at this present session.

‡ Winthrop's letter of the fourth of July, printed in the note to chapter 4, ante.

§ By the following note by the editors of the Winthrop Papers it would seem that Governor Winthrop approved of sending additional reinforcements to Partridge although apparently they were not actually sent until August: —

" . . . Major Whiting having advised further assistance to Partridge, Fitz-John Winthrop authorizes it by a letter to the Council of July 12, in which he says: 'My present thoughts are more in favour of our owne frontiers, Symsbury and those upon that line, w<sup>ch</sup> the enemy have an easy access to and, being baffled below and Hampshire garrisoned, may make an adventure on our side.'" — Part V., p. 339.

"Hartford, August 5, The Towns in the County of Hampshire being greatly infested by the Sculking Indian Enemy: We are just sending out 50 Men with Dogs, who are to divide into small parties, and range the Woods on both sides the River, if possible to discover and annoy the Enemy." — Boston News-Letter, No. 122.

equal to your neighboring Government this year, would Am<sup>o</sup> to two thousand two hundred pounds.

I acquaint you by reason of Col. Hilton's having not a supply of provisions, he cannot march for security of the Province, and there is no credit in the Treasury.

I present you with his Excellency's Letter as to this weighty affair, not doubting of your readiness and compliance therewith and dispatching of so great a concern, the preservation of her Majesty's subjects depending thereon; and nothing shall be wanting in promoting the same by me.

Colonel Hilton was sent for to this Board to give an account of what provision was needful for the army, and was ordered to go to the House of Representatives and acquaint them with the same." — Ibid., vol. III., p. 324.

On the twentieth the Council passed a further order for the subsistence of Hilton's force, as follows:—

"Ordered that the Treasurer supply Lient. Colonel Hilton from time to time, with such quantities of provisions, ammunition, &c., as he shall have occasion for in marching with any forces against the Enemy; and that the same be paid for out of the 100£ Act, Entitled an Act for supply of the forces with provisions to march against the Enemy." — Ibid., vol. II., p. 482.

After the arrival of Governor Dudley plans for a general scout for the whole province seem to have been matured, and Hilton* was placed in command as colonel. On the thirtieth, just before the Governor's departure, the council passed the following additional order:—

"There having been Circular letters to the Selectmen of every town in the Province to raise provisions after the Rate of ten pounds for every hundred men forthwith for the Service, it is now Directed that upon receipt of Letters from the Selectmen that the provisions are raised according to the said order, that the Council in the absence of the Governour do from time to time dispose the said provisions to be expended by the general Scout under the command of Colonel Hilton, in assistance of the service, till the same be expended; and the Towns severally thereby brought to a just equal expence, when the Towns may return to their former methods of supply, according to the Act of Assembly in that case provided." — Ibid., p. 486.

The General Court of Massachusetts stood prorogued from the thirteenth of July to the seventh of August for the trial of the persons charged with illicit trading with the enemy, and at the opening of the session the Governor declared "The Trouble that I am in by the Impression of the Enemy every where as well as the season of the year will not allow a Long session." †

During the month of August, however, along the whole frontier, only one other murder by the savages was reported, and this at or near Dover.‡ On the western frontier, so far from being called upon to repel the enemy, the military leaders there differed in opinion §

* According to Belknap (vol. I., p. 340), "Hilton was so brave and active an officer that the enemy had marked him for destruction; and for this purpose a party of them kept lurking about his house," and he then proceeds to narrate the particulars of the attack near Exeter on the twenty-third, in which, he says, the enemy "missed the major for this time."

SAMLL PARTRIDGE.

We earnestly desire Capt Hall & men be stayd here, till Indian harvest is over, at least." — Letter to Fitz-John Winthrop: Ibid., p. 344.

Governor Winthrop, in a letter to the Committee of War at Hartford on the twenty-ninth of August, thus comments upon the above request of Partridge:—

" . . . I can not consent to Coll: Partridge his desire of our sould<sup>rs</sup> till their harvest is over; and, indeed, I am hurried betwene two great difficultyes: the way to doe our part for their preservation, and the excessive charge it will necessarily bring upon us. And I am the less inclined to routine our forces, as they seeme to impose upon us, rather than any real necessity they have of our help, that Government being yet full of men and mony; and they have not yet applied to the other Governments for help, who are under the same tye of obligation to assist them. . . ." — Ibid., p. 345.

as to employing the last detail of scouts from Connecticut for the whole period of three weeks, which was the prefixed limit of their time of service; but there, as elsewhere upon the border, though scouts were kept constantly moving along the whole line* no record of even an attempt at invasion during the rest of the year, by the enemy in force, has been discovered, and only one additional murder † is recorded.

That the successive attempts of the enemy this summer to make "an impression upon the English frontiers" were disastrous and discouraging appears from the following item in the News-Letter:—

" . . . The French say that the Indians who made a Descent on our Frontiers this Summer, finding them so Lined with men, they were constrained to throw away their Arms, Blankets, &c. for their more speedy flight, and returned again without so much as a flap to cover their nakedness."—No. 136. November 18 to 25, 1706.

The hopes of continued quiet were strengthened by tidings from Colonel Schnyler, † at Albany, that "the covenant chain" with the Five Nations had been renewed. There were now only two places within the territory claimed by the English that Dudley feared the enemy might occupy as convenient bases of operations against the frontiers; and these were Cowassic on the Connecticut River, and Norridgewalk in Maine. An expedition against the former would require the coöperation of Connecticut; but as the government of that colony could not be persuaded that such an enterprise was judicious, ‡ or indeed that the enemy were assembled there, as Dudley imagined, no attempt was made in that direction.

Norridgewalk was conveniently accessible to the soldiers of New Hampshire, and since, if it should prove to be such a harbor for the enemy as Dudley suspected, its destruction would effectually prevent further raids from that quarter, he determined to call upon the militia of the eastern frontiers to engage in attacking it at the proper time. Meanwhile they were employed in scouting nearer home.

The New Hampshire scouting parties, like those sent from Massachusetts under Tailer and Tyng during the summer, appear to have returned without finding the enemy.

In the autumn, Dudley, evidently deeming the time ripe to take active measures for a demonstration on a larger scale, proceeded to Piscataqua "to visit the frontiers and reform the forces there," § leaving the administration of the government of Massachusetts in the hands of the Council;—Povey, the Lieutenant-Governor, having gone to England.

Since this errand of Dudley to his New-Hampshire government was for a military purpose the proceedings were not a matter of public record, except by the adjutant, or the secretary of war, for the time being, or by the commanders of small expeditions, in the journals usually kept by them; and hence it has not been ascertained what schemes were projected by Dudley and his advisers there, neither has any record been found of the departure or of the arrival of scouting parties, nor of any conflict with the enemy. The Governor set out on his return to Boston on the twenty-fourth of October, ¶ having seen the muster-rolls allowed for the commands of Colonel Hilton, and Captains Dow, Phipps and Tuttle, and an order passed for paying them.** adjourned from day to day until the twenty-eighth, when His Excellency addressed the Assembly in a speech in which the following passages occur:—

“Gentlemen, I am now to acquaint you That the Summer is past & by the Favour of Almighty God, We have been happily preserved from the Inroads of the Indian Enemy, Notwithstanding their great Distance of Settlement from us (being gone over to the French *) has given them Advantage to come with more Secrecy upon the Frontiers, We<sup>h</sup> has very much depended upon our good Intelligence of their Motions towards the several Parts, & our Readiness to receive them, we<sup>h</sup> nevertheless has greatly aggravated the Summer Charge: But I should be wanting in my Duty to her Majesties good Subjects, If I did not acknowledge & Recommend to you the Readiness & Cheerfulness of the Soldiers in all Parts, both of the standing Forces & of the Militia to march at the shortest Warning, As well as of your Readiness to support the Charge, . . . And that We may not burthen the Province with any long & unnecessary Attendance here, I shall give you the present State of the Forces in the several Parts, & desire your Advice therein.” — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 246.

The third session was not prorogued until the seventh of December. During the continuance of that session the murder at Saco, mentioned in the News-Letter of the fifteenth of November, was the only known instance of bloodshed by the enemy.

The second day after the prorogation Dudley began to devise measures for a winter expedition against Norridgewalk, to consist of two hundred men from Massachusetts and forty from New Hampshire, as shown in the following letter:—

“Boston, December 9th, 1706.

DEAR SR.

I have determined to visit Norridgewalk the 10th of January next, and accordingly am raising in this Province two hundred men to be commanded by Col. March, if his health will permit, whom alone I have acquainted besides yourself of my intention — therefore desire it to be secret, — and must expect forty men of your Province, which I would have volunteers, otherwise they must be drawn men to be commanded by some very good officer; and if Col. March fail me, I must expect your service to command the whole party.

The men must be well fixed, clothed and shod with snow shoes in good order. Communicate this order to the gentlemen of her Majesty's council as soon as may be. Attend them yourself to concert the matter, that they may provide victuals and blankets if need be. Our last departure will be from Casco Bay. Desire the Gentlemen of the Council to keep it secret, lest the noise of it get into the woods.

I am yr. affectionate uncle,

J. DUDLEY.

To the Hon. Lt. Col. Hilton.” — Farmer and Moore's Coll., vol. I., p. 248.

On the sixteenth Dudley wrote again to Hilton, who communicated the letter (which is still preserved †) to the council. Its purport appears in the following entry in the records of the council, under date of the nineteenth of December:—

“His Excellency's Letter dated Boston the 16th Xber, 1706, relating to the preparing forty souldjers to march with others to Norridgewack, and to be fitted with ammunition, Snow-shoes, provisions, &c. for thirty six days, and Mr. Waldron be desired to assist therein, &c, was read at this Board.

Ordered that the Secretary write to all the Council to meet on Saturday next, 12 of the clock, at noon, and to write to Lieut. Col. Hilton to be present at that time.” — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 491.

On the twenty-first the council again met, and their proceedings are shown in the following extract from their records:—

“Pursuant to an order of Council of the 19th instant, Lieut. Col. Hilton, being sent for to appear this day at the Board accordingly came, and two letters from his Excellency directed to the said Lt. Colonel Hilton, one bearing date the 9th instant and the other the 16th, were read at this Board; both which Letters related to the obtaining of forty volunteers in this Province, to join with two hundred of the Massachusetts, and to be commanded by the said Colonel Hilton, &c. to march upon an expedition to the Eastward agst the common Enemy.

The Gentlemen of the Council having discoursed the said Lieut. Colonel Hilton about what might be wanting towards furnishing the said volunteers, he acquainted this Board that as to Snow-shoes and Mogsasheens, there were enough; and by the advice of this Board, the said Lieut. Colonel Hilton did say he would goe to Boston, and discourse his Excellency fully relating to the said march.

Ordered, that Lieut. Colonel Hilton be paid forty shillings out of the Treasury for his riding Charges to Boston, to discourse his Excellency in the above affair, and that the Treasurer be desired to advance the same.” — Ibid., p. 492.

The result of Hilton's conference with Dudley appeared some weeks later in the following entry of an order on January 13, 1706-7, by the council of New Hampshire, which shows that the movement against the Indians at Norridgewalk was already fairly under way, and that Casco Fort was made the base of supplies:—

“Ordered, that there be a Shallopp forthwith Imprest with three men in order to transport the Stores and provisions for Col. Hilton and Souldjers to Casco Fort, upon an Expedition to the Eastward against the common Enemy; and that the said Shallopp be brought to Mr. Treasurers' Wharf, to take in the said Stores and provisions; and that the Secretary send out his warrant directed to James Levitt, Constable, to Impress the same, and to sail with the said Shallopp to Casco, and land the said stores at Casco Fort.” — Ibid., p. 495.

* See foot-note, p. 420, ante.

† History of the Dudley Family, p. 192.

The following order, preserved in the Massachusetts archives, endorsed by Dudley, apparently on the fifteenth of January, on a copy of a letter from him to Sampson Sheafe, shows that by that date March had declined to command the expedition and that Hilton had been selected in his place:—

“S<sup>r</sup>
Draw a Comission for Lev<sup>t</sup> Colonel Hilton to Comand the forces of both provinces in the present Expedition to Norigwalk. & let M<sup>r</sup> Comissary have it presently to send away.
Wednesday. your serv<sup>t</sup>
[Addressed] To M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Addington J. DUDLEY
Boston.” — Vol. 51, p. 152.

Neither Hilton's commission nor his instructions on this occasion have been found; but the following extract from Farmer and Moore's Collections,* in which, apparently, they quote from the original commission, shows the destination of the forces and the position assigned to Hilton:—

“This commission as ‘Chief Commander of the new raved forces, within the Provinces of the Massachusetts Bay and New-Hampshire, for Her Ma<sup>t</sup>y's service in an expedition to Noridgewock & other the Eastern parts against the French and Indian enemy and Rebels; and Captain of the Company raised for that service in the Province of New-Hampshire,’ was dated January 15, 1706-7.”

How soon after receiving his commission Hilton began his march does not appear, unless the twenty-first of January, given in an equivocal manner by Penhallow, may be taken as the true date. Hilton's progress was interrupted by the mildness of the weather, which prevented the formation of ice of sufficient thickness to bear the party, and so, after marching several days, he turned back, reaching Black Point on the seventh of February. Here, following a trail in the woods, he came upon a wigwam in which he found and killed “2 stoute men & an old Squaw,” and captured a young squaw and two children, whom he brought away.†

On the twelfth of February according to the News-Letter,‡ but on the thirteenth according to Dudley,§ Hilton had returned from the expedition “with all his men in good health.”

Upon the promise of being protected by her captors from the vengeance of her people, the squaw taken prisoner at Black Point divulged to them the lodging-place, near Sagadahoc, of a company of the hostile savages. Upon receiving information of this from Hilton, in an interview at Boston, on the thirteenth, Dudley suggested to the Council that Hilton be immediately sent upon another expedition to attack this body of the enemy. The action of the Board thereupon is shown in the following entry in the executive records of the council:—

“Feb. 13, 1706-7. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that he had been attended by Colo Hilton commander of the Forces intended on an expedition to Norridgewock, who say's they were obstructed in their proceeding for want of Ice to march up the River, and having in their Return met a small party of the Enemy, they are informed by them, that the Eastern Indians are drawn down to the sea side, and about one hundred family's of them are now on Arowsick Island in Kennebeck River and at Sagadahock in very great distress for want of Provisions.

And the s<sup>d</sup> Colo offering his service wth one hundred and twenty men & sloop's & Whale-boats to attend them to enterprize an expedition against the s<sup>d</sup> Indians.

* Vol. I., p. 248.

† Pike's Journal, p. 144. Penhallow (p. 49) says he killed four and took “a Squaw alive with a Papoose at her breast which he preserved.” Dudley (in his letter to Partridge, February 13, 1706-7: Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 369) says, “In their return in a circle, as I had ordered y<sup>m</sup>, they fell upon seven of the enemy, three men, two woemen & two children (one of y<sup>m</sup> Cap<sup>t</sup> Sam, a considerable rogue) & have destroyed them all except the children, w<sup>ch</sup> they brought home.”

The following is the account given in the News-Letter of the seventeenth of February:—

“... in their return betwixt Casco Bay and Wells, they discovered a Track which they followed until they came to a Wigwam, wherein were two Indian Men of the Eastern Rebels, viz. one called Capt. Sam, the other Alexander, both known Notorious Rogues, with two Squaw's and two Children, the two men and one of the Squaws were kill'd, the other Squaw and two Children they took Prisoners. There was another young Fellow that belonged to the Wigwam who was not within it, that took to his Heels upon seeing our people, and they ran after him for two days, at last they came up with one of the Two Doggs he had with him and kill'd it, the other Dogg they heard squeel in the night, and our people supposed he also kill'd that for fear of discovering him, in our peoples pursuing him he threw away his Blanket, Breeches and Powder Horn, to further his flight; and that night a Snow falling, and being stark naked, 'tis judg'd he could not live.” — No. 148.

Further particulars of this affair appear in the following order in Council for a warrant to pay the premium allowed by the act (Province Laws, 1706-7, chapter 7, § 1) for the killing of hostile Indians:—

“May 3, 1707. It being made certain as well by the Scalps brought in, as the Oaths of Cap<sup>t</sup> Samuel Chesley, Samuel Dudley and Arthur Bragden, that there were two Men of the Indian Enemy or Rebels kill'd in fight by the forces under Col<sup>l</sup> Winthrop Hilton being Volunteers under pay, in their return from Casco Bay in February past, one of them being kill'd by Cap<sup>t</sup> Chesley himselfe.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the sum of Forty pounds to the s<sup>d</sup> Col<sup>l</sup> Hilton to be equally shared to himselfe, Officers, and Soldiers proportionably to their Wages as a premium or Reward for their good service, pursuant to the Act of Encouragement.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 396.

The province treasurer's account shows that the above amount was paid. — Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 280.

‡ No. 148. The Rev. Joseph Green also records in his diary on the twelfth, the “News of six Indians killed and taken at ye eastward by our army.” — Essex Institute Hist. Coll., vol. X., p. 75.

§ Letter to Colonel Partridge, Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 369, and Executive Records of the Council, ut supra.

Advised. that his Excellency be pleased to encourage & set forward the sd expedition; and that all things be supplied accordingly. Also that Mr Commissary present Col<sup>o</sup> Hilton with six pounds for his Travail and extraordinary expences." — Vol. 4, p. 378.

On the same day Dudley wrote to his council of New Hampshire, requesting them to make the necessary preparations for Hilton's voyage to Kennebec, whereupon, four days later, they passed the following order:—

"Pursuant to his Excellency's Letter of the 13th instant, relating to Colonel Hilton's march to the Eastward:

Ordered that the Treasurer provide and furnish Colonel Hilton and thirty soldiers with provisions and ammunition for forty two days, according to Establishment proper for an Expedition to the Eastward against the French and Indian Enemy; and what apparel the souldjers may be furnished with, the value thereof is to be deducted out of their pay.

Ordered that John Abbott with his Shalopp be forthwith imprest, and two able men, to attend Colonel Hilton and his orders upon an Expedition to the Eastward against the French and Indian enemy, and that the Secretary issue forthe his Warrant directed to James Levitt, Constable, accordingly." — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 497.

On the nineteenth, "His Excellency acquainted the Council, that upon further information of the state of the Enemy at Kennebeck River &c<sup>a</sup> he had ordered an addition to the forces under Col<sup>o</sup> Hilton intended on an expedition thither, and another sloop & more Whaleboats to attend them, the Briganteen Hope, three open Sloops and fourteen Whaleboats, being taken up & equipped on that service."*

For this service there were engaged as transports (besides the shallop, above mentioned, and a second sloop Endeavor, Jacob Parker, master†) the sloops Endeavor, Gideon Lowle,‡ master.§ the Speedwell, Elisha Corney, master,|| and the Sarah and Mary, Stephen Akerman, master.¶

Lieutenant-Colonel John March, who served on this expedition, at the head of a force of between seventy and eighty men, "in conjunction with Lieutenant-Colonel Hilton," was of Newbury; as also were the masters of some of the sloops. Hence it seems probable that March with the companies under his command sailed from Newbury,** and that Hilton sailed from Piscataqua.

On the tenth of March the following report of the expedition appeared in the News-Letter:—

"Boston, On Thursday the 6th Currant, by an Express from Col. Hilton, his Excellency received an Account of the Success of the Forces lately sent into the Eastern parts, viz That on Tuesday †† the 4th Instant, about one a Clock in the morning, the Colonel with a Detachment of the Forces under his Command, fell upon a party of the Indian Rebels, being nineteen in number, at a place call'd Cox's Head within Kennebeck River, whereof nine were men, most of them infamously noted for their bloody Villanies, Mamouson, alias Pemaquid Tom, being one of the Company; The rest were Squaws & smaller Indians.

Eighteen were kill'd on the spot, a Boy about Eight years old was saved alive.

Through the Favour of Almighty God, not one of ours was kill'd or wounded; Only in the Action, the Squaw lately taken by Col. Hilton in his former Expedition, unhappily received a Wound from one of our men by mistake.

This Accident is very much Lamented, for that the Squaw had been very serviceable in making known the places of the Indians Residence: She is sent to Piscataqua for Cure; and is in a hopeful way of Recovery.

Col. Hilton was again Embarking the Forces on the Transports to go in further quest of the Enemy, Resolving to range the parts all the Shoar along. Our Forces were all in good health, and animated with their Success further to pursue the Enemy." — No. 151.

From the following item in the next number of the News-Letter it appears that up to the thirteenth of March no further tidings had been received of the progress of the expedition:—

"Piscataqua, March 13. We are in daily expectation of hearing from the Forces to the Eastward that are gone in Quest of the Indian Enemy, and hope they have met with another party of them." — No. 152.

* Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 379. The transports employed in conveying Hilton's forces were in commission from the sixteenth of February to the twenty-eighth of March, but March's men were paid from the eighteenth, which seems to have been the duration of the expedition.

|| Ibid., p. 459 (and Mass. Archives, vol. 123, p. 20).

** This conjecture is confirmed by the following entry in the executive records of the council:—

"May 6, 1707. Resolved. That the Souldiers that served under Col<sup>o</sup> March in the Months of February and March past, on an Expedition to the Eastward other than such as are enlisted in the present Expedition to Nova Scotia be discharged on the day of their return back to Newbury. . . . And that Mr Commissary General reform the Muster Roll accordingly." — Vol. 4, p. 398.

†† "Mar. 3, 1706/7. Our souldiers (in number 110 officers and all) in y<sup>e</sup> Dead of the night, surprized two Indian-wigwams at a place called Coxhead, near Saga-de-Hoc. where killed 18 of the enemy, & took an Indian-boy. Seven or eight of y<sup>m</sup> were stout fellows. Wanerson a Sagamore was here slain, but the poor Squaw taken at B: point, being pilot to our men, was sorely wounded by one Edward Hall." — Pike's Journal, p. 145.

This is an estimate, supposing one hundred and ten to be the total and that Hilton contributed only the thirty for whom he drew provisions.

On that day John Abbott, with his shallop and two men, impressed on the seventeenth of February to attend Hilton upon this expedition, were "dismissed out of her Majesty's service, there being no further occasion at present for said men or Shallop."*

A week later still the News-Letter contained the following item:—

"Piscataqua, March 20. Yesterday arrived at York a Fishing Ketch which adviseth that Col. Hilton Commander in Chief of the Forces to the Eastward is returned to Casco, having ranged the Eastern Coast, but could meet with no more of the Indian Enemy."—No. 153.

By the twenty-eighth the expedition returned, bringing news which fully confirmed the News-Letter's report of the tenth, save that the date of the attack is given as the third.† The squaw, who seems to have been dangerously wounded in this encounter, was brought back to Piscataqua, and by careful nursing recovered, residing ever after in Hilton's family.‡

Of this exploit the tidings reached Boston, as recorded by Sewall in the passage quoted from his Diary in the note to chapter 130, ante, on the sixth of March, just after the appointment by the Legislature of a half-day of prayer to be kept on the seventh by the whole General Court.

For his services in this and the preceding attempted expedition to Norridgewalk a warrant § upon the province treasurer was issued to pay Hilton forty pounds in full for his wages, "he being sixteen weeks upon the same;" which was duly paid.¶ He also received, besides the forty pounds, above mentioned, for two scalps taken at Black Point, one hundred sixty pounds ¶ for the eight scalps of the men slain at Cox's Head—these premiums to be apportioned among him and the men under his command in the respective expeditions.

While Hilton's force was out in the expedition to Norridgewalk, Dudley received a letter from Colonel Schuyler advising that "a party of French and Indians from Canada, intended to make a descent on some part of this Province, and to come lower down, than the Western Towns, which they had formerly found sufficiently strengthened to receive them."**

The Governor thereupon wrote to the council of New Hampshire, on the twenty-second of January, "setting forth that Major Smith would give notice to the Council of orders which he had rec'd from his Excellency, in expectation of a considerable body of the Enemy which was marched upon us; and that every body be in strict Garrison, and that a Scout be presently sent out under Capt. Davis or some other good Officer, &c."†† The record proceeds,—

"The several Captains of the Militia of each Town of this Province being sent for to this Board, all appeared in order to consult of proper methods relating to the security of her Majesty's Subjects against the French and Indian Enemy.

Whereas this Board is informed, that notwithstanding the Enemy is out in a vast body, yet several persons are daily out with several teams of Oxen some miles in the woods, upon the Frontiers, whereby they lye themselves exposed to the danger of the Enemy, and the Enemy may thereby be furnished with provisions, &c.

Ordered. That the several Captains of the Militia of the Frontier Towns call in all the said Teams, and suffer none to goe into the woods during the space of twenty days, upon their utmost peril; and that the Secretary issue forth orders to the several Captains accordingly.

Ordered. that Capt. James Davis command five men with sufficient arms and ammunition and snow-shoes, as a Scout, to range the woods betwixt Salmon Falls and Kingston, or elsewhere at the heads of the Towns, for the best discovery of the Enemy; according to his discretion, and he is hereby Impowered to impress the said five men if he has occasion, out of any of the Companies of Militia in y<sup>e</sup> Province, and he is to continue the said Scout from time to time till further order, and that the Secretary issue forth his warrant accordingly.

Ordered, that Mr. Treasurer find the said Capt. Davis and five men as a Scout, from time to time, with all provisions, till further order, and that the same be paid out of the Treasury."—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 495.

On the next day the Governor communicated Schuyler's letter to the Council of Massachusetts, and "acquainted" them "what Orders he had Express'd to the several parts, to give Notice thereof, and to command them to close Garrison, and keep out good Scouts, and what forces †† he had ordered to strengthen the Frontiers of Essex and Middlesex, and dispatch away Col<sup>o</sup> Hunt to Groton with orders to command the Forces on that side."***

The report from Albany apparently received confirmation on the seventh of February by the discovery, on the Massachusetts frontier, of a body of the enemy, as thus narrated in the News-Letter of the tenth, which also records the action thereupon taken by the Governor:—

* Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 499.

†† The companies of horse sent out at that time appear to be those of Captain John Chandler of Woodstock, of ten troopers, on the west, and Colonel Ephraim Hunt (Stephen Williams, captain) sent to Groton. The foot companies appear to be those of Captain Josiah Parker, Sergeant Jonathan Lawrence, and Captain Seth Wyman of Woburn, all of whom were of Middlesex.—Ibid., pp. 433, 439, 445, 544, and vol. 6, p. 74; also Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 421, and vol. 123, pp. 12, 13, 20.

“On Fryday Night [the seventh] His Excellency received an Express from Groton, that a Party of ours having been sent out several days before to range the Woods, had made a discovery of the Enemy about 40 miles off that place: Whereupon His Excellency forthwith ordered a Reinforcement * of those Parts, and other the Frontiers, and expressed the Intelligence thereof to the Chief Military Officers within the several Counties of Mid-dlesex, Essex, the Provinces of New-Hampshire and Maine, with Orders to be upon their Guard, and in readiness to repel the Enemy wheresoever they might happen to fall.” — No. 147.

Still further confirmation of Schuyler's report came on the thirteenth, from the squaw captured by Hilton at Black Point, who averred that Ramezay, the commandant at Montreal, was “on this side the lake [Champlain] with a body of men, Bombazeene & Estouebuit with him.” † On the eleventh Dudley “marched 160 men from Groton for Manadnuck [Mountain], where [he adds] it is presumed by my scout the enemy is.” †

The Governor improved the opportunity the rumor afforded to again suggest to Colonel Partridge the propriety of moving against Cowassic, expressing his belief that there was certainly a party there, and “these must needs pass home that way.” † He added, “I am of opinion that if 200 men marched to Coassett, they would certainly finde a p<sup>tie</sup> there & these returning. I desire you to move the officers from Connecticut that they will march thither, & you must joyne to them a proper numb<sup>r</sup> of yo<sup>r</sup> men. They cannot expect much from me.” †

No substantial foundation, however, for the report of an intended invasion from Canada was discovered upon further inquiry and waiting. The excursion to Monadnock proved fruitless, nor did there appear any occasion for strengthening the frontiers in New Hampshire and Maine; and as for the proposed march to Cowassic, a council of war convened by Colonel Partridge immediately upon his receipt of Dudley's letter of the thirteenth “resolv'd on the negative: that it was impracticable” — thus sustaining the judgment of Governor Winthrop ‡ by the deliberate opinion of a military tribunal — “the officers or committee of militia being present.” §

Preparations for the coast defence were going on during all the other military excitements of the summer. Although d'Iberville's fleet failed to appear, there were reports from Martinique that four armed sloops had sailed about the first of June for the coast of New England. ¶ The fortifications of Boston and New York were nearly completed by the first week in August, § by which time Rhode Island had become aroused to the necessity of preparing to resist invasion by sea; and by the middle of the month the inhabitants of Newport had thrown up breastworks around the town, and were engaged in further fortifying the place.** Except these occasional alarms, and the prevalent fear of the sudden appearance of d'Iberville, there was little or no apprehension of danger, or of loss, by the enemy's naval assaults south of Nova Scotia.

The operations of the belligerents by sea and land did not interrupt their exchange of prisoners. Besides the exchanges made between Boston and Canada, Captain William Rous, who, on the twentieth of February, 1705-6, had brought seventeen prisoners from Port Royal to Boston, brought seven more on the tenth of June in the sloop Anne, under a flag of truce, and reported that eight more were on the way in the Hope, †† a brigantine which he had ransomed at that port, and that these were “all the English prisoners that were

GENTLEMEN, — Yor post delivered me yo<sup>r</sup> letter of ye 16th the same night at 10 of the clock, with those from Coll: Partridge & Major Whiting directed to yo<sup>r</sup> selves, as alsoe the copies of Gov. Dudley & Capt Belchers letters to Coll: Partridge; wch I have considered, and in regard the alarme continues and that the people of Hampshire are under apprehensions that the enemy may infest those townes, I am willing Major Whiting with our forces under his comand be continued in that county untill the third day of March next. In wch tyme the enemy (if there be any) will be retired or disperst, as it's impossible to continue in such a body as is reported. But if there be farther and real discovery of the enemies advance into those parts, then I leave it with you to continue our forces there some tyme longer, givinge me act of the necessity of it. I have not yet seeme to my satisfaction, in any of the papers transmitted to me, a certaine act of a discovery of the enemy, their number and rendezvous. If the discovery be made by the squaw taken by Coll: Hilton, her act of Monsieur Ramsy on this side the lake with a 1000 men does not in my opinion amount to soe much as will excuse the trouble & hurry it has occasioned to us. But probably by this tyme you have a more perticular & perfect act of this matter, & I doe recommend to you to direct our forces as shall appear to you most conducive of the publick safety. I have wrot to Major Whiting, as you will se correspondant with this, wch is a present direction to him. I am very much contented with his expeditious march to those townes, wch did soe timely succour and comfort their feares upon this last alarme. there.* The last of the French prisoners to be returned to Port Royal were sent in the "stone-sloop" of sixty tons which had been captured by Captain John Calley in the bay of Port Royal and brought to Casco Bay, as reported in the News-Letter of the eighth of July.† This vessel sailed from Nantasket on the thirtieth of August,‡ with the brigantine Hope and the French bark Marie, — the sloop and the Marie having first been carefully searched for contraband articles, and "eight new fire arms, Bullets, Shot & wool" taken from the latter on the twenty-seventh by order of the representatives.§

There yet remained some ninety English prisoners in Canada,|| besides those whom Subercase captured in his descent on Newfoundland the previous year. Of the measures taken to recover the former, and of the result of these measures, an account is given in the note to chapter 38 of the resolves of 1707. Of the Newfoundland prisoners probably all that survived accompanied Subercase when he went to Port Royal to succeed de Brouillan, after the short term of Bonaventure, who was acting governor while the latter was gone to France. Subercase, who had been appointed in April,¶ 1706, arrived at the seat of his new government apparently some time in December. Not long after his arrival he shipped to Boston thirty-four or thirty-five** prisoners in a sloop under a flag of truce, Louis Aubert du Forillon †† master. Her arrival on this coast is thus noticed in the News-Letter of the sixth of January, 1706-7: —

"Piscataqua, Jan. 2. On Thursday last the 26th day of Decemb. there arrived at Nantucket near to Wells in the Province of Main, A Flag of Truce from Port Royal with 34 English Prisoners, who had been out of Port Royal about a month before, which said Prisoners came from Placentia in a French Man of War of 36 Guns, with Monsieur Subercasse (mentioned in our Num. 139. to have a Commission for the Government of Port Royal.)

There came also a Flyboat from Placentia of 8 Guns, being a Store Ship, which was again Laden and ready to Sail for France when the said Prisoners came from Port-Royal. Of the above Prisoners belonging to Boston are, Messieurs, Arthur Jeffers, Peter Signiac, Allen Southmead, Solomon Gardner, Abraham Lewis, John White, Thomas Dawson, and 7 more belongs to N. York." — No. 142.

Two days later Mr. Sampson Sheafe, the deputy-collector of customs for New Hampshire, reported to the council the arrival of the sloop at Portsmouth and that he had ordered some men on board of her lest she might carry French goods for the purposes of trade, and prayed that the master be examined as to whence he came and in relation to his cargo, etc. Thereupon the master of the sloop appeared and —

" . . . produced his pass-port, dated the 15 December, 1706 at Port Royal; as also a List of the Names of the English Prisoners he brought from thence, and also shewed his Orders and Instructions by which he was to deliver all his Cargo to his Excellency, Joseph Dudley, Esq. Governour, &c, and to noe other, for and towards the payment of the French prisoners debts, who were lately sent to Port Royal from Boston, by way of Exchange, &c.

The Council understanding the said Sloop to be a Flag of Truce, and by the said Master's Instructions that he was to deliver all his Cargo to his Excellency, as above said, Ordered, that he be admitted to proceed on his voyage to Boston, first giving an account to the Collector of all his Cargo, &c." — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 493.

On the twentieth the News-Letter announced the arrival of the Frenchman at Boston, as follows: —

"On Saturday the 18th. Currant arrived here from Piscataqua, the Flag of Truce that came from Port-Royall, with our Prisoners mentioned in our Numb. 142." — No. 144.

By an item in the News-Letter of the thirteenth,†† it would seem that the enterprising news-gatherer had had an interview with some of the prisoners before the sloop sailed from New Hampshire, and learned from them of the disaster that befell a French privateer of twelve guns and seventy men (which sailed from Placentia in the latter end of May), in an encounter with a merchantman of about twenty guns, "which he took to be a New Englander."

On the twenty-third the Governor communicated to the Council a letter addressed to him by Subercase §§ and brought by du Forillon; but not until the nineteenth of February did he communicate a draught of his letter in reply to Subercase.|||| The intervening time was spent, presumably, in discharging and disposing of the cargo and in getting together the French prisoners,||| whom Dudley returned to Port Royal in the same vessel. In provisioning the vessel for the subsistence of the prisoners returned, a generous allowance was made for "the spoyle & imbezelmēt made of their provisions, by our prisoners coming hither."||| A further delay of nine or ten days induced the Council to pass the following order: —

Soon after Subercase had been appointed governor, Dudley seems to have conceived, or revived, the project of striking a decisive blow at Port Royal. To this end he deemed it desirable, if not necessary, that the New-England colonies, and, if possible, the Governor of New York also, should join in the enterprise. As early as the tenth of February, before Hilton had brought his little army back from Norridgewalk, and while du Porillon was still in Boston awaiting an opportunity to return to Port Royal with the French prisoners liberated by Dudley in exchange for the English prisoners from Placentia, the latter broached the subject to Governor Winthrop, as follows:—

"To the Honorable John Winthrop Esq: Governour of her Majesty's Colony of Connecticut, New-London.

ROXB. 10. Febr. 1706[-7].

SE,—By a flag of truce from Port Royal I am advised of the arrivall of a new Governour there, Mr Supercass, with order to settle new fortification & strengthen himself; which is greatly to the annoyance of our navigation, upon which they must live unless wee remove them, and there seems a great inclination to it in the trading part in these provinces. I am of opinion that a thousand men, with two or three ships of strength, besides transports, may drive all the country into their fort, and in a short time starve them out. I am loath to speak of such a thing unless I were able to go thro' with it. I desire your advice upon the matter, and must expect a number of men from your Governour to joyn with the forces of these Provinces. If we go, it must be early in April. The benefit will be equall to us all, and if you can think it advisable, I desire to hear from you as soon as may be. I believe Road Island will come in. I would not have the matter made publick, least we do not proceed, or the enemy be advised, which would both be inconvenient. We are alarmed on every side in expectation of a descent from Quebeck. I hope your Hartford people will be ready to assist the upper towns on the river. I am Sr your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.

You will pardon this; I write by a clerck, being not well." — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 367.

This appeal was inopportune. Even if Winthrop had had such confidence in Dudley's wisdom and ability as to be inclined to look with favor upon his military projects, the colony of Connecticut was in no condition to contribute either men or supplies sufficient to satisfy Dudley's expectations.

As far back as December† the government of that colony had evidence that the enemy had been tampering with the Owyantinoek and Potatuck tribes settled near Waterbury, and it had required the exercise of the greatest fortitude, patience, and circumspection to keep control of these savage neighbors, who, though nominally friendly, were not steadfast.

It was while thus menaced at home that Connecticut had been again urged by Dudley to send an armed force to dislodge a supposed company of hostile savages at Cowassic, in the primeval forest, hundreds of miles distant up the Connecticut River. While declining to indulge the Governor of Massachusetts by approving his hobby, the colonial government had, nevertheless, sent sufficient reinforcements to the frontier towns in Hampshire County to render their garrisons proof against any probable attack of the enemy, and had kept bodies of active troops energetically employed in scouting the woods in that county, so as, virtually, to relieve the administration at Boston of all care or anxiety in regard to the entire western end of the province. Dudley had required this favor by enlisting companies of the Moheags into the Massachusetts service without the knowledge of Winthrop, and retaining them against his protest.‡

It has already appeared that the wary and discerning Governor of Connecticut had repeatedly declined to accept Dudley's opinion, or the reports and rumors coming directly or indirectly from the Indian enemy, as sufficient ground for action which might involve his government in useless expense, and expose the inhabitants of his own frontier to the assaults of domestic or foreign savages. The result had proved his sagacity; and now, while Connecticut was reinforcing her own frontiers § for protection against a threatened insurrection of savage tribes domiciled within her own borders, and while another appeal to rally at the Hampshire frontier or to join in a march to Cowassie was imminent,* Dudley could hardly have expected the hearty coöperation of Connecticut in his grand scheme of conquest at Port Royal.

§ "New-London, Febr. 3d. Our Frontier Towns on the Western part of this Colony have been lately alarmed, with apprehensions of danger from some of the Indians that are on the back of these Towns; which has caused our Governour to take this day a Journey to Hartford—in order to Reinforce the Frontiers to expel the Enemy where they might chance to fall on." — Boston News-Letter, No. 147.

On the twenty-fifth of February Winthrop replied to Dudley as follows :—

“NEW LONDON, Feb: 25th 1706.

S<sup>r</sup>, — I was forst to omit my returne by the last post to your letter of the 10th instant, being much indisposed after my returne from Hartford, where I stayde a few dayes to visit our frontiers. Your Exc<sup>ly</sup>s proposall to reduce Port Royall is a matter of great consideration, as it may many wayes advance her Majesty's interest, and it has not formerly been thought a difficult enterprize to attack it, nor now much stronger to indure a shock. Among many wayes that may be proposed to surprize them, that methode you mention to drive the country into their fort may not be difficult, and tis probable that vpon their discovery of our ships they will readely of themselves repaire to it, and may there be surprized, if they doe not foresee the mischeif and not provide against it. The neerenes of their situatiou to us gives them advantage to intrude vpon her Majesty's right in these parts and does greatly obstruct our trade and navigation; therefore fit to be reduced. Their settlement has such naturall advantages to strengthen itself that a little longer tyme will make it a Dunkirk to this country, and the French seeme to project it already by sending a new Governor with great stores to fortify and strengthen himself, and will doe all that is possible to defend it against us; but that is but a strawe and will not affright us. Yet the temper of our people (tho very stout) is generally very thoughtfull and cautious; and tis possible some may insinuate that tho' wee should succede in the designe, yet if vpon the conclusion of a peace (weh one would think not far off) it should be restored to them, the honor of our succes will soone be forgotten, and wee should much resent that we have lavisht our blood and treasure. And tis not unlikely but others will consider that at this tyme, when wee are every day alarmed and expect considerable partyes of the enemy from Canada to infest our frontiers, it may be hazardous to draw out of the country soe many choice men as you mention will be proper to carry on the designe. But your Exc<sup>ly</sup> (beside your own opinion) has round about you the best advice that can be, and none can be added to it. Yo<sup>r</sup> Exc<sup>ly</sup> desiring the designe may be strict, I have therefore returned it to you, and tis now noe where but in your owne breast, untill you think fit to communicate to the Council & Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly, who you know have the power to conclude all affaires of this moment. I am sorry for your indisposition, weh I hope is well over. I am S<sup>r</sup>,
Yo<sup>r</sup> very humble serv<sup>t</sup>,

p. 370.

It is difficult to conceive how this missive could be excelled for adroit sarcasm, deftly concealed under the guise of candor, yet so kindly expressed that it might well be accepted as an approval did it contain the profession of a purpose, or even a desire, to coöperate. The allusion to the possibility of incurring the censure of “others” for leaving the country open to an attack from Canada, by drawing out of it “so many choice men,” at a particularly perilous juncture, is perhaps the neatest thrust in the letter; and one that must have been felt.

Dudley was more successful in his application to Rhode Island. Precisely what he wrote to the authorities there has not been discovered, but the following is the act of the assembly passed, apparently, on the twenty-fifth of February in response to his request :—

“Voted, Whereas Col. Dudley hath requested aid against Her Majesty's enemies :

Be it enacted by this Assembly and the authority thereof, and it is hereby enacted, that if Major Wm. Wanton or Capt. John Wanton, can be prevailed upon, but if they cannot be prevailed with to head a quota of men, then shall His Honor the Governor, with advice of his Council on the Island, or others that shall be appointed with them, make choice of a Commander, and to be such an one as the soldiers shall accept; and to be on the service four months and no more, without they see good to continue longer.

And it shall be in the power of the Governor, with the advice of the Deputy Governor, and assistants aforesaid, with Major Henry Tew, or the major part of them, shall have full power † to impress a vessel, not exceeding eighty tons, with great gns and small and other necessary stores for war; and to grant a commission to beat up for volunteers throughout the colony, to the number of seventy or eighty, but not to exceed. And if there appear not enough to make up said number of seventy, then they shall have power to impress, but not to impress above forty-eight. And all charges shall be paid out of the general treasury, by a tax laid on the inhabitants in this colony; always provided, that they shall not have liberty to go beyond the latitude herein prefixed, viz. : thirty or forty-six, north latitude. And volunteers if disabled in service, shall have the same provision for maintenance as those that are impressed. And the aforesaid commanders of the cruisers shall at all times attend to such instructions as they shall receive from the Governor, with the advice, as aforesaid. And the Governor shall give such commanders a commission or commissions, as occasion shall require.” — Records of the Colony of Rhode Island, 1707-1740, vol. IV., p. 5.

Having thus sounded the governors of the adjacent colonies, and notified them of his intentions, Dudley met the Assembly, in its fourth session, on the fifth of March, to which time he had prorogued it on the thirty-first of January. In his opening speech he addressed the Council and House of Representatives as quoted in the note to chapter 131, ante, prefacing those paragraphs with the following :—

* Dudley's letter to Partridge, suggesting another call upon Connecticut to join in sending two hundred men to Cowassie, was written only three days after his proposition to Winthrop to coöperate in the expedition against Port Royal. Indeed, Schuyler's note of alarm had reached Connecticut on the sixth of February (Colonial Records of Connecticut, 1706-1716, p. 15); and Winthrop had heard of Schuyler's letter to Partridge as early as the twenty-seventh of January.

"Gentlemen,

When I look back upon the four years hard Service & heavy Taxes that the Warr with the French & Indian Rebels have necessarily demanded of this Province, And observed the great readiness of Her Majestys good Subjects to obey the Comands given them And the chearfull grant of the Supplys necessary for their Support by the Generall Assembly at all Times, It gives me Just Satisfaction & Encouragement, that the Good Providence of Almighty God will further direct us in what is necessary for the Security of the Province & Defence of our Frontiers, which being of so great extent, demand our constant care & Expence, which I have allways desired may be no more than is necessary, to Save your Treasure as farr as is possible consisting with our Security." — Mass. Archives, vol. 108, p. 46.

On the seventh, a resolve, passed in the House, "for a bill to further continue the act to encourage the prosecution of the Indian enemy and rebels," and by which the premium for each Indian scalp taken by volunteers without pay was to be increased from fifty to one hundred pounds, was agreed to by the Council; and the bill * was put upon its passage the next day, and received the Governor's approval on the thirteenth. On the eighth, the House passed the vote of advice printed in the note to chapter 131, ante.

On the tenth, the resolve which constitutes the chapter last named, appointing a committee to consider the import of the Governor's speech, etc., was passed. This committee, who appear to have immediately taken up the matter, adjourned, from day to day, until the thirteenth, when John Hathorne, the chairman, reported a series of resolves which were, —

"Read at the Board & sent down to the Representatives for Consideration by that House & to Act first thereupon, Being an Affair that will demand a great Expence of Money." †

On the fourteenth, the report was brought back from the House by a committee consisting of "Mr Epes, Mr Jewet, Mr Blagrove & Major Swain with the Vote pass'd in the House thereupon Accepting the said Report with some Additional Articles contained in a paper annex'd." ‡

The report and annexed paper were "left under Consideration," by the Council, until the next day, when "being now Read & Debated; The Council pass'd a Resolve in Lieu of the first Article, and Accepted the other Articles in the Report of the Committee; Then proceeded to the Consideration of the Additional Articles offer'd by the Representatives And with some Amendments Agreed thereto, Which were sent down for Concurrence." ‡

The first article of the report as originally rendered was as follows: —

"1. We Think it highly Necessary, That y<sup>e</sup> French settle<sup>ts</sup> in Nova Scotia be Insulted by us, & Particularly, The Fort of Port Royall, in the Best Manner we can, In Order to y<sup>e</sup> Removal of them, if Possible." — Ibid., vol. 71, p. 283.

The resolve substituted for this by the Council, and which constitutes chapter 136, ante, appears to have been agreed to by the House on the seventeenth, and in this form it was passed, and consented to by the Governor.

Chapter 136,

As modified by the Council, in a new draught, prepared by them, of the proposed additional articles § annexed to the report of the committee, the first article stood as follows: —

"That all Plunder saved by Order of the Officers, Except the Great Ordnance and Stores of War, be Shared to and among the Officers and Souldiers [proportionably to their Wages, as the Law already provides]." — Ibid., p. 285.

The Council added a clause of ten words to the third article, as revised by them, so that it read thus: —

"That all Sons, within age, and Servants, be Entitled to the additional Wages of Two Shillings † weeke, and Share of plunder to their own proper use; being regularly detached, or Enlisted with the Consent of their Parents or Masters." — Ibid.

On the seventeenth, the committee of the House which brought to the Council the vote of the representatives agreeing to the resolve proposed by the Board, in place of the first article, brought also a message "That the House did not Agree to the Reform of the two additional Articles referring to Plunder & that of Enlisting Sons within Age & Servants, Viz, Those Words (With the Consent of their Parents or Masters.)"

They having added a Clause for Sharing the Plunder in equal Parts to each Man, and in Case the Fort be taken, Five Hundred Pounds shall be paid out of the publick Treasury & divided amongst the Officers in Proportion to their Wages, In Consideration of the Plunder being divided as afore said."

Thereupon "The Secretary, Mr Commissary Belcher, & Cpt: Appleton were sent to the House with a Message, that the Board did insist on the Article referring to Plunder, * Province Laws, 1706-7, chapter 12.

† Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 280.

‡ Ibid., p. 282.

§ These articles as first drawn were as follows: —

2 That Each volunteer (private Centenels) have added to y<sup>e</sup> wages by Establishm<sup>t</sup> two shillings † week to make it Eight

3 That two shillings † week added to sons & servants & all plunder be to sd sons & servants y<sup>t</sup> attend y<sup>e</sup> service as volunteers

4 That all volunteers may be Excused after this service is attended by them their turne as If they were or had been Imprest thereto

5 That there be added to y<sup>e</sup> officers y<sup>t</sup> shall be Improued in s<sup>d</sup> service one third more of wages for their Encouragm<sup>t</sup> than is given by Establishm<sup>t</sup>

7 That one Thousand pounds shall be paid out of the prouince Treasury to y<sup>e</sup> forces If Gods prouidence see ouer Rule yt they take & demolish y<sup>e</sup> fort at port Royall in Equall †s to Each man." — Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 289.

That the Distribution thereof be in Manner as the Law already provides, & could not admit of any Debate thereabout;

And that they accounted it very unreasonable & pernicious to allow Sons within Age & Servants to enlist as Voluntiers without the Consent of their Parents or Masters.*

On the same day there was "A Message afterwards sent to the House by Cpt: Appleton & Mr Payne, That to put an End to all further Debates about the Distribution of the Plunder, As they have Voted Five Hundred Pounds to be divided amongst the Officers in Case the Fort be taken, That they Vote the Five Hundred Pounds or what Sum they think they can comply with to be paid to the private Soldiers in Case they take the Fort for their further Encouragement."†

In reply to this, on the eighteenth, "Mr Hill & Mr Morse of the Represent<sup>ves</sup> brought up the Additional Articles to the Report of the Comm<sup>tees</sup> with a Message from the House, That they insisted on the Alterations made in the said Articles by the House."‡ Thereupon "The Council Voted their unanimous Adherence to the Additional Articles as drawn up by the Board with the further Addition to the Articles for Distribution of Plunder, As the Law already provides, of these Words; Viz, in the Prosecution of the Indian Enemy: Sent down by John Higginson & Edward Bromfield Esq<sup>rs</sup>."†

The House still remained disinclined to yield, and, accordingly, "A Message was brought up by Cpt: French & Cpt: Osgood of the Represent<sup>ves</sup> That the House adhered to their own Vote referring to the Distribution of Plunder."‡

At this stage the Council proposed a conference, which was had, as shown by the following entry:—

"Upon the Debates betwixt the two Houses as to the Articles about Plunder, & the Enlisting of Sons within Age & Servants, A Message was sent to the Represent<sup>ves</sup> to move that a Conference be had betwixt the two Houses upon those two Articles, And that it be forthwith attended in the Council Chamber.

And the Speaker with the House being come up, The Conference proceeded, and was managed by several Members of each House."†

The day after this conference, "A written Message from the Represent<sup>ves</sup> brought up by Mr Adams a Member of that House was Read, being in the Words following; Viz,"‡—

"In the House of Representatives. March 19: 1706.

Ordered That a Message, be Sent up to the Board, That, when this House Voted an Expedition to be formed, against the french Enemy at Nova Scotia, They did it, with an Expectation, That It Should be performed by Volunteers, which unless the encouragement, for them, be as is contained in the additional articles, voted by this House, They do Despair of: And apprehending It will be very Injurious, to the Province for the greatest part, of the men to be Impressed, Do therefore Continue to adhere to the s<sup>d</sup> articles as last sent up.

p. 290.

On the twentieth, the Council passed the following order:—

"Ordered that a Message be sent to the Represent<sup>ves</sup> Viz,

That the Council being led to the Consideration of an Expedition against her Majesties Enemies the French of Nova Scotia & L'Accadie, at the Motion of that House, & the Expression of their Willingness to support the Charge thereof, And Inquiry being made by Committees of both Houses into the present Capacity of the Province to supply the necessary Shipping Provisions & Stores of War, Perceiving also a good Disposition in his Excellency thereto, Did sincerely Consent to advise the Putting of it forward from a just Apprehension of the pernicious & fatal Consequences attending the Trade & Repose of her Majesties good Subjects in these Provinces, by the Growth of those our ill Neighbours, Hoping by the Favour of All-mighty God to remove them & prevent that Mischief & Inconveniency, And have cheerfully concur'd to what has been, and are ready to Agree to what may further be reasonably Offer'd by the House to encourage such an Attempt; And are of Opinion that the Affair having been so far proceeded in, & an Expectation raised in the People, It concerns the Honour of this Court Not to set it aside but for just & weighty Reasons & Considerations, & not upon the Head of those Articles, which have been the only Matters of Debate betwixt the Houses, To which this Board conceive they have made just & reasonable Answers at the Conference of the Houses; And therefore move the House of Representatives to reassume the Consideration thereof, & to withdraw those Articles, & to propose some other Method for Accommodating what is therein insisted on, That this House can agree to, & the Expedition not be delayed."—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 285.

To the above message of the Council the House responded by a proposal, as follows:—

"March 21, 1706-7. A Proposal offered by the House of Represent<sup>ves</sup> of a Sum of Money in Gross to be paid unto the Officers Soldiers & Sea Men that shall serve in the Expedition proposed to Nova Scotia & L'Accadie, They to carry on the same at their own proper Cost & Charge, Was Read, &

The Council drew up some Emendations thereto, Wch if the House agree to, The Council are willing to enter upon y<sup>e</sup> Consideration of that Method."—Ibid., p. 286.

Thereupon the House passed an order substituting for the first of the additional articles, as reported, an article substantially identical with the first of the additional articles as they were finally adopted.

The difficult matter of reaching a satisfactory agreement in regard to the division of the plunder having thus been accomplished, other details were settled without much dispute or delay.

* Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 283.

† Ibid., p. 284.

For the last sentence in the second paragraph of the report of the committee, the above order of the House contained the following:—

“That if the aboves<sup>d</sup> numbers of Souldiers and seamen, do not offer themselves voluntarily what are wanting be equally, Impressed, out of Such Towns, as are not ffrontiers, by land, so that the number of Souldiers impressed do not Exceed Three Hundred

The various paragraphs of the series of proposals (of which the present chapter as well as chapter 136, ante, — which had already been adopted and passed, — formed a part) were now concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The record of the final agreement is as follows:—

“The House reassumed the Proposal, & sent up a Vote, Wherein they return’d to the Report of the Committees & the Resolve of the Council in Lieu of the first Article thereof, with some Alterations in the Additional Articles thereto as sent down from the Board, Which additional Articles were directed to be a new drawn with Reforms made therein by the House, And then Read & Agreed to; The Whole being as follows; That is to say,” etc. — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 286.

Immediately upon the expression by the Legislature of the advice contained in the report of the joint committee which constitutes this chapter the Governor began to prepare for the expedition against Port Royal. On the twenty-second, at his suggestion, chapters 143 and 144, post, were passed, for establishing the wages of the chief military officers, and, conditionally, offering gratuities to the commander of the Deptford, man-of-war, of the royal navy, stationed on the New-England coast, and to the captain of marines on that frigate, — whose cooperation with the provincial forces he deemed important. On the twenty-fourth, agreeably to the decision of a council of war* convened by him, Dudley sent out a circular letter † to the several colonels of the provincial regiments of militia to furnish specified quotas of men, duly armed, “to Muster in the several parts upon Thursday the 17th of April~ ready to Obey Orders.” ‡ The grand parade was appointed to be at Hull on Saturday, the nineteenth. It was intended to supplement the number thus called for, amounting to eight hundred and eighty men, with companies of Indians § from Bristol and Barnstable Counties sufficient in number to complete the complement of one thousand, rank and file. No contingent from Connecticut appears to have entered into this computation.

Dudley also despatched letters of the same date to the governors of Connecticut and Rhode Island and to the council of the province of New Hampshire. His letter of the tenth of February to Governor Winthrop had been merely tentative, and to give a distinct intimation of his intention to attempt to dislodge the French in Acadia, and of his desire of assistance from Connecticut. Notwithstanding that this proposition, conveyed with an injunction of secrecy, had not been received with favor, Dudley now appears to have expected that the formal request of the Massachusetts Legislature that he solicit the neighboring governments to contribute their respective quotas to the expedition “on their proper cost” would prove effectual. He therefore wrote in a more confident tone, as follows:—

“Boston. 24th March. 1706./7.

The general assembly of this province now sitting have earnestly moved mee to make an Expedition against La’cadie & nova scotia, and at the same time address mee that I will move her Majestyes Government under your Comand that you will supply a Just & reasonable part of the forces & Expences of that Expedition,

I am thereupon determined to Rayse one thousand men with shippes of force to Cover them & a number of Transports for their accomodation, with all things necessary for ten weeks subsistence and stay in those parts to which I may adde as occasion, & the veiv of service may demand,

* This council consisted of sixteen members; viz., five colonels (Colonel Hathorne presiding) and one major of the Massachusetts regiments; Colonel Hilton of New Hampshire, and Colonels Hutchinson, Foster, Townsend and March; Major Winthrop; Captain Appleton; Commissary-General Belcher; and Captains Stuclely and Sutton of the Deptford, — the former ranking with Colonel Phillips and the latter with Colonel March.

† This letter ran as follows:—

I do therefore Desire that you will please to Joyn your forces with those of this province the service & benefit being equall because it is Certayn, that the advantage by the removall of the french settlement there, will be of equall advantage to your Government as to Her Majestyes subjects of these provinces, the Charge & support of the warr to Every bodyes observation, is Lying upon this province & I hope those Concerned in the Govern<sup>t</sup> of your Colony will freely come into this Expedition. To this Winthrop replied as follows: —

"NEW-LONDON, March 27th 1707.

SR, — The post delivered me yo<sup>r</sup> letter last night past twelve, in his way to Say Brook, and I expect his returne presently and can now make noe direct answer to it. Your Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly have taken tyme to consider and provide for the designe, and I understand the Rhode Islanders have been in preparation for it before your former came to my hands, and yo<sup>r</sup> Exc<sup>le</sup> obliging me to keepe it privet, I had noe reason to make any step in that designe, but have now appointed the Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly to meet me at Hartford on Wedensday the 24 of Aprill and will advise with them upon the heades of your letter, we<sup>ch</sup> shall be hastned to you. If the Assembly should agree to assist the designe with men, they must goe in transport vessells from Boston, here being none fit for the designe, and I presume her Majestye's stores of am<sup>n</sup>ition will be in com<sup>on</sup> for all. The late alarme made by your scout (frighted with Jack in the Lanthorne) put us to a great deale of trouble and 400<sup>b</sup>, and he deserves to be cashered and punished. It has soe much disoblighd our soldiers, that it will be difficult to get them into a good disposition to yo<sup>r</sup> service. I will doe all that I can for the publick welfare in this or otherwise, and am, Sr,

A memorandum in the Massachusetts archives, made by Dudley on the twenty-sixth, shows his intencion to write to Cornbury informing him of his design against Port Royal and asking his assistance, and adding a request that Captain John Redknap, the queen's engineer-in-chief in America, be permitted to return to Boston. That this intencion was fulfilled appears by the following letter to the Governor of Connecticut requesting him to forward a letter to the Governor of New York and at the same time reiterating his wish that Winthrop would coöperate in his measures against the French in Nova Scotia: —

"BOSTON, 26 March 1707.

SR, — This express humbly offers you a letter to his Excelency my Lord Cornbury, referring to the intended expedition eastward, which I desire you will immediately express to York. I hope you have my letters by the post & that you will think it reasonable to give your assistance therein. I am Sr,

Your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY." — Ibid.

During this correspondence, the council of war appear to have met from day to day to arrange the details of the fitting out and organizing of the forces. On the twenty-ninth Dudley announced to them that he had selected Colonel John March to be commander-in-chief of the expedition, and that he had marshalled the land forces into two regiments, the first † to be commanded by Winthrop Hilton as colonel, with John Wanton as lieutenant-colonel and Shadrach Walton as major; and the second to be commanded by Francis Wainwright as colonel, with Samuel Appleton as lieutenant-colonel and Daniel Davison as major.

Meanwhile Winthrop appears to have sent another letter, which has not been found but which reached Dudley after he had written a reply to Winthrop's letter of the twenty-seventh. To both of these letters Dudley replied in the following letter and postscript: —

"BOSTON, 31 March, 1707.

SR, — I have your letter of the twenty seventh instant, and you will not complain that I wrot not positively to you before I did, when I shall tell you my letter was dated the same day the Generall Assembly of this Province graunted the money necessary for the expedition; till when I could say nothing to my self & less to my neighbours, which was the only reason I only askt your own private opinion in my first letter. I shall not stand upon your want of transports, but can supply them here; but an in great want of powder & am constrainyd to take what merchants powder is in town, tho' at a dear rate. You will please to send your men with what you can & I will supply what is possible. I have given the superiour com<sup>and</sup> to Colonel March, a very good officer, & so well esteemed that I hope to impress no man into the service. I shall make two regiments, the one com<sup>and</sup>ed by Collonel Winthrop Hilton, your kinsman as well as my own, the other by Colonel * See a computation of the relative population of Connecticut and Massachusetts, foot-note on p. 420, ante.

† This appears to be the order of precedence in the original arrangement of the staff, as shown in the archives. Hilton's regiment is also mentioned first in Dudley's letter of the thirty-first of March to Winthrop, printed above. The change of precedence of the two regiments seems to have been an afterthought, and made, probably, to conciliate the Massachusetts rank and file, as well as to remove all cause for jealousy on the part of the Massachusetts officers.

Wainwright; and it is too much for mee to say unless you allow mee the freedom, y<sup>t</sup> if you please to send mee Major Whiting with a good party, I will distinguish him as his character deserves, but that must be as you please. Your officers & soldiers shall be honorably treated, and I doubt not they will deserve it. I hope to have the Queen's ship, the Province galley & a number of transports, & one thousand men, at Nantasket on Thirsday the seventeenth of April, ready to sayle with the first wind. I shall direct what I hope will be in their power, to leave no house standing in the French part, to destroy their stock & cut their banks, which will leave them no tillage; but the attack of the fort I shall leave to a Council of War upon the place, not doubting of their courage to do what is in their power; & I hope every body will be contented with the good providence of God, as I resolve to be. I pray to hear from you as soon as may be, & am Sr,

Your very humble servant,

J. DUDLEY.

You will allow mee to give my service to the gentlemen of her Majestyes Council & Assembly with you.

Postscript.

ROXBURY, April 1. 1707.

S<sup>r</sup>, — Mr Woodward is returned with your letter since the letter on the other side was written. I think it wants no answer but the method of your men coming to Nantasket our rendezons, I having already acquainted you that I will provide transports from hence & other articles. I hope what I have written will be to your satisfaction. There is no possibility of your men coming by water; round the Cape is so farr & uncertayn that all may be lost in our long attendance. There is no way left but by land for your vpper men; any of the sea force may come, if they please, by water to Road Island, if the wind serve. Those that come by land may ease themselves on horse back a day or two's journey & a few men will drive homewards a great number of horses. But I must leave that to your own resolve at last. I am Sr,

Your very humble serv<sup>t</sup>,

J. DUDLEY.

If you advise of your men coming, I shall wayt two days beyond the seventeenth abovesaid." — Ibid., p. 374.

Upon the receipt of the above letter Governor Winthrop communicated it to the assembly, as appears by the following entry which shows also the action thereupon taken by the legislature:—

"[April 2, 1707.] The Governour (after the opening of the Court,) informed the Assembly that the occasion of his calling them together at this time was a letter that he had received from Governour Dudley, wherein his Excellency signified to him that upon the earnest desire of the General Assembly of his Province he determined to raise a thousand men for an expedition against the French and Indian enemies in L'Acadie and Nova Scotia, desiring that forces might be sent from this Colonie to joyn with them.

His Excellencies letter was read in Council, with other letters relating to that expedition. The Court was adjourned to the 3d day of the month at eight of the clock in the morning.

April 3d. The Assembly being convened, a committee was appointed to consider and prepare an answer to Governour Dudley's letter. The persons appointed are Capt. Nathan Gold, William Pitkin, and Major John Chester for the Upper House.

A bill was drawn up, presented and approved by both houses, in answer to the said letter, in the words following, viz:—

This Assembly having considered the motion of his Excellency Governour Dudley to our Governour, for joyning the forces of this government in his expedition against L'Acadie and Nova Scotia, are of opinion that it is not their duty under their present circumstances to comply with the said motion; and therefore for divers reasons do decline the same. (1st,) They have not been of council in, nor had opportunity of consent unto the said expedition. (2ly,) They do not understand that the neighbouring governments, who are equally obliged, are concerned therein. (3,) Which is very considerable, the vast expence this government hath been out in the defence of the countie of Hampshire and their own frontiers, doth very much incapacitate them, and what may be further expected of like nature doth altogether discourage from joyning in such an enterprize." — Colonial Records of Connecticut, 1706-1716, p. 17.

The final declination of Connecticut to join the expedition was communicated to Dudley by Winthrop, as follows:—

"HARTFORD, April 4th 1707.

The response of Rhode Island to Dudley's request was more gratifying. The letter addressed by him to Cranston on the twenty-fourth of March was as follows:—

"Sr I had your very kind letters last post and delayed my answer till I might acquaint you of the Resolution of the Generall assembly here who have Earnestly moved mee to Rayse & Equip 1000 men for an Expedition to La Cadie & Nova Scotia. & I hope to be ready in all poynts by the 15 of April with two shippes of warr and transports necessary & ten weeks provision to which I may after-adde as ocaison may be, & accordingly desire you will proceed to Rayse the men which your General assembly have granted for that purpose & I pray they may be ready by the time. they may either Come in here or at piscataq; as the weather will allow,

I hope Major Wanton will not fayle of his service in the Expedition, if his occasions absolutely demand his stay at home I shall be glad of his brother & shall treat him with respect due to his Character & Her majestys service in which we are all Equally Engaged,

The Governor's application to his northern province was not a request, but a command. In his letter (drawn on a paper dated the 24th) to the council of New Hampshire he gave directions for providing rations and ammunition. The determination of the number of men required to form the quota of that province he postponed until the return of Colonel Hilton, who was still absent upon the expedition to Kennebec. The letter was as follows:—

"Gentlemen

I hope by this time Colonel Hilton may be returned & I am now to acquaint you that the General assembly of this province have earnestly moved for an Expedition to the Eastward & have desired me to Rayse one thousand men for that service of which a proper & Just Qvota must be yours which I shall determine & direct as soon as I can see Colonel Hilton,

I Desire & Direct that the Gentlemen of the Council forthwith sit to see that their be victuals and amunition in readiness for the service; against the midle of april next & peticularly I Do hereby direct that Mr Treasurer provide ten barrells of powder so much thereof as is in the province store besides what is necessary at the fort I shall be Content to account as part the rest must be immediatly by warrant taken into the publick; store out of the merchants & Inhabitants hands where soever, & do order that warrants be given out to the sheriff accordingly he giving receipt for the same to be payd for at an Equal price by the General assembly next Coming.

Council of N Hampshire." — Ibid.

Although the date given to it in the record was a week earlier than that above given, this letter seems to have induced the council of New Hampshire to take the action recorded as of the twenty-seventh of March. The record is as follows:—

"His Excellency's Letter, dated Boston, 17th [March] 1706, was communicated to this Board relating to an Expedition to the Eastward &c. agst the common Enemy; and that victuals ammunition, &c. should be in readiness against the middle of April next, and that ten barr<sup>lls</sup> of powder be provided, if soe much thereof as is in the Province Store, &c.; the rest to be immediatly by warrant taken into the publick store out of the merchants and inhabitants hands wheresoever; and that warrants be given out to the Sheriffe accordingly.

The Treasurer being asked what money or provisions was in the Treasury and what powder were in the stores, he answered, that pursuant to warrants signed by his Excellency, and the late Expedition of Col. Hilton and souldjers, the mony and provisions were all exhausted, and gone out of the Treasury; and what powder were paid him for Shipping, according to Law, he had delivered the same to Major Walton, Command<sup>r</sup> of her Majesty's Fort.

Ordered that the Secretary issue forth a special warrant to the Sheriffe for the impressing tenn barrels of powder for her Majestys Service, out of the Merchants and Inhabitants hands of this Province, or soe many Barrels of powder as the Sheriffe may find; and that the Sheriffe give a receipt to all persons from whom he shall impress such powder, according to the quantity of powder so impressed.

Ordered that Robert Elliott and Saml. Penhallow Esq. be a Committee to inspect into the publick stores of her Majestys Fort Wm. and Mary, and make their Report to this Board at their next sitting.

In order to influence the people of New Hampshire more effectually Dudley proceeded thither on the second of April, ostensibly to review the standing forces and the new levies for the expedition.* On the seventh he met the New Hampshire assembly and addressed them as follows:—

* "April 1, 1707. Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the sum of twenty five pounds to Mr William Dudley for the support of his Excell<sup>ty</sup> attendants and Guards in his journey Eastward to review the standing forces, and the new Levy's for the intended expedition to Nova Scotia. &c." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 386; and see *Mass. "Piscataqua, April 4. His Excellency is expected here this night from his other Government of the Massachusetts-Bay." — Ibid.

“Gentlemen:—

The openness and uncertainty of the weather this winter has prevented us from doing what we intended against the enemy; yet we are to acknowledge the good Providence of Almighty God, that we have been preserved from any inroad, and have had so good an advantage against the Rebels the last March.

At the earnest solicitations and motion of the Assembly of the Province of the Massachusetts, I have entered upon an expedition to Nova Scotia and L’Acadie, to make what spoil I can upon our ill neighbors, the French there inhabiting, and shall have a thousand men ready in ten days’ time with provisions and Transports, besides some assistants which I hope from her Majesty’s Government of Connecticut and Rhode Island, and must expect a just quota from you for that service. I shall at present only draw out sixty volunteers with officers, for whom you will, I doubt not, take care to provide.

Mr. Treasurer will show you the present state of your Debts and what will be necessary for the advance, and I desire you will proceed cheerfully to grant the supply; the time is very short, the day of the muster of the forces being the seventeenth instant, require me to be in the several parts, to review such men as are raised,—That I must desire you forthwith to dispatch what is before you. I have always taken care that this little Province be not overburthened, and that your money may be justly expended; which I shall always continue to do, and expect your readiness to grant what is necessary accordingly.”—Ibid., vol. III., p. 339.

On the next day they passed the following order:—

“Ordered, That the Sloop Adventure, belonging to Chr. Amazeen and Joseph Jackson, be taken into her Majesty’s Service upon an expedition to Nova Scotia and L’Acadie, And that Mr. Elliott be desired to see that a platform be laid in the said sloop, and that the said Chr. Amazeen and Joseph Jackson provide two able men to sail the sloop, which shall be in pay from the ninth instant; and Robert Elliott, Esq., is hereby ordered to give the accustomed Oath to three sufficient persons as apprizers, to value and apprise the aforementioned Sloop, and to make return thereof into the Secretary’s office.”—Ibid., p. 341.

The following proceeding then took place in the house of representatives:—

“A vote was sent up by the Assembly returning the thanks of the whole House for his Excellency’s Speech, desiring his Excellency to proceed in sending men upon the expedition to Nova Scotia and L’Acadie, and are willing to raise money for that expedition in proportion of their quota, &c.”—Ibid., p. 343.

The council of New Hampshire passed further orders on the seventeenth; viz.,— “Whereas the Honble the Lt. Govr did on Tuesday last issue forth his Warrant for Impressing of the Sloop Sarah and Hannah, Capt. Samuel Winkley Commander, as a transport in carrying souldjers upon an Expedition to Nova Scotia and L’Acadie, and his Honour having acquainted this Board thereof, the Council did well approve and allow of the same, and Ordered that Capt. Winkley be allowed as much P mensem, pro Rata, for the service of the said Sloop and Mariners on board, as the Transports in the Massachusetts Governmt shall be allowed upon the same Expedition.

Ordered, that the Secretary issue forth a Warrant of Apprizement directed to Robert Elliott, Esq. Messrs. Richard Forster, Andrew Pepperel, Richard Wybird, and John Frost, or any three of them to value and apprise the abovesaid Sloop, with all her furniture, tackle, apparel &c. to her belonging, and to take an Inventory thereof, and the said Inventory to deliver into the Secretary’s office upon oath, immediately after the same shall be taken.

Ordered, that the Secretary issue forth a warrant to the Sheriff or Constables of Portsmouth to Impresse Abraham Lewis, of Greenland, as a Pilot, to go in the said Sloop upon the said Expedition, and that when the said Abraham Lewis is imprest he is to enter into her Majesty’s pay according to custom, and to goe on board the said Sloop and observe his duty as a Pilot under the command of the said Samuel Winkley, during the continuance of the said Expedition.”—Ibid., vol. II., p. 502.

The sum of the quotas calculated upon by the council of war on the twenty-fourth of March had amounted to ten hundred and thirty privates, including those of New Hampshire and Rhode Island, and one hundred Indians from Colonel Church, to be commanded by Captains Constant Church and John Cook, and fifty more from the department of Colonel Thacher of Barnstable. For supplying these Indians with necessaries, and to support their families in their absence, it was proposed to advance funds to the colonels in whose departments, respectively, they belonged. One hundred pounds therefore had been advanced to Colonel Church and fifty pounds to Colonel Thacher, “the said Colonels to be accountable for the disposal thereof.”

From change of plans and from unlooked-for circumstances the actual number of the enlisted varied from day to day in the total number as well as in the particular quotas estimated.

On the twenty-fifth a plan of organization was decided upon for the fleet, and a committee appointed “to take up, appraise, and assist Mr. Commissary in equipping, the transports.” The flotilla, in addition to the Deptford and her tender, the Province Galley and the brigantine Hope (which was to be put in commission as a cruiser for the coast), was to consist of ten transports, comprising two ships, four brigantines, and four sloops, besides forty whaleboats, twenty-eight of which were to be impressed at Barnstable and twelve at Plymouth. The ships were to be one of two hundred and fifty and the other of one hundred tons burden, the smaller one double-decked and fitted for a hospital. Arrangements were also made for inspecting and appraising the whaleboats. It was also settled that “a proper person be appointed to prepare the fireworks and to arm the fuses of the hand grenades.”

On the twenty-sixth the procurement of clothing, colors, drums, trumpets, intrenching tools, and other equipments was provided for.

On the twenty-seventh “The Committee [on transports] Reported a number of Ships, Brigantens & Sloops which they thought fit for the Service.

And nine of the sd Ships, Briganteens and Sloops, were marked to be Employed in the present Expedition,* And an Order made to the Committee to make known the same to the Owners, That they may proceed to fit and Equip them, and the Committee Directed to See that they be suitably fitted for such an Expedition.—

And that they Apprise them, and make known to mr Commissary General when they are ready.† On the next day it was ordered that the transports selected by them “be received into pay upon Thursday the Tenth of April next,” and the same committee were ordered “to Notify the Owners thereof That they may get them ready accordingly by the time,” the Commissary-General “in the Interim to provide the Materials and be in readiness for laying of the Platformes.” †

The grenades and grenadiers’ pouches ‡ at the South Battery were ordered to be inspected, put in order, and enough pouches made ready for delivery to the Commissary-General to make up the number of one hundred. The committee of inspection reported the same day. On the twenty-ninth, as previously stated, the chief military officers of the expedition were designated.

On Monday, the first of April, the Council, upon notice of the selection of March as commander-in-chief and Hilton as colonel, ordered a warrant upon the province treasurer to advance twenty pounds to the former and twelve pounds to the latter “to provide their Equippage and bear their charges in the rayseing of men for the same.” § On the same day the council of war made provision for a supply of hand grenades, four field-pieces, eight gun-carriages, etc.; and on the fifteenth they ordered that six large open sloops for transporting the whaleboats be taken up by the committee, and fitted.

As the time drew near for the “grand parade” at Hull and the gathering of the fleet at Nantasket there were indications of popular excitement and anxiety. Mr. Noyes, the minister of Salem, at the Salem lecture on the ninth, and Mr. Bridge of the First Church, Boston, at the Boston lecture on the tenth, had preached sermons encouraging the expedition. On the eleventh Increase Mather, then at the height of his bitterness against Dudley, had thrown the weight of his great influence against “the uncertain expedition,” as he called it. ||

The Legislature, which assembled on Tuesday, the fifteenth, was adjourned to the seventeenth in view of the solemnities of the intervening fast; but before adjournment the Governor intimated to them that his purpose in proroguing them to the fifteenth had been “That the Assembly might be inform’d of the Advance made towards the intended Expedition to Nova Scotia & L’Acadie:

And Directed Andrew Belcher Esq; & Ephraim Hunt Esq; to Acquaint the House of Representatives That he would see the House on Thursday Morning next, & Open that Affair to them. . . . And also directed a Message by them to the House To propose to their Consideration an Advance of the Officers Wages on Board the Transports already sett by the Establishment, & for such Officers as are necessary on Board greater Ships taken up for that Service, for their Encouragement in the present Expedition.” ¶

In compliance with the above intimation the order which constitutes chapter 150, post, was passed, on the seventeenth, and, at the same time, the Council voted their advice to the Governor respecting the adoption of articles of war, as follows:—

“Several Rules and Articles of War, collected out of those formerly established by the Government of the late Massachusetts Colony Anno 1705. and out of those publish’d by Command of their late Majties King William and Queen Mary, and the Laws of this Province, were distinctly read over, and consented to—And.

Advised, That his Excellency direct the observance and exercise of them, for the Government of the Forces in the present intended expedition to Nova Scotia & L’Acadie.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 392.

Although the time prefixed for the grand parade at Hull was Saturday, the nineteenth, it appears that some, at least, of the companies failed to reach the rendezvous until the following Monday when the troops marched from Weymouth,** the home of the Rev. Samuel Torrey, whose decease on that very day, as shown in the note to chapter 145, post, added to the gloom which attended the setting forth of the ill-fated expedition.

On the twenty-second the Commissary-General received orders from the Council to procure, “on the best terms he can,” enough gunpowder to make up, with what could be supplied out of the public stores, the one hundred †† barrels authorized by the present chapter.

* The Success Galley, which was of extraordinary size, and fit to carry an armament of fourteen guns, was impressed on the seventh but appears not to have been fully equipped until after the seventeenth. See chapter 150, post, and note.

†† It appears that there was delay in getting this supply of powder, since, three days later, Belcher was ordered to procure thirty barrels “of good approved gunpowder . . . at the best rate he can, not exceeding twelve pounds per barrel;” and Captain Nathaniel Holmes, with such person as Colonel March should appoint, was assigned to “view and approve all the gunpowder to be sent on the present expedition that it be good and fit for the service;” and on the sixth of May Belcher was ordered to further purchase thirteen barrels to make up his complement of one hundred. On the fifteenth, an account was presented to the Council, and allowed, for thirty-seven barrels of gunpowder, bought of Nicholas Roberts, merchant, at twelve pounds per barrel, and a warrant for the payment of the amount (four hundred forty-four pounds) to Roberts was thereupon ordered. Nothing has been discovered to show that the before mentioned quantities of thirty and thirteen barrels were purchased; but on July 10, 1707, “pursuant to a resolve passed by the General Assembly at their session begun the fifth day of March past, that one hundred barrels of gunpowder be procured for the expedition,” etc., it was ordered that the “Commissary-General take care to purchase a quantity of good powder, not exceeding fifty barrels, for the public service, which he informs is to be had of Mr Nicholas Roberts, merchant, at the rate of twelve pounds per barrel, as he gave for the former;” and the issue of a warrant upon the treasurer to pay for the

On the same day, also, the Governor announced to the Council that George Jackson and Robert Ellis, surgeons, had been treated with and accepted as master surgeons for the expedition, upon the established wages, "and to have eighteen pence per head for one thousand men, to be advanced to them for the fitting themselves with chests, medicines, instruments and all other materials and utensils in the way of their profession and practice at their own charge, not to be accounted for," and "to be surveyed by Doctor Clark and Doctor Noyes to see that they be good and sufficient in quantity,—each of them to have two mates or assistants in the province pay,—the chyrurgeons and mates to enter into pay this day." A warrant upon the province treasurer was accordingly ordered for paying them seventy-five pounds as "advance of head money."

Immediately thereafter the following vote of advice was passed in Council:—

"April 22, 1707. Upon consideration of the Intended Expedition to Nova Scotia & L'Acadie, which demands a considerable number of Vessels and Seafaring Men; besides the Guards for the Coast, during the absence of the ships of War upon the expedition.

Advised. That his Excellency emit a Proclam<sup>tn</sup> for an Embargo* within both his Governments to continue until the last day of June next. As also to publish the encouragement to Seamen to enter themselves in her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s service on the said expedition."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 394.

The work of organizing the forces, issuing instructions, and granting commissions and warrants to officers, proceeded briskly. Although the Commander-in-Chief and his staff were notified of their appointment in March, it was decided later that all commissions in the land force should bear date the twenty-third of April, except those of the lieutenant and ensign in Major Walton's company, which were to bear date the sixth of May—their men, apparently, not being assigned to them until the latter date, and being probably recruits, in part, at least, from the forces which had recently returned from the expedition to Kennebec under Colonel Hilton.

Before the organization was completed, however, some changes were made in the disposition of the staff of the Commander-in-Chief.

On the twenty-fifth of April a letter to each of the colonels in command of the expedition was prepared, directing them to procure the captains of the companies of their respective regiments and send to the Governor perfect rolls of all the officers and soldiers of their several companies, with the number appearing at the general parade and the dates and names of subsequent enlistments.

From the sum of the rolls thus returned and the additions thereto made the roster † hereinafter given of the land forces has been compiled. The actual number on parade at Hull on the thirtieth of April appears to have been nine hundred twenty-nine—both companies of grenadiers being absent.

On the twenty-eighth William Barnsdale was nominated as captain of the ordnance, and John Gyles as field marshal, and the Governor directed the Secretary to prepare their commissions accordingly, as also four warrants "for the field officers to raise men," the "date to be prior to their commissions." ‡ These warrants evidently were to enable them to complete the required contingent by impressment, if necessary. On this day, also, the Governor minuted the following paragraph, apparently intended to be included in his instructions to Captain Stuclej:—

"When you come into the Bay, Send one or more of your Transports before the Fleet, to the Gntt to Surprize and take the looke out there, and to Effect it by night if it may be."—Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 332.

On the twenty-ninth,—besides the preparation of a letter of instructions to Benjamin Cranston, in command of the sloop sent by the Governor of Rhode Island to transport the auxiliary company from that colony under Lieutenant-Colonel Wanton, and the passing of an order that the general officers "enter into pay the fourth of April, 1707,"—five chaplains, the master-gunner, and the field marshal were appointed. On the thirtieth Samuel Lawrence was appointed and commissioned "captain of the whaleboats." On the third of May appointments were made of an armorer, and a master of the bombs (for whom warrants were prepared of the same date), and a "secretary at war for the present expedition" was appointed and commissioned. At the same time Shadrach Walton was nominated and commissioned "adjutant major" to both regiments. Two assistant surgeons—Israel March, who came from Casco Bay on the twenty-seventh of April, and Richard Winslow—were received into the service; the former as of the date of his arrival, and the latter as of the fifth of May. To Colonel Redknap was assigned the com-same was advised by the Council. Another vote of advice, on the thirty-first, fixed the amount to be paid to Roberts at five hundred seventy-six pounds, for forty-eight barrels purchased of him under the order of the tenth of July. For the province treasurer's entry of the payment for this powder see note to chapter 32 of the resolves of 1707. See also chapter 25 of that year and the note thereto.

* No copy of the proclamation of this embargo has been found, but that the embargo was actually enforced appears from the following entry:—

"May 13, 1707. Ordered. That the Embargo laid upon shipping the 22<sup>d</sup> of April past, be relax'd and taken off, and the several Officers are directed to grant clearings for outward bound ships and Vessels as accustomed. J: DUDLEY."—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 400.

† The roster of the army and fleet so far as it has been ascertained is given as a supplement to this note, and is followed by such of the instructions, commissions, and warrants of the several officers as have been preserved. The narrative of Rev. John Barnard, one of the chaplains in this expedition, has been much relied on in compiling the roster. It is printed in Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll., third series, vol. V., pp. 189-196. In endeavoring to give the correct names and residences of the officers mentioned even Barnard's authority has been sometimes rejected, and with all the aid that could be obtained from the state archives, other contemporary records and the works of genealogists some statements here made rest chiefly upon conjecture.

‡ Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 333. The commissions of the field officers were ordered to bear date the fourth of April.

mand of the gunners, bombardiers, etc., and his commission was ordered to bear date the sixth* of May; and it was determined that the warrant of Matthias Ellis, as "first sergeant of the whaleboats" under Captain Lawrence, should bear date the ninth of May. On the sixth, it having been determined that "a particular company" be drawn forth out of the forces of Major Walton, James March, junior, was nominated to be his lieutenant and Hugh Pike to be his ensign, and "commissions were severally made out to them dated the sixth of May."

Instructions to Stucley had been issued on the second of May; and, on the fifth, he received from the Governor orders to be ready to sail promptly upon notice. On the twelfth, everything being ready, the Governor ordered him to give the signal for sailing, and, accordingly, on the next day, at sunrise, the fleet departed from Nantasket for the harbor of Port Royal.

 ¶ Although it was at first intended to send out the Hope for coast defence her service in that line, if actually undertaken, was short, since she seems to have proceeded with the fleet as a transport. More than two weeks after the suspension of the embargo an order was passed in Council for equipping and arming the brigantine Dragon, commanded by Captain Blew, as a vessel of war, to cruise upon the coast (May 30, 1707: Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 409), the customary precaution of sending out an armed vessel to protect the fishery having, apparently, been neglected. An express having reached the Governor from Plymouth on the nineteenth of July with the tidings that a French privateer seen off that town had taken a sloop the day before, His Excellency ordered Blew, then lying at Nantasket, with ten guns and eighty men, to proceed in quest of the privateer. By the twenty-eighth the Dragon had returned without finding the enemy.
 ** Two of these may have been tenders, since the number of sloops given is six, and Barnard, in his narrative, mentions two tenders to Captain Lawrence of the whaleboats.

INSTRUCTIONS.*

Letter to the Colonels.

Sir:

Boston, 25th of April, 1707.

Whereas I ordered the draught of one thousand effective men of the militia in the several parts, volunteers, for the land force in the intended expedition for her majesty's service to Nova Scotia and L'Acadie against her majesty's enemies, the French and the Indian rebels, appointing them to parade in their several counties upon Thursday the seventeenth of April current, to attend further orders; and I have disposed the said forces into two regiments, and given the command of the first regiment to yourself;—

I therefore direct you to order the captains of the several companies within your regiment to give you a perfect roll of all the officers and soldiers of their respective companies, and therein to note who and how many of them did parade on the said seventeenth instant, with the days and time of the others' enlisting. And you are to return the said rolls unto myself.

I am your servant,

J. D.

Colonel Wainwright and a like to Colonel Hilton.

Letters to Captain Stucley:

Sir:

Boston, 2<sup>d</sup> May, 1707.

I desire you to take under your charge and convoy the fleet now ready to sail to Nova Scotia, and to direct their sailing and give them signals so as if possible to keep them together in their voyage, and to bring them to anchor in or before the harbor of Port Royal, where I think it best for Colonel March whom I have appointed commander-in-chief of the forces to land his men on both sides of the harbor to march up with all speed to take possession of the grounds above the fort, to cut off any communication with the country.

And if, upon view and consideration of the forces now going and the fortifications there, at a council of war, where I desire you always to assist, they shall resolve to lay siege or to assault the place, you will give all assistance you may, by your marines or sailors, so as you do by no means endanger her majesty's ship.

If you can bear upon your ship one foot company who may serve in their passage out and home, if there be any occasion, they shall be put on board, and Mr. Commissary-General will take care for their subsistence, who must be landed at the direction of Col. March for the service, everywhere.

I desire also that Major Walton may be entertained on board your ship, for the government of the company above, as well as for his own accommodation.

I am, sir, your very humble servant,

J. D.

Sir:

Boston, 5th May, 1707.

You had my letter the second, instant, referring to the care and government of the fleet in her majesty's service, bound to Nova Scotia, which I order you to attend, and to direct their sailing accordingly when I shall acquaint you of their readiness, who are to observe your order. At which time I also expect that her majesty's ship the Deptford be in all points ready for the service.

But whereas the transports have on board severally the officers, soldiers and stores and must visit several parts and places at such times as the Commander-in-Chief of the forces shall direct, I have ordered them while they remain in the river or parts of the country to attend his orders, to whom I have committed the management of the expedition. I have taken all the care possible for the manning of her majesty's ship the Deptford under your command as well as her majesty's Province Galley and the transports, out of whom I will have no men taken but by advice and direction of the Commander-in-Chief for the absolute service of the expedition.

I desire you as often as you can to assist at the council of war, taking your place next to the Commander-in-Chief with whom I desire you always to maintain a good understanding for the benefit and advantage of the service.

Direct a spy boat or lookout to cruise about Cape Sable to bring you intelligence of any of the enemy's ships approaching the coast; let it be your own tender, or one of the smaller transports as the Commander-in-Chief and yourself shall agree.

This being for her majesty's especial service and the service of her majesty's provinces under the government of your humble servant,

J. D.

Sir:

Boston, 12th May, 1707.†

Pursuant to my order to you of the fifth current to direct the sailing of the fleet bound to Nova Scotia when I should acquaint you of their readiness, I now intimate to you that they are in all points ready, and therefore order that you cause the signal to be made for sailing, and with the first fair wind depart from Nantasket, and make your course as direct as may be to Port Royal, endeavoring to keep the transports and other vessels in your company, and take what care you can to carry them safe in with you. When you arrive there, I refer you to the observance of my former orders for the service.

And to continue in the country with her majesty's ship under your command so long as the service shall demand your stay, and until my further orders which you shall receive from time to time; and then to return back to Nantasket, taking a like care of the transports in your return.

I wish you a prosperous voyage, and am, — [etc. J. DUDLEY.]

To Captain Cranston.

Massachusetts Bay, ss :

By his Excellency the Governor and Vice-Admiral, —

To Benjamin Cranston, gentleman, commander of her majesty's hired transport sloop.

The auxiliary company of soldiers, whereof Lieut.-Col. Wanton is captain, raised by the government of her majesty's colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations for her majesty's service in the present intended expedition to Nova Scotia, &c., being embarked and borne on the aforesaid sloop, you are to observe the orders and directions of Captain Charles Stucley, commander of her majesty's ship Deptford for your sailing and anchoring in your voyage out and home. Only while you remain at Nova Scotia and L'Acadie, you are to observe and follow the orders of Colonel John March commander-in-chief of the expedition; and to assist the service with your vessel and men on the water or land according to his directions, by doing all acts of hostility against the enemy; and for your return home.

Treat the officers and soldiers kindly and give them the best accommodation your vessel can afford.

Given under my hand at Boston, the twenty-ninth day of April, 1707.

J. DUDLEY.

*To the Commanders of the Transports.*Province of the Massachusetts Bay :

By his Excellency the Governor and Vice-Admiral, —

To
Commander of her majesty's hired transport, &c.

You are hereby ordered to receive and take into your said vessel such provisions and stores as Andrew Belcher, Esq., commissary-general, shall cause to be put on board for the present intended expedition to Nova Scotia, &c.; and to bear upon her such company of soldiers as shall be ordered by myself; and to observe the orders and directions of Captain Charles Stucley, commander of her majesty's ship Deptford, for your sailing and anchoring in your voyage out and home; only while you remain at Nova Scotia and L'Acadie, you are to follow the orders of Colonel John March, commander-in-chief of the expedition, and to assist the service with your vessel and men on the water or land by doing all acts of hostility against the enemy according to his directions, as also for your return home before the fleet, if he see cause.

You are to take special care of the provisions and stores put on board your vessel and to issue and deliver them according to such instructions as you shall receive from Mr. Commissary-General Belcher.

Given under my hand at Boston, the twenty-third day of April, 1707.

J. DUDLEY.

COMMISSIONS.

*To the Commander of the Ordnance.*Joseph Dudley, Esq., Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief, etc., —
To Colonel John Redknapp, her Majesty's engineer for the continent of America, greeting :

Whereas at the instance of the General Assembly of her majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, I have projected an expedition to Nova Scotia for the removal of her majesty's enemies, the French in those parts, and have raised and equipped a proper land and sea force for her majesty's service in that expedition under the conduct of Colonel John March, whom I have appointed commander-in-chief, I do by these presents authorize and appoint you to take the charge, ordering and government of the great ordnance and mortars, with the utensils and appurtenances thereto belonging, and to command, rule, govern and exercise all the gunners, matrosses and soldiers assigned to manage and employ the same on her majesty's service in the present expedition to Nova Scotia, hereby commanding them to obey you, and to observe and follow such orders and directions as from time to time shall be given by yourself.

I also desire and direct you to advise and assist at the council of war upon the place, taking the third place at the board, and to use and employ your utmost skill and diligence for her majesty's service, in making regular approaches to the enemy's forts and fortifications for the attacking of the same, and in what else is proper to the duty of your post.

And you are to observe the orders and directions of Colonel John March, commander-in-chief of the expedition.

Given under my hand and seal at arms, at Boston the sixth day of May, 1707.

J. DUDLEY.

[Endorsed:] "This commission to be of effect from the twenty-third of April past, the same date with the commissions to the field-officers."

*To the Secretary of War.*Joseph Dudley, Esq., Captain-General, and Governor-in-Chief in and over her majesty's provinces, etc., —

To William Dudley, gentleman, greeting :

Reposing special trust in your loyalty, care and ability, I do by these presents constitute and appoint you to be secretary at war to her majesty's forces in the present expedition to Nova Scotia and L'Acadie.

You are therefore well and faithfully to discharge the duty to your place belonging, and carefully to enter, preserve and keep all records, letters and papers committed to your custody, and to observe the orders of the Commander-in-Chief or the President of the Court Martial for the time being, according to the trust reposed in you.

Given under my hand and seal at arms, at Boston, the third day of May, 1707, in the sixth year of her majesty's reign.

[J. DUDLEY.]

WARRANTS.

For the Master-Surgeons.

Province of the
Massachusetts Bay :

By his Excellency, —

To George Jackson, gentleman, greeting :

Being informed of your skill and ability, I do, by these presents, appoint you to be the first master chirurgion to the new-raised forces for her majesty's service on the intended expedition to Nova Scotia and L'Accadie, with two mates or assistants to attend you.

You are therefore to provide yourself accordingly, and diligently to intend and discharge the duty of your place, by carefully attending upon, looking after and administering to the sick and wounded, wherein you are to exercise the best of your skill and a good conscience; and to apply yourself to the Commander-in-Chief to order such assistance constantly to tend, nurse and watch with the sick or wounded as there shall be occasion. For which this shall be your warrant.

Given under my hand at Boston, the twenty-second day of April, 1707.

J. D.

The same to Robert Ellis, second master-chirurgion.

For the Chaplains.

[Province of the
Massachusetts Bay.

By his Excellency the Governor, —

To Daniel Epes, greeting:]

Being informed of your loyalty, ability and piety, I do, by these presents, constitute and appoint you to be one of the chaplains to her Majesty's forces in the present intended expedition to Nova Scotia and L'Accadie, whereof Colonel John March is commander-in-chief.

You are therefore well and faithfully to intend and discharge the duty of your post in praying, preaching, instructing and encouraging of the said forces in the duties of religion and of their present calling as soldiers.

[Given under my hand at Boston, this twenty-third day of April, 1707.

J. DUDLEY.

The same to Samuel Moody, Samuel Hunt, John Barnard and William Allen.]

For the Commissaries.

Province of the
Massachusetts Bay.

By his Excellency the Governor, —

To

Being informed of your ability and fidelity, I do, by these presents, appoint you to be one of the commissaries to the new-raised forces for her majesty's service in the present expedition to Nova Scotia and L'Accadie.

You are therefore well and faithfully to take charge of, preserve and secure all such provisions, clothing and stores, whatsoever, for the said expedition, which shall be committed to your care by Andrew Belcher, Esq., commissary-general, and to employ, issue and deliver the same for the service, according to such instructions as you shall receive from him, keeping true and perfect accounts of your disposal and issuing thereof, which you are to adjust, make up and render to the Commissary-General at the finishing of the expedition. For which this shall be your warrant.

Given under my hand at Boston, the [twenty-fifth] day of April, 1707.

J. DUDLEY.

For the Master Bombardier.

Massachusetts Bay.

By his Excellency the Governor, —

To Samuel Clough, master bombardier, greeting :

Being informed of your skill and ability, I do, by these presents, constitute and appoint you to be master bombardier to her majesty's forces in the present expedition to Nova Scotia and L'Accadie, whereof Colonel John March is commander-in-chief.

You are therefore carefully and skilfully to arm, prepare and make ready your bombs and other utensils necessary to be employed in the service, and with fidelity and diligence to intend the duty of your post in disciplining, ruling and ordering the bombardiers and other assistants to be assigned you for managing of the mortars and fireworks; hereby commanding them to obey you as their next immediate officer; and you are to observe and follow such orders and directions as from time to time you shall receive from Colonel Redknap, her majesty's engineer, or from other your superior officer, according to the rules and discipline of war.

Given under my hand and seal at arms, at Boston, the third day of May, 1707.

J. D.

Warrant to Nicholas Boone, one of the bombardiers, the same date.

For the Pilots.

Massachusetts Bay. ss :

By his Excellency the Governor, —

To [John] Collins, greeting :

Being informed of your skill and ability, I do, in her majesty's name, will and require you to repair on board her majesty's ship Deptford, whereof Captain Charles Stucley is commander, and to take upon you the charge of her majesty's said ship as pilot extra in the present intended expedition to Nova Scotia and L'Accadie.

You are therefore carefully and faithfully to intend and perform the duty of pilot of her majesty's said ship, with skill and diligence for the carrying of her safe both in her going out and return in the aforesaid voyage, and safe anchoring of her from time to time. For which this shall be your warrant.

Given under my hand at Boston, the tenth day of May, 1707.

On March 22, 1706-7, the Governor, having determined to prorogue the Legislature, sent the following communication to the Council and representatives:—

“Gentlemen,

I am glad to be advised by Mr Secretary That the Council & Representatives are so well agreed in the articles of an expedition, Eastward,

That which is wanting is an establishment or Grant of Reward for the feild officers of two Regiments which I have determined to form the forces into & without whom I cannot answer it to proceed & a grant is necessary for the ten thousand pound bills you have Voted, . . .

if these things be done this morning I am Intended to prorogue for twenty dayes when the assembly may be advised how forward we may be for the Expedition, without these things I shall have no officers, nor money for the service. Every day we stay we Lose the season, & I must have time to form every thing. for the service which I Desire you will presently give mee that I may see what I may expect from my Neighbours as well as what I can do my self,

I therefore desire that I may rise today & have the Leisure of seeing my officers the next week.

On the same day the above order was read in Council, whereupon the following proceeding ensued:—

“James Russell Esq<sup>r</sup>. one of the Committee Informed That they were preparing the Bills, which would soon be ready to deliver to the Treasurer. And he was sent to the House to Acquaint them thereof.” — Ibid.

The order for a warrant on the province treasurer to discharge the account of expenses for paper, printing, and for the services of the committee for signing these bills included also similar charges for the next issue of bills under chapter 15 of the resolves of 1707. It was as follows:—

“Feb. 20, 1707-8. An Account presented by James Russell Esq<sup>r</sup>e of the Committee for Bills, for charge of paper, printing and signing of two several parcels of Bills of Credit, for six Thousand pounds each, ordered by the General Assembly at their two several Sessions, viz<sup>t</sup> in March 1706. and in May 1707. amounting in the whole to one hundred forty five pounds, sixteen shillings and two pence, allow<sup>d</sup> — And.

Advised and Consented. The following is the entry of payment of the accounts above named, and of a similar account of expenses under resolve, 1707, chapter 81:—

The order by which the case between Keene and Shepard was “referred,” as stated in the preamble to this chapter, was chapter 8, ante. That order having required the petitioner to cause the other party to be served with a copy thereof and of the petition upon which it was based, and also that execution be stayed, Keene delivered the required copies, attested by Secretary Addington, to Joseph Curtis, sheriff of the county of York, who duly served the same, whereof he made return as follows:—

The “next sitting” of the Superior Court in Boston was the November term, at which, apparently, Keene duly made his appearance, but found that the sheriff’s return of the order of notice to Shepard had not been received by the clerk.

It further appears by the deposition of one Richard Eaton that, on the evening of the second day of the term, Keene served upon Shepard, by reading, and afterwards delivering to him, what purported to be a summons, and that thereupon both parties proceeded to the court-house.

The failure to make return was owing to the death* of the sheriff, which occurred after service of the notice and before the sitting of the Court; but his son, upon being informed that the papers had not reached the clerk of the Court, prepared the following affidavit, which he gave into Keene’s hands to be conveyed to Cooke:—

The action of the judges was not thereby delayed beyond the third session of the Assembly, for on the third of December they submitted the following report, which was then read in the Council, and again on the seventh, when it was sent to the representatives and the vote of acceptance thereof concurred in: —

“In answer to the Petition of Nath<sup>l</sup> Keene

The next regular term was to be held in May, 1707, yet the third and fourth sessions of the Legislature were suffered to pass without further legislative proceedings respecting this case. Finally, on the third day of the fifth session, the order which constitutes this chapter was passed in the Council and sent to the House, for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and signed by the Governor.

The order required that the appellant be served with a copy fourteen days before the sitting of the Court. That this was done appears by the following return, dated April 21, 1707, endorsed upon an attested copy of the order which constitutes this chapter: —

“I have sarfe this order and laft A cobby at the house of John Sheppard Junr according to law

Why the business was not pushed so as to have the case tried at the May term in 1707, has not been ascertained. Possibly the progress of the officer's return to the clerk's office was retarded by accident or neglect.

At last, at the term of the Superior Court held at Boston,* on the first Tuesday of November, 1707, Shepard was “thrice solemnly called,” and not responding, was defaulted and thereupon judgment was entered up as follows: —

“Upon Reading the Petition of Nath<sup>l</sup> Keene of Kittery in the County of York yeoman, shewing that at an Inferiour Court of Common pleas held at York 2<sup>d</sup> April 1706 he Recovered Judgment against John Sheppard for Ten Acres of Land in Kittery & Costs & Sheppard Appealed & entered into Recognizance to prosecute &c And the s<sup>d</sup> Sheppard having failed to prosecute the Same Wherefore Prays that the Judgment of the Inferiour Court may be affirmed According to Law.

Its Considered by the Court that the former Judgm<sup>t</sup> be affirmed with Costs of Courts taxed at Eighteene pounds Ten shillings & a penny.” — Records of the Superior Court of Judicature, 1700-1714, fol. 216.

On the tenth of November a writ of habere facias possessionem was issued on the judgment, by virtue of which, on the twenty-eighth, Charles Frost, the successor of Sheriff Curtis, reinstated Keene in the possession of the estate of which he had been so long deforced by color of law, “and levied the costs,” amounting to £18 10s. 1d., “in public bills of credit,” according to Keene's direction, but which the latter refusing to accept remained in the sheriff's custody subject to the demand of the judgment creditor.

This petition was read in the Council April 17, 1707, and the order thereon was passed and sent to the House for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

In the note to chapter 4, ante, some account is given of incursions by the Indian enemy to June 6, 1706, under the permission granted by Vaudreuil. These were followed by others in rapid succession during the summer. About the middle of June Dudley received advices through Colonel Schuyler at Albany of the departure of another hostile expedition from Canada in considerable force, and by the twenty-eighth he "had marched several Troops and Foot Companies to the Frontiers" † to repel these invaders.

This body of the enemy made their first demonstration on the third of July, ‡ at Dunstable, where Captain Peirson or Rowley was stationed in command of twenty troopers to reinforce the garrison, and it was among this garrison and troop that the scalp-money granted in this chapter was divided. The News-Letter of the eighth of July gives the following extended account of Dudley's preparations, the attack of the enemy, the surprise of the garrison, and their repulse, and of the pursuit of the Indians, after severe losses on both sides: —

"Boston, His Excellency the Governour having been for Ten days past in Expectation of a Troop of the Indians from Quebeck, had Posted men in the several Frontiers of Hampshire, Middlesex and Yorkshire, to receive them: § and a Wednesday Evening they Entered Dunstable a poor weak Village, where lay a Troop of Horse; and the Rebels chanced upon a Garrison where half of the said Troop was, who though they were surprized soon relieved themselves, and the whole Village, which in probability had been all lost, if the Indians had not found a Force there more than they expected. The Enemy consisted of 100, and by their March confess to have lost Seven, besides wounded men, and we lost nine Men Women and Children." — No. 116.

The following note by the editors of the Winthrop Papers contains an extract from a letter which Dudley despatched to Colonel Partridge communicating the tidings of this assault, and animadverting upon the want of vigilance displayed by the garrison: —

"A few days later [than July 4, 1706,] came another of Colonel Partridge's appeals for ‡ The accounts of the province treasurer contain two items of payment for services performed, apparently, on this occasion and ending the twentieth of July, — one to the troop under Colonel William Tailer from the twenty-seventh of June, and the other to the company under Lieutenant Samuel King from the twenty-eighth of June. — Mass. Archives, vol. 122, pp. 272 and 273, and vol. 123, p. 11: see also Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, pp. 362 and 363. Lieutenant John Ashcroft's Moheag Indians also received wages for service between the seventeenth of June and the thirtieth of July. — See Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 329, and Mass. Archives, vol. 122, p. 277.

§ "The same Day serg<sup>nt</sup> Kingsbury of Haverhill, was killd or taken by the Indians." — Pike's Journal, in Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., 1875-76, p. 142.

§ The date of this "posting" of men at the frontiers would seem to be the first of July, since warrants were issued to the province treasurer for paying two companies of foot soldiers (Captains Samuel Frothingham and Josiah Converse) and one company of troopers (Captain Henry Sommerby), besides Peirson's, for services beginning that day. — See Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, pp. 331, 350 and 351, and Mass. Archives, vol. 122, pp. 272, 273, 274, 277 and 297, and vol. 123, p. 11. Another troop (Captain Peter Tufts) and a company of dragons (Captain William Reed) were detailed on the fourth of July, and a company of foot (Captain Josiah Parker) was in service from the twelfth of July to the first of August. — See Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, pp. 351, 362 and 377, and Mass. Archives, vol. 122, pp. 273 and 278, and vol. 123, p. 11.

help, enclosing a copy of a letter from Dudley to him, in which the Governor notifies him that a party of Quebec Indians had attacked Dunstable, and had with difficulty been beaten off. He adds: "We lost nine people & they had seven killed. By the carelessness of the officers we were surprised, otherwise might have killed half their number. The Lord deliver us from sleep and cowardice!" — Part V., p. 339.

The following account, taken from the printed diary of Rev. John Pike,* bears the appearance of greater exactness, and seems to explain why compensation was claimed for one scalp only:—

"July 3, 1706. Capt Person of Rowley marching with his troop to Dunstable, & being posted with part of his troop at one Blanchers house, while they were at supper in the Chamber, the enemy had slightly turned Blanchers sheep into his Corn, which he & his wife going out to Reduce, were both slain, the Doors & Gates being open, the enemy entered the house, killed Persons Trumpeter, with 3 other troopers, and wounded five more, at last they were driven out of y<sup>e</sup> house with the Loss of one Indian. Person was much blamed for not setting his sentinels out.—Near abou<sup>t</sup> the same time, or soon after, they assailed another house belonging to one Jacob Gnetia a Dutchman. The house was burnt, some persons were killed, and some escaped. The whole number said to be slain in Dunstable at this time was nine persons." — In Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., 1875-76, p. 142.

Penhallow's account of the doings of the enemy at this time includes a description not only of this affair at Dunstable but of other subsequent assaults made in the neighborhood. The following extracts are inserted as pertinent to this chapter:—

"The advice of Colonel Schuyler from time to time was of eminent service unto the country, who advised of two hundred and seventy † men that were coming upon us. Their first descent was on Dunstable, ‡ the third of July, where they fell on a garrison that had twenty troopers posted in it, who by their negligence and folly, keeping no watch, suffered them to enter, which tended to the destruction of one half of their number. After that a small party attacked Daniel Galusha's § house, who held them play for some time, till the old man's courage failed; when on surrendering himself, he informed them of the

* In the following entry in the diary of Rev. Joseph Green of Salem Village the name of a man who seems to have belonged to Salem is given as killed at one of the garrisons:—

"July 3 [1706.] . . . The Indians at night stormed a garrison at Dunstable, and killed four men. Holyoke Putnam was one." — Essex Institute Hist. Coll., vol. X., p. 74.

† It will have been observed that the above extract from the News-Letter gives the number as one hundred.

‡ ". . . Dunstable was a frontier town. Garrison houses were established in various parts of it, two of which (Wells's and Galusha's) were afterwards celebrated for the result of an attack upon both the same day, made by a party of the savages. Scouts of horse from the lower towns were constantly kept out scouring the woods upon the frontiers. One day, a company of these who had been ranging the woods in the vicinity without making any discovery, towards night, came to Wells' garrison, and apprehending no danger, turned their horses loose upon the interval, piled their arms and harness in the house, and began a carousal, to exhilarate their spirits after the fatigues of the day. A party of Indians had lately arrived in the vicinity, and on that day had designed to attack both Wells' and Galusha's garrisons. One of their number had been stationed to watch each of these houses, to see that no assistance approached, and no alarm was given. A short time previous to the approach of the cavalry, the Indian stationed at Wells' had retired to his party, and reported that all was safe. At sunset, a Mr. Cummings and his wife went out to milk their cows, and left the gate open. The Indians, who had advanced undiscovered, started up, shot Mrs. Cummings dead upon the spot, and wounded her husband. They then rushed through the open gate into the house, with all the horrid yells of conquering savages, but stared with amazement on finding the room filled with soldiers merrily feasting. Both parties were completely amazed, and neither acted with much propriety. The soldiers, so suddenly interrupted in their jovial entertainment, found themselves called to fight, when entirely destitute of arms, and incapable of obtaining them. The greater part were panic-struck, and unable to fight or fly. Fortunately, all were not in this sad condition: some six or seven courageous souls, with chairs, clubs, and whatever they could seize upon, furiously attacked the advancing foe. The Indians, who were much surprised as the soldiers, had but little more courage than they, and immediately took to their heels for safety; thus yielding the house, defeated by one quarter their number of unarmed men. The trumpeteer, who was in the upper part of the house at the commencement of the attack, seized his trumpet and began sounding an alarm, when he was shot dead by an Indian on the stair-way. He was the only one of the party killed.

The savages, disappointed in this part of their plan, immediately proceeded to Galusha's, two miles distant; took possession of, and burnt it. One woman only escaped. Had the company at Wells', armed and immediately pursued, they might probably have prevented this disaster; but they spent so much time in arming and getting their horses, that the enemy had an opportunity to perpetrate the mischief and escape uninjured.

The woman above mentioned, when the Indians attacked the house, sought refuge in the cellar, and concealed herself under a dry cask. After hastily plundering the house, and murdering as they supposed all who were in it, the Indians set it on fire and immediately retired. The woman in this critical situation, attempted to escape by the window, but found it too small; she however succeeded in loosening the stones till she had opened a hole sufficient to admit of her passage, and with the house in flames over her head, she forced herself out, and crawled into the bushes, not daring to rise for fear she should be discovered. In the bushes she lay concealed until the next day, when she reached one of the neighboring garrisons.

Cummings, at Wells' garrison, had his arm broken, but was so fortunate as to reach the woods while the Indians were engaged in the house. That night he lay in a swamp in the northerly part of what at present constitutes the town of Tyngsborough, about one quarter of a mile west of the great road as it now runs, and a few rods south of the State line. The next day he arrived at the garrison near the residence of the late Col. Tyng." — Farmer and Moore's Collections, vol. II., p. 303.

§ The editors of Penhallow state that the name was written "Galencia's" in the copy. The son, who was a garrison soldier there, had forty shillings of his wages stopped on account of his retaining a gun belonging to the province, which by mistake he had exchanged for his own that was burned in his father's house. In 1712 he was allowed the forty shillings, and twenty shillings more for the lost gun, upon his returning the "public gun" to Colonel Tyng. See the order of August 22, 1712, in the resolves of 1712-13.

state of the garrison, how that one man was killed and only two men and a boy left, which caused them to rally anew, and with greater courage than before. Upon which one with the boy got out on the back side, leaving only Jacob to fight the battle, who for sometime defended himself with much bravery; but overpowered with force, and finding none to assist him, was obliged to quit it and make his escape as well as he could; but before he got far, the enemy laid hold of him once and again, and yet by much struggling he rescued himself. Upon this they burnt the house;* and next day, about forty more fell on Amesbury,† where they killed eight; two, at the same time, who were at work in a field, hearing an outcry hastened to their relief; but being pursued, ran to a deserted house in which were two flankers, where each of them found an old gun, but neither of them fit for service; and if they were, had neither powder nor shot to load with: however, each took a flanker, and made the best appearance they could, by thrusting the muzzles of their guns outside the port-holes, crying aloud, 'here they are, but do not fire till they come nearer;'<sup>7</sup> which put the enemy into such a fright that they instantly drew off.

From thence they went to Kingston,‡ where they killed and wounded several cattle. . . . On the 8th of July, five Indians, a little before night, fell on an out-house in Reading,§ where they surprized a woman with eight children; the former with the three youngest were instantly dispatched, and the other they carried captive; but one of the children unable to travel, they knocked on the head, and left in the swamp concluding it was dead, but a while after it was found alive. The neighbourhood being alarmed, got ready by the morning and coming on their track, pursued them so near that they recovered three of the children, and put the enemy in such a terror that they not only quitted their plunder and blankets, but the other captive also." — Penhallow's Indian Wars, pp. 45-46.

A band or bands of hostile savages, apparently those who perpetrated the outrages above described, infested for several days the region extending from Chelmsford to Exeter, New Hampshire. It was on the twenty-seventh || that the "friend Indian" Joseph English was murdered near Dunstable, as narrated in the note to chapter 61, ante. The * "Wells' garrison was in the southerly part of Dunstable, N. H. about half a mile from the State line, near James Baldwin's house, on a place known by the name of the Blanchard farm, east of the great road to Boston. Galusha's, was about two miles south-west of this, on Salmon brook, at a place formerly called Gasgow [Glasgow,' according to the editors of Penhallow], on which Henry Turrell now lives." — Furner and Moore's Collections, vol. II., p. 303, foot-note.

† This attack on Amesbury, not mentioned in Merrill's history of the town, is thus noted in Pike's Journal:—

"July 4, 1706. A party of the enemy fell upon the out parts of Amsbury about High-noon. Killed & carried away 9 or 10 persons— wberof the chief were Nath: Weeds wife & Children, Robert Hoyts wife, John Ash & some others slain, Barns Prowt Carried away." — P. 142.

It is also twice referred to in the contemporaneous tract entitled "The Deplorable State of New England" (Mass. Hist. Soc. Coll., fifth series, vol. VI., pp. 44* and 54*). The first mention is as follows:—

"the Indians came sharply down upon us about the latter end of June last, Killed Six People, Wounded two, and carried away two from the Town of Amsbury, and a little before they Killed . . . one Man . . . with Swan-shot out of the Township of Hampton; and Nine Killed, and one Wounded, and one carried out of the Township of Exeter."

Mr. Joseph Merrill, the historian of Amesbury, has communicated to the Editor the following:—

"A letter . . . from Capt. John Wadleigh to Capt. True . . . says, 'About one of the clock the Indians killed Natt Weeds wife and three children one of them dead, the other two mortally wounded

At the same time Robt Hoyts wife killed a child missing and a boy of Thomas Hoyts killed All at one time as near we can judge. Pray send a party of men I think it a good way to go out this night We think to be 30 Indians."

† "Last Week one of the Skulking Indian Enemy was kill'd at Groton, and another at Kings-ton." — Boston News-Letter, No. 117. July 8 to 15, 1706.

§ Pike's Journal contains the following entry:—

"July 6, 1706. A woman with 2 or 3 child<sup>s</sup> was slain at an out house belonging to Reading." — P. 143.

The News-Letter's report was as follows:—

"Reading, July 10. On Saturday the 6th Currant about 4 a Clock in the afternoon there came 5 Indians to Benjamin Horndal's House of this Town, being an Out-house, where they found his Wife and eight Children, the Woman and three young Children they killed, and carried the other five with them; One of the Captive Children not being able to Travel, an Indian gave it some blows on the head, and left it in a Swamp not far from the House for dead, where it lay almost two days, & then was found alive stark naked.

Upon notice had of this mischief on the 7th instant being the Lords Day; several Parties of our Forces went in pursuit of the skulking Enemy, and as some of the Indians sat in a Swamp with three of the Captives, a Company of Soldiers coming very near them, the Enemy started up, ran, and left their Captives, Plunder and Blankets, &c. And when the Indians were gone, the Children went to a deserted House that was near, where the English found them.

The other Captive was discovered by some men at a Block-House in Chelmsford, as he was wandering in a Meadow alone, the Indian that carry'd him away had (it's most probable) lost him in the night, some Soldiers discovered one of these Indians, shot at & wounded him, the Indian fell, but as they were going to him, he arose, cast away his Blanket & Pack, ran to Concord-River that was near, and was seen sink in the River, and suppose he was drowned." — No. 117.

|| "July 27, 1706. Lt Butterfield & his wife Riding between Dunstable & some other Town, had y<sup>e</sup> horse shot-down by the enemy. The man escaped, the woman was taken, — and Jo: English a friend Indian in company with y<sup>m</sup>, was at the same time slain." — Pike's Journal, p. 143.

Penhallow's account of the death of English is given in connection with the attack on Kingston, New Hampshire, which occurred on the fourth. He says, —

"About the same time, Joseph English, who was a friend Indian, going from Dunstable to Chelmsford, with a man and his wife on horse-back, was shot dead, the woman taken, but the man made his escape." — Indian Wars, p. 45.

blood-thirsty marauders appear to have moved west, where they made demonstrations at Springfield,* Brookfield and Hatfield.†

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed September 24, 1707, and the province treasurer's account § shows that it was paid.

The Success Galley, Captain Ebenezer Wentworth, was recorded as having cleared for Virginia in the list of outward-bound vessels published in the News-Letter ¶ of February 24, 1706-7. But she returned in season to be employed in the expedition against Nova Scotia. Her impressment and service are shown by the roster in the note to chapter 142, ante. Francis Loud was employed to pilot her on the expedition.¶

The following is the vote of advice and consent of the Council for a warrant to pay Captain Wentworth for the hire of his ship and for the wages of his men:—

“Nov. 20, 1707. A Muster Roll of the Ship Success Galley, Capt<sup>n</sup> Ebenezer Wentworth Commander, employed in Her Majesty's service on the late expedition to Nova Scotia &c. containing an Account of hire and the Company's Wages for their service from the 7th of April to the 9th of September 1707, amounting to seven hundred thirty three pounds, seventeen shillings and seven pence, whereof twenty five pounds one shilling and eight pence being subtracted for Commissary; rests seven hundred and eight pounds fifteen shillings and eleven pence; having been laid before the Board; and Examined by Mr Commissary General, was presented—And.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out thereupon to the Treasurer to pay the above sum of seven hundred and eight pounds fifteen shillings and eleven pence. The Wages to be paid to the sd Capt<sup>n</sup> Wentworth and Company accordingly. The hire to the Captain on behalf of his Owners.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 483.

In the treasurer's account there are two entries** of payment covering nominally these items, but amounting only to £697 12s. 10d.

Nothing has been discovered to reconcile the discrepancy between the amount thus allowed and the amount paid.

The following is the vote for inviting Belcher to preach this sermon:—

“Jan. 14, 1706-7. His Excellency proposed, that Mr Samuel Belcher †† Minister in Newbury be desired to preach a Sermon to the General Assembly at their convening, upon the last Wednesday of May next, being the Anniversary day of their electing Councillours.

The Council approved thereof; and that the Secretary be directed to Intimate the same to him in a Letter, & desire him to prepare accordingly.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 368.

The sermon was printed in 1707, at Boston, by “B. Green,” under the following title:—

“An ESSAY | Tending to Promote the | Kingdom | Of Our Lord | Jesus Christ, | As it was Delivered in a Sermon | Preached before His Excellency the | GOVERNOUR, the Honourable | COUNCIL, and Representatives | of the Province of the Massachusetts- | Bay in N. England, On May 28. 1707. | Which was the Anniversary Day for | Election of Her Majesties Council, | for that Province. | By Samuel Belcher | Pastor of a Church in Newbury. | Matt. 6 33 But Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, | and his Righteousness: . . . |

“Mr. Samuel Chapin had been at his daily labor on land which he owned on the west side of Conn. river and had just entered a boat on his return home at night, when he was fired upon by some Indians (and wounded though not dangerously) lying in ambush among the willows which grew near the water.” — Chapin Genealogy, p. 7.

† The following entries leave uncertain the place of the murder of Judah Trumbull; but since, in the contemporary letters of Partridge, Governor Winthrop and the council of Hartford, the only places mentioned are Hatfield and Brookfield, and in that order, the presumption is that he was one of the garrison of the former town, and this is strengthened by the fact that the town records of Hatfield contain an entry that in July Judah Trumbull and widow Tosh were “slain by the Indians:” —

“widow Mary Tosh, or Mackintosh, was killed at Brookfield; and Judah Trumbull of Suffield was slain in July. A company from Connecticut was in garrison three months or more.” — Judd's History of Hadley, p. 276.

“Only one casualty is known to have occurred in this town. ‘Mary McIntosh, widow of Daniel, was fired upon and killed as she was milking her cows.’ This happened Aug. 2. Judah Trumble was killed at or near the same date; and the entry in the Co. Recorder's Book, seems to imply that they were shot at the same time and place. He belonged to Suffield.” — Temple's History of North Brookfield, p. 171.

Sewall thus mentions the sermon in his diary: —

“Midweek, May 28, 1707. Mr. Samuel Belcher preached, from Mat. 6. 10. Thy Kingdom come. Shew'd it was the duty of all to promote the Kingdom of Christ. . . .” — Vol. II, p. 187.

Belcher was the son of Jeremy of Ipswich. He was born about 1640 and graduated at Harvard College in 1659.

By chapter 70 of the resolves of 1704-5 a hearing upon Usher's accounts was appointed for November 14, 1704. At the time appointed “His Excellency sent a Message to the Representatives to Acquaint them that him self & the Council were sitting & ready to attend the Hearing appointed for John Usher Esqr late Treasurer upon the Articles in his Accompts in Question: — Answer was return'd that the House was thin & their Speaker not come to Town, & desired that it might be defer'd till the After-noon, wch was Agreed to.

Post Meridiem: A Message was again sent to desire Mr Speaker & the House to come up, which was accordingly attended, And Mr Usher was heard before the whole Court.

Adjourned unto To Morrow at ten in the Morning.”*

On the fifteenth, in the Council, it was “Ordered that the Papers relating to the Accompts of John Usher Esqr late Treasurer produced upon the Hearing yesterday before the whole Court be sent down to the House of Representatives, for that House to act first thereupon.”†

The papers referred to in the foregoing order included the following answer of Usher to the report of the committee, printed in the note to chapter 3 of the resolves of 1704-5: —

Another of these papers is the following rejoinder of the committee to Usher's petition: —

Nor doe we find y<sup>t</sup> sd vsher was a stated Treasurer by any act of the Gour<sup>t</sup> & Council then in being." — Ibid., p. 273.

The first recorded action of the House upon these papers was as follows: —

“In the House of Representatives Nov<sup>r</sup> 18; 1704

The Question being Put whether the Report of the Committee abovewritten be accepted, and rendred as an answer to the Petition of John Usher Esq<sup>r</sup> respecting his acco<sup>t</sup>?

It Pass'd in the affirmative

This vote was sent to the Council on the same day, and read at the Board.

On the twenty-seventh of November, 1705, Usher presented a new petition “as to his claim of debt,” which was read in the Council and sent to the representatives. No copy of this petition has been discovered, but the following entry in the legislative records of the Council shows its purport and also the action taken thereupon by both branches of the Legislature: —

“A Petition of John Usher Esq<sup>r</sup> exhibited the 27th of November past & sent down to the Representatives, & Setting forth that a Committee was appointed at the Session of the General Court begun the 31st of May 1704, for the Examination of his Accompts as late Treasurer, & on the 28th of June following, reported that there remained due for Ballance £.1038.8.1. W<sup>ch</sup> Report was Accepted by the Governour & Council, Praying a determinate Answer Whether this Court will Order the Payment of the said Sum of £.1038.8.1. with Interest or not; Was sent up from the Representatives with the following Resolve thereon; V<sup>iz</sup>.

Dec: 1st Resolved that the Snggestion of the Petitioner is mistakeu, The Committee appointed by this Court which he refers to not having reported any Ballance due to him upon his Accompts.

Dec: 4th Upon a further Consideration of the within Petition, Ordered that the following Answer be return'd thereto, V<sup>iz</sup>. That after the Petitioner had been heard before this Court upon the 14th of November 1704, referring to his Accompts, This House upon the 18th Day of the same Month, return'd Answer to his Petition, wherein are diverse material Objections against his Accompts not yet answered, to which We refer him, no new Matter being since offered.

And if his Accompts were cleared, We know not why he sh<sup>d</sup> make his repeated Applications to this Province, more than to the rest of the late Territory whereof he was Treasurer, especially since We understand other Parts thereof are considerably more in Arrears of the Taxes then demanded than this Province, And if upon a true Adjustment of his Accompts any Thing should appear to be due to him (Which never yet appear'd to any of the Committees of this Court that have examined them) They ought to pay it & not this Province: Which were read at the Board." — Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 179.

On the next day after the above petition had been read and further considered in Council, the General Court was prorogued and did not again assemble until April 10, 1706. On the second day of this new session the petition was read again in Council, and sent to the representatives, but no further action upon it has been discovered.

Usher's petition at the present session has not been found, unless it was a revival of the petition presented by him at the third session of 1706-7, which is as follows: —

This petition was read in the Council October 28, 1706, and sent to the House for concurrence. On the twenty-ninth it was read in the House and on the thirty-first the following vote thereon was passed:—

"The Petitioner offering no new matter, The House Refer him to their Answer given him on Dec<sup>r</sup> 4th 1705." — Ibid., p. 314.

On the second of November, the petition having been returned to the Council with the above vote of the representatives thereon, the Council voted that they "are of Opinion that it were better to give a present direct Answer, & accordingly proposed a Draught thereof, If the House would make such Answer, & sent it down."<sup>7*</sup>

The following appears to be the draught of the answer above referred to:—

"Proposed by the Council./

In Answer to the Petition of John Usher Esq<sup>r</sup> late Treasurer of the Territory and Dominion of New-England, This Court haueing duely considered the Reports of several Committees upon the view and Examination of his Accompts; with the Answers made by m<sup>r</sup> Usher to the Objections against sundry Articles and Charges therein, Do not find any thing due to him; And therefore Dismiss his Petition." — Ibid., p. 315.

On the thirtieth of May, the present year, Usher again presented his petition "Praying a final Answer to his Applications at sev<sup>l</sup> Times made for Payment of the Ballance of his Accompts as Treas<sup>r</sup> of the Territory & Dominion of New England, being One Thousand thirty eight Pounds eighteen Shillings & one Penny, As by the Report of a Committee of both Houses the 28th of June 1704, may appear."<sup>7†</sup> This petition was read at the Board on the same day, and, on the thirty-first, the vote which constitutes this chapter was passed, by which it appears that both branches agreed to dismiss Usher's petition for the reasons stated in the vote.

The matter having come up again this year the petition was again read in the House June 4, 1707, and the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed thereon and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the same day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed June 16, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

This petition was read in the House June 5, 1707, upon which day the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by both branches and consented to by the Governor.

The soldiers killed were Nathaniel Healy, and Ebenezer, the brother of Henry Seager, ‡ who was the soldier-taken captive.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed June 16, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

This petition was read in the House November 23, 1705, but nothing appears to have been done upon it until April 12, 1706, when it was read again and referred to the next session. On the fifteenth of November it was "read and committed." By the twenty-second the committee had brought in their report, for on that day it was read in the House and "rejected." It appears to have come up again early in the first session of the present year. On the fifth of June, 1707, it was read in the House and the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed thereon and sent to the Council for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order for a warrant to the province treasurer to pay the amount granted by this chapter is as follows: —

The particulars of the apprehension of Odell* at Stonington, Connecticut, are given in the note to chapter 79 of the resolves of 1704-5. In an item from the News-Letter printed in that note it is stated that four accomplices of Odell, namely, Peregrine and Benoni White, John Brewer and Daniel Amos, had been arrested and committed to prison as early as July, 1704. After the trial and conviction of these accomplices,† Peregrine White claimed and was paid the reward of fifty † pounds offered in the Governor's proclamation for the discovery and conviction of either of the counterfeiters. Undoubtedly by the testimony of his confederates a "chief contriver and actor" in the crime was discovered to be Odell, so that the Governor was induced to issue the second proclamation, on the eighth of August, offering a reward of thirty pounds for his arrest, which was made at Stonington †

* Odell was an old and incorrigible offender. He had been presented more than once in previous years. He broke jail in 1708, but was recaptured after having committed some thefts and incurred the suspicion of sundry felonies.

† At the November term of the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Gaol Delivery held in Suffolk County two several bills of indictment were found against Peregrine White; one for assisting in counterfeiting and uttering several of the twenty-shilling bills of public credit, and the other for uttering, some time in July, 1704, several counterfeit pieces of coined gold, knowing the same to be so, etc. He was acquitted of the forgery but convicted of uttering the counterfeit coin. At the same term Benoni White and Brewer were severally convicted of counterfeiting, only. Amos, who broke jail after his arrest, was not tried, and no indictment against him has been found in the files. Benoni White professed to have been entitled to the reward which was given to Peregrine; but, though this was not acknowledged, yet upon his plea of guilty, and because of his youth, — he is called a "lad" by Amos, — he was, by order of the Court, taken as an "approver." This was the same misapplication of that ancient term, now obsolete in its original sense, that appears in the witch trials, and in the trial of Quelech and others for piracy. It was clearly used for "queen's evidence," in the modern sense. Brewer was convicted, and sentenced to be set in the pillory for one hour, on a lecture day, and then and there to have one ear cut off, and after to suffer twelve months' imprisonment. By order of the Governor he was spared the loss of his ear, but the rest of the sentence seems to have been executed.

The Whites, apparently, were grandsons or a son and grandson of Peregrine White, the first-born American of English parentage. Peregrine of the second generation had a son Benoni, born January 26, 1686-7. It is sadly suggestive that their progenitor, who was eighty-three years of age, died at Marshfield, July 20, 1704, only five days before his kinsmen were examined and held on this criminal charge.

‡ Peregrine was sentenced to pay a fine of thirty pounds and costs, and to suffer three months' imprisonment. It has not been ascertained that the latter part of the sentence was executed. The amount of this fine was deducted from the fifty pounds awarded to him for the discovery of his confederates, and he received the rest to his own use. In the proclamation indemnity from "punishment" had been promised, and, therefore, unless the fine was held not to be punishment, it is clear that faith was broken with White.

§ The name of his captor appears in the following entry of a vote of advice for a warrant to pay the reward of thirty pounds offered in the proclamation for his arrest: —

"June 26, 1705. Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be issued to the Treasurer to pay the sum of Thirty pounds to Capt<sup>t</sup> Walter Groombridge, who first seized Thomas Odell, being the Reward promised by the Proclamation emitted by this Board, he paying thereout to Robert Saunders [Saunders was of Boston; see p. 326, ante] and Derrick Adolph, their just proportion thereof for reseizing, transporting and securing the s<sup>d</sup> Odell, at the Judgement of Elisha Hutchinson & Samuel Sewall Esq<sup>ts</sup>." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 186.

two days afterwards. He appears to have escaped from his captors and to have fled to Philadelphia, where he was again arrested and sent to Massachusetts, a prisoner, by Colonel John Evans, lieutenant-governor of Pennsylvania, on board the sloop of one N. Thomas Jones,* bound to Boston.† On the thirtieth of April, 1705, Jones wrote to Governor Dudley from New York informing him of his engagement to safely deliver his prisoner to the Governor at Boston, but adding that his vessel had been driven ashore "in the East Jerseys" and lost, and that Odell had been committed to the custody of the sheriff of Monmouth County, and he promised to wait on Dudley to give him a more particular account of his proceedings. On the twenty-first of May the News-Letter announced that Odell was in jail at New York, whence he was to be sent to Boston. This was followed by the tidings, from Newport, Rhode Island, in the News-Letter of the fourth of June, of his escape there; he having been brought "in Irons on Board Derick Adolph‡ in order to be carried to Boston, to be Tried for his Crime." The next issue of the News-Letter announced his recapture in a barn two miles out of town and his confinement in close prison. On Wednesday, the thirteenth of June, the sloop bringing him from Rhode Island arrived in Boston, and the next day the following entry was made in the legislative journals of the Council:—

"Thomas Odell against whom Proclamation formerly issued for Forging & Counterfeiting the Twenty Shilling Bill of Credit on this Province, being apprehended & sent Prisoner in Irons from Pensilvania was this Day render'd to his Excellency in Council by Derick Adolph Master of a Sloop & Committed to the Common Goal."—Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 129.

This was followed, on the fifteenth, by the proceedings thus recorded in the executive records of the council:—

"Ordered. That Elisha Hutchinson, John Foster, Penn Townsend, Andrew Belcher Esqrs & Mr Attourny General be a Committee to make Inquiry and take the examination of Witnesses against Thomas Odell now in Prison for forging, Counterfeiting and uttering of the twenty shilling Bill of Credit on this Province, and the Coines curr't within the same, and to send for persons before them, and Report what they find in order to his speedy Tryal."—Vol. 4, p. 178.

He was accordingly indicted, tried, and convicted § in the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize and General Gaol Delivery at the November term, in Suffolk County.

After about five months' imprisonment he presented the following petition to the General Court, praying to have his sentence changed to transportation:—

"To his Excellcy Joseph Dudley Esqr Capt Generall And Governour in Cheif In and over her Majty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England &c And to the Hon<sup>ble</sup> The Council & House of Representatives now in Gen<sup>le</sup> Assembly Convened at Boston In & for s<sup>d</sup> Province April 10th 1706.

* This appears to be the name as signed to the letter, but the "N" is doubtful. A petition to Lord Cornbury by "Thomas Jones of Nassau Island" is among the Historical MSS. of the University of the State of New York (vol. 52, p. 165) which shows that he had some trade with Rhode Island. According to T. P. Hughes (American Ancestry, 1891, p. 205), Thomas Jones of South Oyster Bay, Long Island, was a British officer, born in Wales and domiciled here as early as 1696.

† Major Thomas Jones, who emigrated from Ireland to Rhode Island in 1692, . . . married Free-love, daughter of Thomas Townsend, from whom, in 1696, they received a large and valuable tract of land on Long Island, called 'Fort Neck.' . . . He entered largely into the commerce of that day, the taking of whales along shore, which gave much employment to the Indians, who were very expert in that business. In 1704 he was commissioned by Lord Cornbury, sheriff of Queens county, and in 1710 was appointed ranger general for the island of Nassau.

‡ He died in 1713, and, agreeably to his own desire, was interred near the creek, at the bottom of the upland, on his own farm, and not far from one of the old Indian forts."—Memorial of the late Honorable David S. Jones, etc., p. 73.

Save a memorandum that this petition was read in at least one branch of the Assembly it does not appear to have received any notice.

The jail-keeper, it seems, deemed the stated allowance for the maintenance of prisoners inadequate to compensate him for the care and support of Odell. He therefore presented to the General Court at their third session in 1706-7 the following petition:—

"To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Capt General and Governour in Chief in and over her Majesties Province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England. And To the Honourable the Council and House of Representatives now in General Court assembled Octo<sup>r</sup> 24. 1706. —

This petition was read in the House on the seventh of November and again on the eighth, when it was rejected.

Willard renewed his application to the Assembly by presenting the following petition at the fourth session of 1706-7:—

"To his Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup> Captain General and Governour in Chief and To the Honoble her Majesties Council and House of Representatives for the Province of the Massachusetts Bay now in General Court assembled March 5th 1706.

This petition was read in Council and sent to the representatives March 10, 1706-7. No further action appears to have been taken upon it until the meeting of the next Assembly, when it was taken up in the House of Representatives June 4, 1707, and read a first time. On the next day the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed in the House and sent to the Council for concurrence, where it was immediately concurred in, and consented to by the Governour.

The order in Council † for the payment of this allowance was passed June 16, 1707, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

In accordance with the order of the General Court, 1706-7, chapter 66, Captain John Calley as attorney for Nicholas Andrews, the original plaintiff, filed the following complaint for affirmation of judgment against English, the appellant, who had failed to enter his appeal, as shown in the note to the chapter above referred to:—

The above complaint was duly entered at the November term of the Superior Court of Judicature at Salem, when the case was continued for advisement to the May term, 1707, at Ipswich.

In the mean time the following affidavits by the two arbitrators were filed in the case, presumably on the motion of Andrews’s attorney: —

Arbitration since it was not done in the time of the Bonds this was the Substance of what I know of that affair to the best of my Remembrance.

MARY BRIDGHAM." — Mass.

This petition was read in the Council June 7, 1707, when the order which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the House, for concurrence. On the ninth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The last will of Jonathan Bridgham, mentioned in this chapter, bears date March 13, 1688-9, and was admitted to probate on the twenty-sixth of February following. Besides other specific devises and legacies the testator gave one-third of his real estate to his wife, to hold during her life and at her decease to be divided among six children, including Mary, named in this chapter. By another clause of his will the testator provided that if his wife "shall see cause to marry againe and see not cause to take up" with the portion previously given to her in the will, she should receive two hundred pounds upon renouncing the other bequests. The will contained the following residuary clause:—

"All the Residue and Remainder of my Estate as well housing and Land Moveables stock and personall estate of whatsoever nature Kinde or Quality the same be not herein before disposed of I give devise and bequeath unto these my five Children viz<sup>t</sup> Mercy, James, Samuel, Elizabeth and Mary Bridgham to be Equally shared distributed and divided among them part and part alike, to each one his & her heires and assignes forever their severall and respective shares thereof. And if any of my six Children hapen to dye before full age or marriage Leaving no Lawfull Issue of his or her body, my will is that the part share or portion of my Estate belonging to such Child or Children so dyeing shall be equally distributed and divided between all the survivors." — Suffolk Probate Records, lib. 11, p. 128.

The widow, who was appointed by the testator to execute the will jointly with his son Henry, took out letters as sole executrix. She died, apparently, during the minority of Mary, not having been married a second time.

Powning was appointed guardian November 6, 1702, of Mary, aged fourteen years, and Samuel, aged eighteen years. By a partition of a part of the testator's estate, no copy or record of which has been found, the parcel which Mary's guardian sought authority to convey was set off to her; but evidently to avoid all question of defect of title growing out of the contingencies mentioned in the will it was thought proper to apply to the Legislature in the foregoing petition. Conveyance under this chapter was made June 25, 1707, to Henry Bridgman, son of Joseph, for one hundred twenty-five pounds current money of New England. The deed recites the substance of the order which constitutes this chapter, and Powning and his ward joined therein as grantors.

The land conveyed is described as follows:—

“ . . . A Certain peice or parcel of Land or Tan yard Scituate lying and being at the Southerly end of the Town of Boston aforesaid (being the said Mary's part and Share of Lands lately laid out unto her in the Division of the housing and Lands late belonging unto the Estate of her Father the said Jonathan Bridgman deceased made to and among some of his Children butted bounded and Measuring as followeth That is to say on the Southerly end by a Certain Lane Commonly called or known by the Name of South Meetinghouse Lane measuring there in breadth fifty feet, on the Easterly side by Land of the said Henry Bridgman, on the Northerly end by a Lane or highway running betwixt this Land hereby Sold, and the Land of the Heirs of Nathaniel or Thomas ffox dedced Measuring there in breadth Fifty feet, and on the Westerly side partly on the Land of the said Joseph Bridgman, and partly on the Land of James Bridgman one of the Sons of the said Jonathan Bridgman, Measuring in Length from the Northerly end to the Southerly end thereof One hundred forty nine feet be the same more or less. Together with the fencing standing thereon and all other profits priviledges Rights Commodities hereditam<sup>ts</sup> & appurces whatsoever thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining or therewth now used occupied or Enjoyed And the Reversion and Reversions remainder and remainders rents issues and Incomes thereof And all the Estate Right title Interest Inheritance use possession Trust benefit property claim and demand whatsoever of the said Daniel Powning in the quality aforesaid, and of the said Mary Bridgman and her heirs of in and to the abovegranted and bargained premisses & every part thereof. . . .” — Suffolk Registry of Deeds, lib. 23, fol. 146.

The Editor is indebted to Mr. Henry H. Edes for locating the land conveyed as above. He states that the lot fronted on Milk Street, on the northern side, between Congress and Bath streets. At the time of the great fire of 1872 it was covered by the granite building formerly occupied as their commission-house by the late widely famous firm of A. and A. Lawrence. After the conflagration this land was taken by the city of Boston to form the present Post-Office Square. To make the description more intelligible to those who do not remember the lay of the streets in that vicinity before the fire, it may be added that the site of the lot is directly opposite the present marble building owned and occupied by the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, which covers land extending to Pearl Street.

The only motion affecting the question of the salaries of the governor and the judges this session was the following, but nothing further seems to have been done about it:—

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed June 16, 1707.

The allowances granted by this chapter and by chapter 95, post, were paid by the province treasurer† in one sum.

See note to resolves, 1706-7, chapter 120.

This resolve originated in the House June 9, 1707, and was sent to the Council for concurrence, where on the twelfth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

Votes of advice for the issuing of warrants to the province treasurer appear to have been passed, under the authority of this chapter, for the payment of “incident and contingent charges” necessary for the support of the government, or under the clause “for supplying . . . forces,” etc., in the following instances: July 17, 1707,‡ for three hundred thirty-three pounds thirteen shillings and tenpence to Isaac Spencer, gunsmith, for fire-arms; July 28, 1707,§ for six hundred sixty-seven pounds fourteen shillings to John Gerrish, gunsmith, for fire-arms; December 24, 1707,|| to Thomas Adkins, carpenter, eighty-four pounds four shillings and ninepence, for himself and others, for timber, plank, iron, priming and making eight field-carriages and two bomb-carriages; July 16, 1708,¶ to Isaac Spencer above named fifteen pounds seventeen shillings for two “Shoulder

The province treasurer's accounts show that the allowances above mentioned were paid. ‡ In his account § from May 29, 1707, to May 26, 1708, he charged himself with sixteen thousand pounds in bills of credit received by him from the committee under this and chapter 81, post.

The progress of the expedition against Port Royal to the time of the sailing of the fleet from Nantasket on the thirteenth || of May is described in the note to chapter 142 of the resolves of 1706-7. Two days after its departure Commissary-General Belcher laid before the Council “his indents” of supplies for the expedition, “with the number and names of the several transports,” and they were approved.

The diaries and letters of the time furnish abundant evidence of a general apprehension, among those who remained at home, regarding the success of the expedition and the safety of the army. “Our friends at Port Royal” was a fruitful theme of discourse from the pulpit and a common subject of public and private prayer.

On board the Deptford on the seventeenth a council of war was held, at which, probably, Dudley's instructions to March and Stucley were read and the plan of preliminary operations at Port Royal decided upon. An order was certainly passed that Colonel Appleton with about three hundred and twenty men, comprising his own company and those of Major Spurr, Captains Talbot, Burrill, Putnam and Hunt, with Captain Freeman's company of Indians, should land on the north side of the basin of Port Royal, while the Commander-in-Chief and the rest of the forces, numbering about seven hundred and fifty, should land on the south side.

The fleet, which had started on its eastward course before “an easy southwest wind” (which changed during the passage to contrary winds and calms), came to anchor in the basin of Port Royal on the twenty-sixth.

Although Dudley's designs against Acadia had been agitated for more than three months, and though, for two-thirds of that time, preparations had been making for this extraordinary demonstration, and notwithstanding the continuance of the negotiations for exchanging prisoners had brought from Port Royal to our seaports some of the shrewdest and most wide-awake officers of New France, yet such was the secrecy with which preparations had been carried on that there is no reason for doubting that the appearance of the fleet was a complete surprise ¶ to Subercase, who, nevertheless, with signal ability and promptness, improved the delay caused by the mismanagement of the invaders to strengthen his garrison, by calling the surrounding inhabitants into the fort, and to increase his stock of provisions.

The soldiers landed in the manner agreed upon, but so late in the day, and at such distances ** from the fort, that they were obliged to take up quarters †† for the night without having reached a position suitable for a camp, or so commanding the fort as to prevent Subercase from reinforcing and provisioning the garrison; and they were not encouraged by this unfavorable beginning.

In their progress to this camping-place Captain Freeman's company, on the left flank of Appleton's regiment, had a warm skirmish with forty or fifty of the enemy, but lost no men.

Early in the morning of the next day both regiments moved forward. Appleton's men were ambushed by about sixty of the enemy, in a deep gully, and lost two men. †† Pressing on, they took two prisoners, and by noon reached a point north of the fort, and “little more than a musket shot over the north river,” where they fixed their camp.

March's men were also ambushed, by Subercase, at the head of “near three hundred men,” “at a place called Allen's Creek.” The English rallied, however, and, “with trumpets sounding, drums beating, and colors flying,” charged the enemy, at the same time giving “three huzzas.” “After a warm dispute the enemy retreated up a hill,” whither, in face of a brisk fire, the English followed them, driving them over the hill, down the other side of which they fled and on to the fort, pursued by the English as far as the foot of the hill, where the latter encamped. In this encounter, lasting about an hour, the English lost no men and had only five wounded.

It was learned from some deserters that besides the garrison of five hundred men there were in the fort about two hundred and twenty women and children. It therefore seemed likely that a few shells thrown in amongst them would terrify these noncombatants and cause such an outcry as to induce Subercase to capitulate. Accordingly March ordered * “29th. [June, 1678.] Returned with my Lord [Chamberlain] by Hounslow Heath, where we saw the new-raised army encamped, designed against France, in pretence, at least; . . . Now were brought into service a new sort of soldiers, called Grenadiers, who were dexterous in flinging hand grenades, every one having a pouch full; they had furred caps with coped crowns like Janizaries, which made them look very fierce, and some had long hoods hanging down behind, as we picture fools. Their clothing being likewise piebald, yellow and red.” — Evelyn's Diary, vol. II., p. 126.

¶ Charlevoix, who admits the surprise and the want of preparations at the fort, including some breaches in the walls, asserts that Subercase had a party of fifteen sentinels stationed on the shore down the bay, who retired to the fort and alarmed the garrison upon the approach of the fleet.

** Appleton landed between four and five o'clock in the afternoon, and March landed half an hour later between six and eight miles below the fort.

†† Appleton's men did not encamp until nine o'clock in the evening.

up the artillery, which Redknap promised to send forward the next day, but failed to keep his promise.

The failure of Redknap to plant his ordnance so as to protect them and to operate against the enemy's position while they were being marched through the forest, from which it was as difficult to retreat as to go forward, had already added to the discouragement of the rank and file. The want of roads, the broken surface of the ground, and frequent obstructions by the density of the woods, and by fallen trees, obliged them to move at so slow a pace that the enemy, better acquainted with the country, found time to sally forth and attack them in front and on their flanks, without imperiling their own chances of regaining the fort.

Stuclely had promised every assistance in getting the ordnance in position for an assault or a siege, but Redknap discouraged the attempt. March, a man of personal bravery but apparently wholly regardless of the importance of discipline and equally incompetent to enforce it, seems to have become the easy dupe of Redknap and the martinets on the Deptford, and, probably through their insinuations, entertained groundless jealousies of his brother officers, thus causing or stimulating a spirit of discord.

In their skirmishes with the enemy the New Englanders had shown no lack of zeal or courage, nor want of ability, under competent leaders, to cope with the adversary: but after five days of marching and skirmishing without intrenching and the expected cooperation of the artillery, and evidently with no manifestation by the Commander-in-Chief of any solicitude for their health and safety, nor any effort on the part of most of their officers to inspire them with assurances of the rewards* of victory, the rank and file of the main wing of the army, who had reached the enemy's ramparts, and would have entered the fort under proper leadership, seem to have become demoralized,—not more so, however, than the majority of the officers, whose authority was final, since they had been constituted a court-martial with full discretionary powers.

In this state of despondency of the men and of their loss of confidence in their superiors a court-martial was convened on the thirty-first, which decided to abandon the attempt to demolish or capture the fort, but voted, instead, to do all damage practicable to the buildings and crops of the enemy in that vicinity, and then to reëmbark and continue their ravages at Menis and Chignecto.

The reasons given for this conclusion are stated by Barnard to have been that "the fort mounted forty-two guns, some of thirty-six pounders, five hundred men in it, our men unacquainted with attacking a fort, and no prospect of getting up the artillery." Hutchinson quotes, apparently from the record or report, that "it was agreed, 'that the enemy's well disciplined garrison in a strong fort, was more than a match for our raw undisciplined army.'"†

A messenger‡ was despatched, apparently as soon as this decision was formed, to report it to Dudley, at Boston. All that has been discovered of the purport of these despatches is the following paragraph of a letter from the Secretary of War to his father, the Governor, preserved in a foot-note by Hutchinson:—

"The ignorance, idleness and slothfulness of some of our officers, make things go on not so smooth as desired; and by the disobedience of private soldiers, we lost two men this day in our very sight, scalped and mangled by the Indians. These and some other difficulties caused the result of a council of war, this day assembled, which I herewith send. The commander in chief will make a general ravage of the country and sea coast, which will be all we shall do at this time." . . . 31 May 1707." — Hist. of Mass., ed. 1767, vol. 2, p. 167.

By Dudley's enemies it has been insinuated that his explicit directions to Stuclely not to endanger the queen's ship were designed to afford Stuclely an excuse for not taking an active part in attacking the fort, and that he had secretly intimated his wish, against the expressed wish of the General Court, that the fort be preserved, and if taken that it be garrisoned by the soldiers enlisted for the expedition.

While mismanagement, discord, and the prospect of failure were thus demoralizing the forces before Port Royal, the people at Boston were, apparently, becoming elated with increasing confidence of success.§

The suspension of the embargo on the fifteenth of May, as shown in the foot-note on p. 689, ante, had rendered further protection of the coast and coastwise trade expedient. Accordingly, on the thirtieth, a vote of advice was passed by the Council as follows:—

"Advised, That the Briganteen Dragon Capt<sup>n</sup> John Blew commander, be forthwith equipped & armed as a vessel of War to cruise upon the Coast.

And his Excell<sup>y</sup> issued a Proclamation for Saylor<sup>s</sup> and Souldiers to enter themselves in her Maj<sup>y</sup>'s service and pay on board the sd<sup>d</sup> Briganteen." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 409.

After the fleet had been gone two weeks and no adverse report from it had been received, the Governor prepared a package which he ordered to be immediately despatched by an express messenger to Stuclely at Port Royal, as appears by the following letter:—

Sr

* It was publicly stated at the time, and not denied, that a report had gained credence among the men that it was Dudley's intention, if the fort should be taken, to garrison it by impressment from their ranks, for an indefinite time, contrary to the terms of their enlistment. It does not appear that pains were taken to contradict, in the Governor's name, this suggestion, the demoralizing influence of which must have been apparent to all, since the soldiers' dread of the hardships of garrison life even so near home as the Castle, in Boston Harbor, was notorious.

Marblehead May 27th 1707

Whether or not March's instructions, or the despatches thus entrusted to Coombs, were such as to justify or give color to the charges and insinuations against Dudley it has not been found possible to determine; but the desire of the rank and file to get away and stay away from Acadia cannot be more plausibly accounted for than by crediting the statement, made at the time, respecting the fear, heretofore mentioned, of the soldiers that they were to be forced to endure the privations and miseries of garrison life in that remote and inhospitable region for an indefinite time. That Dudley would not scruple at such a breach of good faith seems to have been as commonly believed as that neither patriotism, regard for the lives of his soldiers, nor the fear of public censure would restrain him from any venture which offered a prospect for gratifying his inordinate greed of gain.

Before the arrival of the fleet at its destination could be known in Boston the General Court for the year 1707 convened. This was on the twenty-eighth of May; and two days later the Governor delivered his opening speech to both branches, the burden of which related to the war, as follows:—

"Gentlemen, At the Instance of the Representatives in the last Session of the Assembly, & by the Advice of her Majesties Council of both Provinces I have equipt One Thousand effective Men for a Land Force on an Expedition to the Coast of Nova Scotia & L Accadie, & put them under the Command of proper Officers, & they took their Departure hence seventeen Days since, In which I have had a very honourable Assistance from her Majesties Government of Rhoad Island as well as a proper Force from the Province of New Hampshire.

I am sensible her Majesties Subjects of these Provinces have not seen such regular Service as the Wars of Europe or the present Expedition may demand, but I am well assured of their Courage & Readiness to bear any Hardships necessary at all Times, And particularly their Cheerful Entrance into the Service gave me Hopes that the good Providence of All mighty God will dispose all Things for our Benefit & Success, And shall be glad that We may have Notice of their Proceedings during your being together, That I may have your Advice in any Thing further necessary. . . ." — Council Records, vol. VIII, p. 296.

The Assembly had been in session nearly two weeks † when the first despatches sent from the army at Port Royal arrived. Immediately thereupon the impression seems to have got abroad that an abandonment of the attack on the fort had been under consideration by the court-martial, and had been referred to the Governor for final decision. Accordingly "a considerable number of merchants and other inhabitants" of Boston presented to the Legislature an address which, after having been read in the House, was sent to the Council and there read, "And by his EXCY's. Order sent to the Commander in Chief of the Forces." ‡ The purport of this address has not been discovered; but, during the day on which it was acted upon, the Assembly was engaged in considering what response they should make to the despatches from Port Royal. A message having been sent from the representatives to the Governor requesting "that the House might have the Sight of Coll: March's Instructions. His EXCY, directed the SECRY. to attend the House therewith, which were Read by the Clerk of the House & afterwards Read in Council." ‡

Soon after this, the following order was passed by the representatives and sent to the Council:—

"In the House of Representatives. June 10th 1707

Ordered That a Message be sent up to the Board referring to the forces at Port Royall That according to the understanding this House has of their circumstances by the advice received from them, They think it advisable (if nothing since has occurred to forbid it), That They Continue before the ffort, & Prevent all Supplies coming to them And if by any means they can, to make themselves masters of it: However are of opinion, that the officers upon the place, are most capable of Judging, what may be best for her Majties Service, & practicable against the enemy, therefore continue to advise, as this Court did afore to leaue it to them to do as they shall Apprehend will prove most advantagions, JOHN BURRILL Speakt." — Mass.

This order was immediately read in Council and returned to the House, with a message communicating the fact that probably the forces had already removed from Port Royal, and soliciting advice as to what course should be taken in that contingency. The record of the action of the House upon this message is as follows:—

"The Vote above written Brought down from the Board by Jno Higginson Esqr with a Message, viz: That It appear's by the Papers, that the fforces at Port-Royall intended soon to remove thence & that the Messenger from them just as he came away saw smoaks at Port Royall which probably was the Burning of the Houses upon their removing, therefore Desire the House's advice whether they would have them ordered back to Port Royall again, if they have left the place ?

† The despatches were received by the Governor on the night of the ninth of June, and communicated to the Council the next day.

Ordered That a Message, be sent up to the Board orally by Col: Checkley, with the said vote, That if the fleet be come from Port Royall, in order to come home This House don't Advise, They should be order'd back again." — Ibid., p. 347.

What next followed does not appear. It is certain, however, that on the eleventh the Governor communicated to the Council his letters to March, Redknapp, Stuclely and Southack, "and then sent them down to be perused by the House." These letters, probably, were copies or duplicates of the letters conveyed by Coombs on the twenty-seventh of May. If the army had actually reembarked on the thirty-first it was evident that the May Flower could not have reached them in season to change their determination, and not being apprised of their intention to leave Port Royal she, in all probability, would have failed to intercept them and to deliver to them the Governor's letters; hence, apparently on the eleventh, the Governor sent his letters by Hill, who was about to rejoin the fleet. It was not certain that Hill would meet them; so, in order still further to insure the communication of these last directions to the officers of the fleet and of the army, the Council, on the twelfth, passed the following order:—

"Ordered. That Mr Commissary General be directed to take up a small Sloop or other Vessel to send to Nova Scotia to repeat the Orders Express'd to her Majty's Forces there for fear of miscarriage of the former." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 415.

On the thirteenth the representatives, to ratify the action of the Governor and Council, and deeming it important that additional, particular instructions be given to Stuclely and Southack, passed the order which constitutes this chapter, and sent it to the Council for concurrence, intending that they should go in the vessel to be provided by the Commissary-General. Being for a military purpose, solely, this order, which was covered, in part, by the previous order in Council, did not require a formal concurrence, since it would have had its full effect when the Governor, as commander-in-chief, should have complied with the request embodied in the second paragraph, which he did in directing the final expedition in July, if not before; and this action, and the record in their journals of this and the former order, sufficiently implied the assent of the Council. The name of the vessel impressed for this service has not been ascertained but it was probably commanded by "— Lathrop," who is mentioned in the letters of Wainwright and Stuclely printed in the note to chapter 27, post, in which an account of subsequent proceedings relative to the expedition against Port Royal is given.

The resolve which constitutes this chapter was based upon the following petition: —

This petition was read in the House on the thirteenth, when the resolve was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed June 16, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

The last agents for the colony before the appointment of Dndley as president of the Council for New England were chosen March 20, 1681-2. In the first vote William Stoughton and Joseph Dudley were elected "to goe & wayte on his maj<sup>ty</sup>, &c," } but Stoughton persisting in declining to serve, John Richards was chosen in his place. In compliance with the king's commands that the colony duly authorize agents to attend upon him "for the regulation of this his maj<sup>ties</sup> government" a new commission || was issued to these agents, March 30, 1683, under the seal of the colony, "giving vnto them," in the words of the record, "joynly, and not generally, . . . full power & authority accordingly on our behalfe for the regulation of anything wherein wee haue ignorantly or thorough mistake deviated from our charter; to accept of and consent vnto such proposalls & demands as may consist wth the majne ends of our predecessors in their removall hither our charter, and his maj<sup>ties</sup> government here settled according therevnto."

Besides this commission the agents received formal instructions and a letter to Sir Lionel Jenkins, one of the principal secretaries of state. These agents returned in October, and one of them, Dudley, was, in 1686, made president, by royal appointment, of the newly constituted Council for New England.

Towards the close of Andros's administration Increase Mather secretly left the province and fled to England, as narrated in the note to chapter 6 of the resolves of 1694-5. There he remained until May, 1692, when he returned with Sir William Phips, the first governor under the province charter. During the period of his stay in England he used his influence with the dissenting clergy, and such personages in authority as were favorably disposed towards New England, to procure the restoration of the privileges enjoyed by the colonists under the first charter.

The particulars of the choice of new agents after the overthrow of Andros are given in the note above referred to, including the addition of Oakes to the agents first chosen. By the following vote, preserved in the archives, it appears that there was some delay and contention in the choice of Oakes: —

"The Representatives not having Received an Answer to their former Bills referring to another Agent, & being made more sensible of the Countries desire of the same have therefore again voted the sending of Doctor Thomas Oakes as our Representative or Agent to

On the sixteenth of December, 1689, it was voted "That the Tresurer forthwth take Care to provide bills of Exchange for A Thousand Pounds Ster<sup>l</sup> payable to o' Agents in England towards the Defraying the publique Charges of this Colony that are & may arise there."*

This was followed by a further order, February 6, 1689-90, "that if the Agents for this Colony in England shall have Occasion for more mony<sup>s</sup> there than what is now advanced and Ordered for their Supplys that they take up what shalbe necessary for the Service of this Colony upon the publick Credit not exceeding the Summe of One Thousand pounds and draw Bills upon the Treasurer for the same." *

On the twenty-third of October, 1691, still further provision was made for supplying the agents with funds as follows:—

"Whereas this Court are given to Understand that y<sup>e</sup> Agents of this Colony resident in England stand in Need of Supply's of Money for the Support of their publick Negotiation there, and Considering the difficulties, and hazzard of providing, and remitting of Suitable Effects unto them for that Occasion; Major John Richards, Major Elisha Hutchinson, Capt Samuel Sewall, and M<sup>r</sup> John Foster are Appointed, and impowered a Committee to Endeavour the procuring of them Credit to the Value of Eight hundred or a Thousand pounds sterling, to be employed for the Obtaining of a Good Settlement of Government for this Colony, According as this Court have Addressed their Majesties the money's so Advanced to be reimbursed with Allowance for Exchange." — Council Records, vol. VI., p. 200.

These grants, however, were for the necessary expenses of the agency on the account of the public, and were not intended for, nor applied to, compensating the agents for their services or reimbursing them their private expenditures.

The first instalment of compensation to these agents was made November 4, 1690, by which Mather received one hundred pounds, and Cooke and Oakes fifty pounds † each.

On the nineteenth of June, 1694, Cooke and Oakes each received from the province an additional grant of one hundred pounds, and Wiswall the sum of sixty pounds. ‡

These were the last grants made to the agents down to the date of the present chapter.

The following is Oakes's memorial to the General Court:—

The memoriall of Thomas Oakes of Boston

Most humbly Sheweth,

That being chosen, & appointed by y<sup>e</sup> Govern<sup>r</sup> Council, And Representatives of this colony, to be an Agent for y<sup>m</sup> in y<sup>e</sup> court of England; in obedience to that command, I left a good employnt & a numerous family, & embarked for England on y<sup>e</sup> tenth day of february in y<sup>e</sup> year 1689. & being arrived there, did with all fidelity endeavour to discharge y<sup>e</sup> trust reposed in me, subsisting my self there at my own charge, for above 2 years & returned not home, untill y<sup>e</sup> 23<sup>d</sup> day of october in y<sup>e</sup> yeare 1692.

And that I have never received any more, by way of compensation, than 150 pounds, which was not half sufficient to maintaine my family in my absence: so that my expenses, loss of time, & business considered, my attending y<sup>t</sup> service, hath been to my damage (as I humbly concieve) at least A Thousand pounds.

And he shall ever pray &c.

Archives, vol. 105, p. 52.

This memorial was read, first, in the House, in the fourth session of the preceding year (March 21, 1706-7). On the next day it was again read and the following resolve was passed thereon and sent to the Council for concurrence:—

"Resolved That the sum of Three hundred & fifty Pounds, be allowed & Paid out of the publick Treasury to M<sup>r</sup> Thomas Oakes the memorialist, which with what he has already received is in full for the service above expressed." — Ibid.

No action appears to have been taken upon this matter by the Council in that session; but in the fifth session, it having been ordered by the House, April 17, 1707, that the above resolve "be revived and sent up for concurrence," it was sent to the Council, where it was "read and voted to be further advised and inquired into." Here the matter seems to have rested until the present session, when, the Council having voted not to concur in the above resolve, the House on the thirteenth of June passed and sent up the resolve which constitutes this chapter. In this the Council immediately concurred and it was consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council § for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed June 16, 1707, and the province treasurer's account || shows that it was paid.

The former purchase of gunpowder under the resolves of 1706-7, chapter 142, added to the amount then on hand, appears to have been sufficient to make up eighty-seven barrels. This left thirteen barrels to be purchased to complete the one hundred barrels called for by that chapter; but evidently more was necessary to supply the second expedition to Nova Scotia; and, therefore, the present chapter was passed, in which the House of Representatives joined with the Council in giving the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Council, full authority to furnish whatever ammunition the needs of the army and fleet required. It would seem by the vote of advice of the Council, of January 20, 1707-8, that neither the supply procured by virtue of the authority given in this chapter nor in chapter 32, post (both evidently intended to enlarge the authority given in chapter 142 of the resolves of 1706-7), equalled the amount which the Legislature had authorized to be procured, although that amount seems not to have been limited to a stated number of barrels.

For the action taken by the Governor and Council in respect to the taking up and fitting out the Ruth Frigate, under the authority of the order which constitutes this chapter, and for subsequent proceedings relating to the expedition to Nova Scotia, see the note to chapter 27, post.

Chap. 26. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 309. It has not been found in the archives.

The statute requiring the equipment of moccasins and snow-shoes, for which were made the allowances granted in this chapter and chapter 33 of the resolves of 1705-6, was chapter 4 of the acts of 1704-5. Although the act required these articles of equipment to be procured by the tenth of November of that year, the captain or first commissioned officer of each enlisted company was, by the fourth section, required to see, by semi-annual inspections, that they were kept in good repair and fit for the service; and for this purpose the act was to continue in force during the war. By the third section, upon the certificate of the inspecting officer, to the Commissary-General, of the sufficiency of the equipment of any soldier, the soldier was to be allowed three shillings out of the next poll tax, to be paid to him by the province treasurer through the respective constables. The present chapter was passed to cure the irregularity in the return of certain lists which, it seems, were either sent in to the Commissary-General, or by him laid before the Council, after the time prescribed by the act.

The following entry in the province treasurer's account from May 29, 1707, to May 26, 1708, shows, apparently, the amount of which he discharged himself on account of the allowances made according to this chapter:—

“Paid by discount to Several Constables of Several Townes for. 195.
pair of Snow Shoes that y<sup>e</sup> inhabitants of s<sup>d</sup> Townes had Supplied themselves with, was Allowed out of their Poll Tax pursuant to the

In the note to chapter 16, ante, the narrative of the expedition to Nova Scotia is continued down to the time of the vote for sending an express with instructions to Stucley and Southack after Dudley had received despatches communicating the result of the council of war held at Port Royal on the thirty-first of May. This result was not unanimous, and in the minority were some leaders of experience who were preëminent for enterprise and for sound judgment. Their opposition was so earnestly pressed, and the ruinous consequences to the reputation of the Commander-in-Chief that would ensue upon a premature abandonment of the main purpose of the expedition were so strongly represented to him that he yielded, and consented to the calling of another council of war, which was held on the third of June. By this council the decision of the former council was reversed; and it was deliberately resolved that the forces should stay, and, with the coöperation of the artillery, renew their attempts upon the fort. This resolution, however, was reconsidered on the evening of the same day, when, to the surprise and mortification of the most courageous and sanguine soldiers of all ranks, it was again decided to reëmbark and depart after they should have burned the houses of the enemy at Port Royal. This decision was final, and, as soon as it was announced, on the fourth, a panic seems to have possessed the soldiers, who made for the boats and transports in great haste and disorder. On the fifth the army seems to have wholly embarked* and “the fleet sailed away, having sent a packet to the Governor.”† On the seventh a council of war was convened which agreed in resolving to abandon the intended descent upon Menis and Chignecto.‡ This resolution, which is inexplicable except upon the supposition that, through some misunderstanding, the transports had scattered, leaving with the war vessels a force wholly inadequate to the undertaking, was formed too late to be communicated in the second despatch which was already on its way to Boston.

Thus ignominiously, without even summoning the garrison to surrender, ended this essay to drive the French from their stronghold in Acadia.§

* Hutchinsohn says they had embarked by the sixth or seventh. In this he accepts Charlevoix's statement, but Bernard says, “on the fifth the whole army embarked.” He probably intended only that on the fifth the embarkation was completed, since it was expressly declared by the pilot of the Rhode Island transport that they sailed from Port Royal on Wednesday, the fourth.

† Bernard's narrative. See foot-note on p. 689, ante.

‡ It would seem that the abandonment of this feature of the campaign was left uncertain at the time of the sailing of the fleet and was not wholly given up until the decision of the council of war of the seventh of June.

§ The following list of casualties seems to comprise all those who were killed and captured by the enemy during this expedition, as well as those who were incapacitated for immediate further service by illness contracted either at Port Royal or in their voyage to or stay at Casco:—

“A List of persons sick & unserviceable

By the French accounts it seems that at the time of the arrival of the fleet there had been a considerable breach in one of the walls of the fort, and this, they affirm, de Subercase at once set about repairing, so that by the time the English had seriously resolved to attempt to take or demolish the fortification the walls were substantially made whole. There is little doubt that such a breach existed and that the English were disappointed as much in finding it repaired as because the number of deserters from the enemy was less than had been predicted by the few who had already come into the English lines. These considerations were sufficient in the minds of the majority of the council of war to justify the abandonment of the attempt upon the fort, although by that time, according to Hutchinson, a general assault had been determined upon.*

The disgraceful conduct of the responsible leaders of the expedition, however, was offset in some degree by the daring and efficiency of others in command.

On the night before the first council was held the approach of the English to the fort in the face of a brisk cannonade had been so close as to seriously alarm the garrison and its commander. In the skirmish between March's men and de Subercase, described in chapter 16, ante, the latter had his horse shot under him, and the killing of one of his men and the wounding of another is admitted by Charlevoix, who habitually magnified the disasters of the English, and minimized the reverses of the French. After the reconsideration of the first resolution of the council of war an artillery fire appears to have been kept up from the fort while, according to some accounts, the English were opening intrenchments, which they steadily continued to extend towards the enemy's works.

The contemporary English accounts agree in attributing to Colonel Hilton and Major Wanton the burning of the buildings, which Jeffries, in his letter hereinafter printed, describes as "the grand magazine, the church, houses," etc., "close by the north bastion of the fort;"† in which action, to use Jeffries's expression, they boldly threatened "the enemy to his nose."

Though extremely perplexing from their vagueness and apparent contradiction, these accounts warrant the conclusion that this brilliant exploit by Hilton and Wanton was the last, as it was the most daring, demonstration of the campaign, and that it immediately preceded the withdrawal of the forces.

Charlevoix, while admitting that the English, when they re-embarked, "had burnt all the houses below the fort, and some of those above," states that when, in their first advance, they had approached the fort to within a short distance, and prepared to attack it, de Subercase burned down several of the buildings which he could not guard and in which the besiegers might have sheltered themselves, because, as he states, "the garrison was insufficient to defend both the fort and the neighboring houses." It was the smoke from this earlier conflagration, doubtless, that Hill saw when he was starting on his voyage to Boston, with despatches, as mentioned in the note to chapter 16, ante, and which led the council to surmise that probably it was the work of the English, who, they conjectured, were "burning of the houses upon their removing."

On his return voyage to the fleet, with the Governor's letters mentioned in the note to chapter 16, ante, Hill seems to have taken a more direct course than the coast line, and thus to have failed to meet the transports, which, though scattered, kept nearer the shore. While thus standing off the coast, however, he did not escape the vigilance of Captain Southack in the Province Galley, who, being further out at sea than the rest of the fleet, discovered him in the night, and, giving chase, overtook him at two o'clock in the morning of the thirteenth of June, and, learning his errand, "carried him in to the fleet."

Upon receipt, by the several persons addressed, of the letters brought by Hill, a council of war was held on the Province Galley, at which it was resolved that the fleet proceed to Casco Bay or Piscataqua to await the orders and directions of the Governor, to whom, in the mean time, Colonel Redknapp, Lieutenant-Colonel Appleton and Captain Holmes were deputed to give a particular account of the expedition, and to bring back messages from the Governor. Letters to Dudley were sent in charge of this committee, probably, by all the officers to whom he had written. Of these no letter from Stucley has been found, but the letters from March and Southack are preserved in the state archives, together with a letter from the Secretary of War, and another, anonymous, letter of the same date, endorsed "A letter from a Gentleman in the Army to his Friend in Boston." The letter from March was as follows:—

The minutes of the council of war held on the seventh, which March mentioned as being sent by the Secretary of War, have not been found, but the following is the Secretary's letter to his father:—

The anonymous letter † above referred to was in a different vein and probably sent by another hand. The author, undoubtedly, was Arthur Jeffries, who had been commissary under Colonel March in 1704, and was proposed by Dudley as a messenger to Vaudreuil ‡ before the appointment of Livingston. He appears to have been a person of great courage and energy. He was taken in the brigantine commanded by Eleazar Moses of Salem, in

‡ There are two versions of this letter extant. One of these, apparently the original, which is followed here, is in the state archives, and the other is printed in Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 380, from a manuscript copy sent by John Winthrop to his uncle Fitz-John Winthrop, governor of Connecticut. They are not precisely alike, but the differences are slight, except in the date — that in the Winthrop copy being clearly wrong.

June, 1705, and carried captive to Placentia, and was among the prisoners sent back by de Suberese, that arrived at Ogunquit in December, 1706. There are reasons for suspecting that "his friend," to whom this letter was addressed, was Cotton Mather. It ran as follows:—

"Between M<sup>r</sup> Desert & Montinecus at Sea 13th June 1707

My good Friend

If I hope my wife hath waited on you & Let you know my Reasons for being silent abt or foolish proceedings for fear of ponzling. To Deal short & plain wth you (inter nos) Or men were basely Landed at ye first, Ye Dev! I doubt not was ye Adviser of it, where else ye blame lies I know not. I told y<sup>m</sup> enuff of it, but I was rejected & no notice taken of w<sup>t</sup> I said, thō since they have all seen their errr & repent of it too late; 'Twas done wth out any consideration, for they landed 7 or 8 mile off in a base way that kill'd & harrassed or men & made y<sup>m</sup> ly out all night on both sides of ye river in ye woods, so y<sup>t</sup> ye whole Country being alarm'd, ye next Tyde of Ebb brought y<sup>m</sup> all into ye fort. whereas or men might have been landed wth in 3 miles of ye. fort safer then where they were, & then would have certainly cutt off ye communication & absolutely have prevented ye inhabitants joyning the fort & we might have had most of them & their goods, whereas now we have nothing.

The next miscarriage hereby was w<sup>n</sup> or men had y<sup>t</sup> warm skirmish in the hill, & Drave the Enemy; For want of being well advised of the Ground miss'd cutting ye enemy all off, & being tired wth their filthy march were not able to pursue ye advantage by following ye enemy into ye fort we they might easily have done.

The other great matter was promises not p<sup>r</sup>formed, for or Sea Captains promised or Generall y<sup>t</sup> he sh<sup>d</sup> not wait for his Artillery, but y<sup>t</sup> as soon as he had gott ye ground he sh<sup>d</sup> have it. But ye Dev! still was doing his work & by too long hesitations & pretensions none came, nor none we had, we did discourage or men. Coll<sup>r</sup> Rednap being ashore mark'd out his ground & had begun to make some provision to raise his Batteries &c But placed as difficultly as possible might be, His Fretfull, spitefull Temper all ye time he was ashore sufficiently shewed his dislike to undertake w<sup>t</sup> he was sent about. I have heard him urge many of his Reasons, Ye Cheifest Y<sup>t</sup> it was not for him to venture all his Credit & reputation wth such undisciplined & ungovernable men & unconstant officers.

At the Fatall Council of Warr he laid down ye Reasons & Improbability of ye enterprise & caused a Vote to pass not to break ground, & so be gone abt or buisness like Fools: We is y<sup>t</sup> we was sent home.

Myself & some others stormed & shew'd or dislike to such rash, inconsiderate proceedings, & shewed other ground where or Artillery might be landed in ye face of or enemies wth out danger, & annoy y<sup>m</sup> fully as much as on ye point where we lay. On this another Council was held & Twas resolved to attach* ye. fort & accordingly ye ground was view'd & approved of by all, except Rednap, M<sup>r</sup> Barnsdale, Boon, James &c came up to us & offered their service to play or artillery in case Rednap refused it. Wentworth boldly offered to land it & so did most of ye Transport masters & all cheerfully agreed in this Resolution.

But at night a Maggot bitt some people & a Councill held & all revoked w<sup>t</sup> they had done & adhered to Rednaps Council of ye 31st of May & gave it ye Generall under their hands. This I write to ye shame of Maj<sup>r</sup> Walton, Capt Holmes & Frothingham, thō they be all my very good Friends, but I can't forbear speaking truth.—

Now I must look back & tell you, That y<sup>t</sup> day ye fatall council was held ye Fort fired many great guns & Bombs severall whereof lighted near or Lodgings we caused Coll<sup>r</sup> Rednap & M<sup>r</sup> Secretary Dudley† to scour aboard ye ships faster y<sup>n</sup> a good pace. But ye rest of the feild officers remained till ye next morning early w<sup>n</sup> they all removed their Lodgings.—

But a more noble passage worthy all mens notice I must tell you y<sup>t</sup> ye night before or Contradictory Council of a Resolution taken by Coll<sup>s</sup> Hilton, Wanton & others to burn ye Grand Magazine, Church, houses &c near ye fort, w<sup>e</sup> was done wth Virilance, care & prudence boldly threatning ye enemy to his nose, firing on their Ramparts into y<sup>r</sup> houses in ye Fort.

Never did men in ye world do more bravely nor boldlier & would positively have gone into ye fort had or officers had y<sup>e</sup> skill & conduct to have headed & led y<sup>m</sup> on But y<sup>t</sup> spirit was Wanting.

I must boldly say or men will fight if they be well carryed on, for I am sure or officers had more difficulty to bring y<sup>m</sup> off y<sup>n</sup> to carry y<sup>m</sup> on.

In fine when all was concluded to sett fire to all & be gone you might have seen ye Confusion of Babel: & Run off he y<sup>t</sup> could Run fastest In short I think or Generall was both Boy & Fool-ridden.

Now I must break off abruptly a Councill held this day, just now, hath resolved to send a F— & a K— & or Brick & Lime Kiln friend home to tell a base & I doubt a false story to save y<sup>r</sup> own Bacon.

Take this for a Conclusion that ye 3 parties now sent home are no wayes qualified for ye publc; good & will rather hinder then promote w<sup>t</sup> is designed & intended for ye publc; good. You & yo<sup>r</sup> friends may bestir yo<sup>r</sup>selves to prevent an unseen mischeivous Evill. Their Designes are Precarious, Ambiguous mentall selfish, & really I doubt Devillish—

To provide against a possible, pressing, unforeseen emergency, the Legislature, on the same day, in view of its approaching recess, gave the Governor authority, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, to send reinforcements, provisions and ammunition, as shown in chapter 25, ante. During the night of the fourteenth, however, the Governor received intelligence which interrupted the course of these preparations. This was that there had arrived at Piscataqua River, on the evening of the thirteenth, the transport sloop Sarah and Hannah, under command of Captain Winkley, bringing Captain Chesley and Lieutenant Tibbetts and the soldiers of their company; and that the men had dispersed without reporting to the local authorities. On the fifteenth the pilot of the transport which had conveyed to Port Royal the Rhode Island auxiliaries, came in at Boston and reported that, on the thirteenth, he had left that vessel off Cape Cod, standing for Rhode Island, with Colonel Wanton and part of his company on board—they having “sailed from Port Royal in Company with the Fleet on Wednesday the fourth current bound to the Westward.”* Both of these despatches were communicated by Dudley to the Council on the fifteenth—the former in the forenoon, when he sent orders to his council of New Hampshire to cause Chesley “to be put under a Guard, and the Company to be rallied again, and put under another Officer to attend further orders,” and the latter in the afternoon, when he gave further orders, as follows:—

“His Excellency express'd Orders to the Gentlemen of her Majesty's Council at Piscataqui, and to the Chief Military Commission Officers within the County of Essex that if any of the fleet from Nova Scotia sh<sup>d</sup> arrive in the several parts aforesaid to cause them to Anchor and stay there, and to publish to the Officers & Soldiers on board, his Excellency's Order, strictly forbidding them to come off, or to scatter, until further order on pain of Death.” — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 414.

These orders of the Governor were promptly obeyed in New Hampshire. Chesley, by command of the council, had already appeared before them as early as six o'clock on the morning of the sixteenth, and apologized for his return by averring that there were “General Orders given at Port Royal for every person to make the best of their way home;” and for his failing to report, by stating that, upon his arrival at Portsmouth, “he went to Mr. Penhallow's house, one of the Council, to acquainte him of his arrival, but he was not at home; soe went to no other Gentlemans house; he did not know he had offended in it; but he was now sorry concerning it:—he said he had dispersed his men upon their promise to return at the beat of a Drum, and that he would call them together with all expedition.”† The council thereupon had ordered that the sloop “be kept in her present posture till further order:—And that Mr. Secretary Story write to Mr. Abraham Lewis the Pilot, and Mr. Thomas Webster sub-Commissary, forthwith to repair on Board the said Sloop, to give their attendance there in their posts till further order.”‡

On the sixteenth tidings were received, at his home in Salem Village, of the arrival of Captain Putnam at Marblehead; and by the following day the whole country was agitated with contentions about the army, some defending and others denouncing it for the result of the expedition. Meanwhile tidings of fresh arrivals from the fleet were coming in. Among the new arrivals was Major Walton, who, being summoned, appeared before the council of New Hampshire, on the seventeenth, after the receipt of the Governor's letter of the fifteenth, and explained his return by stating that he was sent by Colonel March from Casco to carry a packet of letters express to the Governor, “and to wait his Excellency's answer and so to return to Casco again.” A large sloop which was seen in Portsmouth Harbor, on the fourteenth, was reported by Walton and Elliot as probably the Rhode Island transport,‡ and it was said that “Perkins with his company” was “in a sloop at anchor at New Castle.” Mr. Secretary Story was accordingly ordered by the council to issue his warrant, directed to Theodore Atkinson, Esquire, to enforce the Governor's orders. On the same day Governor Cranston wrote to Dudley, from Newport, announcing the arrival of Lieutenant-Colonel Wanton from Port Royal, “with the unwelcome news of their leaving the fort there in the enemy's hands or possession,” and with the further information that “he parted with the rest of the fleet some distance to the northward of Cape Ann,” which he thought had arrived or would arrive before his letter.

The letter concludes as follows:—

“our people are much dissatisfied with there Returning home without affecting what they went about, I cannot vnderstand but that Lt Colonel. Wanton acted the part of a couragious and noble Capt worthy of the Comission bestowed vpon him by your Excellency, and tells me he had Rather haue sacrificed his Life then haue Returned without takeing the foart—

he is very sparing of casting any Reflections vpon any persons, but I percieve by him he concludes other methods might haue been Taken then was, and that they might haue with Ease and safety got there Cannon and morters neare enough to haue battered & burn'd the foart I also percieve by him that they ware very vnsteady and fickle in there Councils—

He Returnes your Excellency his Humble Thanks for your favours to him and begs your Pardon that he did not Touch at Boston (concluding it would haue been a hindrance to him and haue Augmented the Charge of the Collony): he not being Capable of doing her Majesty and your Excellency any further service—he put about 20 of our men on board one of your sloops. who. if. (or when) arived I shall be very thankfull to your Excellency if you will order Capt Cooke or Capt Church. to see them conveyed to your Island and that they do not Imbezell or pawne there Armes &c.

I am your Excellencys

The letters which “Lathrop” conveyed to Casco reached their destination by the seventeenth, on the morning of which day the three messengers deputed from the fleet on the thirteenth arrived at Boston bringing with them the letters written on that day by the officers on board the Province Galley. They landed at Scarlet's Wharf, where they received, from a mob of women, a greeting not of a kind to flatter their vanity or to render less disagreeable the unpleasant duty they had to perform. The following extract from an undated letter written by John Winthrop to his uncle, the Governor of Connecticut, gives a graphic picture of their reception, and contains other interesting particulars concerning the condition of the army and the state of public feeling at that time:—

On the same day a meeting † of the Council was called, when it was advised that the councillors “at Salem, Charlestown and parts near at hand be sent for to give their attendance in Council to morrow at two a Clock post meridiem, and their Advice referring to the Nova Scotia expedition, of so great importance.” ‡

On the eighteenth the Council, having met the messengers again, according to appointment, passed the following order:—

“Ordered. That the Officers that have late been upon the place give a full and perfect information of the state and strength of the Fort and Garrison there with other circumstances relating thereto, so far as they are capable to inform

And that the Officers attending give answer to the following Queries, viz<sup>t</sup>

Qu: 1st Whether they are of opinion, that it be practicable to attempt the takeing of it by storm, or in any other manner? And what that is?

2<sup>dly</sup> Whether the forces late upon the ground, were not sufficient strength to Insult that Fort by Storm or Seige? If so—

3<sup>dly</sup> What was wanting and further necessary in order thereto.

4<sup>thly</sup> Whether the affair be disparaged, or bettered by drawing off the Forces?” —

Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 419.

On the next day the following report, drawn up by Redknap, was submitted to the Council:—

“Colo Redknap &ca Report.

May it please your Excellency and the Hon<sup>ble</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> of the Council.

The Fort of Port Royal is a Fortification of Four Bastions, a halfe moone, wth some other out workes, which have been newly made, there is eighteen pieces of Cannon, mounted upon the Ramparts, twelve and eighteen pounders, the Ditch is between twenty four and thirty foot broad, seven foot deep, the Ramparts about eight foot height from the surface of the earth. There is a Battery of twelve pieces of Cannon, six twenty four pounders and six thirty six pounders, wth one Morter, but these do not add much to the strength of the Fort, they being designed onely to command all Vessels that pass up that River, it will be very difficult to bring them Guns upon the Ramparts, there are eight pieces four pounders, and eight Pateraroes belonging to the Galley w<sup>ch</sup> may be mounted on any of the works, and there is no want of ammunition in the Garrison. The Number of the Garrison according to our best information consists of Four Companyes

* At this point a retort by one of the officers provoked a flood of billingsgate which Winthrop did not scruple to report to his uncle, and it is printed in the Winthrop Papers.

† It was this meeting of the Council, probably, that Charlevoix (Shea’s translation, vol. V., p. 196) had in mind when he declared “the Governor-General of New England conyoked in haste all the deputies of the cities and towns, depending on the Parliament of Boston, warmly showed them that the nation was forever dishonored, unless they avenged the affront just received by Colonel Mark before Port Royal,” etc.

of Souldiers, six Companys of the Inhabitants, sixty men lately arrived there from Quebec, and near thirty Indians; they have twelve Month's provision sent every year from Europe for two hundred Men, the species are: Meal, Bacon, Suet and Molasses, besides this M<sup>r</sup> Subercase brought with him four hundred Barrels of Meal from Placentia. What other provisions they have is brought in by the Country People, and to help expend the same there is near two hundred Weomen and Children in the Fort.

2<sup>dly</sup> Our opinions are and always was that it is practicable to attempt the takeing of the Fort, Provided there be a sufficient number of Able Men, the takeing it by storm would be a Work very difficult for us considering the undisciplindness of our Men; but by sitting down before it, and making regular approaches, we are apt to believe, time would bring them to a Honourable surrender.

3<sup>dly</sup> Our opinions are, that there was not a sufficient number of Men upon the place.

4<sup>thly</sup> As to a further supply of Men and other necessarys, we humbly leave the consideration thereof to your Excellency and the Honourable Gentlemen of the Council

5<sup>thly</sup> Our Moveing so suddenly from off the ground may be no disadvantage to us; because the Enemy not knowing our design cannot reasonably expect our return, by w<sup>ch</sup> means they may be dispersed in several parts of the Country; if so, it will be to our advantage, and should they be inform'd of our coming again, we can still take our ground wth more ease than at first, we being the better acquainted wth the place.

Thereupon the Council passed the following vote of advice:—

"Upon the Question being put at the Board: Whether the Council do Advise, that the Forces be ordered forthwth to return back to Port Royal and posses themselves of the Ground there? to be further enforced as the Representatives have proposed?

Advised. That it be put in Execution accordingly." — Ibid., p. 422.

During these proceedings in Boston, Wainwright and Stucley replied to the communication conveyed to them by Lathrop, as follows:—

The Governor was shrewd enough to perceive from the drift of opinions expressed by the more outspoken, as well as by the cautious reticence of others, that if the return of the army to Port Royal were determined upon it would not do to commit the superior command exclusively to March, and yet March was one of his favorites, to whom apparently his son had become warmly attached, and one who was popular, or was reputed to be popular, with the rank and file; and they would be likely to make his supersedure the pretext for insubordination. At this juncture Dudley received the following letter from the Governor of Rhode Island, which is important, inasmuch as it contains the first suggestion of the plan adopted by Dudley as the only available course to relieve his embarrassment:—

“Rhoad Island June 18th 1707

The letter from Cranston to Dudley was brought to Boston by Lieutenant-Colonel Wanton and Captain Nathaniel Sheffield, treasurer of the colony of Rhode Island, who were sent as special messengers for that purpose. On the nineteenth these messengers waited upon the Governor in Council to present the letter, and the next day Dudley returned the following answer:—

Meanwhile preparations for the return of the expedition to Port Royal were being pushed by the Governor. The stores of provisions of the fleet still riding at Casco Bay were running very low; therefore, on the nineteenth, a vote was passed by the Council advising the Governor to direct the Commissary-General “to provide and supply her

Maj's Forces for Nova Scotia &c. with forty two day's Provision for one Thousand Men, & with such quantity of Ammunition and other stores of War as are needful." *

At the same time an order of advice was passed that Belcher be directed to take up the ship Ruth Frigate, lately commanded by Captain Gerrish, and to cause her to be fitted and equipped forthwith for a ship of war, to join the intended expedition. The committee who had been employed to fit up vessels for the former expedition were to superintend this work, and the cargo of sugar with which she was laden was to be taken out and landed. On the next day a proclamation was issued for manning her with sixty sailors † under command of Captain John Alden.

A commission was also issued to Captain Ephraim Savage for a foot company to join this expedition, and Captain Joseph Buckminster ‡ received a like commission to raise another company for the same purpose.

On the twentieth, also, the Governor in pursuance of Governor Cranston's advice "intimated to the Council, that by the unhappy mistakes and mismanagements of the Forces Eastward, he judged it necessary for her Majesty's honour and service, to appoint a Superior Command and Conduct to what is already in the Field by Commission to Colo March.

And nominated Colo Elisha Hutchinson & John Leverett Esq's to be jointly commissioned with another Gentleman, whom he would name to them to-morrow, for the Superior Command & Government of those forces.

Which the Council Advised accordingly." §

It would seem that notice of their nomination was promptly given to Hutchinson and Leverett — since on the next day the latter wrote to Dudley, from Cambridge, as follows: —

While affairs were thus actively proceeding at Boston, there prevailed among the military officers in the fleet unconcealed dissatisfaction as to the past, and uneasiness as to the future, and among the men, both on board and on shore, a spirit of distrust and resentment approaching to, and in some instances culminating in, actual mutiny. § The men had enlisted under chapter 142 of the resolves of 1706-7, which, by expressly providing for subsistence for ten weeks’ service only, had impliedly indicated that that period was the limit of service; and if any soldier had not served the full term of ten weeks from the date of his enlistment, it was certain that considerably more than ten weeks would expire before he could go to and return from Port Royal and make a successful demonstration against the enemy in the mean time.

While from motives of prudence the causes of disaffection among the officers were not openly declared, it can scarcely be doubted that the main cause was the deference paid by the Governor to the officers in the regular service, and his evident desire not to displease them. This produced not so much a feeling of jealousy as a conviction that the failure of the expedition thus far was mainly attributable to the Governor’s implicit confidence in men with no local pride or interest to spur them on, and that the young Secretary of War was in sympathy with these men. The disaffection was aggravated by the fact that neither Stucley nor Redknap disguised his indifference to the success of the New-England soldiers. However experienced these detachments from the militia might have been in partisan warfare with the savages, they were held in contempt for their inferiority to the regulars in point of military bearing and proficiency in tactics.

From the standpoint of to-day it is difficult to perceive, in view of the probable continuance of this want of harmony, any reasonable basis for Dudley's expectation that the new venture would prove more successful than the first; nor is there any obvious reason for doubting that this was the judgment of most of those who had witnessed the fickleness, halting and discord in the recent demonstration against Port Royal. Dudley, however, was bent upon another effort to retrieve the unfortunate results of the former campaign, and in this he felt amply justified by the report of the three deputies sent by March. By commanding the fleet to remain at Casco, he had prevented a possible revolt which might have broken out with disastrous results had the fleet been nearer home; and by the same policy he had succeeded in keeping enough of his force together to secure the prompt execution of his future orders. On the twenty-first of June he had communicated to the Council draughts of his letters of that date to March and Stucley, which, it seems, had not reached their destination by the twenty-fourth, when the latter wrote to Dudley without mentioning them. No copy of either of these letters has been found, but in the letters written on the twenty-fourth by Stucley and William Dudley the writers concurred in expressing their anxious expectation of news from Boston in regard to their future course, and a desire to be defended from the rumored aspersions of Colonel Appleton. Stucley, in self-defence, sent to the Governor the journal of his "whole proceedings during this expedition." He also enclosed an account showing the state of the Deptford "both as to men and provisions," and stated that he had advised Colonel March "to do the same as to the army." The letter from William Dudley, since it shows the prevalent feeling in the fleet against Appleton, is given below, entire; viz., —

"Casco Bay. 24. June. 1707. —

Honoured Sr

We are all in good Health, and in great Expectation of News from Boston of our return either home or to port Royall And the many reports and rumors Spread over the Country make our great officers very uneasy, Especially that Colo Appleton Should go to sett him self up and raise him upon the ruin of Some of our officers or at Least his advancement above them which they as well as all our Souldiers are very much troubled at: tho resolved to be content if they can do the Country any Service, it must be Said and every day is that he was the only Instrument of raising the Siege that he might Save the Countrys money, but as they say only to save him self from the Danger which he always was very apprehensive of and would Skulk and hide as if he never heard a gun, Sr I dont make itt my buiness to reflect or make Remarks but am resolved to obey any and every body above me, and Serve in my Station which I have hetherto done to the utmost of my power, and indeed as the matter is Circumstanced I have a very difencil task, but Do expect as every body else a Change as to our Commander in Chief when things will go on with ease and good government, which has been wanted very much, and is the Cause of the deserting of twenty men yesterday and as much Care and prudence taken as if they were not concerned, and the Coly as if he had nothing to do but make himself popular and a party; which end Colo Appleton was also inclined, and hopes (as the report is) to be one of the three tho as unwilling to come or return to port royall as any man Living. After my most humble Duty to my Mother, I remain your obedient and

most Dutifull, Son & Servt

These letters, which were brought by the chaplain, Mr. Epes, and the steward of the Deptford, were read in the Council on the twenty-seventh. The record states that a letter from Colonel March was read at the same time; but unless by this is meant the above letter of the Secretary of War it has not been found. On the twenty-eighth both March and Stucley replied to the Governor's letters of the twenty-first, which it appears reached them on the twenty-seventh.

March's letter, showing how he was affected by the news of his subjection to the commission, is given below; viz., —

Stucley, in his letter,* transmitted a copy of the account of provisions remaining in the fleet, and expressed regret that Dudley had refused his request to be permitted "to come to Boston to Victuall," which, he declared, would have enabled him to attend to some private affairs, and saved him from being "almost murdered by Musquetoes." He continued by requesting the Governor to secure for the Deptford "what Foreigners" he could, "that the inhabitants of ye Provinces . . . that are now aboard" the Deptford "may be exchanged" — thus intimating a desire to be in readiness to return to England. To remove all doubt of his wish to be prepared without delay for his return home he added, "Your Excellency considers, I cannot safely return home without my complement. I desire my men return'd to Boston may be sent me the first opportunity."

Dudley, however, was not moved by this appeal. He had already, in the following letter, directed the contractor for furnishing supplies for the Deptford to put them on board at Casco Bay: —

Understanding That you are under Contract to victual Her Majesty's Ship Deptford, Captain Stucley Commander now at Casco Bay attending as Convoy and Cover to Her Majty's Forces Eastward, And that there is a Demand of a further Supply of Victuals for the said Ship; It being Inconsistent with the Service for her to remove her Station.

I Expect and Direct That She be victual'd, where She lyes, for the space of forty two day's or more, over and above what is at present on board. — . . .

Mr Nicholas Roberts." — Ibid., p. 163.

Though Dudley had the sagacity to perceive the ill consequences of allowing the principal convoy of the fleet to leave her post, and the firmness to reject the proposal of such a proceeding even from the representative of the queen's navy, he endeavored to mitigate Stucley's disappointment by kind words, at the same time imparting to him his plans with regard to the intended expedition, and the orders for his guidance during the campaign, in the following letter: —

I am sorry the service demands your being abroad and absent from me so long, but being determin'd to goe upon the ground of Port Roy<sup>ll</sup> again, I cannot be there without your service; Your victuals is all on board Geerish at the Province freight, and I have not altered any form in the forces, but added a Superior command to Col<sup>o</sup> hutchinson, Col<sup>o</sup> Townsend & Mr Leverett who brings this to you; and I desire and direct, that you will take the first wind and weather to bring ye Fleet to Port Roy<sup>ll</sup>, where I have ordered the Forces immediately to land again, and recover there ground, and you will Lay the Queens ship where she may with safety be most serviceable to the Fleet, and render all possible assistance to the Forces in there proceeding, and when Col<sup>o</sup> hutchinson, and in his absence the Gentlemen in Commission with him, shall intimate to you there intention to Leave the place to goe to any other parts in that Country, or to return, you will take care of the Vessells accordingly and not suffer them to straggle, or Leave the fleet without Col<sup>o</sup> hutchinsons, or in his absence the other Gentlemens directions. A Party of our Forces went in pursuit of the Enemy." — News-Letter, ut supra.

The last Indian outrage before these, and the first during this year, was in May, and is thus mentioned by Rev. John Pike, in his journal: —

"May 22, 1707. Two young Girls were carried away by the Indians from Bunkers Garrison at Oyster-River, viz. the Daughters of Tho: Drew [husband of Danson (or Thomasine) Drew mentioned in the note to the Resolves of 1698, chapter 46] (near 13 years old) & Daughter of Nath<sup>l</sup> Laimos (much younger). This was the first mischief done by y<sup>m</sup> in ye year 1707." — P. 145.

orders to get Captain Chesley's company together again* on board the Sarah and Hannah. There were also reports of desertions from the companies of Captains Williamson,† Burrill, and Putnam. A proclamation was published for the arrest of Williamson's men, and orders were issued to the others to return to their duty within forty-eight hours. Other desertions followed, but by the twenty-eighth, as appears by a letter from the Secretary of War, the Indian deserters had been taken between Cape Porpoise and Saco and were confined in irons on board ship, to be tried by court-martial,‡ and the next day William Dudley wrote, "Appleton's, Talbot's, and Frothingham's men are taken and returned, and three of Holmes's men are gone in their room. We have sent after them."

In William Dudley's letter of the twenty-eighth he states that "this Day Mr Jeffrey's was humbled for his scurrilous abusive Letters and his recantation as by the Inclosed;" but it is significant that the following passage in the same letter furnished evidence of March's disposition to protract, and to suggest obstacles, even when it was certain that he was to be deprived of his authority to control the movements of the forces:—

"Colo March Dos not Constrne his Last Letters so as to return without the Reinforcem<sup>t</sup> coming we not being strong enough to go to menis &c and the fort, at the same time which will be most Convenient as every body supposes, howsoever that affair will be Left to the Gentlemen." — Ibid., p. 169.

The Secretary proceeds to depreciate the soldiers, and to follow the example of Stucley in censuring the Commander-in-Chief, thus:—

"Sr a great many of our men are very unwilling to go again but severe Govern<sup>t</sup> will cure all that, (tho very much wanted hetherto,) and still will if Colo March has the power which he now has, we expect Great matters from our reinforcement coming." — Ibid.

In this letter and the next he represents that Colonel Wainwright is "much concernd that he should be rendred a Coward," and asks in Wainwright's behalf that the Governor send two Frenchmen (prisoners) to Ipswich, "as soon as may be . . . to help his husbandry forward." §

Dudley understood how to ingratiate himself with the good livers in his service and made little account of the incidental draughts upon the province treasury. Perhaps he was wise in this, and that the luxuries put on board the Ruth Frigate for the commissioners were, like his present of wine to Vandreuil, and his entertainment of Courtemanche, at Boston, a profitable investment. Redknap availed himself of the Governor's known liberality in this respect to present, for himself and his associates, an account which was allowed on the twenty-first of June, amounting to eleven pounds and nineteen shillings, of expenses incurred for "horse-hire, table, and guide" in their journey from Piscataqua to Boston as messengers from Colonel March.

By the end of June preparations for the expedition had so far advanced that the anxious public were disposed to take heart, and hope for the best. Sewall, under date of the first of July, records that "A Rainbow is seen just before night, which comforts us against our Distresses as to the affairs of the Expedition, and the Unquietness of the Souldiers at Casco, of which Gideon Lowel brings word, who came thence yesterday." ||

At length, on the sixth of July, the Ruth Frigate, her freight being stowed, and she otherwise ready for the voyage, and having taken the three commissioners and their attendants on board the day before, ¶ set sail for Casco Bay. While she stood on her course, in the month of Boston Harbor, Leverett confided to one of his neighbors, taking leave of him, the following farewell to his wife, in Cambridge:—

"My Dearest
I have but Just time to write three Lines to you by Mr Bordman to tell you we are got wel & under a very good gale by the Brusters. hope by to morrow morning to be at Casco. Love me and Remember me, give my Duty to Mad<sup>m</sup> Rogers** and bless the Dear Birds in the name of

Mr. [Thomas] Bridge for their chaplain . . . deputies from the Government, and superintending counsellors to General March, without whose advice he was to do nothing." — P. 194.

On the tenth the Governor, with the advice of the Council, issued a proclamation for a general fast to be kept in Massachusetts and New Hampshire upon Thursday, the twenty-fourth. No copy of the proclamation for Massachusetts has been found; but the proclamation published in New Hampshire of the same form, mutatis mutandis, was as follows:—

"(By his Excellency, JOSEPH DUDLEY, Esq.) Captain General and Governor in Chief, in and over her Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts Bay and New Hampshire in New England:

A PROCLAMATION FOR A GENERAL FAST.

Inasmuch as it is the Sovereign pleasure of the Righteous God, still to lengthen out the troubles of Europe, by the continuance of the war with the Common enemy of the repose of the Christian Nations; as also our own and our neighbors troubles in these her Majesty's Provinces and Colonies, with the French and Indian enemies and rebels; withal considering the importance of the Expedition which her Majesty's subjects here are now engaged in against the said Enemy and rebels; and the just reasons we have to implore the Divine Favor for the remission of our Sins, whereby we have justly provoked the Holy God and for his blessing upon that undertaking:—

I have thought fitt, by and with the advice of her Majesty's Council to appointe and order that Thursday, the twenty fourth day of July current, be solemnized as a day of Public fasting and Prayer throughout those Provinces; Exhorting both Ministers and people in their several Assemblies religiously to attend the solemn services of the said day; that by a sincere and hearty confession of our sins, and humble reliance on the Divine Mercy, we may obtain from God, that our Sovereign Lady the Queen, with the Nations and Territories under her happy Government may always be under the protection of Heaven; her Majesty's life and Government long continued; her Council and Just Arms prospered; the designs of the Barbarous Salvages against us defeated; our exposed Plantations preserved, and the poor Christian Captives in their hands returned; and her Majesty's forces on the present Expedition may be under Heavens Conduct, and have good success; that the Government of these Provinces may have the Divine direction in all their Administrations; that health may be continued and the present year crowned with the fruits of Divine bounty, and that deliverance may speedily arise to the church of God, oppressed with the Tyranny of Anti-Christ, and every kind of peace and prosperity may be given and secured to us and our posterity, upon the firm and lasting foundations of the Divine blessing and favor: And all servile labor upon the said day is inhibited.

Given at Portsmouth, the tenth day of July, 1707, in the sixth year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Anne, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, Queen, defender of the Faith, &c.

J. DUDLEY.

By order of his Excellency, The Governor, and Council, CHAS. STORY Secretary.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN." — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 511.

A brisk correspondence between the Governor and the commissioners ensued from the date of their joining the fleet. The first letters received by Dudley arrived on the evening of the eleventh and were promptly answered, and on the next day he communicated both the letters and answers to the Council. Further correspondence between the commissioners and the Governor was similarly communicated on the nineteenth, and on the twenty-sixth other letters were received from the fleet. Neither the originals nor copies of these letters have been found; but from other sources it appears that the fleet, which had been ordered to sail on the seventeenth, was deterred by wholesale desertions at the last moment. William Dudley reported to his father on the day last named that "since yesterday we have had fifty-nine deserted," — out of Colonel Wainwright's command, sixteen; and out of the companies of Captains March and Chesley, thirty and thirteen, respectively, "and how many more we know not yet; Colonel Hilton is gone to see." The circumstances attending these desertions were so suspicious that even the innocent Secretary of War declared, that "it can never be but some of the officers do encourage, or at least wink at, the desertion of their men." Colonel Hilton wrote to his wife from Casco Fort, on the sixteenth, a letter in the following passage from which he describes the depression of the soldiers:—

"MY DEAR SPOUSE,

I can't but take all opportunities to salute you. I do earnestly embrace this as ye last before our departure. . . . The soldiers are utterly averse and will at best be but passive in returning to Port Royal, just as prisoners are transported; nevertheless, if Providence cast advantages into our hands there, they will eagerly embrace them, and if we obtain victory, God will now have a much greater share in our songs of triumph, than if we had been successful at first."*

On the twenty-first, the Governor having communicated to the Council tidings (brought by an express, which arrived from Wells the night before) of the arrest of thirty deserters, it was advised "That they be brought under Guards to Mr Pepperels Garrison in Kittery, and that Capt<sup>n</sup> Blew in the Briganteen Dragon, be ordered thither, to take them in, and return them to the service. And, to carry Duplicates of his Excellency's Letters express'd on Saturday last."†

On the same day, also, the Council "Advised. That his Excellency emit a Proclam<sup>n</sup> for drawing in of the Souldiers that have withdrawn themselves from Her Majesty's service in the Forces Eastward. And a Proclamation was accordingly drawn up and Advised to."†

* Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 506.

† Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 442.

The Governor immediately wrote to his council of New Hampshire requesting the publication of a similar proclamation* there, whereupon the council, on the twenty-third, "Ordered, that the Secretary issue forth several Proclamations to be read in the several Meeting-Houses of this Province tomorrow,† and afterwards posted up, the Proclamation to be in the tenor and form hereafter expressed and to be signed by the Secretary."‡

By a singular forgetfulness, or from sudden prejudice, Dudley had failed to commend Hilton, whose conduct during the expedition had been exceptionally praiseworthy. Hilton seems to have taken the Governor's silence as a token of dissatisfaction, yet on the second expedition to Port Royal he resumed his post without complaint, when, as he wrote to his wife,§ "notwithstanding a thousand difficulties in our way, its ordered that the fleet prepare to take the signal for weighing anchor tomorrow." William Dudley had mentioned to his father Hilton's wounded feelings, in his letter of the twenty-eighth of June, as follows:—

"Col<sup>o</sup> Hilton gives his humble Duty and says he has a Desire to put his affairs in some posture which Lye upon great Disadvantages and hopes if your Excellency sen'ds him back you will continue your Care of his family and affairs, which never have been wanting hetherto, and Desires he may be pardoned if he has Done any thing amiss and if represented otherwise than he assures your Excellency he his || your very dutifull and obedient ser<sup>t</sup> and ready to serve you in any thing to his utmost."—Mass. Archives, vol. 51, p. 170.

The Governor efficaciously though tardily applied a balm to the wound he had thus given, in the following letter, forgetting, however, that he had made to Governor Cranston, just one month before, the same avowal of exceptional confidence in Colonel Wanton:—

"Boston, 20 July, 1707.

My dear Kinsman—

I always had a just value for you as my good kinsman; but much more for your steady service for and love to your country. I have not neglected writing to you as being displeas'd, for I am not so—you being the only officer against whom I have no complaint. But truly, Sir, I was never so surpris'd by what the enemy can do against me, as I am at this intolerable ungoverned temper and base cowardice of my people. I pray you to be steady to Colonel Hutchinson and the gentlemen in command, to assist Colonel March. You have a brave Virginia prize in Port Royal harbour, and by and by will have the store-ship. And if you will be content to stay twenty days at Port Royal, they will desert and come over to you. However, let the Governor be obeyed and all will be well.

I am your affectionate Kinsman

J. DUDLEY.

To the Hon. Col. Hilton, Eastward."—Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 506.

Besides the other embarrassments encountered by the commissioners in entering upon the service to which they were appointed, they were apparently beset with loud complaints of the insufficiency and bad quality of the stores¶ provided for the subsistence of the soldiers and seamen. On the tenth Dudley ordered the Commissary-General forthwith to make the necessary provision for thirty days for thirteen hundred men, and, on the twenty-third,** fourteen days' provisions for the forces were ordered to be put on board the transport brigantine Lark, under command of Samuel Long, "and sent to them for a supply if needed," under convoy of the armed brigantine Dragon.††

* The following is the form of this proclamation:—

PROVINCE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas several soldiers under the command of Capt. Samuel Chesley, upon the present Expedition, hath deserted her Majesty's service by running away from their Colours;—

These are therefore to make known to all and every such deserters, that if they do render themselves in two days time to any of her Majesty's Council in her Majesty's Province of New Hampshire, or at the house of Mr. Pepperell, over against the Great Island, soe as to goe on board of Capt. Blew, in order to return to the Camp, they will have his Excellency's the Governour's favour, and be acquitted of Corporal punishment; otherwise they will be proceeded against with the utmost severity of Law.

Given at the Council Chamber, at Portsmouth, the 23<sup>d</sup> July, in the sixth year of her Majesty's Reign, that is now over England, &c. Anno Domini, 1707.

The council also passed the following additional order:—

"Ordered, that the Secretary write to the several Captains of the several Towns that they make known to any of Captain Chesley's men that are deserted, that if they shall within two days render themselves to some of her Majesty's Council within her Majesty's Province of New Hampshire, or at the house of Mr. Pepperell's over against the Great Island, soe as to goe on board of Captain Blew, in order to return to the Camp, they will have the Governour's favour, and be acquitted of Corporal punishment: otherwise they will be proceeded against to the utmost severity of the Law."—Ibid.

¶ The complaints respecting the provisions having been reported by the commissioners to Dudley, he, on the twenty-sixth, wrote to Leverett, ". . . we think here that the business of the Provision is aggravated to you to make a necessity, the packers here stand to it that they send good meat, but nothing can be good just at this Season. . . ."—Mass. Archives, vol. 71, p. 371.

On the thirty-first the Commissary-General, upon his own application, was ordered by the Council to write to Lieutenant-Colonel Checkley and Captains Thomas Oliver and Samuel Phipps to request them "to view the pork that he has procured and put up for the subsistence" of the forces.

** Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 443.

†† On her voyage to the eastward to take back to the fleet the deserters held in custody at Kittery, in which service the transport was also to assist.

Just when the fleet set sail from Casco has not been ascertained. The date given by Barnard — the twenty-fifth — is clearly wrong, since Colonel Hutchinson wrote to the Governor on the twenty-sixth as follows:—

“We have so little prospect of any service from the marine, after we have taken the ground, that, for the keeping it, we must have dependence upon our other force, being only 743 officers and soldiers, sick and well; and they are so extremely dispirited, that we cannot look upon them equal to 300 effective men. However, we have your excellency’s commands, which we yield an absolute obedience to and shall proceed.” — Hutchinson’s Hist. of Mass., ed. 1767, vol. 2, p. 168, note.

The above letter, preserved by the writer’s grandson, is the only authoritative statement of the number of men that sailed on the second expedition. William Dudley, in his letter* from Casco of the seventeenth of July, to his father, after representing that “every day [more soldiers] will run if we tarry here any Longer,” ventured the opinion, which he undoubtedly imbibed from others about him, that “if we can take the Enemy’s store ship † and burn their vessells which may be done & at the same time Ravage Menis . . . I suppose five or six hundred enough for that service.” The Governor, however, counted upon the return of the deserters before the sailing of the fleet, as appears by the following letter to Leverett, which also contains the only sketch of the proposed campaign that has been discovered:—

“Boston 26th July 1707

Barnard’s statement that the fleet arrived at Passamaquoddy on the thirtieth is not contradicted by any other authority. § By Dudley’s letter it appears that the fleet was to stop at that place on the way, and there capture prisoners as well as take booty. That the fleet was still at Passamaquoddy on the fifth of August appears by the date of letters || written thence to Governor Cranston by his brother and Lieutenant-Colonel Wanton. That the soldiers had a hostile encounter with the inhabitants and brought off prisoners and plunder appears by the proceedings at Boston relative to the French captive Gourdean and the compensation granted to him from the province treasury for his peltry; ¶ and the petition of Hugh Pike, which is the foundation of chapter 54, post, shows that the wounds for which he was granted an allowance by that chapter were received at Passamaquoddy.

The taking up of so many armed vessels for the expedition deprived the fisheries of their ordinary protection of a cruiser appointed by the government. In this emergency certain merchants of Salem, Marblehead, and vicinity, engaged in the fishery trade, were permitted, upon their application, to fit out an armed vessel for that purpose, at their own charge, the commander of which was regularly commissioned and received formal instructions from the Governor.*

While Governor Dudley evidently expected that all the deserters would be returned before the fleet sailed he was impatient of delay; nor was he satisfied with adding to this accession the reinforcements sent in the Ruth Frigate. His purpose seems to have been, first, promptly to effect a successful landing and begin a siege at Port Royal, and then, in order to strengthen the forces sent in advance, and to improve the morale of both officers and men, to join to the besiegers a considerable body of soldiers, under active officers. These in the mean time he was to make every endeavor to enlist and send forward at the earliest opportunity. Besides those new recruits which he hoped to enlist within his own jurisdiction he turned to Connecticut and Rhode Island for auxiliaries. His expectation of aid from the former colony, however, must have been weakened by his knowledge that the Indian enemy, taking advantage of the absence from the province of the forces sent eastward, drawn in part from the frontiers, were renewing their savage attacks † upon the

† The assaults of the savages begun in May and June were continued in July, and were not confined to the outlying settlements, but were also boldly made upon stragglers from the fleet while lying at Casco, as appears by the following items: —

“July 8, 1707. John Bunker & Ichabod Rawlius (both of Dover) Going with a Cart from L<sup>t</sup> Zech: Fields Gar: [L<sup>t</sup> Field's garrison was between Cochecho and Oyster River. He was grandson of the Darby Field who visited the White Mountains in 1642. “Field's Plains” is still a local name in Dover. — Note by the editor, Doctor Quint.] to James Bunkers for a Loom, were assailed by many Indians, & both slain. The enemy (supposed 20 or 30 in num.) slaughtered many Cattel for the Jones's (at same time) to the number of 15 or more.” — Pike's Journal, p. 145.

“July 11. A number of boats went out this morning to catch lobsters and plaice among the islands, which are many; I went among the rest. One of the boats went near to the shore of one island, and we, who were next to them, were suddenly alarmed with the firing of about twenty small arms, and looking to the island whence the noise came, we saw about forty of the Indians scalping three of the men; the other two men that were in the boat they took prisoners. We were so near to the enemy that their shot would have reached us; but they all immediately betook themselves to their canoes (being about 150 that lay hid in the bushes,) and paddled away for life. The army took the alarm, and in a few minutes the ships' boats, with several hundred men, and General March at the head of them, were upon the full chase after the Indians, but could not come up with them. I look upon this as an instance of the care of Divine Providence, and bless God who

In such an emergency the detail of any considerable contingent from Connecticut could hardly be expected to meet the cordial approval of the prudent Governor of that colony who had had no voice in starting the enterprise in which Dudley had thus far failed. However, before the middle of July Dudley addressed Governor Winthrop, as follows:—

“BOSTON, 14th July 1707.

S<sup>r</sup>,— Every body tells you my disaster, in the forces coming from Port Royal without order. I have with great difficulty reinforced them and they are returning again to that ground, where I mean to have them lye fifty days at least; in which time if I might see two or three hundred men from yo<sup>r</sup> Govern<sup>mt</sup> it would very much strengthen and encourage the service, and probably put that place out of any future power to disturb us, in which your people have equal benefit. The Indians are everywhere upon me in small party's, and last of all, six days past, march'd near one hundred in a body from the back of Piscataqu westward. They may with others fall on Hampshire very probably. I desire you will direct a good number to be ready for their defence, which is truly your own frontier. No reply to this letter has been found; but on the fourth of August Dudley thus renewed his application to Winthrop:—

“BOSTON, August 4th 1707.

S<sup>r</sup>,— The expedition eastward against the French & Indians, consisting of the forces of this Province & Rhode Island, is yet continued and reinforced; and I hope to hear every hour that they are again possessed of the ground before the fort at Port Royal, though they are not so strong as they were in the first motion thither. And if their health and temper continue, I shall keep them there sometime, & have therefore thought fit once more to give you notice thereof, and that there is yet an opportunity for her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s good subjects of yo<sup>r</sup> Govern<sup>mt</sup> to do their share in this so honourable a service. Two or three hundred men for a month or six weeks will be a very little addition to what charge Connecticut ought to be at in joyn<sup>t</sup> with this Govern<sup>mt</sup>, as her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s most gracious letters direct. I shall be glad to have that party that is abroad well reinforet & encouraged, and have no doubt but, with just assistance, by the favour of God we shall obtayn against the enemy what we desire.

Winthrop's reply, dated the fourteenth, was as follows:—

The apparent candor and good will shown in this letter, however they might have shielded Winthrop from any charge of want of sympathy and of desire to coöperate in Dudley's schemes, could not have concealed from the latter the writer's exquisite sarcasm. For the time being, it ended their correspondence* upon the subject of the conquest of Acadia.

Dudley's application to Rhode Island was received with cordial interest, and promptly responded to. Governor Cranston, to whom Dudley had expressed his gratitude in most flattering terms, appears to have been sincerely anxious for Dudley's success, to have thoroughly approved of his plans, to have warmly sympathized in his misfortune and to

According to Rev. Peter Whitney, Jonathan White was killed by the Indians on the sixteenth of July near Lancaster. — History of Worcester County (under Lancaster), p. 44.

I have had two Letters ffrom Lt Collonel Wanton since his arrivall at casco Bay, the Latter dated the 24th of Last moneth, by wch I am inform'd of the great discontent and disorder in the army, and there aversness to proceed to port Royall, he also informes me that the army is much weakened by desercion, and that the consideration thereof makes him fearful what the Issue may be, and is very doubtfull of there good success; I cannot understand from whence there Great discontent and disorder doth arise but am satisfied that it must be a great Exercise & troble to yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency in particuler, and I do Assure you I can not but sympathize with you therein, and shall be much Troubled should yo<sup>r</sup> Excellencys Just and Hon<sup>able</sup> Indevvers faill of success (I being partly concernd therein) for the Hon<sup>r</sup> of her Maj<sup>tye</sup> and Good of the cuntry: I shall therefore presume to give yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency my advice and oppinion, (if the fleet and Army do proceed and do take there ground againe before the foart) that vpon the first notification thereof yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency do Reinforce them with with * 3 or 4. hundred fresh men vnder a brisk comand; the arrivall of wch will be a great heartning, and incouragement to the whole army and a discouragement and disperriting to the enemy — and I do belieue the matter will not be difficult, for when the cuntry is satisfied that the army has Taken there ground againe, and will be Exposed to the bronts of the enemy, every one that hath any friend or Relation there will be willing & forward to Assist and Relieve them (which other ways would not have Expos'd them selues, And if I may be so bold with yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency without offence, I shall Reco<sup>m</sup>end Major W<sup>m</sup> Wanton as a sutable man for a comand; he being a person of Courage and Resolution (not but that yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency has worthy men enough) but he is spirited for the designe, and I do belieue would Expose himselfe for the Hon<sup>r</sup> of his cuntry and if he may be Honrd with yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency commission for a collonells place, I presume I can prevaile with him to Except Thereof; wch I conlude will not be greivous to yo<sup>r</sup> owne people, he being born and Bred in yo<sup>r</sup> Excellencys Provice tho: not an inhabitant there at present—

I have had some discourse this day wth Collo<sup>ll</sup> Curch—who apprones of my propositions as to the Reinforcement, but semes inclinable, to Expose him selfe, wch I fear his Crasy and aged body will not be capable to beare, besids I Question whether the people would, be so forward to List vnder him as they would vnder a younger man that is capable to vnder go hard ships and Travell. —

I beg yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency pardon for my boldness in Taking this Liberty with you: and submit, to yo<sup>r</sup> Excellencys Great Wisdome, and discretion —

I am very much obliged to you in the whole affayr of port royall & very perticularly for your Last Letter of the first Instant the winds have been such that the fleet must needs be arrived there, & I have directed the Brigantine scout to Give me notice thereof presently which I shall express to you as soon as I can, and the general assembly of this province is to meet by prorogation upon wednesday the thirteenth Instant with whose advice I shall determine any recruits thither, but have seen so much of their good temper and resolution in this matter that I expect their ready Consent to any thing in their power,

In the mean time I heartily Thank your advice refering to Major wanton, & if he pleases with your direction & assistance to see what volunteirs can be had in your government as well as the masachusetts near you, & go forward to Incourage them, I shall with all possible speed dispatch the Consideration with the Generall assembly & upon our resolve I shall send a Colonels Comission for Major wanton to Comand them & heartily thank his readiness to visit his Brother for whom I have a very perticular regard.

I will miss no time to advise you of every occerent in this affayr & am Sr

Cranston's letter of the first of August and the draught of Dudley's reply thereto and of his last letter to Winthrop were duly laid before the Council. On the eighth, Cranston wrote again as follows:—

I haue Your Excellencys of the 4th currant, & am Glad to heare that the fleet is sail'd from casco bay, and of the favorable wind that did attend them vpon there departure, I pray God they may be further favoured with good success vpon there arrivall —

I heartily thank Your Excellency for the favorable Reception of my Last Letter and am more then ordinary obliged, that my advice Relating, Major Wanton was so acceptable to yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency; as to Hon<sup>r</sup> Him with the tender of yo<sup>r</sup> Comission ffor a Collonells place.

I have communicated the whole matter to him, who is very thankfull to yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency for the Regard you haue for his brother, and the Good Esteem you haue of him selfe; And for the Hon<sup>r</sup> of her Maj<sup>tye</sup> and Good of his cuntry is Willing to Except, yo<sup>r</sup> Excellency comission, provided there be a sutable number of Volunteirs present them selues, and desires that, he may be Admitted, to fitt a sloop of his owne heare, att yo<sup>r</sup> provincis Charge; for his owne accomodation and transportation of such forces as will

The pursuit and arrest of the deserters continued after the departure of the fleet, but the Governor deferred sending them forward until he could get from the Legislature further advice or authority. He therefore issued writs for a session to be held on the thirteenth of August, on which day the Speaker and the House being with the Council, in the council chamber, in response to his message, he made to them the following speech: —

“Gentlemen,

I had not troubled you with a Session at this Time, but that it was reasonable you should know the present State of the forces Eastward, And necessary that I should have your advice in so troublesom an affair —

The Expedition was entred upon at your Instance and advice, And the best officers & Souldiers in all Parts of the Province taken into the Service, the first orders & Instructions to the Comanders of the Forces, Seen & approved by a Session of the Assembly holden for that Service

And the Shipp's Warr & Transports very soon after arrived in the Bay of Port Royal, and the forces happily Landed & possessed themselves of the Ground near that Fort, of the houses, & Cattle of the Inhabitants, but very soon after, without any Direction from mee, Embarqued again, left the Shoar. & Contrary to their orders; without visiting the other Settlements of the French upon that Coast Directed their Transports to make the best of their way home to my very great Surprise, which with all Industry with the advice of Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>s Council I have laboured to prevent And Therefore comanded the fleet to Stop at Casco-bay, And those that were gotten hither by all possible means I have arrested and returned, And have reinforced them with another Ship, And near an hundred men as I was desired by the Last Sessions of the Assembly, And being Sensible that the Comand proved too weak, I have Sent a Superiour Comand by Comission to three Gentlemen of approved Loyalty & Courage, if possible to Inspire the Forces with a better temper of Courage & obedience, And they are again returning to the french side of the bay of fundee,

Mr Secretary will communicate to you the Letters & Papers that have passed between me & The Comanders from Time to time Since their Departure, which will Set the whole matter in a True Light, And I Desire you will thereupon give me your advice what further Comands are necessary that we may not fail of our Duty to her Majesty nor dishonour our Selves in so great a Service as is before us.

I Desire you not to Divert to any other business, The proper Season of The year will come for the Publick occasions of The Province, before which Time, with your good advice & resolves this affair may have A Successfull and happy Issue.” — Ibid., vol. 108, p. 53.

The Governor then “directed the Secretary being accompanied by Simeon Stoddard Esq; to carry down the Orders, Letters & Papers referring to the Expedition to Nova Scotia & L'Accadie, & to dispose them into their proper Order, to be read in the House, & left with them for their further Perusal & Consideration, If desired; Wh<sup>ch</sup> was accordingly attended.”*

A ship of the royal navy, which, as early as the twenty-fifth of July, had arrived at Boston, having convoyed from Lisbon a fleet bound to Piscataqua and Boston, was in port when the General Court assembled. This was the Swallow (or Swallow's) Prize, † commanded by Captain George Paddon. ‡ To Dudley her arrival seemed opportune for his purpose, and, accordingly, on the second day of the session, he “sent a Message to the House by Coll: Hathorne, Coll: Phillips, Mr Sergeant & Mr Hutchinson, That

† Later on it will appear that in the French accounts this ship was called “l'Annibal” or “the Hannibal.” There are two plausible conjectures in explanation of this discrepancy; one is, that her true name was Hironnelle (translated the Swallow, and called the Swallow's Prize, by her English captors), converted into l'Annibal by a typographical error; and the other is, that Annibal was the original name of the vessel which Paddon commanded, but which, having been captured by the Swallow, was described as her prize.

‡ This officer, who, in 1693, was appointed second lieutenant of the Archangel, a hired ship of war of forty-eight guns, which, that year, convoyed a fleet to Virginia, was commander of the Vesuvius freship in 1703, in which he was wrecked off Spithead in the great storm of the twenty-sixth of November. His name appears again in British-American history in 1711, when he commanded the Windsor, of sixty guns, on the New-England station. On this ship he captured many prizes, including the Thetis, a French man-of-war of forty-two guns. By July 22 of that year he was transferred to the Edgar, the flagship of Sir Hovenden Walker's unfortunate expedition against Quebec. For his conduct in that expedition he was dismissed the service. Later he entered the navy of Peter the Great and is said to have died in Russia early in 1717.

he having communicated to them in his Speech yesterday, & by the Letters & Papers from the Forces in Nova Scotia &c now before them, the Posture of that Affair, If the House had thoughts of Looking forward & Making a Reinforcement of them, It is necessary to be very expeditious, the Season demanding it, Two Hundred Men might serve, & her Majesties Ship the Swallows Prize, now in Port being in Readiness, they might be transported in her, And also intimated to the House the Method he proposed for Raising the Men.*

The representatives forthwith passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence, the order which constitutes this chapter.

As soon as Dudley had thus procured the advice of, and authority from, the Legislature, to carry out his plans for reinforcing the little army which more than two weeks before had sailed for Port Royal, he communicated the good news to Governor Cranston in the following letter:—

“Boston 14 August 1707.

To this letter Cranston replied as follows:—

On the fifteenth the representatives, with the design to quiet any apprehensions among the soldiers that they were to remain at Port Royal to garrison the fort in case of its capture, passed the order which constitutes chapter 28, post. Thereupon the Governor, evidently to convey to the commissioners at Port Royal this vote of advice, “prepared the Draught of a Letter to the Commissioners in Command of the Forces at Nova Scotia &c, Wh<sup>ch</sup> he Read at the Board, And Directed the Secretary to communicate it to the House of Representatives.”*

Apparently this letter (not found) was committed to Captain Paddon to be by him delivered to the commissioners, and was returned by him to Dudley to be again submitted to the Council, after which, presumably, it was redelivered to Paddon to go with the letters of later date.

On the sixteenth, in order to furnish the Rhode Island auxiliaries with small arms in accordance with Governor Cranston’s suggestion, and to provide for the subsistence of all the forces for four weeks’ service beyond the time already fixed, the Assembly passed the order which constitutes chapter 32, post. The additional stores authorized by the same order, very likely, included a supply of lead, the need of which the Commissary-General had represented, and two tons of which, recently imported, he had been empowered by an order in Council, on the seventh,† to purchase, although chapter 25 was then in force.

On the eighteenth the Governor, in compliance with the advice of the Assembly as given in the present chapter, addressed the following order to Paddon:—

“Boston. 18th August. 1707./.

Sr/.

The Queens Service necessarily demanding to show a further Sea and Land Force, than what is at present, in the parts of Nova Scotia and L’accadie.

I Direct and order you, with the first fair wind, to Sayle with Her Matys Ship under your Command, into the Bay of Fundy and there Joyn<sup>e</sup> Her Matys Ship Deptford, Capt<sup>n</sup> Charles Stucley Commander, who you will find with the fleet, at Port Royal, or parts near adjacent. of Her Matys Ship Swallows Prize.”—Ibid., p. 389.

Up to the date of the above order to Paddon, Dndley appears to have received no tidings of the progress and condition of the expedition save of its arrival at Passamaquoddy and of the continuance there of disaffection among the soldiers. Upon their arrival at that place the commissioners had found it necessary to interpose their authority; and March was superseded ‡ by Wainwright, as general-in-chief. The fleet neglecting to take advantage of “a fine, fair, northwest wind,” which would have brought them to their ultimate destination several days earlier, reached Port Royal on Sunday, the tenth, after spending more than a week at Passamaquoddy in a petty attack upon the French traders and settlers there, some of whom they made prisoners, and, with them, seized and carried away an inconsiderable stock of peltry, etc. During the interval between the departure from Port Royal of the former expedition and the arrival of the commissioners, a privateer had brought in to de Subercase a fresh stock of provisions,§ and he had also received the assistance of M. de Bonaventure, the able commander of a French frigate, the crew of which were sent ashore to reinforce the garrison. By a privateer which arrived some time before the fleet, notice had been given him that the English were preparing to return with a stronger force for the conquest of Acadia, and he had begun to prepare for them, and had posted sentinels to watch for their approach. The fleet entered the channel about ten o’clock in the forenoon, coming to anchor, in fine order, early in the afternoon. On the following day the soldiers debarked, and landed, as Barnard says, “in an orchard,” more than two miles below the fort, on the opposite side of the river, whence they immediately marched to a point less than a mile above, where they took possession of some unoccupied houses.

This place of landing was not their choice. Taking advantage of their delay in debarking, and anticipating their movements, de Subercase || had forced them to deviate from their original plan to land at an advantageous spot on the other side of the river.

The position to which the English had marched was within musket shot of the fort, so that it was easy for the garrison to prevent them from crossing; and at another point opposite the fort they were forced, by a vigorous discharge of cannon and musketry, to desist from throwing up earthworks for mounting their guns and mortars. Abandoning this attempt, therefore, they proceeded to land their stores and ammunition; and they “established their quarters” at the landing place; but, on the twelfth, those who had occupied the point above were forced, by a constant fire of musketry from the fort, to fall back to their camp, where they spent the day in intrenching.

On the thirteenth occurred a hostile encounter between the English and their adversaries,

* Council Records, vol. VIII., p. 313.

† Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 450.

‡ Hutchinson, who had access to documents not now known to be in existence, states that March resigned, his spirit being “broke and his health affected, so that, when the disposition was making for landing the army, he declared himself incapable of acting and the command was given to Wainwright, the next officer.”—Hist. of Mass., ed. 1767, vol. 2, p. 169.

§ A privateer from St. Domingo brought in two English prizes, one of which contained three hundred and forty barrels of flour, lard, hams, and butter.—French “Relation.”

|| He had, moreover, upon the first notice of the approach of the fleet, thrown up new intrenchments, and called to the defence of the fort the surrounding inhabitants for a distance of several miles, giving them, at the same time, ample opportunity to secrete their goods and live stock from the English.

which is differently described* by the several writers, French and English, who have professed to narrate the history of the expedition. The following extract from a letter, dated the fourteenth of August, by Colonel Wainwright to the commissioners, appears, upon the whole, to be the most trustworthy account of the affair, and since it also gives a graphic picture of the miserable condition of the English forces, it has not been deemed necessary to abridge it narrowly :—

“ Our not recovering the intended ground on the opposite side is a mighty advantage to the enemy, in that they have opportunity, and are improving it, for casting up trenches in the very place where we designed to land, and draw up our small forces. Yesterday, the French, about eight of the clock forenoon, on the fort point, with a small party of St. John’s Indians, began to fire on our river guards and so continued until about three afternoon : Then appeared about one hundred Indians and French, upon the same ground, who kept continually firing at us until dark. Several were shot through their cloaths, and one Indian through the thigh. About four in the afternoon, I suffered a number of men, about 40 or 50, to go down to the bank of the river, to cut thatch to cover their tents. All returned well, except nine of Capt. Dimmock’s men, who were led away by one Mansfield, a mad fellow, to the next plantation to get cabbages in a garden, without the leave and against the will of his officer. They were no sooner at their plunder, but they were surrounded by, at least one hundred French and Indians, who in a few minutes killed every one of them, their bodies being mangled in a frightful manner. Our people buried them, and fired twice upon the enemy ; on which they were seen to run towards our out guards next the woods, which we immediately strengthened. Indeed, the French have reduced us to the same state to which we reduced them, at our last being at Port-royal ; surrounded with enemies and judging it unsafe to proceed on any service without a company of at least one hundred men. I shall now give you a short account of the state of our people, truly, as delivered me by Doctor Ellis. There is a considerable number of them visited with violent fluxes, and although we have things proper to give them, yet dare not do it ; others taken with mighty swellings in their throats ; others filled with terror at the consideration of a fatal event of the expedition, concluding that, in a short time, there will not be well enough to carry off the sick.

I am distressed to know which way to keep the Indians steady to the service. They protest they will draw off, whatever becomes of them. It is truly astonishing, to behold the miserable posture and temper that most of the army are in, besides the smallness of our number, to be attacked by the enemy which we expect every moment.

I am much disordered in my health by a great cold.† I shall not use it as an argument to be drawn off my self, but, as you are masters of the affair, lay before you the true state of the army which indeed is very deplorable : I should much rejoice to see some of you here, that you might be proper judges of it.

If we had the transports with us, it would be impossible, without a miracle, to recover the ground on the other side, and I believe the French have additional strength every day. In fine, most of the forces are in a distressed state, some in body and some in mind, and the longer they are kept here on the cold ground the longer it will grow upon them, and, I fear, the further we proceed the worse the event. God help us.” — Hutchinson’s Hist. of Mass., ed. 1767, vol. 2, p. 169.

On the fifteenth, on which day the soldiers had been successively shelled out of their camp and out of the woods to which they had retired, some new plan of attack upon the fort seems to have been hit upon, or the proposed demonstration against it had been abandoned. Possibly the commissioners ordered Wainwright to destroy the houses and other buildings of the neighboring inhabitants, and to cut the dikes protecting their marshes, and the dams which supplied their mills. By the following letter, which shows the captious spirit in which the General-in-Chief received the orders of his superiors, and also the state of insubordination prevailing in the army, it would seem as if the announcement of the change of plan was joyfully received by the rank and file :—

* The following extract from the French “ Relation,” agreeing, substantially, with Wainwright’s account, apparently refers to the same encounter :—

“ Le 24. [that is, the 13th, O. S.] un parti François & de Sauvages passa la Riviere & surprit huit Anglois, dont six furent tuez & deux faits prisonniers, dont l’un étoit premier pilote d’un Vaisseau,” etc.

But Charlevoix thus magnifies and distorts the events :—

“ The troops which had landed, remained all the 22d in their camp intrenching, and on the evening of the 23d, seven or eight hundred men were detached, and marched out, preceded by a guard of ten soldiers under a lieutenant. This officer neglected the precautions proper in a wooded and unknown country : he fell into ambush and was killed with eight of his men. The other two were taken and brought to the Governor, who ascertained from them that the enemy had embarked their artillery in two small vessels, so as to run them past the fort under cover of the darkness of the night.

On this information he gave orders to light fires along the river as long as the tide was rising, and this precaution prevented the artillery from passing. On the other hand, the detachment, seeing its advanced guard defeated, durst not advance any further, but returned to camp, which no one left on the 24th on account of the constant alarms raised by the garrison of the fort.” — Shea’s translation, vol. V., p. 197.

† Stucley’s apprehension of being “ murdered by mosquitoes” at Casco Bay and Wainwright’s mention of his having taken cold must strike the average modern reader of these reports of the chief officers of the expedition, as hardly consistent with the self-forgetfulness which should characterize really brave and patriotic soldiers.

regards to follow, wth the greatest Carefulness, I have Communicated Y<sup>or</sup> orders to y<sup>o</sup> officers; As also to the Indians that part that Concerns them. w<sup>ch</sup> makes them look wth a more Cheerfull Countenance.: our People think it hard upon them to back their Provision from Time to time: However I Tell them it is their Duty to follow orders, and to Consider the Difficulty of procuring of it any other way: As for Cutting the Banks: It is, thought that Except the Tides suit: it Can be no Dammage to the Enemy. On the sixteenth the enemy forced Wainwright to move his camp half a league further down the river. On the seventeenth, according to Charlevoix, de Subercase sent out a detachment which killed three sentinels and obliged the English to decamp a third time, and some small parties were again sent out which harassed them incessantly. In this last encampment they appear to have been protected by their ships and out of the reach of the enemy's shells. For three days they remained in camp, intrenching, evidently for the purpose of holding their position with a comparatively small part of their force while the rest recrossed the river to effect their purpose of ravaging the country, which, on the twentieth or twenty-first, they attempted, and actually went over, protected by the guns of the fleet, beginning their march immediately upon landing. They were, however, soon ambushed, in a piece of woods, by the Baron de St. Castin at the head of a troop of from sixty to one hundred and fifty French and Indians, who fired upon them three volleys, which they received with unexpected intrepidity and seemed resolved to proceed at all hazards, but were seen to fall back, apparently in order to embark on the long boats which were taking some of their companions to the ships. Upon this de Subercase sent the Sieur de la Boularderie with one hundred and fifty men to reinforce St. Castin's troop, and he himself followed with one hundred and twenty men, leaving de Bonaventure in command of the fort while the French forces jointly pursued the English. A desperate conflict ensued in which la Boularderie was wounded and retired from the field. The English, who were retreating towards the shore, rallied under the lead of some of their officers, and the French, in turn, fell back towards the woods, both St. Castin and Saillant having been wounded — the latter mortally. The remnant of the soldiers on shore embarked in great confusion, being pursued by one Granger, "a brave colonist," at the head of Boularderie's detachment. This is the French account, which admits the loss of one killed and eleven wounded; but Barnard thus briefly sums up the doings at Port Royal upon the second expedition: —

" . . . We went to Port Royal, landed in an orchard, were ambushed, and lost about fourteen men, drove the enemy before us, returned to the orchard, spent a few days there, and then embarked our men; but about 110 French, mostly privateers, with their captain at their head, (who arrived in our absence,) came and lay hid in the thicket of the woods and underbrush, just without a log fence, where Capt. Talbot, with forty men, were placed as a guard to the orchard, and observed till our men were mostly embarked, and the boats were ashore for the last freight, and Capt Talbot called off from the guard, and then they broke in upon the orchard, where were only some of the officers, besides Talbot's guard, and a few others, with myself, and poured in their shot upon us, and killed us seven men. I had a shot brushed my wig, and was mercifully preserved. A few boat-loads of men going off immediately put back, and we soon drove them out of the orchard, killed a few of them, desperately wounded the privateer captain, and after that we all embarked, and returned for Boston as fast as we could. . . ." — Narrative, p. 195.

On the twenty-first the ships weighed anchor, dropped down stream, and lay to, outside the basin. On the twenty-second the fleet assembled and proceeded to take in wood and water, and, on Sunday, the twenty-fourth, they sailed for home. In this expedition the English lost, according to Penhallow and Hutchinson, "about sixteen killed and as many more wounded,"* and inflicted upon the enemy, according to Charlevoix, a loss of three killed and fifteen wounded.

* No express statement of the whole number of prisoners taken on either side has been found; but, February 2, 1707-8, the Commissary-General was ordered to take up and cause to be equipped a flag of truce for the exchange of prisoners of war at Port Royal, and on the twenty-third of April following he was ordered to put into a vessel, commanded by Captain Gyles, and bearing a flag of truce, bound to Port Royal to effect the exchange of thirty odd French prisoners to be returned to Port Royal for forty English prisoners expected from thence, "provisions for ten weeks subsistence of thirty five Men, and a small Caske of Rum and another of Wine for the refreshment of the s<sup>d</sup> Capt<sup>t</sup> Gyles and Company, and the reliefe of any persons that may be sick; and two Barrels of Cyder, and twenty pound of Tobacco for the accommodation of M<sup>r</sup> Gordeau and his sons." — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 565.

It was not until the twenty-third that Dudley received from his commissioners their report, together with Wainwright's letter of the fifteenth, and, not unlikely, other papers which, as well as the report, had not been found. No other tidings of the progress of the expedition had been received since its departure from Passamaquoddy, and the Governor had no knowledge that, on the very day on which the report came to his hands, the expedition was already embarked for home. Paddon, with his supplies and reinforcements for the expedition, and bearing with him to the commissioners a letter from Dudley, written on the fifteenth, had been detained by contrary winds; but Dudley was still hopeful that the Swallow's Prize would reach Port Royal in season to succor and encourage the dispirited soldiers, who had been so long expecting fresh recruits and additional supplies of provisions. He, therefore, on the same day, communicated to the Council the letters he had received from the commissioners, and his own letter to them already mentioned as having been in Paddon's hands for more than a week; whereupon, at a meeting of the Board, immediately held, "a further letter of Directions and orders to them from his Excellency was drawn up & read; as also a letter to Capt<sup>n</sup> Paddon Commander of Her Majesty's Ship Swallows prize, ordered to Port Royal with Recruits, and for further enforcement of the Expedition."*

Two letters of this date, preserved in the state archives, from Dudley to Paddon, and one to the commissioners, are given below. They show that the latter had not concealed from the Governor the desperate state of the army, and also that upon the adopting of a new plan of operations at Port Royal the army had re-embarked, evidently to reach a convenient base of operations (perhaps only by crossing the river), but had been discouraged from proceeding further. The letters are as follows:—

I am extremely troubled at the disorderly Temper of the forces abroad that will bear no Command as well as want of Resolution in the officers, and see plainly that all will fail on the Land part, unless Captain Stuclely and Captain Paddon will devise and adventure something on the sea part, I am sure Southack will do anything in his power And if the Land force should see a good battery made against the lower fort, and they were there beaten from their Guns it would certainly bring them to Terms and our people to better temper.

Consider together and let it be the Honour of the Sea part to do Her Majesty Honour in rooting out that Nest that will destroy us; It shall be all your own and be so represented home, If by any meane's we take that place. If the discontented and Sick be sent away, and the better men with your recruits be kept there you will have enough. you will find my Commissioners there very rational and steady, pray Advise wth them freely and do yo<sup>r</sup> utmost in yo<sup>r</sup> Service and you shall forever Oblige

Your Letters of the fifteenth Instant are come to hand & have been communicated to the Gent<sup>ys</sup> of Her Mat<sup>ys</sup> Council, and We have again Considered our Letters of yo<sup>r</sup> same date with yours which you will receive with these. The Swallows Prize having been detain'd by contrary winds until now.—

We are very Sensible of what you write referring to Capt<sup>n</sup> Stuclely, Cap<sup>t</sup> Sutton and the Marines and I desire you in my Name to give them Thanks for their good Service; And if Cap<sup>t</sup> Stuclely and Cap<sup>t</sup> Paddon upon their meeting and your Conference wth them can thinke any Service may be done with Her Mat<sup>ys</sup> Ships and the Galley by water and the new forces may give any courage to our Land men we shall be glad; otherwise the return of the whole Force and Fleet must be at last in yo<sup>r</sup> Judgment! but you may well enough keep your Station in the Bay and Bason and send a Force of three or four Hundred men to Menis and Sigenecto where their Corn is now ready for the fire as well as their houses.—

If your men be so ill as they Complain make a Garble of them and send away one or two hundred of them that are Sick, you will save their Viduals and lose no Strength.—

Meanwhile the act* for the raising and government of soldiers was passed, whereby former acts to prevent the deserting of the frontiers; to provide for the punishing of officers and soldiers; to encourage the prosecution of the Indian enemy and rebels; and to exempt soldiers and seamen in the queen's service from arrest for debt, were revived and continued; and the act for putting the militia in readiness for defence of the province was required to be carefully observed and vigorously prosecuted. Hutchinson being chief justice of the Inferior Court of Common Pleas for Suffolk County, and Townsend an associate justice on the same bench, another act † was passed by which proceedings pending in that Court which had been adjourned to the first Tuesday in September were still further continued to the first Tuesday in October.

Five days after Paddon had sailed ‡ on his voyage to Port Royal, the vessels of the fleet began to arrive,—the first-comer being the sloop Sarah and Hannah, Captain Winkley, bringing Captain Chesley and his company. This vessel came to anchor off Great Island, at the mouth of Piscataqua River, on the twenty-eighth, § on which day Chesley appeared before the council of New Hampshire and “acquainted the Gentlemen of the Council that the Fleet were all joined [going] away, and that their Rendezvous was to be at Nantaskett, &c.” ||

On the morning of the first of September the commissioners in command of the forces arrived, ¶ and waited upon the Governor and Council.

March, who had also returned, and had been received with insults and derision by the populace, was spared a long endurance of this mortification by being immediately ordered “to draw Fifty men for the service in rayseing the Fort** at Winter harbour, and two hundred more for the relieving of Casco, Saco, and Yorkshire.” †† The rest of the soldiers, and the officers under the degree of lieutenant, he was ordered to disband, ††† and the rest

‡ According to the French “Relation” “P. Annibal,” the name given by the writer to Paddon's frigate (see foot-note on p. 741, ante), was “loaded with supplies and two hundred and forty men for landing,” and accompanied by “two brigantines.”

§ By the following entry it appears that on the same day Wainwright arrived at Ipswich, and that about the same time the arrival of other vessels of the fleet was reported:—

“Aug. 30, 1707. His Excellency communicated to the Council a Letter from Col<sup>o</sup> Wainwright, adviseing of his Landing with his Company at Ipswich on Thursday evening past, and that all the Fleet sail'd from Port Royal homeward on Lordsday the 25th [24th] Instant.

Also a Letter from Mr Secretary Storey at Piscataqua, adviseing of the arrival of Capt<sup>n</sup> Chesley with his Company in that River, and several of the Fleet being come to Nantaskett.”—Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 455.

It seems by another entry, given below, that on the thirtieth the fleet had all come in:—

“Aug. 30, 1707. Ordered. That Mr Commissary General take care for the entertainment of the sick persons on board the Fleet returned from the Eastern expedition at Ihul, the wounded Men to be brought up to Boston to be taken care of; other than such as are more lightly ill or wounded, and are desirous to return to their several places, that they be dismis'd, & allowance made by Mr Commissary for their travail.

of the commissioned officers were to attend the Governor's further orders for their discharge.*

The Commissary-General was ordered "to take out the Provisions, Military & other Stores, and the Platforms out of the Transport Ships and Vessels, & to discharge them, except one Briganteen & an open Sloop to attend the service at Winter harbour."†

On the next day the Governor ordered all the lieutenants except Powell, Wadsworth and Ashcroft, to be dismissed.

On the third the Council advised and consented that the Governor make out a commission to the commissioners and officers above the rank of lieutenant, to the number of fifteen in all, to hold a court-martial "for the hearing and punishing of disorders and offences committed by officers and soldiers" in the late expedition.‡ The commission, which was issued on the fourth, ran as follows:—

The confidential correspondence of the Winthrops evinces no disappointment at Dudley's discomfiture, but rather an ill-concealed contempt for the man and his pet scheme, the failure of which they evidently thought might cost him his place.§

* Captains Savage and Buckminster and the companies of Indians were discharged by a separate order.

† Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 456. The Governor's memorandum for the guidance of the Secretary in writing the above-mentioned order is as follows:—

. . . The miscarriage of the designe at Pt R<sup>l</sup> does (to me) make a great difficulty. Twill require a good sum to make that matter easy at home, w<sup>ch</sup> will make it more difficult to advance roundly;

On the fifth, the commission being duly signed and sealed, the Governor “directed the Field Officers & Captains in the sd Expedition, attending, to be called up, and then ordered the said Commission to be published, and the oaths appointed by Act of Parliament to be taken instead of the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, to be administered to Colo Hutchinson & Colo Townsend of the Quorum, then present, who also repeated and signed the Declaration, and delivered the Commission to them, with direction to swear the others therein named, and to proceed in the business of the Court, and adjourn from time to time.”*

The second session of the Assembly ended on the sixteenth of August by prorogation to the twenty-second of October, and the Court was again prorogued, on the tenth, to the twenty-ninth, when the Governor’s opening speech contained the following passage:—

“I am Sensible there were Some mistakes & Disorders in that Expedition, And have therefore Since their Return appointed a Court Martiall to sit & Examin any thing that would demand a military Censure & Pnishment; but the Number of officers required by the Act of Assembly to constitute that Court, are so many that It has made it almost Impracticable, § which I therefore recomend to y<sup>e</sup> Consideration that it may be made more easy for the future, during the Continuance of the warr, That officers & Souldiers offending against the Law Martiall may have a Speedy Process ag<sup>t</sup> Them.” — Ibid., vol. 108, p. 55.

On the thirty-first the report was read in Council and sent to the House, where it was read twice on that day; and, on the twenty-eighth of November, the following vote was passed thereon:—

“Upon Consideration of the Report of the late Court Martiall.

Voted That the Law for Erecting of a Court Do’s not Intend the Trying, of any Persons by sd Court, in any County where, there is a Court of Assize, or where a Court of Oyer, & Terminer may be conveniently, appointed, or after the forces are Disbanded; But in Armies, or Garrisons where no such Courts, are or may be regularly Constituted.

& I doubt when it comes to that, they will make advantage of his fondnes and send it but a short purse.” — Winthrop Papers, part V., p. 401.

On the same day John Winthrop wrote as follows to his uncle, the Governor of Connecticut:—

“The Port-Royal fleets & army are now all come back, and a court martiall try’s y<sup>e</sup> officers to-morrow. Coll: Hutchinson, Townsend & Leverett are laught at more than y<sup>e</sup> former blades. They are saluted as they pass along the streets wth nothing but ‘The three Port-Royal whories! The three champions’, &c; but w<sup>t</sup> could be done when y<sup>e</sup> divell was entered into y<sup>e</sup> common souldiers y<sup>t</sup> would not obey their officers? This has been one of y<sup>e</sup> chiefe failures in y<sup>e</sup> whole expedition, first & last.” — Ibid., p. 390.

* Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 453.

† Sic.

‡ This Joseph was the Governor’s third son, next older than Paul, the attorney-general.

§ Hutchinson (Hist. of Mass. ed. 1767, vol. 2, p. 171) misinterprets this passage and supposes that it indicates that no court-martial was held. He says “A court martial was judged necessary, and ordered, but never met. The act of the province, for constituting courts martial, made so many officers requisite, that it was found impracticable to hold one. This must be owing to the great number of persons charged, the remainder being insufficient to try them.”

By the second section of chapter 7 of the acts of the year 1704-5 it was declared “that no court-martial shall consist of fewer than eleven, whereof none to be under the degree of a commission officer, under pay; and the president of such court-martial not to be under the degree of a field-officer, or the then commander-in-chief of the forces under pay, where the offender is to be tryed.”

The report and this vote annexed were read in Council on the second of December, and since the execution of the judgment or sentence of a court-martial was the exclusive function of the Governor, as captain-general, no concurrence of the Council was necessary to perfect the vote, so here the proceedings ended.

When Paddon arrived at Port Royal on the morning of the thirtieth (O. S.*), not finding the fleet in sight, he sent one of the brigantines up stream to discover the location of the forces; but being repulsed by the inhabitants near the narrow pass south of Goat Island the vessel turned and rejoined its companions, and all set sail for Boston.

By the vote of the Council † ordering the drawing of a warrant upon the province treasurer for paying William Fellows of Ipswich for twenty days' service in piloting the Swallow Prize on this voyage it would seem that Paddon returned about the thirteenth or fourteenth of September, Old Style.

The failure of this expedition was the signal for a more active renewal of the inroads of the savages, which had been continued, at intervals, from May through June and July. The French "Relation" contains the following reference to these attacks:—

"The Abenakis and other savages, friends of the French, made cruel war on the English ‡ scalping them, killing a great many of them, making prisoners, whom they carried ‡ Philip Schuyler, the faithful sentinel of the English on the westernmost outpost, continued to give warning from time to time of the hostile designs of the French and Indian enemy at Canada. "Piscataqua, Sept. 19. John Dolhoof being in Company with some others at Exeter on Monday last, [the fifteenth] was attacked by a party of Indians near the Body of the Town, whom they kill'd and scalpt; the Inhabitants immediately muster'd in pursuit of the Enemy.

"On Tuesday night, at the House of Mr. Gunnison in Kittery, the Watchman hearing a Noise, and concluding it to be a raft on the water, hail'd who was there, at which time the Wife of one Wentworth that belong'd to the Garison Landed from her Cannoo, at a little distance from the raft, and passing through the Yard of the said Gunnison, was discover'd by some within that was newly awak'd by the aforesaid Noise; she having her hood wrapt round about her, apprehended her to be an Indian, & without speaking fir'd and kill'd her.

"On Wednesday at 11 a ClocK in the morning at Oyster River 12 men were haling of Timber for a Saw-Mill, about half a mile from Capt. Cheslys Garison, & being fearful of the lurking Enemy (by a seasonable precaution given by his Excellency the Governour) they ordered 6 men to accompany the Team while the other 6 guarded their way, but before the Team had far past the senking Enemy, about 20 or 30 all naker save their flaps with most dismal roaring and hideous exclamation fell on those that were behind, which Cap. Chesly hearing, being a man of singular Courage returned from the Team and the others with him to relieve their Friends, but the Enemy being far superiour in number, and having the advantage of the first shot, kill'd 7 English, which they scalpt, & grievously wounded another; one of those that escapt says that we kill'd some of the Enemy in the fight. The persons names that were kill'd are Capt. Chesly, James Chesly, Ebenezer Chesly, Tho. Chesly Ensign Burnham, Nath. Pitman, and John Head, Ebenezer Pet wounded [The Indian that killed James Chesley was slain upon the spot by Robert Thomson].

We are also advised, that on Wednesday evening one [Henry] Elkins was kill'd by the Indians between Kingstonn & Exeter [as he was seeking after a horse in the woods]." — Boston News-Letter, No. 179. See also Pike's Journal under these dates.

to Quebec—and some of whom have embraced the Catholic religion—seizing their cattle and fowls, and pillaging their houses; and forcing them to abandon fifty leagues of country so that they did not dare to go out or gather their crops except at night, or with an escort.”

De Subercase and St. Castin received letters of commendation from the minister of marine at Marly for their conduct in repelling the English attacks on Port Royal, and Vaudreuil wrote to the minister, May 30, 1708, that he was continuing to send war parties against the government of Boston, to take prisoners, and get information as to any enterprise plotting against Acadia, and in case of a design to renew the attack on Port Royal, to be able to give de Subercase all assistance in his power.

One of the later of these expeditions sent out by Vaudreuil was led by French officers,* of whom one was Hertel de Rouville,† the leader of the bloody attack on Deerfield four years before, and it was attended with similar carnage. On Sunday, the twenty-ninth of August, 1708, these officers at the head of about one hundred and fifty warriors attacked Haverhill, killing and capturing between thirty and forty persons. Captain Simon Wainwright, Benjamin Rolfe (the minister of the town) and his wife and child, were among the slain.‡ See, also, note to chapter 71 of the resolves of 1708-9.

At their annual town meeting in 1701 (March 11, 1700-1) the inhabitants of Boston passed the following vote to raise five hundred pounds, to be invested in tools and a stock of materials for the employment of the town's poor:—

“Vpon the Consideration of the great Charges this Town is at yearly from the Growing numb<sup>r</sup>. of poor amonge us & the great number Come in amonge us w<sup>ch</sup> has been occasioned by the Eastern warr wth the Indians, & other poor and Vild persons, y<sup>t</sup>. has come in amonge ours, from other Towns, Our Town being so populous and they shifting from place to place, so long before they be descouered, that the law makes them Inhabitants, now these things do presage great poverty to be hastening upon this Town if some Sutable methods be not timely Taken to prevent the same. Vpon the Consideration of the things for mentioned,

It was Voted, That there be five hundred pounds raised upon the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, To be Layd out and improved, by the Overseers of the poor & such others w<sup>ch</sup>. shall by the Town be added to them, as a stock to be employed, for the procur- ing materials, & Tools, To Sett and Keep the poor people and Ill persons, at work, as the Law Directs.” — Town Records, 1700-1728, p. 3.

The preamble to the above vote accounts for the extraordinary accession of indigent people and strangers which induced the making of this provision, and the vote explains why, in the act passed by the next Assembly prescribing the form of a warrant for collect- ing town assessments, etc. (1701-2, chapter 8, § 3), Boston was excepted from the general rule referring to town rates, as prescribed in the act of 1699-1700, chapter 26, § 9. The act last named was revived and continued until June 29, 1706, by the act of 1703-4, chapter 3, § 7, and again for three years more by the act of 1706-7, chapter 3, § 1; the exception in favor of Boston being renewed in each instance.

The rule of assessment from which the town of Boston sought and obtained relief required that “all county and town rates and assessments” should be apportioned “upon the inhabitants and estates” within the town according to the rule prescribed in the tax act of the year in which the apportionment should be made, thus exempting all persons who were not inhabitants.

Now the act for regulating townships, etc. to the provisions of which the inhabitants of Boston were restored by the exception first enacted in 1701, provided that all inhabi- tants and other residents within the town and the precincts thereof, and their land and estates there, should be assessed “in just and equal proportion as near as may be unto the county charges, . . . and to all town charges each particular person” should be assessed “according to his known ability and estate;” thus leaving it doubtful if a difference in the assessment of town and county rates were not intended.

The tax act of 1701 (the later tax acts containing, substantially, the same provision) required, besides an assessment “upon all ratable male polls above the age of sixteen years,” a tax “on all estates both real and personal lying within the limits” of the several towns or precincts “and next unto the same (not paying elsewhere).”

Again the annual tax act required that the province tax upon real estate should be assessed to the person “in whose hands tenure, occupation or possession, soever, the same shall be found;” and it was not altogether certain that the exception of Boston from the operation of the general act of 1699, and the subjecting the town to the provisions of the act of 1692 in the particular case for which the town had sought relief, had not also changed the rule as to the assessment of real estate in Boston, since the first provision for assessing tenets of the freehold exclusively was enacted after § the passage of the act last named.

§ That is, by the act of 1692-3, chapter 41, § 1.

In the third session of 1706-7, the following preamble and resolution explanatory of the law* of 1692-3, chapter 28, were passed by the Council and sent to the House for concurrence:—

As an Explanation of the Sixth Paragraph in the Act, For Regulating of Townships, Choice of Town Officers, and Setting forth their Power, — whereby It is Enacted.

That the Select men or Townsmen chosen in Each Town respectively, be and hereby are Impowred to Assess the Inhabitants and Residents within such Town and the Precincts thereof, And the Lands and Estates lying within the bounds of such Town in just and equal proportion as near as may be unto the County charges according as they shall receive Order from the Court of Quarter Sessions to be held for the same County, and to all Town charges, Each particular person according to his known Ability and Estate &c.—

Resolved

That the Law in the said Paragraph do's equally refer to Town and County Assessments both for persons and Estate.

And that the Tenants or Occupants of Housing or Lands, and none other, are to be Assessed for the same, as the Law directs for Province Taxes; with the like Provision betwixt Landlords and Tenants.—

Each persons Ability to be considered according to the ratable Estate in his hands and Improvement and his other Incomes. Servants, and Sons under the care and Government of their Masters or Parents to be considered at the discretion of the Assessors in what shall be laid upon the Poll, and none other, but such as are Exempted in the Province Tax.

And the Selectmen or Assessors of the Town of Boston from time to time, are hereby Directed to proceed accordingly and not otherwise." — Mass. Archives, vol. 113, p. 401.

This was on the sixth of November, and on the fourth of December the representatives voted not to concur therein. Two days thereafter the Council passed another declaratory resolve, as follows:—

“Resolved

That, notwithstanding the Exemption of the Town of Boston from the Rules of the Province Tax, as to the Town assessment, The Assessors are by Law required to be under Oath, and are obliged to assess all Persons Inhabiting or resident in the s<sup>d</sup> Town and the Precincts thereof, and the Lands and Estates lying within the bounds of the said Town in whose hands tenure or Occupation soever the same shall be; as also for Income by Trade and faculty in equal Proportion as near as may be; And to make fair Lists of such Assessments, Setting forth in distinct Columns against Each persons Name how much he is assessed for Polls, how much for Houses and Lands, how much for personal Estate, and Income by Trade or faculty. The Land Lord to reimburse the Tenant one half of the Tax Set upon Houses & Lands, where there is no Special Contract or Agreement to the contrary.—

And the Assessors of the Town of Boston are Directed from time to time to Govern themselves accordingly.” — Ibid., p. 402.

This, on being sent to the House, for concurrence, on the same day was nonconcurrent in, and there the subject appears to have been dropped for that year.

The question seems to have come up again the present session upon the following motion of the assessors of the town of Boston:—

“14. August, 1707./ We the Subscribers, with others, being Assessors of the Town of Boston for this present year, there being Different Apprehensions amongst us, referring to the meaning of the Sixth Paragraph in the Law touching Townships, as to County, and Town Assessments, whither it do Equally referr to both, or not? we pray the Resolution of the Court thereupon

p. 422.

This application was read, first, in the Council, on the fifteenth, when the resolve which constitutes this chapter, which is substantially the first resolve of the previous year, omitting the last two paragraphs, was passed and sent to the House for concurrence. On the next day it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The “stores” which the Commissary-General was directed to provide, under this chapter, undoubtedly embraced gunpowder;— such ammunition being one of the most important of the stores of war. See note to chapter 142 of the resolves of 1706-7, and respecting a supply of lead, see note to chapter 27, ante.

The following subsequent orders seem to have been passed pursuant to this resolve:—

The following extracts from the executive records of the council show the inception of Shelden's third mission to Canada, which in his petition he states was begun April 17, 1707:—

"Jan. 14, 1706-7. — His Excellency acquainted the Council, that there are about ninety English Prisoners still in the hands of the French and Indians of Canada, which the Govern<sup>r</sup> of Quebeck has promised shall be returned home this Spring; and proposed whither it were not advisable to have a person Leger at Quebeck, to put forward that affair, and so far Succeeded therein, as to bring home with him Seven Captives, and Returned home again on the 18th day of Septem<sup>r</sup> In which Journey y<sup>r</sup> Petition<sup>r</sup> with the afores<sup>d</sup> Persons, endured much fatigue and hardship, & Pass'd through great Dangers, and by their absence from their Businesse, Sustained considerable Damage.

This petition appears to have been read in the House on the thirty-first of October, and on the first of November the resolve which constitutes this chapter was pass<sup>ed</sup> and sent to the Council, for concurrence, when it was immediately read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The following items in the executive records of the council and in the News-Letter, respectively, serve to indicate his progress during this journey:—

"Aug. 7, 1707.—His Excellency communicated a Letter from Mr Shelden Messenger to the Govern<sup>r</sup> of Canada, for the procureing of the English prisoners in that Country; Dated from Mont Real, the 20th of June past, in which he advises that he has been arrived there one & forty days, and that the French were alarm'd wth the Report of a Fleet from hence design'd for Quebeck, and that the Govern<sup>r</sup> was drawing Forces thither to receive them." — Vol. 4, p. 451.

"New-York, Septemb. 1. . . . Yesterday arrived here a French Flag of Truce from Canada, with whom came Capt. Shelden who was sent in April last from New-England with a Flag of Truce to Canada, and brought with him 7 New-England Captives." — No. 177.

"Sept. 1, 1707.—His Excellency communicated to the Council a Letter from Mr John Shelden, dated at Albany the twenty fourth of August past advising of his arrival there, with seven English Prisoners from Chamblee, under a Convoy of six French men. And that Colo<sup>l</sup> Schuyler had obliged him with the six French men to attend the Lord Cornbury at New Yorke." — Vol. 4, p. 457.

"Sept. 8, 1707.—Mr John Shelden returned from Canada, attended his Excellency in Council, and his Excellency communicated his Letters received by him from Mr Vandreuil Gov<sup>r</sup> there of the 16th of August past New stile, and Shelden gave a narrative of his Negotiation." — Ibid., p. 462.

The order in Council † for the payment of thirty-six pounds eight shillings to Shelden for "service," and for seventeen pounds to each of his companions, was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that these amounts were paid.

This was after Shelden's third and last expedition, from which, bringing with him seven released captives, he returned by way of Albany, New York, Saybrook, New London, Stonington and the road from Rhode Island to Boston through Seekonk, reaching Boston by the eighth, and Deerfield on the eighteenth of September.

The final liquidation and repayment of the sums borrowed of Vandreuil on the credit of the province by Shelden and Appleton appear in the following entries:—

"June 10, 1708. Whereas Samuel Appleton Esq<sup>r</sup> Employed by the Government on a Message to Mr Vandreuil Gov<sup>r</sup> of Canada to negotiate the Exchange of Prisoners; & Mr John Shelden in two attendances on the said Mr Vandreuil upon the same occasion, did severally take up divers sums of money upon credit for the service of the Government, the Accounts whereof have been laid before the General Assembly, & by them allowed; to wit: Mr Appleton thirteen hundred Livres, of which sixty one is paid by Parotier, for money advanced to him whilst a Prisoner here, and there being behind, one hundred and twenty nine Livres, twelve Solz of Mr Sheldens first account, which was expected to have been paid by Mr Gordean's Bill drawn upon Mr Mackar for money's advanced here to the s<sup>d</sup> Mr Gordean, but refused and since made good out of the Effects of the s<sup>d</sup> Gordean; and in Mr Sheldens last Voyage seven hundred Livres, in the whole, two thousand sixty

This petition was read, first, in the Council, on the fourth of November, and sent to the representatives. On the next day it was read in the House and the resolve which constitutes this chapter passed thereon and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the same day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

Two orders in Council † were passed for warrants to the province treasurer for paying the allowance granted by this chapter,— the former July 8, 1708, for ten pounds and the latter December 23, 1708, for the remainder.

The entry in the province treasurer's account, ‡ intended to show the payment of these sums, makes the time of Williams's support date from December, 1708, instead of 1707, an obvious mistake.

Chap. 44. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 321, and archives, vol. 71, p. 343.

The following is the petition of Sayer and Bane, upon which the order which constitutes this chapter was passed:—

"To his Exc<sup>ly</sup> Joseph Dudley Esq<sup>r</sup>. Cap<sup>t</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> & Gon<sup>r</sup> &c. & y<sup>e</sup> Hon<sup>bl</sup> y<sup>e</sup> Council & Representatives convened In Gen<sup>l</sup> Assembly y<sup>e</sup> 28th May 1707.

The humble petition of william Sawyer & Lewis Bane In behalf of their Respective Townes Wells & York who they Respectively Represent

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

The captain under whom Beal served was probably Isaac Negus or Negro<sup>s</sup> of Taunton, cooper, who, according to Savage, married, April 7, 1679, Hannah Andrews. The scouting party was apparently in quest of the perpetrators of the Spruce Creek massacre, concerning which Pike makes the following entry in his journal:—

“May 9, 98. Enoch Hutchins was killed by the Indians at Spruce-Creek, as he was at work in his field, & three of his sons Carried away. The same day Joseph Pray of York was wounded, it is likely by the same Indians, w<sup>m</sup> he supposed to be 15 in number.” — Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., 1875-1876, p. 132.

The editor of the journal appends the following interesting particulars, referring to Enoch Hutchins and his sons:—

“‘An old man,’ says Williamson, who does not give the name. Two of the sons were Jonathan and Samuel. Among ‘Captives Recd’ Jan. 17, 1698-9 (Mass. Archives, vol. 70, p. 398), is ‘Samuel Hutchings of Spruce Creek, taken in May Last.’ Same date, remaining a captive, ‘Benj<sup>n</sup> Hutchings of Spruce Creek.’ Vol. 70, p. 525, in list of those for whom Benjamin Hutchings and others petition for help to ransom, May 29, 1704, ‘Jonathan Hutchins taken from Kittery May 9th 1698, agged about fifteen years.’” — Ibid.

Of the four who fell in Beaucourt's attack upon Lancaster, July 31, 1704, one was Benjamin Hutchins. See the note to chapter 71 of the resolves of 1704-5, p. 426, ante.

Chap. 49. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 328, and archives, vol. 71, p. 431.

Immediately after the attack on Oyster River, which is described in the note to chapter 27, ante, the council of New Hampshire ordered out scouts in pursuit of the enemy. By the twenty-third of September these scouts had returned, and from the report of Lieutenant-Colonel Hilton, given below, it seems probable that some, at least, of the attacking Indians had come from Acadia, probably to wreak vengeance upon Chesley, who had been conspicuous in the recent expedition against Port Royal, as narrated in the note above referred to.

The following is the record of the proceedings of the council on the twenty-third and twenty-ninth of September in reference to these scouts, and of the measures subsequently taken to strengthen the New Hampshire garrisons:—

“Pursuant to his Excellency's letter of the 19th instant, the Council met and Lt. Colonel Hilton, Major Smith and Capt. Davis were sent for to consult matters relating to the Enemy, who lye skulking at the head of our Rivers.

Lt. Colonel Hilton accordingly appeared at this Board and acquainted the Gentlemen of the Council, that on Thursday last he set out from Exeter with fifty four men as a Scout, after the Enemy; he traced the woods from Kingstown to Cochecha, and so towards Winnapissaaka pond and made discovery of the tracks of that party of Indians which killed Capt. Chisley; they were gone clear off, and as he thinks to Port Royal by way of the said pond, and in coming back he discovered the tracks of a new party of Indians, and followed them within two miles of Cochecha, and soe lost their tracks, and then came home and sent out fifty six fresh men from Hampton, on Monday morning last, who was to tarry out five days; and soe proposed to the Council that Dover and Portsmouth should each send out the same number in course, which will last till the Indian Harvest is over. He also desired the advice of this Board, whether what he offers as to sending out men from Dover and Portsmouth, be proper and needful or not.

The Council advises thereto:—Major Smith and Capt. Davis, were likewise present at this Board in Consultation.” — Provincial Papers of New Hampshire, vol. II., p. 565.

“Whereas Phillipp Chisley, of Oyster River, in the said Province, hath made application to this Board, that several Garrisons are much weakened and in distress by reason of the Indian Enemy having lately killed several of the Inhabitants belonging to such Garrisons, to wit, at the said Phillipp Chisleys Garrison, the late Capt. Chisleys Garrison, and Ensign Jones Garrison.

Ordered, that the Secretary write to Capt. James Davis, that the Scout of tenn souljers under his Command be placed and stated at the said several Garrisons that are most weakened and in distress, according to his discretion, and that they remain where they are soe placed and stated, till relieved by the several Captains of the several Towns to whom they belong; and that the said Captain Davis furnish them with provisions which he received out of the Treasury; and when such provisions are spent, that the said Capt. Davis apply himself to the Treasurer for a further supply; and when such Scout are relieved, those that relieve them are to continue from time to time in such Garrisons where they are placed, till further order.” — Ibid., p. 566.

Four days after the affair at Oyster River the Indians made the descent upon Winter Harbor which is described in the petition and the annexed memoranda, which are printed below and upon which the resolve that constitutes this chapter was founded. The New Hampshire scouts above mentioned had anticipated the orders of Governor Dudley, and the Governor had ordered Massachusetts troops to join in the pursuit, as appears by the following entry in the executive records of the Council of Massachusetts:—

“Sept. 24, 1707. His Excellency acquainted the Council, that by two Expresses in the night past, he was Advised that the Towns of York * and Wells were alarm'd, upon certain

* The following letters from Captain William Heath, — one to William Pepperrell, and forwarded by Theodore Atkinson, clerk of the Superior Court of New Hampshire, and the other to Governor Dudley, — and extracts from letters of Secretary Story and Mr. Treasurer Penhallow to the Governor, show the state of alarm at York, and the call for help from that town, induced by the tidings from Winter Harbor and the belief that the enemy were attacking Wells:—

“Sr. Wells is doubtless Attackt, we have hard ye great guns the enemy atack the shalops at Winter harbor Sabbath day at 2 of ye clock afternoon & have slain Benj. Dunnell of York the Enemy are judged not less than three or four hundred French and Indians, for God's sake Post forward that we may have speedy help or they will be two hard for us.

Since tuesday last, Eury thing respecting y<sup>e</sup> Enemy, hath been in profound silence: and yett eury hour in Expecta- of hearing some desperate attempt Eastward. Cap<sup>t</sup> Lane, yesterday from Wells, aduiseth that y<sup>e</sup> occasion of Browns firing y<sup>e</sup> great guns, was on purpose to alarm and call in seuerall y<sup>e</sup> inhabitants y<sup>t</sup> were stragld out but no Indian seen.

† The orders of advice in Council upon muster-rolls presented show that warrants were ordered for payment of troops from Essex County under the following officers; viz., Captain John Whipple, of Ipswich. — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 494; Captain John Wadleigh, of Salisbury (dragoons). — Ibid., p. 507; Captain Henry Sommerby, of Newbury. — Ibid., p. 506; Captain John Peirson, of Rowley. — Ibid., p. 514; Captain Joseph Herrick, of Salem (Beverly). — Ibid.: Captain John Turner, of Salem. — Ibid., p. 521. The province treasurer's accounts (Mass. Archives, vol. 123, pp. 21 and 22) show that the warrants were paid.

Colonel March, who, as has been shown in the note to chapter 27, ante, upon his return in disgrace from the late expedition to Port Royal, had received orders from Dudley to proceed to Winter Harbor with a company of soldiers, was hurried off upon this alarm, in the brigantine Hope, Captain Samuel Waters, taking with him materials for repairing the fortifications there. Warrants for reimbursing March his expenses for brick and lime for the fort at Winter Harbor, as well as for previous expenses, and also for paying the muster-roll of the company last mentioned, were advised to be issued (Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, pp. 547 and 552), and the payment thereof was charged in the treasurer's accounts. — Mass. Archives, vol. 122, pp. 297 and 324, and vol. 123, pp. 22 and 28.

The muster-roll of the brigantine Hope was allowed from April 3 to October 18, 1707, and that of the Province Galley from February 15, 1706-7, to November 15, 1707 (Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, pp. 485 and 515), and entries of the respective payments were made by the province treasurer. — Mass. Archives, vol. 123, pp. 18 and 19.

By the following contemporaneous minutes the enemy appear to have hovered about the eastern frontier throughout the month of September, occasionally killing and scalping such of the inhabitants as were incautiously exposed to their fury: —

“Piscataqua, Octob. 2. We are still infested with the Sculking Indian Enemy, who on Sabbath Day Evening last at Nichewanock way-laid Nicholas Smith, James Ferguson and his Wife as they were Riding home from the Publick Worship, and fired upon them, the former they wounded, but he made his escape; the two latter they kill'd and scalp't: Four of the Inhabitants well knowing the Enemys walk, way-laid them in their drawing off, & firing at the first they could discern, making him to fall, so terrified the rest, tho' ten in number, that 7 of them dropt their Packs and fled; in which were found 20 Beaver Skins and 3 dry Scalps, supposed to be some of those lately taken at Oyster-River.” — Boston News-Letter, No. 181.

“Sep. 30, 1707. Old widow Horn [Elizabeth, widow of the William who was killed June 28, 1689. — Note by Doctor Quint] was taken by the Indians, near the Lower Corner of Capt Gerishes field, as she travelled the Road — the same Day several Troops passed the Road both bef: & after she was taken.” — Pike's Journal, in Proc. Mass. Hist. Soc., 1875-1876, p. 146.

The following item in the News-Letter gives further particulars in regard to the pursuing forces:—

“Piscataqua, Sept. 26 An Express coming from Wells which was forwarded to his Excellency, giving an Account of 300 Indians seen last Sabbath-day [September 21] at Winter Harbour, and of their taking a Fishing Shallop, wherein Benjamin Daniel was slain, hath occasioned the Governour to order the several Troops of Capt. Turner, Capt. Sumersby, Capt. Herrick, Capt. Wadley, and Capt. Pearson, besides Col. Hilton with 100 men from hence to visit the Eastern Parts, with the Forces in the Province of Main, to receive and repel the Enemy in case of any Insult from them: And ’tis probable the Enemy being discover’d, has diverted their first design. Those in the other Shallop who made their escape when Daniel was slain do affirm, that they kill’d 4 or 5 Indians, besides several whom they wounded. Capt. Lane came from Wells on Wednesday last, but no Indians seen; the firing of the great Guns there was to alarm the people about those Parts.” — No. 180.

The memoranda above referred to — one signed “Ja Russell P order,” and signifying the desire of the Governour and Council that the representatives make the petitioners a suitable recompense; thus, “The Service mentioned in the before mentioned Petition is well Accepted by his Excellency & Council; and it is recommended To y<sup>e</sup> representatives To make Som suitable recompence to y<sup>e</sup> Psons Concerned — Voted in Council,” † and the other being a narrative of the engagement mentioned in the preamble — were appended to the petition. The latter was as follows:—

From the former of the two memoranda above given it would seem that the papers were first read in the Council and thence sent to the House. On the fourteenth of November they were read in the House and the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence, where, on the same day, it was "agreed to," and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of the allowances granted by this chapter was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account § shows that they were paid.

Chap. 50. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 328, and archives, vol. 121, p. 126.

The town of Concord, divided by the two streams (the North, or Assabet, and the South, or Sudbury, rivers) which, united, form the Great or Concord River, again dividing the town below the junction, found, from a very early period, the equitable apportionment of the expense of building and repairing the bridges which spanned all these streams a very difficult matter. In March, 1654-5, after long agitation, "and much weariness about these things," the inhabitants, "at a public training," voted to choose a committee of nine; three being from each of three "quarters," or divisions, into which the town was districted, to assign to the inhabitants of the respective divisions the duty and charge of keeping in repair the highways and bridges within their limits, and to determine the amount that should be contributed by the more favored of these quarters, or divisions, to the divisions bearing a disproportionate burden. The concurrence of eight members of this committee was necessary for a valid award, which, it seems, was made and acted upon; but this arrangement among the townsmen did not relieve the whole town from a disproportionate expense for building and maintaining bridges as compared with other towns in the county not bordering upon or divided by streams requiring to be as frequently spanned by bridges.

The opportunity for equalizing this disproportion, however, was offered by the passage of an ordinance || by the General Court, ordering the County Court, upon notice of the need of, or of a defect in, any bridge in a "country highway," to appoint a committee to view and determine the same, upon whose report the magistrates were directed to apportion the expense of the required work among the several towns in the county, to be assessed and collected "according to the directions of the law for country rates." The inhabitants of Concord, in order to avail themselves of this new ordinance, presented to the County Court the following petition :—

"The humble Petitione, of the inhabitants, of the towne of Concord humbly sheweth,

That whereas there is a late order of the Generall Court, that the Buildeinge of Bridges, is referred to the seuerall Counteies, and whereas your petitioners were forced by the former court order to Builde two Bridges, the one very Large the other not Smalle, and the places Layde out accordeinge to order, and for Publique use to Nashawaye, and to Conecticote, allsoe a third Bridge leadeinge to Chelmsford, haueinge about two yeares agoe, bene driuen downe by the violence of waters, All these your Petitioners haue bene forced to expend a great estate the last yeare but one, and that much beyond there Abilities, and though we haue rayseed them v<sup>p</sup> with much difficultie, yet neither of them are finished, but we are liable to be presented, by the townes which are to passe ouer them, neither of them beinge safe for the Countrys use, Therefore accordinge to the late order, we make our Complainte to the Honored Court to appointe a Committee to view those Bridges of ours and to Judge thereof, accordinge to there discretion and your Petitioners shall pray : &c :

|| May 29, 1655.

The Court, April 1, 1656, probably at the same term in which the above petition was presented, appointed a committee consisting of Deacon [Ralph] Mousall, Deacon [Ephraim] Child, and Goodman [Edward] Converse, senior, "to view Concord Bridges and consider what is required to be done therein by the County according to Law, & make their returne to the next Court of this County."*

But there were other towns in Middlesex County, maintaining expensive bridges in public highways, the inhabitants of which felt entitled to similar consideration; and accordingly the Court, on the thirtieth of December, before any return had been made by the above-named committee, or, at least, before it had acted upon any such return, passed a more comprehensive order, appointing a committee with more extensive powers, as follows:—

"Whereas many complaints are made to this Court concerning the defect of Severall Bridges with in the limits of this County This Court do therefore according to the Order made & appointed by the Gen<sup>l</sup> Court in that case, nominate, Ralph Mousall of Charlestowne, Cap<sup>t</sup>. Hugh Mason of Watertowne, Edw. Goffe of Cambridge, Ens: Wheeler of Concord, Ens: Tho: Noyse of Sudbury, Capt. Edw: Johnson of Woburne, Abrah<sup>m</sup> Hill of Maulden, Willm Cowdre of Redding, Jn<sup>o</sup>. Prescott of Lanchester, Jn<sup>o</sup>. Parker of Bilerica, & Thomas Addams of Chelmsford, who are hereby required to meet together the first third day in March next, at Cambridge, ordinary, by nine of the clocke in the morning, then & there to consider what Bridges are needfull to be made & mainteined within the limits of this County for the behooffe of the Country, And as they shall see meet to view the se<sup>v</sup>all places themselves or by such as they shall appoint, and to adjourne their meeting to any other time or place, that they or the Major part of them being so met to gether shall see needfull, and to make returne of What they shall do herein vnto the next County Court to be held at Cambridge. — And for the preventing of damage to travellers in the meane tme, this Court do order that all Bridges already made shalbe repaired at the care & charge of the se<sup>v</sup>all townes & precincts wherein they ly, who shalbe repayd againe their Just charges expended thereon, if vpon the returne of the Comittee this Court shall find it equall to allow the same." — Middlesex County Court Records, 1649-1663, p. 99.

This larger committee duly made their return to the County Court held at Cambridge, April 7, 1657, at which Court the judges ordered that the clerk present it to the General Court "for their confirmation and settling thereof."

The following is the return thus presented, together with the decree of the County Court, and the action of the General Court, thereon:—

"In obedience to an order of the County Court, held at Charles Toune, Decemb 30th, 1656, wee, whose names are vnderwritten, meeting at Cambridge, 2<sup>d</sup> 1 m<sup>o</sup>, 5<sup>o</sup>, 57, to weigh and consider what briges are fittest to be built & mainteyned at the countjes charge, after due examination of things, wee finde the bridges of this county already erected & to be erected (as wee conceive) to exceede for namber & charge all the other countjes wthin this colony, and wthall considering the greate necessitie of bringing in all that are alike vsefull, w<sup>ch</sup> would amount to such a charge that wee question the countjes abilitie to mainteine & beare the charge thereof, and having some experimentall knowledge that townes will be more cautious in laying out their onne costs then the countjes, both in building & repayring, doe therefore conclud, according to our weake apprehentions, that as few bridges should be built at the countjes charge as possibly maybe, only those two bridges, i.e., at Billirrikey & Misticke, to be finished at the countys charge, and for tyme to come majteined in repaire by the townes & precincts in which they are, and those townes that are forced to build bridges more for the passage of others then their onne benefitt, may haue help from the county, by this honored Courts appointment, if their burden in building bridges exceede their sister townes, and in case any toun shall propound to this honored Court for erecting of bridges contrary to what is heere present, wee are ready to giue further account to this Court why the county should be no further charged that way. And whereas it appears to vs that Concord, Sudbury, & Lancaster are at a greater charge in bridges for the publicke vse of the countrie then some other of their neighbor townes, wee conceive it meete that they be abated as followeth: Concord & Lancaster all their rates, whither pajd or to be pajd, to those two bridges aboue named, & Sudbury the one halfe of their rates to the said bridges, and their abatements to be satisfiied to the vndertakers of those bridges, or repajd againe to such as haue pajd, as followeth: i.e., Chelmsford, two pounds; Billirrikey, one pound; Charles Toune, ten pounds; Meadford, two pounds; & what these shall fall short of satisfying those aboue menconed abatements, made vp out of the county stocke, either fines or otherwise, as the Court shall please to determine.

Provided alwayes wee thinke it meete that no stop be made of any the abovesd abatement, so as to interfere or obstruct the performing of the present engagement respecting those bridges.

At the next County Court, held at Charlestown, in June, a complaint was made by the inhabitants of Concord of a "want of meet allowance from the county;" whereupon the Court ordered the clerk to notify three or more of the committee last appointed to appear at the next Court to be held in Cambridge in October. Accordingly, at the time named, a new committee, consisting of Captain Hugh Mason, Captain Edmund Goodenow, and Sergeant William Stittson, was ordered to "consider of the complainyt made by Concord in reference to their Bridges, and make report to the next Court of this County, How far they find them necessary for Country high wayes, and w<sup>t</sup> they apprehend is meet to be allowed them from the County, in reference to their charges, (Exceeding y<sup>e</sup> p<sup>ro</sup>port<sup>ion</sup> with other townes) Expended on their Bridges."*

At the December term before the committee last appointed by them had reported, the Court having ordered and empowered the county treasurer to levy thirty-five pounds "on the seavall Townes & precincts of this County, the said sume to be payd in such graines p<sup>ro</sup>portably as to the Country rate, and at the same prices" for reimbursing John Fonnell for his loss "by building Mistick Bridge," further ordered "that Concord shal be Exempted from paying any part of the said Sume, In consideraceon of their agreem<sup>t</sup> with th<sup>r</sup> other Townes to be freed there from, in reference to their owne charges, by Bridges in their owne Towne."†

The committee's report was not presented until April 6, 1658. It still remains in the Court files, but so mutilated and obliterated as to be scarcely legible. Enough, however, may be deciphered to show its drift and conclusion. The following passages are given with some conjectural additions to supply missing words and letters. The committee say they "apprehend that our neighbours at Concord [ha†]ue ben at more Charge in erecting of Bridges all things Considered then any Towne in [the‡] County — they haneing erect [ed‡] 3 Bridges of Large Dementions all of them but whether all or any of them Can be accounted County Bridges we Justly question — for if that [Is the‡] trew Definition of a County Bridg which the Comitie hath agreed vpon namly such townes as are forced to buil [d‡] Bridges more for the Cuntries vse then ther owne High [ay‡] then we Conclude that [t‡]hose 3 Bridges nor any of them Can Co[m]e on‡ that account so as to draw forth any releife to [them‡] from the County for it is evident that that Bridg which makes a passage over the riur [near‡] flints house Cannot be seruiceable [to‡] the County at all there being no townes [in the prov‡]ince beyond them but Chelford and [the highway from Chelmsford‡] into the bay being through Billerke[y and‡] If at any time any of them haue occasions to Concord it is but a mile and a halfe farther by Ballerekey then to Com Direct and the way [by‡] Billerekey far better then the other is [As‡] for the 2 other Bridges which are ere [cted wh‡]ich our neighbors at Lancaster Doth som time make vse of wee Conceine that they are more ysefull many fould for their owne towne then th[ey‡] Can be for the County — for there is none but Lancaster that Doth make vse of them and they b[ut‡] in winter seasons it being neerer for Lancaster [to the‡] bay by Sudbery at least 4 If not 5 miles and so is Constantly made vse of throu all the sumer mo[nths‡] [bu‡]t for Concord they are of Dayly vse there being [ ] houses erected on the further side of the [ ] Bridg whereof our Right worthy maiors [is one‡] and for the other it being of vse Dayly [in‡] their feeding and transporting from their [farms we‡] Conceine that Concord Cannot be without it [for‡] their owne P<sup>ro</sup>ctickler and Doe receive more [bene‡]fet by it many fold then the County doth or Can

Thus the method proposed to equalize the disproportionate outlay of Concord for the maintenance of bridges appears to have been settled to be by reducing the proportion of the town's contribution to the county rates to the amount which would fall to the town if the county bore an equitable share of the expense of highways and bridges necessary or convenient for use as county thoroughfares. Having established this rule, and the amount of abatement having been determined and allowed to Concord, that town was expected to keep her highways and bridges in proper repair, and failing to do so was presented by the grand jury, December 28, 1658, for want of a proper railing to the bridges over the North River, and the South River, and to the bridge at the north end of the town over the Great River, and for other insufficiencies in two of these bridges, and in the Fort bridge, and the bridge at the east end of the town near the clay-pit, and the "hither end" of Elm-Brook Bridge; and also for want of repair of a highway. One warning having been given of this presentment, the inhabitants applied to the General Court, by petition, representing the inadequacy of the allowance received out of the county rate, and praying for relief; whereupon, in the November session, 1659, the Court passed the following order:—

heare & examine their complaint, & what they shall finde their chardges expended in vpholding of such bridges as are orderly allowed for county bridges to be more then their due proportion, compared with their neighbor townes, shall be annually paid them by the Treasurer of that county, any former custome or order of this Court setting the same notwithstanding." — Ibid., p. 404.

The result of this application to the General Court seems to have been the opening of the question of allowance by the County Court, since a warrant, dated March 15, 1659-60, is on file signed by the county recorder directing the constable of Concord to warn the town to send one able and meet person, as their deputy, to consider and agree with the rest of the county for the settling of county bridges. Upon this the officer returned Thomas Brooks and George Wheeler "deputies for the town for bridges." On the third of April the court appointed a committee for bridges, consisting of eleven persons, the names of all of whom except William Kerley, senior, Jonathan Danforth and Thomas Brooks are subscribed to their report. In the record of this appointment it appears that Brooks was the only member from Concord. The committee made their report on the day last mentioned, as follows:—

"The Comitte in reference to the Bridges in Midlsex met together at Cambridge the 3<sup>d</sup> of the 2<sup>d</sup> mo 1660 after large debate and discussing all the Allegacons of Concord and others hane on mature deliberacon as much as in vs lyeth determined the act of the former Comitte to be Equal and most Conducing to publike Satisfaccon; for the Reasons by them then ginen in and that may be farther produced to which end wee haue Appointed Captain Francis Norton; Captain Hugh Mason and Leinutenant Goodenow to Attend the honoured General Court vpon notice ginen them thereof, also Joseph Hills Sen<sup>r</sup> or any thre or two of them.

Upon this report the County Court, at the same session, passed the following decree:—

"This Court Pvsing the retorne of the Comitte abt y<sup>e</sup> Bridges of this Couñ. & finding that Concord who was the greived P<sup>ty</sup>, are yet vsatisfied, do Judge meet that the said Comitte, do meet together at Camb<sup>r</sup>. the 3th tuesday in this instant mo. by ten of the clocke in the forenoone, to consider & determine what Bridges they Judge meet to be allowed as Couñ Bridges & that retorne thereof be made to m<sup>r</sup> Russell & m<sup>r</sup> Danforth, who are if need be to give notice, vnto the Comitte appointed by the Genall Court, that they meet together to issue the matter, according to the appoynt<sup>mt</sup> of the Genall Court, & retorne may be made vnto y<sup>e</sup> next Court of Eleccōn." — Middlesex County Court Records, 1649-1663, p. 169.

In March, 1661-2, the town was again presented for a defect in the North Bridge over the North River, and a warrant was issued to the constable, as before, to warn the inhabitants to appoint some one to answer for the defect. Nothing further appears to have been done in regard to this presentment unless the following report of a committee appointed by the selectmen of Cambridge has some relation to this matter:—

"we being apoynted by the selecte mene of Cambridge to se the sofetieny of that part of Concord hie way that is at vine Brooke Bridge: and to Make or Retorne to them: doe by Thes presents aferme that it is at This time sofetient according to our knowledge and skelle

On the nineteenth of January following, the committees appointed by the General Court and by the County Court agreed upon a report finally establishing a rule for rendering equal the burdens of those towns, in Middlesex County, which were subjected to an undue proportion of expense for the maintenance of bridges, as follows:—

"The agreement of the Comittees of the Ge, Co: and County of middlsex; In Refrence to the bridges in Concord, & all others in that County as foloweth; Wee of the Comittie for bridges in the Countie of middlsex of on* second meting by order of the County Court, vpon the 17. day of the second month. 1660. whose names are vnderwritten; vpon further Information; Inquisiōn dissension and Consideration, hane Cleerly concened and Concluded, that the Towne of Concord hane no Just ground of Complaint or allowance from the Countie in Respect of there bridges; for the Resones herotter expressed;

The three bridgs they foot. and plead vpon; are for there owne proper. spcial and perticuler Concernment, for there sawmill; Ironworkes & other ocations and not, necessary for the County or Country. and may at there pleasur be deserted;

2ly If any argument be, because they wear made during the law for each Countie to make and maintaine their owne bridges (which they were not only Repaired or some addition) Then all other Townes; must bring in there Charges for the like, and be allowed for it;

3ly If the argument be that their burden is aboue there abillitie, then other Townes burdines Compared with theirs; Advantages, and disadvantages Considered, they find no Ease at all; Instance Sudbury at Charges 25<sup>li</sup> yearly for Repairing one peece of highway in there Countrie rode, besides all others of like nature,

4ly Though Concord despended vpon som of ther bridges; sence the order for Countie bridges yet neither those bridges nor any of them, wear vnder taken by order of the Countie as was billerica & mestick, bridges; therefore not to be charged on the Countie, more then Sudbury; watertowne Ridding & some others; who hane no expectacōn of personall profitts Comparable to Concord,

* Sic.

5ly wee are Credibly Informed that the way from lancaster for whom & on hose mocon it is alledged, that one of Concord bridges was erected at lest in part; now is found neerer by three or fower miles, then to Come by Concord and also abeter way & such as needs no bridg whensoever lancaster can pass from their owne Towne, and also if the Countie or Country shall need a bridg there that it may be belte for teen pounds Charg, neer Stones farme in whipssnfridge and for avoiding all forther truble to Courts & Contry, we thinke mete & conclud that the Twentie pounds formerly granted to Concord be made vp thirtie pounds, (viz.) Teen pounds more in Respect of there charges of that natur, be yend som other Townes in the Countie, which Ten pounds shall be Raised in proportion on Charlest<sup>e</sup>, watr<sup>e</sup> wooburne; Ridding medford malden;

6ly we Conceue and Conclud that bellirica bridg shall be so forr acountie bridg as to be vpholdn by the Townes of billerica Chalmsford and graton, and all such farmes as are there granted when they shall be Improned In proportion to there Contry Rates;

7ly wee conceue that mestistike bridg should be vp holdn by the Countie or elce one halfe by the Towne of Charlest<sup>e</sup> & the other halfe by Cambridg wooburn; Redding medford & malden in proporcion as aforesaid;

8ly wee Conceiue and Conclude, that the Townes of Concord sudbury lancaster billerica Chalmsford & Groton shall be free from Charges to all bridges Extant, saue their own bridges; and as before specified, as also from such bridges as shall be mad in wpsnfridge as aforesaid.

lastly if this our Returne be not satisfactory we haue appointed Capt norton; Capt mason & Joseph Hills; on notes giuen them to attend any further agitation respecting this thing;

Town Records.

Again the town was presented by the grand jury at the County Court at Cambridge, April 7, 1663, for the want of a pound, and for insufficiency of Concord North-Quarter Bridge; and, still again, on the sixth of October, for defect of the North-Quarter Bridge and of the North Bridge; but no record of further action upon the subject has been discovered.

With the establishment of the new government under the province charter the courts of sessions succeeded to the jurisdiction of the county courts in all matters relating to highways.

In March, 1698-9, a committee was appointed by the Court of Sessions to view, and consider of, a convenient highway from Concord to Groton, as a county highway. At the December term, following, "the jury's return" of a highway from Concord to Groton over the Great-River Bridge was allowed.

On the twentieth of December, 1706, the town was again presented "for having a bridge defective, called the North Bridge," also for a defect in the highway "that leads from Mr. Estabrook's to Sudbury." The selectmen being duly warned by the Court's precept, served by the town constable, Lientenant French and Thomas Brown were appointed to the presentment at the Court of Sessions held by adjournment January 14, 1706-7, when, the town representatives again appearing, "The Court order them to see that y<sup>e</sup> sd Bridge and way be made and kept So as may be Safe for her Majt<sup>ies</sup> Subjects, and to make their Report to y<sup>e</sup> next Court of Sessions to be holden at Concord."*

Finally, in 1707, at the June term, this presentment was disposed of as shown by the following entry:—

"The Select men of Concord appearing in Court by their Town Clerk Tho<sup>s</sup> Browne, to Answ<sup>r</sup> their p<sup>r</sup>sentment for y<sup>e</sup> Defects of y<sup>e</sup> North Bridge, and a high way p<sup>r</sup>sentet for Defect. Informing the Court, that the Bridge and high way is repaired well, The Court accept of their Report & Dismiss y<sup>e</sup><sup>m</sup> they paying fees." — Records of the Court of Sessions, in the office of the Clerk of the Courts for Middlesex County.

Thus the principal bridges in Concord having been recognized as parts of public highways, and, during the hostilities with the French and Indian enemy, from about 1702, being much more used as a thoroughfare for the general public, — especially by the military forces going to and returning from the northern frontier, — than for the purposes of local travel, the inhabitants of Concord, in view of this increase of travel, deemed it equitable that the allowance formerly made in their behalf should be increased; they accordingly, by their selectmen, applied to the Legislature in the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter, as follows:—

* Records of the Court of Sessions, in the office of the Clerk of the Courts for Middlesex County.

“To His Excellency Joseph Dudley Esq; Cap<sup>t</sup> General and Governour in Chief in & over her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Province of the Massachusetts-Bay and To the Hon<sup>ble</sup> the Council and House of Representatives now in General Court assembled. In and for s<sup>d</sup> Province August 13th 1707./—

The humble Petition of the select men of Concord in behalf of the Said Town Sheweth

That your Petitioners conceive their Town not only to be unhappily over done in the Province Tax for these five years last past successively, which many knowing men in the province cannot but perceive and believe. But also we do apprehend our Town to be extraordinarily overburthened for not so short a time as fifty Years, by reason of no less than three very costly Bridges, over great and peevish Rivers, the which notwithstanding they are all of great use both to the County and Country, neither could the Warr be carried on without them being in the Roads to Lancaster and Groton; yet are all maintained at the charge of our poor Town, the charge being very great by reason of the high floods, and Ice, which very often shatters them, and sometimes carries them clear away in the spring of the Year. Our Predecessors formerly petitioned the General Court for Relief in this matter, which was pleased about the year 1660 to appoint a Committee to Examine their Case, and the Gentlemen who were Employed did accordingly attend that service, But (tho' wise men) could not foresee what necessity* there would, thereafter be of s<sup>d</sup> Bridges and made their Report, That Concord Bridges were sett up for their own occasions, and were neither needful for Country nor County, and might be deserted at pleasure; as may be seen in their first particular in their Report whereas since, there hath been Country Roads laid over them, and our Town hath been presented to our County Courts of sessions for small defects the which hath Cost us both time and money, and we strictly ordered forthwith to repair what ever was defective. The Result of the aforementioned Committee was further returned relating to our Bridges that we should only be freed from charge to other Bridges in the County that were then Extant. but yet notwithstanding, there was many pounds required of us to pay towards the rebuilding of Cambridge Bridge some few years past, the which Bridge is but very little benefit to our Town./.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly prays this great & Gener<sup>l</sup> assembly would please to afford them some Relief and mitigate their great Burthen compared with their Neighbouring Towns that have been eased, as Cambridge Mistick & Billerica who have had help. That all or some of s<sup>d</sup> Bridges that they maintain may be maintained by the County, & that a Committee may be chosen and appointed & Impowered to examine our Cause and order some way whereby we may be eased or at least in part of what is required of your petitioners relating to the premisses.

And your Petitioners shall ever pray &c<sup>a</sup>

By order of the Select men of the Town of Concord —

THOMAS BROWN Town Clerk.” — Mass.

This petition appears to have been read in the House on the thirty-first of October. From the time the order which constitutes this chapter was reported, to the time of its passage, the proceedings in relation to it appear in the printed chapter.

The annual tax act had been passed on the thirteenth of June without any change made therein in favor of Concord; but in the apportionment of the province tax, the next year,† Concord was abated six pounds from the former rate, while in all the other towns in the county, except Groton, Dunstable and Dracont, the first two of which had suffered extraordinarily from the depredations of the Indians, the province tax either remained as in the previous act, or was increased. The loss of the House Journals for this year precludes absolute proof that this reapportionment was made on consideration of the report of the committee appointed by this chapter, but it is probable, and no reason appears for doubting that such was the case.

Chap. 53. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 329, and archives, vol. 71, p. 420.

The principal incursions of the Indian enemy through the month of July, 1706, are described in the note to chapter 149 of the resolves of 1706-7. The next important raid in Massachusetts proper, after the attack at Reading on the sixth of that month, appears to have been at Groton, on Sunday, the twenty-first, when “3 Soldiers going to the place of Publick Worship, passing over a Fence through a Field of Corn, some of the Skulking Indian Enemy being hid in the Field, shot at them, kill'd two and Captivated the third.” ‡

The next day, according to the News-Letter, “there was a Lad Moving in a Field at Sudbury toward Sun-set, espied an Indian near to him, and he having a Pistol hanging at his Girdle, fired at the Indian whom he saw fall, the Lad made the best of his way home; the next morning Major Brown with a party of men went out in search of him and view'd the place, where they saw a considerable quantity of Blood on the ground, and 'tis supposed the Indian was mortally wounded, but that his Mates, as they usually do, carried him off.” §

The sons of Henry Seager were two of the three unfortunate soldiers mentioned in the former of these accounts, and one of these sons was the Henry Seager redeemed and brought back by John Shelden, and by him supplied with food, raiment, etc., as men-

The brief summary of this petition in the preamble to the resolve in the legislative journals of the council, and also that in the account of the province treasurer, both describe the petitioner as a soldier in her majesty's service taken prisoner by the Indians, and add that the allowance was made to him on that account. In the executive records of the council, also, Henry Seager (evidently meaning the petitioner) is the person who is alleged to have been taken captive and to have lost his arms. Fortunately the petition remains, furnishing data to correct this error and to justify the departure from the record made in the preamble to this resolve as here printed.

This petition was read in the Council November 4, 1707, and “recommended to the House.” On the fourteenth it was read and the resolve thereon was passed by the representatives and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the fifteenth it was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

For particulars relating to later hostilities, see the notes to chapters 27 and 49, ante, and 61 post; and concerning further proceedings on the western frontiers, see the note to chapter 23, ante.

The following is the petition mentioned in the preamble to this chapter :—

The Petition of Hngh Pike.

Humbly Sheweth.

That your Petitioner voluntarily offered him self to Her Maj<sup>ties</sup> Service, in the late Expedition to Nova Scotia wherein he Served, as an Ensigne under Maj<sup>r</sup> Walton, & was unhappily wounded by the Enemy at Pessamaqvoddy, being Shot in the thigh, & the upper part of the bone broken, & much shatter'd whereby your Petitioner's life was much endangered, & he has lain in a Sore, painfull, helpllesse Condition ever since & now far from Cure, Some Splinters of the bone being still to be taken out, and no hopes of ever being otherwise than a Creepie while he lives. Although your Petitioner must thankfully Acknowledge, that he has been carefully attended, by a Skilfull Chyrurgion, & well provided of what else was necessary for him by the Care of the Government hitherto. Your Petitioner has a Wife & five children to Take care of, & Provide for, which he is in no capacity to do any thing for; & the Small Estate he has, wasting & ruining for want of his Care & Management, And the Trade your Petitioner Exercis'd & Lived by was a House-Carpenter's, which his creepled Condition, (if ever he is cured) will Disable him any more to follow.

Your Petitioner therefore humbly & earnestly Pray's y<sup>r</sup> Excellency, & Honours to Take his miserable Condition into your Compassionate Consideration, & of your wanted Justice and Commiseration, Allow, & Grant y<sup>r</sup> miserable Petitioner Such Consideration for his Smart Paine, & towards his present Relief. And to Settle Such annual stipend on him during life, as in your wisdom Shall be thought fit.

And y<sup>r</sup> Petitioner as in Duty bound Shall ever Pray.

This petition was read in the Council on the seventh and sent to the House, where it was read on the fourteenth and the resolve thereon passed and sent back for concurrence. On the next day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governour.

The following entry in the executive records of the council shows that Mr. Grosvenor had been chosen to preach at Brookfeild:—

“Nov. 10, 1708. Pursuant to a Resolve of the General Assembly at their Session held at Boston the 29th of October 1707, vizt that the sum of twenty pounds be allowed and paid out of the publick Treasury towards the support of the Ministry in Brookfeild for the year currant beginning the seventh of November.

And Samnel Partridge Esq<sup>r</sup> of the Committee for that Plantation, certifying, that Mr W<sup>m</sup> Grosvenor attended and performed that work until August past, which the s<sup>d</sup> Grosvenor saith was to the 25th day of that Month, being forty one weeks and one day of the s<sup>d</sup> year.

Advised and Consented. That a Warrant be made out to the Treasurer to pay the sum of sixteen pounds, two shillings to the s<sup>d</sup> Mr Grosvenor for his service afores<sup>d</sup> accordingly.” — Vol. 4, p. 645.

The province treasurer’s account * shows that the above amount was paid.

This petition was presented at the second session but nothing appears to have been done upon it until the fourth of November, when it was read in the House and referred to a committee. Probably to remove an objection raised by this committee the petitioner filed, on the twenty-fourth, the following order from Captain Willard, with the Governor's certificate annexed:—

On the twenty-fifth the petition was again read in the House, as also the accompanying papers, and the resolve which constitutes this chapter, probably as reported by the committee, was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the next day it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

In the note to chapter 49, ante, it appears that as early as the twenty-fourth of September the Province Galley had been ordered to "cruise along the north shore, and to visit all the harbors from Saco to Casco Bay and further east to intercept the enemy in their drawing off and return;" and in the following letter of the twenty-ninth to Colonel Hilton, Dudley states that she had "gone to Casco with a reinforcement:"—

"BOSTON, 29 Sept. 1707.

DEAR COUSIN:—By the post I have letters from Mr. Penhallow, Capt. Heath and others, § acquainting me of the number and certainty of the approach of the enemy, which I had not when I wrote last. I know not how far you have proceeded upon my last orders, in dismissing the troops. I hope you have not yet sent so many of them away as to leave the Province in distress.

I thank you for your early march with the Piscatay foot. I desire you, with them and what detachment you think proper of the standing forces and inhabitants, to use all possible means to discover the enemy, their rendezvous and canoes. Southack is gone to Casco with a reinforcement, and Col. March with a sloop and men to Saco, for fear of mischief there. If you think they be drawn off you may continue to send away so many of the troops as are not useful, and keep the others. This is your order for it and do not march off your post until you be certain of their removal. I leave the whole matter to your disposal and am,
Sir, your affectionate uncle,

In her Majesty's service,

J. DUDLEY.

Dudley's statement might be supposed to refer to the cruise mentioned in the note to chapter 49 but for the report in the News-Letter of the sixth of October, that the "Deftford and Province Galley are returned from their cruise, and immediately ordered out again." From this it may be inferred that she returned from the first cruise and was again sent out. Nothing further has been discovered to show the date of her second return.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of the allowance of twenty pounds was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account § shows that it was paid.

For an account of the skirmish in which Phillips received his wound, see the note to chapter 27, ante. He went out in one of the two companies that accompanied the commissioners, Hutchinson, Townsend, and Leverett, when they proceeded to Casco Bay, in the Ruth Frigate; and he served in the last disastrous attempt to conquer Acadia. Although he claims to have acted as a sergeant in Captain Savage's company on the expedition to Port Royal, that title is not given to him in the public records. His pension was discontinued by chapter 20 of the resolves of 1708-9, and revived by a resolve of the next year. See, further, the notes to those resolves. He was also paid for the loss of a gun. ||

As stated in the note to chapter 27, ante, the resolve authorizing the enlistment of soldiers for the expedition against Port Royal virtually established ten weeks as the limit of service by providing subsistence for that period only. The inference thus reasonably drawn, that the time required for the consumption of the supplies originally granted was the measure of the continuance of service, was confirmed by Dudley's official communications; for instance, his letter* of the twenty-fourth of March to the Governor of Connecticut, and his circular letter* to the colonels of the Massachusetts militia, in which was enclosed a copy of the resolve.

Although the final grand parade at Hull was originally intended to take place about the middle of April, and was not actually held until a few days later, many of the men had been mustered in, several days earlier; and it was not, therefore, unreasonable to suppose that they were to be disbanded, or at least granted the election of an honorable discharge, by the last of June. It was therefore not only politic but just for the Legislature to manifest an intention to deal fairly with soldiers who, with no little risk and no slight interruption of their vocations, had responded to the Governor's call to arms, by vindicating their motives as was done in the preamble to this chapter, and not to resolve absolutely to withhold pay from any except those who never returned after deserting. Even this exception seems hardly fair, in view of all the circumstances.

The long term of service to which those were held who were retaken by force after desertion may have been suggested by the recommendation which Captain Tuthill of Castle William made to the Legislature in a paper dated October 29, 1707, to the effect that, in future, the term of all enlistments be extended.†

The following entry in the executive records of the council probably relates to companions of the soldiers named in this chapter:—

“Sept. 8, 1707. His Excellency haveing Information of a Mutiny among the Recruits for Casco Fort, on Board of Carrs Sloop,* a Transport Vessel, and that six or more of the principal of them were landed at Gloucester, and put under Guards.

Ordered Capt<sup>n</sup> Dyer with ten of his Troop of the Guards to repair thither, and safely to bring them to Boston in order to their Tryal.”—Vol. 4, p. 463.

The entry of the order on the account rendered by Captain Giles Dyer (who was sheriff of Suffolk County) of the expenses of his journey is dated the eighteenth of September. The account, amounting to £ 7 10s. 4d., was allowed,† and ordered to be paid by the Commissary-General. The number of soldiers apprehended by Dyer, and brought to Boston to be tried for mutiny, is given as seven; but it is probable that this did not include the sick and lame soldiers cared for by Sawyer, and for whose cure John Newman received an allowance under chapter 80, post.

See the note to chapter 74, ante.

The order in Council ‡ for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 10, 1707, but the amount actually charged in the account of the province treasurer § as paid by him under this chapter and chapter 80, post, is sixpence less than the sum of the two allowances.

This ferry, granted to John March, was between Newbury and Salisbury, over the Mer-rimac below Carr's ferry.

This petition was read in the House November 20, 1707, and probably referred to a committee, since it would seem that a defect in the petition called for the further certificate appended thereto, giving the names and respective interests of the owners, as follows: —

"The Guns above mentioned are owned in quarter parts.

Upon the filing of this declaration or certificate it would seem that the committee on the twenty-sixth reported the resolve which constitutes this chapter and which was forthwith passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the twenty-eighth it was read and concurred in, and consented to by the Governor.

The order in Council * for the payment of this allowance was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account † shows that it was paid.

Chap. 84. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 340. The original has not been found in the archives, although an attested copy is preserved in vol. 11, p. 281.

Benjamin Woodbridge mentioned in this chapter was nephew of the famous Puritan divine of the same name, who, having matriculated at St. Mary Magdalen Hall, Oxford, in 1638, was brought to New England by his elder brother John and was one of the first class of graduates of Harvard College.

John Woodbridge, the father of Benjamin the younger, became the first minister of Andover, Massachusetts, and had a checkered career as preacher, schoolmaster, deputy to the General Court, and magistrate, here, and as commissioner of the revolutionary parliament, and school teacher, in England. Benjamin's mother was Mercy, daughter of Governor Thomas Dudley, and among his kinsmen on his father's side were the learned ministers, Parker and Noyes of Newbury. Although thus related to persons of education and of the highest distinction in the colony he does not appear to have been educated at a college. His writings, however, indicate that he had some knowledge of Latin and that his skill in his vernacular was not inferior to that of the most renowned scholars of New England. He became a preacher, in which vocation he had the singular misfortune of getting into trouble in every community in which he attempted to officiate; and this misfortune was enhanced by the fact that wherever he thus fell into trouble his quarrel was with the majority, and that the authorities called to pass upon his contentions did not exonerate him from blame.

Benjamin's first appearance as a public preacher was at Windsor, Connecticut, when he was about twenty-two years of age. The inhabitants of the town being divided in the choice of a colleague for, or successor to, the venerable Mr. Warham, pastor of the first, and at that time the only, congregation gathered there, the general court at Hartford, by their order of October 10, 1667, required the freemen and householders of Windsor and of the plantation of Massacoe to assemble in town meeting at Windsor and vote for or against the choice of Mr. Nathaniel Chauncy, who, upon the application of the minister and elders of the church there, had been recommended for that office by John Wilson, Richard Mather and Jonathan Mitchell, three leading ministers of "the Bay." The vote having been cast four days later in favor of Chauncy, the court, in view of the opposition of a considerable minority to the settlement of the new minister and to secure peace between the opposing parties, authorized the settlement of Chauncy, but granted the minority permission to procure another minister acceptable to the general court. On the eighteenth of May, 1668, Woodbridge, having, it seems, already entered upon his office of lecturer at Windsor, the same court declared "that they shall not disapprove" of his "continuance as a lecturer there, and if that the church and Mr. Warham shall so farrr condescend for peace as to give liberty for Mr. Woodbridg to preach once a fortnight on the Sabbath as well as on the weeke day vntill some farther time he obtayned to improve some other way as an expedient for the peace of Windsor, it shall be acceptable to this Courte." †

Upon the application of Mr. Warham, the court, on the nineteenth, declared "that the dissenting party mentioned in the order [i.e., of the fourteenth] are those that have liberty granted to them," which implied that church members, if among the dissenters, were included; and thus the way was opened for the formation of a separate church and congregation, to which end steps were promptly taken.

On the eighth of August, 1668, the inhabitants, in town meeting, voted to give Mr. Woodbridge a call to preach once every Lord's day. The record of this vote was made by one of the voters — the town clerk protesting that he had no hand "in assenting to the warning of the town meeting, so called." On the twenty-eighth of September, at another town meeting, it was voted that the selectmen should have the meeting-house repaired "every way that it needs, and to be made comely, upon the town cost." This seems to have increased the discord, inasmuch that on the eighth of October the general assembly, upon application by the officers of the church, and the dissenters who concurred with them in invoking the interposition of the assembly for the promotion of the public peace, appointed a committee of ministers to sit at Windsor, the next April, "or sooner, if they see cause," to hear and determine all disputes concerning the settlement of both Chauncy and Woodbridge, and effect "an accommodation between the church and dissenting brethren of Windsor if they can attain it." If their attempt at pacification should prove unavailing the committee were directed to report the state of affairs at Windsor, with their advice, annexed, as to the best way "to settle peace in the church and town." In the mean time Woodbridge was authorized to continue his fortnightly lectures on the fourth day of the week, but "not on the Sabbath without liberty from the Rev. Mr. Warham."

The report of the committee was made at the next session, in May, 1669, when an order was passed that a copy of "the elders' advice" be delivered to the church, and another copy to the dissenters, who were desired to declare "their consideration about it" to the next court in October. In the mean time the two clergymen were to perform their functions as formerly.

In October the assembly, "to their great grief," seeing no prospect of reconciliation between the supporters of Mr. Chauncy and those of Mr. Woodbridge, declared that they saw no cause to deny liberty to the latter to regularly form themselves into a separate church. A church was formed, accordingly, over which Woodbridge was installed as pastor March 18, 1669-70; and the new congregation met for worship in the town-house, which was fitted up for the purpose. Warham died April 1, 1670, and after his decease the attempts at reconciliation, which had been made, perhaps, at his solicitation, ceased,* and the breach between the two churches and congregations widened. It appears that there was no complaint of heresy or difference of doctrine, but a spirit of bitter antagonism on other matters.

In the winter of 1673 the new society complained to the governor and council of the hostile spirit shown, and of vituperative language used towards them, by members of the old congregation, and by its pastor, culminating in the refusal of the latter to unite with them in keeping a public fast. The complainants represented this animosity to be so intense as to justify them in declining to join with their opponents in making war against the Indian enemy.

In 1676 the old meeting-house having been repaired at the expense of the town, the new society demanded that repairs be made upon the town-house, where they continued to hold their meetings; but this the selectmen refused, on the ground that it was no longer used for the town meetings, for which purposes, only, they were required to keep it in repair. This controversy was settled by reference to a committee chosen from neighboring towns.

About the same time the first church refused to readmit to their membership, without examination, members of the second church. This led to a council, mutually called, whose advice was that the two churches unite and continue in one body as the First Church, to walk together in "the Congregational way of church order," the members of the second church to be examined on admission, if challenged; that "Mr. Chauncy be continued in his office and employment, acting according to the professed Congregational principles; and that Mr. Woodbridge be received to communion and assist in preaching." The second church subsequently objecting to examination, and claiming admission to church fellowship as a body, the council seem to have been again appealed to with a result in favor of the old church. From this time forth the two churches appear to have united, agreeably to the terms proposed in the advice of the council. The next year, in town meeting, the congregation chose a committee to take measures for the settlement of a new minister, until which time Messrs. Chauncy and Woodbridge were to carry on the work of the ministry jointly. A minister was eventually agreed upon satisfactory to both parties; but he declining to accept, new disputes and differences arose, and the bitterness increased.

By the autumn of 1679 it would seem that Mr. Woodbridge's followers were in the majority, and sought to take advantage of their power by attempting to increase the relative amount of preaching of their favorite, with a view to increasing his pay. On the twenty-seventh of October they succeeded in choosing a committee, who were instructed to demand of Mr. Chauncy to share the preaching equally with Mr. Woodbridge. On the second day of December they voted eighty pounds for the ministry, to be divided between Mr. Chauncy and Mr. Woodbridge according to their "respective times and pains in the ministry." If these measures had been adopted the progress to complete control of the pulpit from which Mr. Woodbridge had been excluded, as not having been regularly called, would have been easy; but Congregational usage requiring other qualifications for the ministry than Woodbridge possessed, this attainment of his ends irregularly, and by insidious approaches, could have been defeated by the action of an ecclesiastical council, or an appeal to the civil government. To forestall, therefore, any such adverse interference a vote was passed at the town meeting in October, formally denying that they were subject to "the power of an ecclesiastical council," — thus boldly asserting their independency.

The next step in their line of progress, however, brought them to grief. Counting upon the certainty of success in their designs, a committee of their body objected to the interference of the constituted authorities, in language which provoked the resentment of the assembly. On the twenty-first of October, 1680, therefore, the latter ratified the finding of the ecclesiastical council of 1677, declaring its advice and recommendations binding in regard to the admission of members of the second church as individuals, but not as a body, and urgently recommending the settlement of a new minister, according to the advice of the governor and council and ministers, in May previous. This paper concluded by warning "all the good people of Windsor . . . not in the least to oppose or hinder the same." At the same time the offending committee were convicted of contempt of the governor, and were severally fined five pounds.

* Less than two months after Mr. Warham's decease a committee of the dissenters, in behalf of "the rest," applied to the general court to have the use of the meeting-house equally apportioned between the two congregations, but this attempt failed, although professedly made to promote harmony; and the separation continued for seven years longer.

On the fourteenth of May, 1681, Mr. Woodbridge, having failed to secure the sanction of an ecclesiastical council, and having applied, by petition, to the assembly, the court, in accordance with their vote to hear him, provided "his people that engaged him (as he sayeth)" would voluntarily appear and join issue with him, heard him, and, on the nineteenth, passed upon his alleged grievances, granting him "two hundred acres of land for a farme," "as a final issue of all matters of strife" about his demands "upon the people of Windsor for his labours there;" they finding "that it may be hazardous to the peace to enter particularly into the bowells of the case, as matters are circumstanced." This final award concluded with a recommendation, "to those of Windsor who have been engaged to s<sup>d</sup> Mr. Woodbridge, that now at his parting they would consider their engagements to him and act towards him as they are in duty bound; and we recommend it to Mr. Woodbridge as a friend to peace, that he would rest satisfied therewith."*

Having thus closed his career at Windsor he seems to have looked about for another place where, for want of organized civil government, or by reason of the peculiar state of his ecclesiastical affairs, he could get a hold upon the people by a contract subject to no interference or control by any other judicatory than the courts of law. There was, before 1682, just such an opening in Maine, in the town of Kittery which then embraced Newich-awannock now Berwick—the central settlement, and where the meeting-house stood. The inhabitants having entered into a truce with the Indian enemy were wrangling among themselves, being divided upon the subject of baptism. At this juncture, one Woodbridge appears there, engaged in persecuting the Baptists with all the zeal of the Massachusetts bigots, and with greater success, since the tolerant heretics there united for worship were eventually disorganized and driven from the province; but it is not certain that this Woodbridge was the rover from Connecticut.†

In less than a year after his dismissal from Windsor, however, he appears in the new plantation of Bristol, in Plymouth Colony, which, offering conditions entirely acceptable to him, he succeeded in getting a call thither, not to be settled over an organized church, but to preach to an assembly of the proprietors and planters, and others residing there. Here, in a few years, he had worked up a controversy which he himself styled "an unhappy difference betwixt me and some of our gentlemen proprietors; viz., the two chief,"‡ and which he besought Governor Hinckley to use his influence to bring to "a hearing,"—a gratification "stiffly denied" him by the other party, who probably understood their legal rights too well to submit them to arbitration, being confident that he had no claim upon them that any court could or would recognize as a legal obligation.

As in his proceedings at Windsor, he began with very modest claims for compensation, but eventually got a vote of eighty pounds salary. This vote was subsequently revoked, in which revocation he acquiesced, at the same time proposing an arrangement (which was accepted) by which he was to receive a voluntary contribution, to be guaranteed by the town to the amount of sixty pounds. Failing, however, to secure all he desired, he left Bristol in 1685, promising, in a paper which he submitted to the town, to return, "if it might be with peace, encouragement, and joint concurrence," meaning, of course, that he was willing to be taken back upon his own terms. Six of the leading inhabitants of Bristol, in a letter to the elders at Boston, written in May, 1686, referring to the above conditions, say, "neither of which wee thinke he will procure;" and they add, "when wee have been discoursing about gathering a church in this place, he hath not been willing to promote the same in any way, without he could see some certainty of his being settled & called to office therein. And wee the subscribers, having had opportunity to take notice of Mr Woodbridge, his methods & designs among vs, have reason to thinke his settlement here will not be for the glory of God, his good, nor ours; he having had many opportunities wherein to have had a competent, comfortable & quiet settlement among vs, & he never having embraced the same, & being he would not be perswaded to fall in therewith, makes vs ready to thinke that his worke will ye rather in some other place then here, & that he is not the man that God intends to doe vs good by . . . & wee doe believe that if he would make it his own act to leave vs, it would be the readiest way to settle vs, & wee trust God will provide for vs."§

Finally, on the twenty-eighth of June, 1686, the six leading inhabitants who had signed the letter to the elders at Boston joined in a letter to Increase Mather, "to be communicated to the church," asking for the help of the elders and messengers, in an ecclesiastical council to be held on the third Wednesday of July.

Since a church was regularly gathered in Bristol, May 3, 1687, over which was installed the Rev. Samuel Lee, father of the widow George, the third wife of Cotton Mather, it is probable that this was the result of the council, and that the quarrelsome exile from Windsor had received another quietus.

From Bristol he next found his way to Maine. He was in Kittery as early as 1688. Thence he seems to have gone to Portsmouth in 1691, and to New Castle or Great Island, in 1694. There is little doubt that he was at all the places named, which afforded to a person of his disposition opportunities perhaps not so promising, but in some respects quite as attractive, as those presented at Windsor and Bristol. The unsettled state of society attending and following the onslaughts of the Indians, and the loose discipline in matters of worship incident to an unstable population in a state of chronic warfare, while repellent to those of the clergy who aimed for a permanent and quiet settlement in accordance with Congregational usages, was attractive to the more adventurous, and especially to those who were not willing to accept, or not eligible to, positions under the regular orthodox establishment. Perhaps a closer study of obscure details still extant might result in showing that Woodbridge's career at the eastward was much the same as it had been at Windsor and at Bristol; but as yet no one seems to have collected these details.

Woodbridge's experience in Connecticut and in Plymouth Colony had taught him how to circumvent laws and disregard established usages by selecting or contriving an environment of circumstances in which those laws and usages were inapplicable, or in which their application was so questionable, or so dangerous to other interests, as to exempt him from the consequences of disobedience. Medford having no organized church nor settled minister, but having a sufficient number of legal voters willing to contract with a minister to serve on an indefinite probation, presented an opening quite to his liking. Accordingly, when, on the twenty-eighth of March, 1698, the inhabitants, at a general town meeting properly adjourned from a meeting regularly called two weeks before, voted that, "when legally settled amongst us in the work of the ministry," Mr. Woodbridge should "have forty pounds in money, fifteen cord of wood, and strangers' money, for annuity," he accepted this proposition as if it had been made under a regular definitive call to become the settled minister of the town.

The approach of winter was the occasion of slightly increasing the outlay for the support of the minister, by contracting for a horse to carry him to and from Charlestown, where he resided, and "to meeting on the Sabbath days when there shall be occasion." On the fifteenth of September, 1701, the town voted that he should still continue as their minister; and two persons were chosen "to discourse m<sup>r</sup> woodbridge, and Know his mind Concerning Settling in the Town in y<sup>e</sup> worke of y<sup>e</sup> Ministry, . . . it was also voted . . . that The Town would giue m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge Thirty pounds for his Encouragem<sup>t</sup> Towards Building a house and Settling, as afores<sup>d</sup> Said mo<sup>n</sup>y To be raised either by Subscription or by way of rate, And Further it is to be understood that the Thirty pounds should be, returned by m<sup>r</sup> Benja<sup>s</sup> woodbridge to the Town againe if he did not Settle and Continue with us in the worke of the Minstry, as aforesaid."*

In 1703 he had a controversy with the workmen who were building his house, in which, in the opinion of four prominent ministers of the province, to whom it was referred, his contention was a serious impediment to his settlement, and his treatment of the workmen pronounced contrary to good conscience, while their conduct was applauded. The minister's award was dated the fourth of May; and one month later the selectmen assessed a rate of forty-five pounds three shillings for the cash and the value of the firewood due to the minister, and they apportioned the same among the inhabitants, delivering the warrant therefor to the constable for collection.

Having, by virtue of this assessment, made his grip upon the town secure as he supposed, he felt that he could prevent them from repudiating their bargain by offering to accept a permanent settlement; but the inhabitants, who had been rudely awakened to a suspicion of their minister's true character, were not ready to subject themselves to the trials which they foresaw they were likely to endure under his ministry without some assurance of amendment for the future. One year's trial convinced them that the hope of improvement was so uncertain that, March 6, 1703-4, they voted not to settle him "until some things be better composed" relating to him, and to refer the difficulty to the elders at Boston.

On the second of May, Increase Mather and Samuel Willard, two of the most venerated of the Boston clergy, reported that "if it [a right understanding and good establishment in Medford] appears hopeles to the discerning Christians in the place whereof we at this distance make not our selfs the Judges, it semes better for them to study the best methods of parting as louingly & as spedyly as they can then by continuing longer together & carying on a contrinerry to produce exasperations that may defeat all other attempts to come at a desirable setlement."* Nearly four weeks later the town passed the following vote:—

"At a Legall Town Meeting held at meadford may the 29th 1704 being by ajornment from may the 15th 1704 —

And at s<sup>d</sup> meeting put to vote That Ensign Francis and John Francis Should Informe M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge that the meeting was ajorn<sup>d</sup> to June y<sup>e</sup> 19th Ensueing That he might have a further Opertunity to give Sattisfaction to the Town and the other dissatisfied persons in s<sup>d</sup> Town That the Town might proceed either to a more full and Complete Settlement, or a dismistion — voted in the afirmitive." — Middlesex Court of Sessions: Files.

At the adjourned town meeting, on the nineteenth of June, to avoid any dispute on the subject of payment to Mr. Woodbridge of collections above his salary, the account of the committee charged with the duty of collecting it and paying it over was allowed. The amount was eighty-two pounds, in money contributed sabbath days and thanksgiving days, plus "the strangers' money," besides twenty-two cords of wood.

At this meeting, also, a vote was passed revoking the previous votes relating to his salary as a settled minister, as follows:—

"At a Town metinge held by ajornmt y<sup>e</sup> 19th of June afores<sup>d</sup> which was in order to make way for a further proceddure with m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge according to the vote of the Town beareing date as above s<sup>d</sup> That whereas the Town of meadford Invited m<sup>r</sup> woodbridge to preach the word of god amongst us In order to his Settling amongst us and did promise when So Settled to give him forty pounds per yeare in money Fifteen cord of wood and the Strangers money for his Anuall Sallery. Voted In y<sup>e</sup> Affirmative." — Ibid.

Upon this vote Woodbridge applied to the Governor and Council in a petition the only details of which (and of the action thereon) that have been discovered are contained in the following entries in the executive records of the council: —

"July 18, 1704. A Petition being presented by M<sup>r</sup> Benj<sup>n</sup> Woodbridge Minister of Medford, intimating an unhappy difference of a Civil nature fall'n in there, respecting the building of a Ministry house in Order to the settlement of the Ministry and all the ordinances of God in the place; and hath been managed, rather for hindring, than obtaining the end proposed; and the Christian Religion & peace of the Town thereby much obstructed. Praying that some means of healing may be prescribed by impowring some persons to hear and issue it &c<sup>s</sup>

Ordered that the Secretary send a copy of the said Petition to Major Nathaniel Wade and Capt<sup>n</sup> Peter Tufts, principal Inhabitants of the s<sup>d</sup> Town, to be by them communicated to the rest of the Inhabitants, and to present to this Board (if ought they have to say) why a Committee should not be appointed, as is desired, to hear and issue their s<sup>d</sup> differences, if it may be, or to make Report thereof.

4, p. 46.

"Nov. 7, 1704. M<sup>r</sup> Benj<sup>n</sup> Woodbridge Minister of Medford and the Agents for the said Town, and several of the principal Inhabitants attended this day according to appointment, and were heard upon a Petition formerly preferred by the s<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge relating to an unhappy difference fall'n out amongst them concerning the building of a house for the Minister; and a receipt being produced for the full payment for said house, and both partys declaring they had no further to challenge on that head, the difference onely continuēg by reason of some words which had pass'd in the management of that affair, and M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge frankly expressing his forgiveness of his people and asking their forgiveness towards him.

The Council advised them to a mutual reconciliation, and to unite in Spirit and love with each other." — Ibid., p. 104.

He had thus secured exemption from liability for any claim on account of the building of his house, the title of which was in him; but he had failed to procure an order from the Governor and Council requiring the town to settle him in the ministry. At this juncture the attention of the grand jury was called to the town's breach of the law, in being without a settled minister. This grand jury was in attendance upon the Superior Court, Court of Assize, etc., held at Charlestown, January 30, 1704-5. This was the first time during the whole period of Woodbridge's probation (which still continued) in which a complaint of this kind had been preferred. The offence of neglecting to settle a minister was cognizable, in the first instance, exclusively by the Court of Sessions; and so the indictment was transferred to the next term of the General Sessions for Middlesex, to be held on the thirteenth of March, there "to be proceeded with according to law." One week before the Court of Sessions convened, a town meeting was held, at which the following votes were passed: —

"At a Generall and Legall Town Meeting Assembled Kept & held at Medford, March the 5th 1704/5 —

At sd meeting, Put to vote whether the Town Do Esteem m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge to be Legally Settled among them in the Worke of y<sup>e</sup> Ministry according to y<sup>e</sup> Intention of the Town, when they voted to give m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge forty pounds in money fifteen Cord of Wood, and Strangers money for annuity when legally Settled in the Worke of the ministry. Voted in y<sup>e</sup> Negative that they did not

Copies of these votes (from which the above are taken) are on file with the Sessions papers of that term; hence it may be inferred that some one procured the passage of these votes in order to substantiate the complaint against the town.

In the matter of the complaint, the Court of Sessions, having been informed by the agents of the town of the want of a settled minister, had no alternative but to comply with the law, by passing, at their session held at Charlestown, March 13, 1704-5, the following order: —

"Capt Pet: Tufts & m<sup>r</sup> Steph: Willis appearing in Court in behalfe of y<sup>e</sup> Town of Medford to Answ<sup>r</sup> their present<sup>t</sup> by y<sup>e</sup> grand Inquest for being without a Settled minister Informed y<sup>e</sup> Court that they have been without a Settled minister and are in actual Endeavour to get a Settled minister. The Court order that they take effectuall Care to obtaine a Settled minister, and make report of their doings therein to y<sup>e</sup> next Court of Sessions." — Records of the Court of Sessions, in the office of the Clerk of the Courts for Middlesex County.

In the interval between the presentment of the town by the grand jury, and the March term of the Court, Woodbridge was contriving another scheme for discomfiting his opponents. By the vote given below, passed at the town meeting above mentioned, it appears that, after failing to coerce the town into settling him as their minister according to law, he had resorted to the method he found so useful for his purpose at Windsor; that is, to gather an independent church and congregation in defiance of the rules of Congregational discipline and the laws of the province: —

“ At a Generall and Legall Town meeting assembled kept & held at Medford the 5th of March 1704/5

For these and other such Considerations The Town Do declare themselves highly dissatisfied at m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridges late irregular attempts & actions about gathering a Church, and Do protest against his going on in y<sup>e</sup> offensive way he is in, And forbid his preaching any more in there publick meeting house— Voted in y<sup>e</sup> Affirmatiue.” — Middlesex Court of Sessions: Files.

This protest by the legal voters of the town against Woodbridge’s irregular practices led to the calling of an ecclesiastical council, which was held on the tenth of July to ascertain where the blame lay for the troubles between the pastor and congregation of Medford, and to advise a remedy. The following record of the result of this council presents a more convenient statement than it has been found practicable to frame of the reasons, method of calling, and decision, of this council:—

“ The Result of a Councill of Six Churches mett att Medford July y<sup>e</sup> 10 : 1705

After Solemn calling on God in Prayer for guidance & direction we do declare & advise as followeth

I Being desired in y<sup>e</sup> Letters missive which we received to convince of & testifie against, those evils which have obstructed y<sup>e</sup> quiet & regular settlement & enjoymnt of all Gospell ordinances, in Medford, we find that M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge has been a Cheif blameable cause of those obstructions, & Among other things in Such perticulars as these

1 He did reflect on those 4 Rev<sup>d</sup> Ministers, who heard Some matters of difference between him & y<sup>e</sup> workmen, imploy’d in building his house, as being prejudicid persons.

2 He did reflect on y<sup>e</sup> workmen, who built his house, by insinuating as tho they were uneasy & troubled in mind for taking y<sup>e</sup> monie w<sup>e</sup> y<sup>e</sup> ministers adjudged due unto them.

3 Since y<sup>e</sup> Advice of y<sup>e</sup> 4 ministers, he charged the workmen as owing him 30 pounds.

4. The Steps w<sup>e</sup> he took towards gathering a Church, as to y<sup>e</sup> time, & under y<sup>e</sup> then Circumstances of y<sup>e</sup> Town were very unadvised, & obstructive to y<sup>e</sup> regular Settlement & enjoyment of all Gospell ordinances in that Town.

II We apprehend the Town of Medford acted blameably, in their Votes about Silencing M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge & taking away his Salary, unless they had taken Some previous Steps more then we are sensible of.

III It’s probable y<sup>t</sup> in those unhappy differences between M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge and his opposers, his Said Opposers have let drop unsutable Expressions which they Should be ready, to Acknowledge & ask forgiveness for.

Upon the Whole We Apprehend

1 That M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge should by sutable Acknowledgment indevour to ease y<sup>e</sup> Minds of those aggrieved by his foresaid unadvised Steps, & those unsutable & offensive expressions which he has uttered.

2 That after such indevours of M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge he preach for a while in Medford and y<sup>e</sup> Inhabitants their attend on his ministry, & y<sup>t</sup> they mutually endeavour to ease one anothers spirits; in order to a peaceable Christian agreement between them that they may enjoy all Gospell ordinances.

3 If after some sutable time for triall, Such agreement cannot be obtained that they part from one another as quietly as they can.

The judgment of the Court of Sessions upon the presentment of the grand jury having apparently failed of execution, a new presentment was found on the eighteenth of September, for the same offence. This presentment seems to have been as ineffectual as the other.

After the lapse of more than a month, Mr. Woodbridge still neglecting to follow the advice of the last ecclesiastical council, the principal inhabitants of the town addressed to him the following conciliatory proposal:—

“ To Mr Wodbridge

Reuerend Sir we whose nams are under written doe declare our selfs still vnsatisfied as to that sutable acknowledgement you were aduised to giue to the agreed party in medford by the Councill meet at medford on July y<sup>e</sup> 10th 1705 & we as we haue formerly done are willing still to show our selfs of A Complying spirit soe far as to refer the matter to as many of the Councill aforesaid as may be gott together some day at Boston after lecture to determine whether the acknowledgement you haue made be sutable according to the aduice of said Councill provided the thing be spedly done & we pray it may be done & we are willing to submit to there aduice

This paper was subsequently lodged with the clerk of the Court of Sessions, as evidence, and was endorsed “ The agreed persons offer to M<sup>r</sup> Wodbridge.”

No other response to this Christian-like proposal has been found than two actions at law instituted by Woodbridge; one, in the Court of Sessions, under the province act of 1702, chapter 10, giving that court authority to order the assessment of a rate to collect the minister's salary in case of delinquency by the regular town officers; and the other, in the inferior Court of Common Pleas, against John Whitmore, housewright, for the amount of contribution received by him, to Woodbridge's use, on five sabbaths in September, October, and November, which Whitmore, it was alleged, neglected and refused to pay over on demand. The precept for warning the selectmen, in the former case, and the writ, in the latter, were dated the twenty-third of November, and the courts were held, together, on the eleventh of December. The amount demanded on account of the collections was apparently about three pounds.

Woodbridge's complaint and the answer, or plea, of the town are as follows:—

“To the Honourable Court of Sessions for the county of Middlesex sitting at charles-towne Decemb: 11th 1705.

The complaint & humble addresse of Benjamin Woodbridge minister of the Gospel at Medford.

Whereas the town of Medford did by a unanimous vote, call, & invite me, to the work of the ministry in this place, & I have according to my ability served them faithfully, in y<sup>e</sup> work of the ministry eight years, & upward, & whereas for my encouragement they did make an agreement to pay me for my service, as is extant by their votes in y<sup>e</sup> town book. & did make good their covenant & agreement with me, for about four or five years, & took their discharge for that time. But of late, through an unquiet & discontented spirit in some, my maintenance hath not only been neglected, but some have hindered, & acted against it: So that there is about sixty pounds due according to their covenant, & agreement with me, which I cannot get. I did once by reason of the difficultyes & discouragements I met with, move to them in a town meeting, that I might fairly & lovingly be released from my bonds & work in this place, (having at that time an opportunity of a better settlement elsewhere) but my motion was refused; & not complied with. I humbly present to this Honourable Court, my unreasonable sufferings, intreating I may be paid for the work done according to agreement, or if they plead the agreement to be made void by their act, that then my salary may be stated by this Honourable Court according as the law directs, And I would humbly entreat that it may be ordered so as that there may be an equality, not that some are eased, & others burdened, for it is apparent amongst us that some have acted more commendably, & christianly in the discharge of their dues, when others have puld back for a considerable while, & done little or nothing. I would further signify to this Honourable court, that I have constituted my trusty, & Honourred friend Paul Dudley Esq; to manifest how just, & equitable it is that I should have a recompense for my work done according to agreement, & to intreat the privilege of y<sup>e</sup> law, & y<sup>e</sup> favour of this Honourable Court in the behalfe of

Medford decemb 10: 1705

Upon the foregoing complaint by Woodbridge the Court ordered the clerk to issue a warrant to the selectmen to forthwith call a town meeting to choose and empower some suitable persons to appear and answer for the town on the last Tuesday in December, to which time the Court was adjourned for a further hearing. This mandate was obeyed, and on the nineteenth the inhabitants chose and empowered Captain Peter Tufts, Lieutenant Stephen Willis, and Mr. John Whitmore, to appear for them.

In the civil action the case was committed to a jury, who found for Woodbridge fifty shillings and costs of court; and judgment was entered up accordingly.

After the date of the complaint and writ, and before the return day, Woodbridge appears to have enlisted the support of an active minority, who prepared the following protest, still on the court files:—

“Wee whos names herunto subscribed being proprietors or Inhabitants of the Towne of medford doe herby manifest and declare our dissent and Protest against any choice that shall or may be made of any Person or Persons to hinder the payinge any money or monys for and towards the disrestinging or hindrance of the Reuerand M<sup>r</sup> Benja<sup>m</sup>: Woodbridge our caled and Presentt minster from his demanding and Reseing what is or may be Justly his due according to agrementt mad by said Towne and we count it our duty to Performe the Same both by the laws of God and man Neither will we doe any thinge to hinder or discourag or disetle hime in the work of the ministry amongst vs also we are redy to contributt and pay our Just proportion if not all Redy paid and we are not ashamed to manifest our minds herin to Towne or county or to any Honorable Court of Judicature that may settle said affaire we desire this our minds may be Recorded in our Towne book to prevent further trouble if it may be.

Woodbridge found the town meeting on the nineteenth opportune for spring upon the inhabitants a scheme by which, in the guise of injured innocence, he might make a favorable impression upon the authorities, who did not fully understand the case. To this end, while pretending to ask only for a compliance with the advice of the council as to a settlement, he presented a paper, offering the congregation the single alternative of dismissing him, or choosing him and no other. If they chose to dismiss him, then he proposed to take advantage of their urgent desire to get rid of him, by an exorbitant estimate of the value of the real estate, at which rate he requested them to purchase it of him under their original agreement. This paper, which, with a statement annexed, was duly filed in court, was as follows :—

It is known to you, how y<sup>t</sup> I have by a unanimous vote & consent of this people been called to, & settled in y<sup>e</sup> work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry in this place, & you may remember y<sup>e</sup> time when y<sup>e</sup> people did generally pretend a high love & respect to me & to my ministry, & though I have served you 8 years & upward with faithfulness in y<sup>e</sup> work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry according to y<sup>e</sup> measure of grace given me, yet I have had great discouragem<sup>ts</sup> in my ministry from some, (I pray god it may not be layd to their charge) though on y<sup>e</sup> other hand there are many, that have continued their love & kindness & I doubt not but god will remember it, & reward them. I have proposed to y<sup>e</sup> unsatisfied persons two means of healing one y<sup>t</sup> they should come to me personally, & privately to reason y<sup>e</sup> case. The other y<sup>t</sup> we might mutually invite six ministers of y<sup>e</sup> six churches to whom our affairs by mutual consent have been referd, to come, & forward y<sup>t</sup> Xian & peaceable agreement, we have been advised to, neither of which have been yielded to. I perceive there is stil a spirit of opposition ag<sup>t</sup> me or my ministry here I have attended y<sup>e</sup> late council in their first & second step, & am now come to y<sup>e</sup> last. And do therefore now propose for a quiet & loving parture, & to y<sup>t</sup> end that y<sup>e</sup> town would forthwith appoint men to come & take sufficient deeds for, & possession of, y<sup>e</sup> house, & land, & other appurtenances according to what was agreed to by your vote Dece 15: 1701. that whereas it is now my propriety, & in my possession it may be conveyed over to y<sup>e</sup> town of Medford for y<sup>e</sup> use of y<sup>e</sup> ministry. And y<sup>t</sup> you reimburse y<sup>e</sup> money y<sup>t</sup> I have been out upon it for your sakes, that I may not suffer unreasonably in my outward estate, & y<sup>t</sup> you pay my arrearages that are behind, for my work in y<sup>e</sup> ministry according to agreement. (an account I wil give underneath) And y<sup>t</sup> there may be given at y<sup>e</sup> same time, a mutual release & discharge to, & of each other. And for your encouragem<sup>t</sup> herein, I wil be at y<sup>e</sup> cost of my owne removal, & wil also give twenty pound in money for y<sup>e</sup> settlement of y<sup>e</sup> next minister, & deposit it in y<sup>e</sup> hands of such men as you shal now chuse. And I would pray your compliance, or y<sup>t</sup> you would contend no more with your faithful though almost discouraged minister

He also presented at the same meeting an account of arrearages to the seventeenth of December, in which he claimed a balance due him of fifty-five pounds. To this, after the paper had been filed in court, he added a credit of one pound nine shillings for other contributions “ that were detained.”

The complaint came on for hearing on the twenty-fifth of December, when the Court decided “ that m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge is not a Settled minister at Medford and Said Town being without a Settled Minister according to Law, Order that y<sup>e</sup> sd Town of Medford Do forth with provide them Selmes of a minister qualified as the Law directs, by the next Generall Sessions of the Peace to be holden for Midd<sup>l</sup> and make return of there doings therein to y<sup>e</sup> Said Court, on paine and penalty of being proceeded wth as the Law directs in Such Case made and provided.” *

* Middlesex Court of Sessions : Files.

A town meeting, duly warned, was held January 21, 1705-6, for the purpose of complying with the order of the Court of Sessions, when a committee of three was chosen "to advise with the Fellows of Harvard Colledge in Cambridge and Seeke their help in the obtaining And providing Sum Other Suteable person or persons from time to time to preach the word of God amongst us. In order to s<sup>d</sup> Towns making choice of Sum person qualifid as The Law directs to settle with Them in the worke of the Ministry as Soon as conveniently may be obtained."* At the same meeting it was further voted that "the persons that are this meeting appointed to procure a minister to preah in s<sup>d</sup> medford (viz) cap<sup>t</sup> Peter Tuft Liev<sup>t</sup> Thom<sup>s</sup> [Willis] and m<sup>r</sup> Jn<sup>o</sup> whitmore, should Informe m<sup>r</sup> woodbridge That they were appointed to provide a minister to preach with them by power of and according to the Town vote forthwith and request of s<sup>d</sup> m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge That he would not hinder Interrupt or disturb Any Minister That they Shall Provide."*

Four of the supporters of Woodbridge appeared at this meeting and filed their written dissent from the above votes. Representation having previously been made to the Court of Sessions by these dissenters that ten other inhabitants concurred in their dissent, and a list of the names of the fourteen having been presented to the Court, another town meeting was held on the fourth of March to determine the question "whether said town will forthwith proceed to settle Mr. Woodbridge amongst them in the work of the ministry?" This question was decided in the negative, thus depriving the dissenters of all foundation for arguing that a considerable number of the inhabitants were opposed to the dismissal of Mr. Woodbridge.

At the March term, 1705-6, of the Court of Sessions, the town was again presented by the grand jury as before; but the time had arrived, in the minds of some, evidently, to assume the aggressive and to invoke the aid of the court against the litigious minister. The provincial marriage-act declared that "no person other than a justice of the peace . . . or ordained minister, and that only in the town where he is settled in the work of the ministry, shall or may presume to join any persons together in marriage."† Now, on the thirteenth of December ‡ the marriage of John Francis and Elizabeth Frost had been solemnized, and Woodbridge made return of the fact to the town clerk. Complaint being entered against him he was presented, for this breach of the law, at the same term in which the presentment had been found against the town.

An innovation in the practice of town clerks appears to have been introduced in some of the late town meetings. This was complained of to the Court of Sessions at the same March term. Like a similar proceeding in Windsor this innovation was in the interest of Mr. Woodbridge, but in the present case the entry was made by the town clerk, and not by a stranger; and the ground of complaint was that the entries were made privately and without the knowledge or approbation of the selectmen. Since Bradstreet, the town clerk, was Woodbridge's nephew and disposed to help his cause, the declaration of the selectmen, that by the practice of entering protests and dissents without the authority of the town meeting or the knowledge of the selectmen "town records will be in danger of being mixed with fallacies and falsehood," may have had a special application.

At the same time the committee of the town appeared and filed the following answer and motion:—

"To the honored Court of the sessions at the County of middl<sup>x</sup> sitting at Charlstowne march y<sup>e</sup> 12th; 170 [5-]6

whereas the honored Court of the sessions holden at Charlstowne for the County of middx on decemb 25th 1705 did find the towne of medford to be without a settled minister & ordered s<sup>d</sup> towne forthwith to provide themselves with a settled minister & make return of there doings therin & whereas said towne hath made choice of us whose nams are under writen to make return to this honered Courtt of those proceedings in order to the obtaining a minister for said towne & we the subscribers being the same persons Chosen by the town to provide a minister

These are to acquaint this honered Court that at a towne meting legally Connend & timely notified said towne made choice of us who are the subscribers to provide a minister as is directed in the towne note for that End which we proceeded in soe far as to gett a promise of a minister to preach with us on the Saboth in case m<sup>r</sup> Wobridge would not hinder nor Interrupt him in s<sup>d</sup> work upon which two of us of the said Comittie with two other persons went to m<sup>r</sup> wodbridge & acquainted him with what we had done referring to a minister according to the towne note & at the same time showed him a copp<sup>y</sup> of a towne note under the towne Clarks hand wherein the towne did desire m<sup>r</sup> wodbridge not to disturb or Interrupt any minister that sd committie got to preach with them &c alsoe we did then desire him to declare his mind whether he would comply with the townes desire expressed in said note or nott upon which m<sup>r</sup> wodbridge said the pulpit was his & he would preach in it which is the reason why your honors order for the setting a minister in medford cannot be obtained nor towne notes referring thereto prosecuted to effect and if your honors take not effectnall care for some releiff in this our distressed condition peace & order amongst us is like to be buried in a heap of disorder and confusion (which we pray for your sessions consideration of & help in)

& further we said subscribers would further acquaint this honered court that whereas there was a paper ginen in to your honors at the last sesion of the peace holden at Charlstowne vnder the hands of fourteen men which is generally reported as if these fourteen persons were for the setting of m<sup>r</sup> wodbridge in medford & we understand that the End of general of those persons aforesaid in signing said paper is misrepresented which was one great reason why at our last generall towne meting on the 4th day of this Instant march it was pnt to note whether the towne would forthwith procede to settle m<sup>r</sup> wodbridge in the work of the ministry that soe it might be knowne whether the mind of the towne were according to the report abroad (& not one person that held up his hand for setting m<sup>r</sup> wodbridge) & if your honors would please to send for those fourteen persons aforesaid (whose names are lodged with the honord Court) to examine who of them are for setting m<sup>r</sup> wod-bridge & what there end was in sighneing the foresaid paper (we humbly Conceive) it might satisfie your honors more in order to any step your honors may take for our further relief & preuent fals reports & might be helpfull in Remouing of some blocks out of the way of the towns proceeding in getting a minister & that we may obtain the fauor & help of this honored Court: we pray: in the behalfe of said towne who are your humble peti-

PETER TUFTS THO WILLIS

Upon this paper is endorsed "Mr. Tufts &c motion Sumons to go out thereon."
To this answer Woodbridge made the following reply:—

"A brieft but ful answer to the complaint enterd against me, to the Honnoured court of Sessions for the county of Middlesex sitting at Charlestown March: 12: 1706. Subscribed by Peter Tufts, Thomas Willis, John Whitmore.

One thing they assert is that, they were chosen to provide a minister, at a town meeting legally conuened, But as I objected to them, so I do stil, that the meeting on Jan: 21: 1705:6. for that end, was neither legal, nor orderly. Though I allow it to be a prudential, & belonging to the townesmen, to appoint a meeting to cal a minister where a town is destitute, yet it is not when a town is supplied, & hath a minister incumbent, & settled in the place, & work of the ministry, by a unanimous agreement, & in an orderly way, & therefore I sent to them, that the town might first release, & discharge me, & I them, according as I had before proposed, & desired, & they could not act orderly, nor peaceably, til that was done, unless they would have an other in conjunction, with him, that they already have, which I doe not oppose. And it is a very poor complaint against me, that I sayd y<sup>e</sup> pulpit is mine, & I wil preach in it, when the town of Medford have by a ful unanimous agreement, invested me in that right, by calling me as their minister, & desiring me to continue as their minister & refuse to reimburse, & pay my arrears, that there may be a mutual release, & discharge according as I have put in my proposal to them, a copy whereof is lodged with this Honnoured court. Neither according to our constitution or principles in this country do I know of any other way, or power, in the land, whereby the relation can be dissolved, or the relative duties, incumbent on minister, & people can be dispensed with, or they mutually freed from them, for as it is the mutual consent, & agreement of minister, & people that makes the relation, so it is y<sup>e</sup> only that can dissolve it. Ejusdem est instituere, et destituere. & it manifests a very unworthy, & unchristian spirit for any one to desire my removal, without such a discharge, I having devoted my selfe to y<sup>e</sup> work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry amongst them, not as an intruder, but on their unanimous desire & consent, & have already served them in y<sup>e</sup> work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry about 8 year. & halfe And it seemes somewhat strange that they should seek reliefe or order or peace from this Honnoured court, when it is they y<sup>t</sup> make y<sup>e</sup> disturbance, & confusion. If they would attend the rules of our Lord Jesus X<sup>t</sup> As Rom: 14: 19. 1 Thes: 4: 11. & 5: 12. then they may be quiet under their owne minister, that they have set up, or else release him & seek an other.

BENJ: WOODBRIDGE,

Woodbridge also submitted to the Court the written address given below, in which, under pretence of renewing his complaint and address, to the same tribunal, which was heard on the twenty-fifth of December, he stated his case fully. After the detailed statement above given of his relations with the town, it is needless to point out the elaborate disingenuousness of the reverend pleader. It is interesting, however, to observe the cautious manner in which he hints at the control which "a higher board" might possibly be asked to exercise in case of the denial of his prayer. The experience of his too zealous friends at Windsor, who were fined for their contemptuous language in his behalf concerning the Governor, had evidently taught him the expediency of moderating his language so as not to savor too strongly of a threat. The address was as follows:—

"To the Honnoured Court of y<sup>e</sup> General Sessions of the peace for y<sup>e</sup> County of Middlesex held at Charlestown March 12: 1705:6.

The humble Adresse of Benj: Woodbridge minister of the Gospel at Medford sheweth.

That whereas I did at the last session of this Honnoured Court, put in a complaint. & petition to this Honnoured court, (as the Law direct) respecting my arrearages that were behind, & unpaid by the town of Medford, & gave in the account of them, with hopes, & expectations of reliefe from this Honnoured court, in my suffering condition, and though the court did appoint a time by adjourment for the hearing of the case, & did hear it, on the 25 day of December Last past: yet there is nothing done for me, nor any reliefe granted, which puts me upon the renewing of my address to this Honnoured court in treating that I may have that justice, & right, that the Law directs to, & may not have occasion of complaining to a higher Board. Indeed I have seen a copy extracted from the minutes of the court, wherein is declared the opinion of this Honnoured court that I am not a settled minister at Medford. I would intreat the Honnoured court to bear with me, if I say I know not their meaning therein, I believe the Honnoured court never meant that there should be such il constructions put upon it, as I perceiue some have done, Some plead it to exempt them from their just debt, that was due before the Honnoured court gave it forth, some reckon they are hereby exempt from reimbursing the estate I have layd out at their desire, & for their sakes, in case of a removal & discharge, as I have proposed for, the copy of which is lodged with this court, & some plead themselves hereby freed from attending the publick ministry, & many other il constructions I have heard of. Moreover I cannot see upon what this opinion of y<sup>e</sup> Honnour'd court is founded, I have examined as far as I can, the principles & constitutions of this country, both civil, & ecclesiastick, And do find that where a town, or people, or congregation, destitute of a minister do by a free, & ful, & unanimous cal, & consent, desire a person that is ordained to, & qualified for the work of the ministry, & approved of as such, by ministers, & churches in the neighbourhood, & round about, to undertake the work of ye ministry in a particular place, & to become their minister, & he doth accept it & devote himselfe to the work of the ministry in that place, & they renew their desires, & vote that he should stil continue as their minister, (As was given in, to this Honour'd Court, in their vote of Sept: 15: 1701 and he stil continue, according as they desired, in ye office, & work of the ministry amongst them, & they refuse to give him a release, or discharge, I cannot se but such an one. is a settled minister at such a place, & that such publick, & solenne covenants are not nullities. Gal: 3: 15. Indeed there is a sense in which I may be said to be unsettled, in some measure. After these unanimous & solenne agreements that were further confirmed, & ratified, by mutual laying out of money by me, & the town on the account. Some Capital men having lead the town, (themselves being chiefe actors) to make an agreement respecting a house for me to live in, to serve them in the ministry, according to former cove<sup>t</sup> or agreem<sup>t</sup>, were afterward unwilling to stand to it, & by quarrelling, & indirect meanes got more from me, then I agreed to, or the work was worth, & being told of it, grew into a discontented frame, & have raised many clamours against me, & opposed my ministry, & obstructed the settling of the sacrament of ye Lords supper amongst us. And have sometimes got such a party, that have made some votes contradictory to what themselves, & the town had before voted, & settled, & unanimously agreed to with their minister, & by that meanes have brought in unquietnes unsettlednes & confusion, & hence they are opposers (according to ye saying, Odisse quos laeseris) And this I must declare, to this court, & al ye world, (as far as I understand) is the foundation & substance of al this noise, & disturbance, But no sufficient ground (as I conceive) to deprive me of what is due, for my labours amongst them. I have served them with great difficulty, & under great discouragements, & cannot yet get a release. I have constituted my Honour'd friend Paul Dudley Esq; further to shew to this Honour'd Court my unreasonable sufferings, & how just & equitable it is, y<sup>t</sup> I should be relieved, & paid for my labours, & I intreat he may be heard in the case. It may be, it may be* my infirmity but I cannot but believe, & perswade my selfe, that had he not been providentially hindred at the last hearing he would have so opened the equity of my petition, & the agreeableness of it to law, & justice, & how unreasonable it is that if 3 or 4 persons take up a causelesse disgust, or discontent against their minister, that they should detain his just dues, & endeavour to break the publick agreements of the town, these things I believe would have been so opened, that I should have had reliefe the last time, & no occasion of troubling this Honour'd court at this time.

So prays your humble petitioner, & supplicant,

The Court was adjourned to the twentieth of March, to try the presentment of the town for neglect to settle a minister; to consider the complaint of the selectmen against the town clerk for irregular entries in his record; and to hear the reasons of those who signed a protest against the dismissal of Mr. Woodbridge. Precepts were issued to the constable to notify the parties to appear; and, accordingly, four of the protesting minority appeared and filed the following paper of reasons: —

The committee of the town filed the following answer to the above address by Woodbridge:—

“To the Honored Court of the Generall Sesions of the peace for y<sup>e</sup> County of middlesex held at Charlstowne march y<sup>e</sup> 20th 1706

that whereas mr Benj Wodbridge hath renewed his address to this Honored Court referring to his arears that he pretends to be behind & unpaid by the towne of medford & complains of some things in said adrese that we know nothing of: In Auswer to which we who are subscribers in behalfe of sd towne declare as followeth (namly)

I mr Wodbridge doth signifie as if he vnderstood not the meaning of the honor Court in declaring there opinion that he is not a settled minister at medford which we do not see much wonder at because we haue experienced to our great disadnantage that mr Wodbridge cannott or rather will not vnderstand nor Comply with Court nor Council in there determinations Concerning him any further then will suit with his owne Interest

II mr wodbridge pretends some ill Constructions put upon your honors opinion that he is not a settled minister as aforesaid which ill constructions we know nothing of nor who made them & if mr wodbridge did not make them himselve yet we humbly conceine it would haue been more for the Credit of mr Wodbridge to haue stopt his eare against such Reports (till he had more reason to Credit them) then to offer such frivulous things to the honored Court as matter of Complaint

III whereas mr wodbridge pretends himselve a settled minister in medford (1) by reason of his being aproned of by ministers & churches in the neighbourhood how far any of the reuerend ministers in the neighbourhood haue giuen there approbation of mr wodbridges setelment in the work of the ministry priuately to himselve we know not: but when the towne hath at any time aplied themselves to any of the reuerend ministers we haue not been aduised to settle mr wodbridge as may further appear vnder there hands (2<sup>ly</sup>) he argues his setelment from a note of the towne that noted him to Continue as there minister which note was noe other wise Intended then to continue to preach in medford as he had formerly done which note was before the towne by any note of said towne had Inited him in order to setelment 3ly mr Wodbridge pleads his setelment from sollemn conanants and agrements betwene him & the towne & brings Scripture to proue such conanants are not to be disannulld nor added to by which Scripture we humbly conceine he argues against himselve in that the notes of the towne (which he terms sollomme conanants) were conditinnall & yet he seks to make them absolnte & yet hath not performed the condition himselve soe that in shortt those (2) notes of the towne (namly) 1 that note to giue mr wodbridge 40 pound mony wood & strangers mony &c when legally settled in the work of the ministry & (2ly) that note of the towne to giue him 30 povnd towards his building in medford for his Incouragement to settle with us in the work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry on that condition to be returned to the towne again in case he did not settle with us in the work of the ministry as aforesaid which conditinnall notes afore said are the snme & substans of those sollemne conanants that mr wodbridge pretends to be made betwene him & the towne & seems to lay a great strese upon which we conceine to be more pretence then Reality (4ly) mr wodbridge pleads the towne Refused to giue him a release or discharge we know not what he meaneth by a release being refused when as he hath bene released (if euer he were bound) by towne notes & by the late aduice of the conceill of churches & by a late note of the towne according to order of court to the towne forthwith to get a settled minister soe that we humbly conceine said towne hath more reason to complain of mr wodbridges preaching against the mind of the towne then he hath to complain for want of a release

IIII mr wodbridge in his complaint doth charge some perticular persons which cannot be vnderstood of any other persons but the workmen that built his house in medford & saith that by quarilling & Indirect meanes got more from him then he agreed to or his work was worth &c: which charge we said workmen doe esteeme a fals accusation & doe humbly beg of your honors liberty to make it appear to your honors how easie we haue been with him about said building & those gentle steps we haue taken to Isue that differens which had he complied with might haue isued those differences

V mr wodbridge complains of the obstructing the sacrament of the lord[s †] super amongst us in Auswer to which (for brenties sake) we refer your honors to the aduice of the late conceill of churches mett at medford which is expressed in the 4th article of there result

VI that whereas mr Wodbridge hath the confidens to charge the towne or some pirricular persons in said towne to be a means to bring in vnquietnes vssetlednes & confusion & the foundation of all this noise & disturbans we humbly conceine it doth reflect upon the honorable Councill lately meet at medford who in there Result: say: we find mr wodbridge to be a cheiff blameable cause of obstructing the quiet & Regular setelment & Inioyment of all Gospell ordinances in medford

Mr. Woodbridge also presented a new complaint and memorial, as follows:—

"Middlesex To the Honble Her Majestys Justices of the Peace in their present generall Sessions of the peace in and for the County afores<sup>d</sup> the 20th of March: 1705. 6

After a full hearing the Court disposed of all questions between the town and Mr. Woodbridge by a declaration in the nature of a judgment, concluding with the following order:—

"The Said Court Still Continueing in their opinion that m<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge is not a Settled Minister at Medford and the Town being yet without a Settled Minister. Order that y<sup>e</sup> Town of Medford proceed forthwith to provide them Selmes of a Settled Minister qualified according to y<sup>e</sup> directions of the Law. And to make return of their doings therein to y<sup>e</sup> next Court of Quarter Sessions for Midd<sup>s</sup> on penalty of being proceeded with as y<sup>e</sup> Law directs in such Case made & provided." — Records of the Court of Sessions, in the office of the Clerk of the Courts for Middlesex County.

From this decision of the Court Woodbridge appealed to the Superior Court of Indiacature to be held at Cambridge on the thirtieth of July. It has not been discovered that this appeal was prosecuted, or that any action was taken, or any judgment rendered, respecting the clerical irregularities of Bradstreet.

In regard to the complaint of solemnizing a marriage illegally, Woodbridge had made the following answer, in writing, at the Court held on the twelfth of March:—

"Whereas I am notified to appear at this Honnoured Court for marrying at Medford I can say no more, but that I believe, I have done my dnty, & acted therein agreeable to law, & do wonder that y<sup>e</sup> grand inquest of Middlesex, whoever they are, understand the law no better, or would give trouble to one for acting according to it.

BENJ: WOODBRIDGE." — Middlesex Court of Sessions: Files.

He was served with a summons dated the sixteenth to appear on the twentieth and answer to the complaint. He appeared, accordingly, and thereupon the Court took the case under advisement until the next term, when it was again postponed, and thereafter, from term to term, to as late as December, 1706, since which no further proceedings, prior to the passage of the order which constitutes this chapter, have been discovered.

The Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth, pastor of the First Church in Boston, having preached to the congregation in the meeting-house at Medford, Woodbridge wrote him, on the eighth of April, 1706, a caustic letter charging him with disorder, and demanding satisfaction "for intruding into my pulpit and work without leave."

On the next day the following offer was made to Woodbridge, in writing:—

* Manuscript mutilated.

“ To Mr Woodbridge

Whereas you have offered to the Councill, to ministers, & to the Towne, that if you were reimbursed, you would leave the Towne, & make no further disturbance among them by your preaching with them any longer: upon the conditions aforesaid, we who are the subscribers will give you your first cost of housing, land, & fences, having a satisfactory account of the same

Nathaniel Williams, a graduate of Harvard College, was regularly invited by the town committee to preach on the fourteenth, as a candidate. He gave the following testimony as to the treatment he received from Woodbridge:—

I being Invited by the Committee for the Town of Mistick alias Medford to preach in their meeting house on the 14th day of April last Mr Benjamin Woodbridge oppos’d me in following manner, In the morning of said day in the Pulpit in said meeting house, he said to me that I had no business to preach there, it was his Pulpit, and forbad me to preach there, saying withal that the Comittee had no power to desire me to preach: & when the forenoon worship was over he said to me that I had rudely & incivily intruded my self into his pulpit, and therein acted unworthy of a minister of the Gospel, that if I had sett God before my eyes I should not dare to have done it, and withal charged & forbad me doing the like in the afternoon — In the afternoon just before exercise he bid me to give way to him, and sett farther in to the end of Pew, after the afternoon last prayer he seeing me going to read the Order for a fast, publicly said to me that I had no business to read that, it was his business, and he would doe it: accordingly he read it and gave the blessing before the ordinary time to do it before he satt down. After which he again told me that I had acted what was highly unbecom<sup>ing</sup> a Christian & a minister of the Gospel.” — Ibid.

At the Court of Sessions, held at Concord on the eleventh of June, a formal written complaint and address, recapitulating and enlarging upon his wrong doings, and urgently praying for relief, having been made against Woodbridge, on the eighth, by the inhabitants of Medford, and he being presented by the grand jury “ for disorder on sabbath days & Espeshly upon may: 4 1706 when m<sup>r</sup> Nathanel williams was Invited to preach at medford by y<sup>e</sup> Comittee of sd Town to preach there & for hindring the sd Town from setting a minestr among them according to Law & order of this Honra<sup>bl</sup> Court,”* he appeared, and consideration of all the complaints against him was postponed to the ninth of July. On the day before the July session he sent in a written reply, embracing his reasons of appeal from the decision of the Court of Sessions at the adjourned March session; and answers to the presentments of the grand jury for violation of the marriage act; for disorderly conduct on the Sabbath; and for hindering the settlement of a minister; concluding with a request for a further continuance of the hearings upon these presentments, because of the absence of his attorney, which was granted; and the matters were adjourned over to the Court of Sessions to be held on the eleventh of September. The reply* specified six separate reasons of appeal; namely, that the court’s decision was contrary to the advice of the Governor and Council in November, 1704; that the court had no authority to “unsettle” him; that such a course was inconsistent with the liberties and privileges of towns, — the Court of Sessions having authority to provide a minister only in case of the refusal or neglect of the town, etc.; that it is a wrong, to the town and the minister, to unsettle the latter, and settle another in his place, against the will of both; that he could not see how the town could comply with the court’s order, “for if their inviting, & calling, & agreeing with a minister wil settle him, they are settled already, if not, what can they do to provide a settled minister;” and, finally, that “some illminded persons make use of this order, to make further disturbance amongst us, & to deprive me of such libertyes, & privileges as the gospel of christ, & y<sup>e</sup> laws of the land allow me, as a minister.”

At the September term Medford’s reasons for not being provided with a settled minister were accepted by the Court “for y<sup>e</sup> p<sup>re</sup>sent, under theire awfull Circumstances And [the Court] further require them that they proceed wth all diligence to provide them Selues off a Settled minister according to y<sup>e</sup> afores<sup>d</sup> order & make report of theire doings therein to y<sup>e</sup> next Court of Quarter Sessions to be holden for Midd<sup>x</sup>.”†

This adjudication appears not to have been reached until after the leading inhabitants of Medford had filed a long and circumstantial reply to the last answer of Woodbridge, who seems not to have attended this term, but to have filed the following papers covering a motion for another continuance:—

“ Whereas I understand, I am presented, by the Grand jury of Middlesex, I desire the Honnoured court, that that matter may not be called at this time, in that my Attorney, that is engaged to answer for me, is necessarily Absent, & cannot attend this court

So prays.

BENJ: WOODBRIDGE.

I am also informed of a complaint enterd agt me by some of y<sup>e</sup> inhabitants of Medford, under submission I conceive that doth not come under y<sup>t</sup> cognizance of this Honnoured court. I gave an answer to it, to the Clerk from whom, I had a copy of it, if that be not satisfactory to the complainants, my desire is, that it may be heard, by his Excellency the Governour, & her Majestyes Honnourable Council, to whom that case hath been mutually referd, & where (I conceive) it is stil depending, in case the result, & advice that they gave, be not complied with.

Still counting on the readiness of the town to make almost any concession to get rid of him Woodbridge presented to the inhabitants, at their town meeting on the fourteenth of October, the following proposal for his temporary withdrawal:—

“To the inhabitants of y<sup>e</sup> town of Medford. At their meeting, Oct: 14: 1706—

Inasmuch as I have been by y<sup>e</sup> unanimous consent of the town of Medford called to, & placed in the work & office of y<sup>e</sup> ministry in this town, & to this people, & am thereby their rightful minister, And have served them faithfully, according to my ability, in the work of y<sup>e</sup> ministry in a constant way, nine years compleat, on y<sup>e</sup> 18th day of this instant October. Yet now by reason of y<sup>e</sup> strong opposition ag<sup>t</sup> me, & my ministry here; & y<sup>e</sup> obstacles, & discouragements cast in my way by some, I do propose & declare to y<sup>e</sup> town of Medford as follows. That from the 18th day of this instant October until six months shall be fully compleated; I do lay down, or forbear y<sup>e</sup> exercise of my ministry in this place, so as that y<sup>e</sup> place is for that time vacant, & may be supplied by whom y<sup>e</sup> town see cause. Yet I would have it so to be understood, that y<sup>e</sup> town forthwith pay my arrears, that are due according to agreement, for my labour & service in the ministry already done. And moreover, I do further propose, & declare y<sup>t</sup> in case y<sup>e</sup> town shall at any time, in this six months space, agree upon an other person, to be their constant, & fixed minister, & reimburse me, & take deeds of y<sup>e</sup> house (& land here in Medford) that I dwell in, & was built for y<sup>e</sup> towns sake, at their desire, to serve them, as hath been formerly proposed which being done I shall then with y<sup>e</sup> leave, & consent of y<sup>e</sup> town resigne up y<sup>e</sup> work, & place wholly to y<sup>e</sup> minister so chosen, & agreed upon: & desire that y<sup>e</sup> relation betwixt me, & this people may be dissolved by a mutual, & loving discharge of each other. If otherwise (God sparing life) Our former Agreements to stand valid, & in ful force, & that there be no further contention against me.

Oct: 10: 1706.

I desire this may be entered on y<sup>e</sup> town records.” — Ibid.

This was clearly intended as a bait to secure a full settlement of his claim for arrears and a liberal allowance for his real estate, or, failing the latter, to make sure of the former, and to be allowed to continue in his office, with its emoluments and the enjoyment of his property, without further controversy.

Before any further proceedings were had in relation to the troubles at Medford the Legislature passed the act of November 14, 1706, making more stringent provisions for enforcing the laws for the maintenance of the ministry, and requiring the Court of Sessions, if their orders on any town to settle a minister, or to fulfil its contracts and agreements with its minister, and to make suitable provision for his support, are evaded or prove ineffectual, to report their proceedings to the General Court.*

On the sixth of December the town passed a vote denying that “The Town do Esteem The votes past march 28th 1698 granting to m<sup>r</sup> woodbridge Forty pouds in moñy Strangers money and fifteen cord of wood &c: and That vote past y<sup>e</sup> 28th of July 1702 referring to raise money or make a rate for m<sup>r</sup> woodbridges Sallery or any other vote or votes in the Town book of the Like Circumstances Layes them under obligation or obligeth them to pay m<sup>r</sup> woodbridge his demands referring to areares namely 122£: 13s and 9<sup>d</sup> Express in his writinge to the Selectmen beareing date octobr 18th: 1706.” †

Upon this Woodbridge again complained to the Court of Sessions as follows:—

“To the Honnoured Court of Sessions: for the county of Middlesex, sitting at Charles-town. Decemb: 10. 1706.

Whereas I have been called to the work of the ministry in Medford, by the vote & unanimous consent of the people there, & have served them faithfully according to my ability in the work of the ministry nine year compleat, in a constant way, which terminated on the 18th day of Oct: last past, at which time, I did lay down the exercise of my ministry there, & layd the place vacant for six months, in order to their providing me<sup>s</sup> with a settled minister, according to the desire advice or order of this Honnoured Court I humbly desire this Honnoured Court would see that my arrears may be speedily paid, according as the law directs. I being in want. So prays

Your humble supplicant & petitioner

To this petition he appended an account of arrears, summarized as follows:—

“There remaines due from the town of Medford according to my computation, errors excepted, in reference to y<sup>e</sup> 4 year, & 4 months above-said . . . . . 122 - 13 - 9.

I do also signifye that there is put into my hands, by particular inhabitants of y<sup>e</sup> town of Medford to be discounted with them when they reckon, in reference to the 2 last year & 4 months, according to my computation in money & wood . . . . . 40: 14: 10 errors excepted —

— Ibid.

This account was accompanied by the following letter addressed to the selectmen:—

“Gentlemen

The case was put over to the Court held at Charlestown on the fourteenth of January, when, Woodbridge not appearing, it was dismissed.

Another council followed, of which the result is hereunder given; viz., —

"The Result of a Council of four Churches met at Meadford Jan<sup>y</sup> 28th 1706/7 at ye request of ye Inhabitants of s<sup>d</sup> Meadford by their Letters missive ye 2<sup>d</sup> of said Janu<sup>y</sup>. In order unto ye determining whether all has been done yt ye Council of Churches at said Meadford, Convened, & held on ye 10th of July 1705, directed & expected to be done for ye removal of Dissatisfactions in said Town: & ye declaring wt may appear further necessary to be done, yt ye work of ye Gospel may be more comfortably carried on There.

After solemn calling upon God in Prayer, for his help, & guidance & hearing of much from sundry of ye Inhabitants of said Town, & also of such answers as M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge was pleased to make wth ye objections & allegations of said Inhabitants were related unto him; We declare as ffoloweth

1 That it doth not appear to us yt ye said Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge hath made particular acknowledgm<sup>t</sup>s of ye faults yt he was blamed for, & advized to make confession of by ye Council of ye 10th of July 1705, viz<sup>t</sup> [1] Of his reflecting upon ye 4 Rev<sup>d</sup> Ministers as Prejudiced persons, who gave advice upon their hearing of some matters in difference between s<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge & ye workmen about his house. 2 As to what appears further necessary to be done yt ye work of ye Gospel may be more comfortably carried on in this place by ye Rev<sup>d</sup> M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge; We judge it necessary yt he make a clear, & full acknowledgm<sup>t</sup> to ye satisfaction of ye Partys aggrieved of ye particulars above mentioned, as also wt mater of just offence has occurred since, particularly his abusive, & contemptuous carriage towards two Rev<sup>d</sup> Ministers who at ye request of ye Inhabitants came to preach at Meadford being advized thereunto by several Rev<sup>d</sup> Elders; & his persisting to charge ye workmen wth injustice; And also his putting by ye fast w<sup>ch</sup> had been appointed by ye Town; w<sup>ch</sup> things appear by divers papers (most of y<sup>m</sup> from himself) now in our hands. As also yt ye Inhabitants of Meadford do confesse & acknowledge their heart, & disorders in expressions & behaviour (during these contentions) each party to ye other. And particularly also yt such as have appeared opposite to M<sup>r</sup> Woodbridge do acknowledge all their indecent expressions & behaviour yt may have passed towards him.

3. If these things cannot be complied wth freely by all persons we se no other way but yt they part Lovingly according to ye advice of ye Council of July ye 10th 1705. & yt ye Town proceed wth Unanimity & Vigour to endeavour their settle<sup>m</sup>t wth Another according to ye Orders of divers Courts at Charlestown, & Cambridge

To the foregoing form of confession proposed by the council Mr. Woodbridge declined to agree, but substituted an answer, containing, with some expressions of a willingness to be pardoned for wrong doing if he had been guilty, denials, excuses, recriminations, and evasions, in his customary style. This was, of course, wholly unacceptable, and therefore, at the next September term, the long-suffering inhabitants once more applied to the Court of Sessions, exhibiting this latest effusion of their recalcitrant preacher, together with the following petition:—

The Court forthwith ordered Mr. Woodbridge to be notified to appear at its adjourned session at Charlestown, on the last Tuesday of September, “ to make Ans<sup>w</sup> to w<sup>t</sup> may be objected referring to said Paper y<sup>t</sup> they look at as such an Impediment as aforesd.” †

Woodbridge appeared at the time appointed, and defiantly presented the following queru- lous and evasive answer:—

“ To the Honnoured Court of General Sessions of the peace for y<sup>e</sup> county of Middlesex sitting at Charlestown this 30th day of Sept: 1707.

paper. If it be meant of a paper that I delivered to the Reverend Moderator of y<sup>e</sup> council, on June: 17: 1707. (though the scope of that is contrary to what is here supposed.) Under submission, it seems hard to me, that I must be cited to answer at this Board, that council being yet in being, & not having yet (as I know of) given their sense of it, whether it be acceptable, or not. And moreover if there be any harm in it, or thought to be, I look upon it, that I am responsible to a higher Board, viz his Excellency y<sup>e</sup> Governour, & her majesties Honourable Council, to whom our affairs at Medford have been mutually referd, & before whom they have been heard, & if I do not make out every article of that paper to be true, I shal willingly fal under it.

Furthermore I have seen the complaint that sundry of y<sup>e</sup> inhabitants of Medford viz. 14 put into this Honourable Court sitting at Cambridge. Sept: 9: 1707. In their complaint though it be dark & confused yet according to my understanding, they complaine against me in 3 things. 1st As if I were the hinderance of their providing themselves with a settled minister, & this is to put, non causa pro causa. It is notoriously known in town, & abroad that the hinderance is, in that they wil not according to the advice of y<sup>e</sup> council, pay me what is my just due, that we may lovingly & quietly part, & discharge each other. 2<sup>d</sup> They seem to complain as if I would not comply with the advice of the council, cujus contrarium est verum, I have often told them that it is much to my dammage, & I suffer by want of my money. And am now willing at their desire to part according to y<sup>e</sup> Councils advice. 3<sup>d</sup>. That I stil preach at Medford. It seems to me very unreasonable that when I had ceased the exercise of my ministry here, for six months, for this end, that they might pay me, & that we might lovingly part, & that they might provide themselves with an other, & they would do nothing in it, & yet complaine. I wil only adde that I am preparing, an instrument, or writing for further cessation, for a convenient time of tryal, to se what they wil now doe, which shal be speedily given to them. And I would humbly pray this Honourable court, that this may be taken as a ful answer to their causelesse complaint against me. And I shal always remaine

The Court, evidently glad of the opportunity which the new law afforded to clear its docket of this perplexing and tiresome controversy, passed the following order:—

Whereas the Town of Medford notwithstanding all the orders of the Severall Courts of Sessions of the peace for this County, for their providing them Selues of a Settled orthodox minister as the Law directs, are yet by Reason of their non observance of said orders of y<sup>e</sup> Courts aforesaid, in a verry disordered posture and with out a Settled minister qualified according to Law and likely so to Continue, not with standing all Endeavours of the Said Courts of Sessions of y<sup>e</sup> peace. This Court See Cause and order that y<sup>e</sup> proceedings of Said Courts be represented and Reported unto y<sup>e</sup> next Sessions of y<sup>e</sup> Generall Assembly of this Province by y<sup>e</sup> Clerk of y<sup>e</sup> peace for said County." — Records of the Court of Sessions, in the office of the Clerk of the Courts for Middlesex County.

From the twenty-ninth of October, when the third session of the General Court began, until the twenty-eighth of November nothing appears in the files or on record indicating that the order of the Court of Sessions had been brought to the notice of either branch of the Assembly.

At length the difficulties in Medford came up for consideration, in the House, upon the petition of Mr. Woodbridge. The petition itself has not been found, but the subsequent proceedings of the Legislature upon the subject as thus introduced are narrated in the notes to chapters 119 and 127 of the resolves of 1708-9.

Upon this petition the House voted, on the twenty-eighth, that the prayer thereof be granted, and sent their vote to the Council, for concurrence. This was read in Council on the same day, and on the twenty-ninth the Board passed the second and third paragraphs of this chapter, in concurrence with the House.

On the first of December the Council voted to rescind the vote which constitutes this chapter, and passed chapter 87, post, as a substitute. In this the House concurred, and the substitute was consented to by the Governor.

This petition was read in the House on the twenty-sixth, when an order exactly agreeing with the order as printed in this chapter, as far as the beginning of the first proviso, was passed and sent to the Council, for concurrence. On the twenty-eighth the Council voted not to concur in the order as thus drawn but substituted the following, and sent it to the House, for concurrence:—

“Ordered That the Petitioner cause her Children to be Served with a Copy of this Petition; And that there be a Hearing thereupon before this Court on the first friday of the next Session.” — Ibid., p. 181.

On the third of December, however, “at a motion from the representatives,” the Council, “on consideration and revising the above,” voted to concur in the order passed by the House, with the provisos added, and on the next day the House “read and agreed” to it, and it was consented to by the Governor.

Chap. 90. This chapter is from archives, vol. 58, p. 262. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 344.

Vice-President Willard, the manner of whose succession to the headship of Harvard College is shown in chapter 69 of the resolves of 1701-2, and the notes thereto, was taken suddenly ill, August 11, 1707, while on an official visit to the College. He was so prostrated that he was obliged to return to Boston “before Prayer-Time.” His malady rapidly increased, so that, by the fourteenth, Judge Sewall* reported to the Governor and Council “that Mr. Willard was not capable of doing the College work, another year; He Thank’d them for their Acceptance of his service and Reward;” whereupon Wait Winthrop and William Browne were ordered “to visit” him, “and Thank him for his good service the six years past.” This order being sent to the representatives for their concurrence, and “to name persons to join in the Thanks and Condolence,” the deputies concurred, and nominated “the Rever’d Mr. Nehemiah Hobart to officiat in the mean time till Oct<sup>r</sup> next. This, [adds Sewall], the Gov<sup>r</sup> and Council did not accept, and so nothing was done.” Willard rallied for a time, but he had a relapse, which ended fatally in about two hours, on Friday, the twelfth of September, O. S.†

Sewall thus sadly pictures the closing scene in the life of his friend and pastor, and describes the interment of his remains:—

“7<sup>h</sup> 12. [1707.] Mehetabel Thurston tells me Mr. Willard was taken very sick. I hop’d it might go off, and went to Diiner; when I came there, Mr. Pemberton was at Prayer, near concluding, a pretty many in the Chamber. After Prayer, many went out, I staid and sat down: and in a few minutes saw my dear Pastor Expire: it was a little after Two, just about two hours from his being taken. It was very surprising: The Doctors were in another room Consulting what to doe. He administred the Lord’s Supper, and Baptiz’d a child last Lord’s Day: Did it with suitable voice, Affection, Fluency. Did not preach: 7<sup>h</sup> 11<sup>h</sup> went to Lecture and heard Mr. Pierpont. At even seem’d much better than had been lately. Tis thought cutting his finger, might bring on this tumultuous passion that carried him away. There was a dolefull cry in the house. Feria secunda, 7<sup>h</sup> 15<sup>h</sup> Mr. Willard is laid by his Tutor in my Tomb, till a new one can be made. Bearers, Dr. Mather, Mr. Allen; Mr. Tho. Bridge. Mr. C. Mather; Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. Colman. Fellows and students of the College went before. Mr. Pemberton Led Madam Willard. . . .” — Diary, vol. II., p. 194.

On the twenty-eighth of October, the fellows of the College met, and chose Mr. John Leverett president. He received eight votes, Increase Mather three, and Cotton Mather and William Brattle of Cambridge, one each.

This election was communicated, on the same day, to the Governor, in an address, closing with a prayer that their choice might be accepted by him, and Leverett’s name presented to the Legislature for their approval and their vote for “his honorable subsistence.” The address was as follows:—

The Governor submitted this address to the Council on the eleventh of November, together with another address, in five separate copies, differently signed, comprising, in all, the signatures of thirty-nine ministers, as follows: —

"May it please your Excellency./

We have lately with great Joy understood the great & Early Care that our Brethren who have the present Care & oversight of the Colledge at Cambridge have taken in Supplying the place of the late Reverend and learned M<sup>r</sup> Samuel Willard Deced, by their Unanimous Choice of M<sup>r</sup> John Leverett, a worthy member of that Society to be President of that Colledge. And we humbly take the freedom to acquaint and assure your Excellency That no person whatsoever? could be more acceptable to us in that Station. Your Excellency personally knows M<sup>r</sup> Leverett So well, that we shall say the less of him, however we Cannot but give this Testimony of our great affection to, and Esteem of him, That we are abundantly Satisfy'd and assur'd of his Religion Learning and other Excellent Accomplishments for that Eminent service, a long Experience of which we had while he was the senior fellow of that House, for that under the wise and faithful Government of him and the Reverend M<sup>r</sup> Brattle of Cambridge the greatest part of the now Rising Ministry in New England were happily Educated; And we hope and promise ourselves through the Blessing of the God of our fathers, to see Religion, and Learning thrive and flourish in that Society under M<sup>r</sup> Leverett's wise Conduct and Influence as much as ever yet it hath done.

We accept with all thankfulness your Excellencie's great, sincere and Constant Care, and Respect to the Colledge, and doubt not but you will now readily give an Instance of it, not only in Approving the Choice made, but also in procuring, and Encouraging as much as in you lies, an honourable support and Maintenance (for the president) the Granting of which we doubt not but that our Great and General Court will cheerfully and readily take Effectually Care of. Your Excellency will Easily Excuse the freedom we take when you Consider how very near and dear both To your self and us the Interest of that Society is, and that the support and Encouragement of Religion & Learning in the Colledge is of the last Importance to the Church and state of New England. We shall add no more but pray for the Divine Blessing on your Excellencies Person, family, and happy Government, and subscribe ourselves

The Council forthwith passed the following vote, and sent it to the representatives, for concurrence: —

"Voted That the said Election be Accepted, And that m<sup>r</sup> Leverett be Desired and Impowred to take the Care and Govern<sup>t</sup> of the Colledge, as Præsident, accordingly." — Ibid., p. 261.

This vote was read in the House on the twelfth, and again on the twenty-fifth and twenty-eighth, on which last day it was nonconcurrent. On the twenty-ninth the representatives sent a message, in writing, to the Council, by Captain Phipps, "moving them to Joine, with this House, in chusing a Suitable person, to Take Care of the Colledge, until the Session of this Court in May next."* This motion was read at the Board that day and again on the second of December when the Council sent down a message asking for a conference, which was agreed to and the conference was held, forthwith, in the council chamber.

On the third of December the Council voted to reject the proposal of the House to proceed to a joint vote for a temporary filling of the vacancy.

* Mass. Archives, vol. 58, p. 262.

The purpose of the vote of July, 1700, referred to in this chapter, was to offer an exceptional inducement to Increase Mather to accept the presidency of Harvard College, with the conditions annexed, but failing of its purpose it remained a dead letter on the record, since Willard, Mather's successor, held only the office of vice-president, with inferior pay and the liberty of non-residence; but it was apprehended that if Leverett were chosen president, unconditionally, he would be entitled to the liberal salary proffered to Mather.

Leverett was one of the Governor's favorites, and Dudley's enemies would, therefore, object to granting to the new president what they had been willing to give to Mather. Undoubtedly Cotton Mather, whose rage was unbounded at finding that he was again to be denied the fondest object of his ambition, used all his influence with the anti-Dudley party to secure the passage of this declaratory resolve and prevailed upon his father to labor for the same end. These efforts Dudley could not withstand in view of the existing state of the treasury and the expensive public enterprises on foot.

Besides the opposition of the Mathers, which was yet considerable notwithstanding the rebuffs they had recently received, Leverett had incurred no little hostility from the soldiers lately returned from Port Royal, as well as from the public, for his supposed share of responsibility for the failure of the late disastrous attempt to conquer Acadia; and this state of feeling was availed of by his opponents to effect a reduction of the president's salary, thus rendering the office less desirable.

On the second of December, therefore, the resolve which constitutes this chapter was passed by the representatives, and sent up for concurrence. While before the Board, there being a prospect of the establishment* by the House of a satisfactory salary for the president, in view of the agreement of the Council to the insertion of a clause requiring Leverett to devote himself entirely to the duties of his office, the resolve was concurred in, and consented to by the Governor, on the fourth.

The order in Council* for the payment of the allowance granted by this chapter was passed December 10, 1707.

As to the payment by the province treasurer, see note to chapter 78, ante.

Chap. 93. This chapter is from council records, vol. VIII., p. 345. It has not been found in the archives.

Although the account mentioned in the preamble to this chapter has not been found some idea of the burden to which Boston was subjected in supporting refugees from the frontiers, who had been reduced to poverty by the inroads of the enemy, may be got from the vote of the town given in the note to chapter 29, ante, and further inferred from the relief subsequently afforded to the inhabitants by the Legislature. The local records show that thirteen hundred pounnds were this year assessed on them and their estates in the town “for the reliefe of the poor and the defraying other necessaryes arising in and for S<sup>d</sup> Town.” †

The order in Council* for the payment of this allowance was passed December 10, 1707, and the province treasurer's account ‡ shows that it was paid.

Chap. 94. This chapter is from archives, vol. 58, p. 263. It is recorded in council records, vol. VIII., p. 345.

The proposal of the Council, with the vote thereon which constitutes this chapter, did not, at first, embrace the final clause or condition of the first paragraph, requiring the president to devote himself entirely to the duties of his office. Therefore the House voted a nonconcurrence; but a message having been sent to them from the Board, apparently indicating their readiness to consent to the insertion of such a clause, the House withdrew || their nonconcurrence, and the vote was carried.

According to Sewall ¶ some desired to have it expressly “put in the Bill that Mr. Leverett Lay down all his Civil offices; as Judge of Probat, and judge of the Superiour Court,”

|| Sewall thus obscurely states the fact:—

“Dec 5. [1707.] . . . A Message is sent in to the Deputies about the Colledge; whereupon they withdraw their Non-concurrence; raise out (Non) and turn it to Concur'd; And vote Mr. Leverett a Salary of One Hundred and Fifty pounnds per anum out of the publick Treasury.”—Diary, vol. II., p. 205.

The original vote on file clearly shows the obliteration which Sewall mentions.

Again, on the sixth, after mentioning a desire of some for the inserting of a clause obliging Leverett to resign all his civil offices, as quoted above, he adds, “And entirely to attend that service, was inserted, and Mr. Secretary carried it in to the Deputies, and took their Consent.”

—Ibid.

but the clause as printed proving satisfactory, the further vote fixing the salary at one hundred and fifty pounds was added, and this chapter was agreed to, and consented to by the Governor.

Towards the end of December the installation of the new president began to be looked forward to as a near event.* On the eighth of January, 1707-8, "His Excellency intimated a Council to sit at Cambridge, upon Wednesday the fourteenth current for the affair of the Colledge and investiture of the president elect. And directed that the Gentlemen of the Council living at Charlestown, Salem and Ipswich, M<sup>r</sup> Speaker and the Representatives of the near Towns, and the Ministers of Boston, Charlestown, Cambridge Watertown, Roxbury and Dorchester be notified thereof and desired to give their presence at the Colledge, at the time." †

Of this act of the Governor, and of the proceedings on the fourteenth, Sewall gives the following particular account:—

"Jan<sup>y</sup> 8. 170<sup>7</sup>. The Gov<sup>r</sup> appoints a Council to meet at Cambridge the 14th Inst for the Installment of Mr. Leverett: warns the Ministers of the Six Towns mention'd to be overseers of the College. Midweek, Jan<sup>y</sup> 14. 170<sup>7</sup>. Went to Cambridge in Mr. Brigg's Coach, with Col. Townsend, Mr. Bromfield, and Mr. Stoddard. Mr. E<sup>m</sup> Hutchinson went in his own Charet, taking Mr. Wadsworth with him. Capt. Belchar carried Mr. Secretary in his Calash. Mr. Pemberton carried his Bro<sup>r</sup> in his Slay over the Ice; Mr. Mico carried Mr. Treasurer Brattle. Mr. Colman there. Maj<sup>r</sup> Gen<sup>l</sup> Winthrop, Col. Elisha Hutchinson, Mr. Foster, Mr. Sergeant, Dr. Mather, Mr. Cotton Mather, Mr. Bridge, Mr. Allen were not there. The day was very pleasant; Col. Phillips, Mr. Russel in his black cap, Col. Lynde met us from Charlestown; Mr. Bradstreet, Angier, there, Mr. Woodbridge of Meadford, Mr. Neh. Hobart. In the Library the Governour found a Meeting of the Overseers of the College according to the old Charter of 1650, and reduced the Number to seven; viz. Mr. Leverett President, Mr. Neh. Hobart, Mr. W<sup>m</sup> Brattle, Mr. Ebenezer Pemberton, Mr. Henry Flint, Mr. Jonathan Remington, Fellows; Mr. Tho. Brattle, Treasurer. The Gov<sup>r</sup> prepar'd a Latin Speech for Installment of the President. Then took the President by the hand and led him down into the Hall; The Books of the Colledge Records, Charter, Seal and Keys were laid upon a Table running parallel with that next the Entry. The Gov<sup>r</sup> sat with his back against a Noble Fire; Mr. Russel on his Left Hand inmost, I on his Right Hand; President sat on the other side of the Table over against him. Mr. Neh. Hobart was called, and made an excellent Prayer; Then Joseph Sewall made a Latin Oration. Then the Gov<sup>r</sup> read his Speech, and (as he told me) mov'd the Books in token of their Delivery. Then President made a short Latin Speech, importing the difficulties discouraging, and yet that he did Accept; Gov<sup>r</sup> spake further, assuring him of the Assistance of the Overseers. Then Mr. Edward Holyoke made a Latin Oration, standing where Joseph did at a Desk on the Table next the Entry at the inside of it, facing the Gov<sup>r</sup> Mr. Danforth of Dorchester pray'd. Mr. Paul Dudley read part of the 132 ps. in Tate and Bradey's version. Windsor Tune, clos'd with the Hymn to the Trinity. Had a very good Diner upon 3 or 4 Tables: Mr. Wadsworth crav'd a Blessing, Mr. Angier Return'd Thanks. Got home very well. Laus Deo." — Diary, vol. II., p. 208.

The official record is as follows:—

"Jan. 14, 1707-8. The Fellows and Overseers of the Colledge with the Scholars and diverse Gentlemen from the several parts, attending the solemnity, His Excellency Instated M<sup>r</sup> John Leverett, in the Office of President of the Colledge, delivering him the Key's, Books, Seal, Instrum<sup>ts</sup> and writings to the Colledge belonging, & directed him to take the care and Government of that house and the Schollars there, with duty and Allegiance to our Sovereign Lady the Queen, and obedience to Her Maj<sup>ty</sup>'s Laws." ‡ — Executive Records of the Council, vol. 4, p. 519.

Instead of immediately resigning his offices, as required in the amendment first proposed, the records show that Leverett acted as judge of probate as late as July 22, 1708.

An order was passed in Council, § April 20, 1708, for a warrant to pay to Leverett thirty-seven pounds ten shillings, being the first instalment of his salary as president, and the province treasurer's account || shows that it was paid.

The representatives seem not to have been moved by the suggestion of the Council in regard to their "augmentation" ¶ of the Governor's salary, and Dudley still maintained the reticence he had shown ever since the address of the Legislature was forwarded to the queen.

He again accepted the customary allowance from the Legislature,—he and his sympathizers looking upon it as a gift, and not as any part of his salary, which he considered in abeyance until the Legislature should make permanent provision for a stated remuneration of his services.

Sewall, who as one of the judges was in a similar predicament with regard to the permanency of his salary,** thus comments on this last donation to the Governor:—

The ill success of the expedition against Port Royal was attributed by some to the extraordinary commission for conducting military operations which had been devised by Dudley to avoid an implied rebuke of the General-in-Chief and, at the same time, to bring order and harmony out of the discord and total disregard for military discipline which had suddenly become manifest in the little army in Acadia.

When, therefore, the subject of compensating the commissioners, the Engineer Redknap, and the Governor's son (the youthful Secretary of War), came up for consideration in the House, on motion of the Council, an adverse answer was explicitly given to the question of voting an allowance of wages to either of these personages. The following is a copy of the vote thus given:—

“In the House of Representatives. Nov; 25: 1707.

The following Questions being severally put. viz:

Qv: Whether any thing be allowed as wages to the Commissioners that Comanded the late Expedition to Nova Scotia?

Qv: Whether, any thing to the Engineer Col: Redknap?

Qv: Whether any thing to the secretary of War M<sup>r</sup>: William Dudley?

They all Pass'd in the negative

JOHN BURRILL Speakr.”—Mass.

Archives, vol. 71, p. 445.

A committee of the Council was sent to urge the House to reconsider their vote. Of the constitution of this committee, and the arguments used by them to persuade the House to recede from their vote, Sewall gives the following account:—

“Decr 6. [1707.] Col. Jn<sup>o</sup> Appleton, Hunt and I are sent in to speak to the Deputies about their denying any Reward to the commissioners to Port-Royal; Told them, denying all Remuneration was in a manner to make them Criminals: Twas a burden God in his providence had laid on us, and to go about thus to shake it off, would be to his Dishonor. . . .”—Diary, vol. II., p. 205.

The arguments of the councillors so far prevailed that on the same day the House passed the order which constitutes this chapter, and sent it to the Council, for concurrence.

SUPPLEMENT.

A statement of the "first proposition" of Edmund Dummer,* mentioned in the note † to chapter 70 of the resolves of 1706-7, after the scheme had been in practical operation for three years, with the success he anticipated, was published by him on one side of a sheet, printed from an engraved plate, together with an "observation" calling attention to a table on the reverse side giving the names of the several packets run, of the date and place of their departure and arrival, the time consumed in making their several voyages, and particulars of delaying or preventing accidents.

By the courtesy of Mr. Walter K. Watkins the Editor is enabled to here reprint this interesting document as follows: —

"April 1702.

THE PROPOSITION

Which was first laid down & presented, to evince a Probability of maintaining a Monthly Correspondence with all the English-Island Plantations in America, and the Advantages to England, if made Practicable.

It was propounded in the following Manner; Namely.

That if Four Vessels did Sail from England to the West-Indies in a Course of Succession Monthly, and that each Vessel should perform her Voyage in a 100 days or thereabout, that after the first should have perform'd, then the Procession, Return and Expence of Time of each and every of the said Vessels successively would be equal continually: if no Accident prevented the same; which was demonstrated by the Underwritten Scheme.

Let A B C D be put for four Vessels, and be it suppos'd that the first of them Went from England y<sup>e</sup> 1st January, Viz!

A	_____	January _____	} The first three months expence of Time at Sea before A returns.
B	_____	February _____
C	_____	March _____
D	_____	April _____ A	} Returns back from the West Indies
A	_____	May _____ B
B	_____	June _____ C
C	_____	July _____ D
D	_____	August _____ A
A	_____	September _____ B
B	_____	October _____ C
C	_____	November _____ D
D	_____	December _____ A
A	_____	January _____ B
B	_____	February _____ C
C	_____	March _____ D
D	_____	April _____ A

It is therefore hereby plain, that if A did go away in the beginning of January and did return in April; and that B C & D did in a Monthly Succession constantly follow, Then A B C & D Necessarily will go out & come home from all the Islands in the same Proportion of Time continually.

For if A Sails in January. and Returns back in April, and B Sails in February and Returns back in May, in which Month A proceeds again to the West-Indies; Then after y<sup>e</sup> first three Months are expir'd (as in the Scheme) One Vessel will go out, and another Vessel will Return home every Month continually, if by no Casualty prevented.

It was then Added,

That if this Correspondence be establish'd, all the incident Occasions of State and Trade would be effectually answer'd, and the Practice thereof would infallibly introduce New and very Great Advantages to the Publick true Interest depending between this Kingdom & those Islands in Peace & War: For Time sav'd and the earliest Knowledge of things gain'd, afford the best Means of Success in all Designs whatever. Order'd to be put in Practice 20 Aug. 1702.

The Authors Observation.

That Her Maj<sup>ty</sup> having been pleas'd to put the above Proposition into Practice, it now appears by a View of the Voyages, as they stand in order perform'd on the other side, that his Supposition thereof is in Fact answer'd, tho' at first thought impracticable by many of the Best Seamen in England.

Publish'd, 1st Oct. 1705 by E. D.

* Edmund Dummer was baptized at North Stoneham in Hampshire, England, August 28, 1651. He was for some time at Chatham, and later in London, "near the Tower." Besides holding other places in the royal service, he was appointed surveyor to the king's navy June 25, 1692. He was buried at St. Andrew's, Holborn, May 8, 1716. By his wife Sarah, whom he survived more than two years and who was buried at St. Margaret's, he had two daughters and one son. He outlived the son and one of the daughters — possibly both. From the loss of the parish and other local records his family history is obscure but there are circumstances which indicate that probably he was a kinsman of Richard Dummer of Newbury.

TO QUEEN ANNE:

By the general assembly:—
to represent the distressed state of the province:—

Order appointing a committee to take up a suitable vessel to be sent express to the queen with the address, . . . 72

Committee's report, . . . . . 73

Proposed by Gov. Dudley for the purpose of obtaining a supply of cannon, arms and stores of war, . . . 360

Recommendation of the committee having proved fruitless another committee appointed June 30, . . . 77, 382

They report that they took up a new sloop—the Sea Flower—mounting six guns; rate of hire; to be freighted with a cargo on the account of the province; report accepted, . . . 78

amount of cost of fitting out, and the cargo, drawn from the province treasury by Andrew Belcher, he having advanced the same, . . . 384 order for appointing a committee to prepare the draught of an address and memorial, 77

The address, . . . . . 382, 383

Capt. Nathaniel Cary intrusted to convey the address, and to dispose of the cargo in England, . . . 78, 383, 384

The Sea Flower, John Welch master, sails for England; besides Cary she carries, to be tried in London, Capt. Thomas Larramore and others, charged with being accessories to Capt. John Quelch the pirate, . . . 384

she is captured by the enemy, and

ADDRESSES—continued.

Cary and Welch are carried prisoners to France; imprisoned first at Brest and then at Dinan and St. Malo; Cary purchases their release, 548

Welch returns to New England bringing tidings of Cary's misfortune, 384, 514

another address proposed; the subject how introduced; Dudley recommends the appointment of a committee to sit during the recess of the general court and prepare the draught, . . . . . 463

He renews the subject in the fifth session, 1704-5, . . . . . 464

Order appointing a committee; intention to send this address by the first of March, in the royal frigate the Advice, Capt. Maurice; delayed until April 6, . . . . . 105, 465

Vote approving the engrossed draught of this address and ordering it to be signed by the secretary Feb. 28, . 107

Dudley carries this address to Piscataqua; encounters a violent storm on the return voyage; general apprehension for his safety; rejoicing upon the news of his arrival, . . . 466

supplementary proclamation for thanksgiving therefor, . . . . 467

before the convoy of the mast-fleet, bearing the former address, reaches England, Dudley receives a letter from Cary, . . . . . 514

His success in London; in Oct., 1704, he presents the memorial; in Nov., by command of the lords of trade, he files a list of such ordnance, small arms and ammunition as are needed in the fort on Castle Island, . . . 384

particulars of his transactions in pursuance of his commission, . . . 549-551

The queen orders the supply asked for, . . . . . 515

Dudley communicates the tidings to the council; letters not found in the state archives, . . . . . 384, 514

another address, expressing thanks to the queen, recommended by Dudley; review of matters proper to be touched upon in

 Sketch of legislative action from the year 1638 relating to maintaining a passageway for boats by way of Squam River, . . . . . 477
 Gov. Endicott authorized to send three men to visit Cape Ann, and to report upon the feasibility of making a passage; openers of the cut to have the privilege of a toll for twenty-one years; the town grants Rev. Richard Blinman the right to "cut the beach through and to maintain it;" he receives a grant of three acres of land in consideration of a free passage to the inhabitants; his right passes to William Stevens, shipbuilder, whose daughter becoming the wife of John Coit, junior, their son
 Nathaniel marries the daughter of William Stevens, grandson of the shipbuilder; the cut becomes obstructed in 1704; town votes to apply to the court of sessions for an order to open it; the court takes no action;
 Coit and the representatives of the town negotiate concerning it, but, this failing, the town and Coit agree upon a schedule of tolls, repealing a former vote for giving the proprietor penalties for misuse of the draw in place of tolls, . . . . . 477

Salary of:—

- petition of Sir William Phips to King William praying him to "nominate" a sufficient stated salary for the governor, and that the royal command in that respect be signified to the general assembly of the province, . . . . . 292
- No further action on this subject taken by the home government discovered until Dudley became governor, . . . . . 293
- by the sixteenth article of the royal instructions to him, Dudley was commanded to propose to the assembly the establishment of fixed salaries for the governor and lieutenant-governor, . . . . . 293
- In his speech to the assembly, June, 1702, Dudley having represented that he was commanded to observe to them the propriety of fixing stated salaries for the governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary, judges and all other officers, the assembly responded by voting him a present of £500, which he accepted, and, after the vote had been embodied in the form of an act, consented to it in writing, . . . . . 293
- Upon his repeating this representation at the October session the legislature granted him £600, including the previous grant of £500, but subsequently enlarged the grant by substituting for the £600 an addition of £200 to the first grant; this latter grant he was induced to accept notwithstanding his instructions, . . . . . 293
- During the special session of 1702-3 no allusion made by Dudley to the subject of a stated salary, but at the beginning of the first session, 1703, he expresses his repugnance to being obliged to represent to the queen the failure of any branch of the government "for want of a just support for persons in public offices," . . . . . 293, 294

GOVERNOR—continued.

- Towards the end of the session he again reminds the assembly of the need of suitable support for the governor, lieutenant-governor and justices of the superior court, . . . . . 294
- The resolve which constitutes chapter 46, 1703-4, after some ineffectual attempts to have it reconsidered, passed, as amended, and signed by the governor, . . . . . 294
- Dudley draws from the province treasury the amounts allowed to him, in these successive legislative grants, for his support in the management of the government, . . . . . 294
- resolve for allowing and paying to Dudley £300 in part "for his support in the management of the government" during the year 1703, . . . . . 23
- The council advise him to accept the allowance, . . . . . 23
- After prorogation of the first session of 1703, he receives a letter from the queen, dated April 20, 1703, on the subject of a fixed salary; representation of the lords of trade, . . . . . 339
- he submits it to the council on the first of September and it is then sent to the house, . . . . . 339
- The house ask for delay; the general court prorogued; messages and other proceedings between the two branches and the governor; the house call for copies of the governor's letters to Whitehall, . . . . . 340
- The house define their privileges in regard to voting money; they vote an allowance of £200, from which they refuse to recede, and the resolve is passed March 25, 1704, . . . . . 341
- resolve for allowing and paying him £200 "for and towards his support in the government," . . . . . 52

KEENE, NATHANIEL.

- Action at law by him against John Shepard, both parties being of Kittery, concerning the title to ten acres of land at Spruce Creek; allotment to Shepard, senior, by the selectmen in 1671; confirmed by a vote of the inhabitants in 1693-4, and measured and laid out to him by a committee; the laying out unadvisedly done, the title being in dispute; the surveyor employed by the committee found that the boundary lines conflicted with the claim of Keene, who had long been in possession; his letter to the justice who issued the warrant for locating the land; upon Shepard's representations and for want of record evidence, the records having been carried off by the Indian enemy, the location proceeds; Keene's title, how derived; regularly laid out in 1672; upon getting his location Shepard brings suit against Keene in the court of common pleas of York County, July term, 1694, in an action of the case for forcible detainer, and recovers judgment for possession with costs; some ten or eleven years later, a copy of the laying out to Keene's grantor having been found, he reenters the premises under claim of title; June 13, 1705, Shepard again sues Keene in an action of trespass, before a justice of the peace, but the case is removed to the court of common pleas, at the July term, and continued to the next term; meanwhile Shepard conveys the estate to his son John, . . . . . 578, 579
- Shepard recovers judgment against Keene, who appeals to the superior court of judicature at the November term in Suffolk County, where the judgment of the court of common pleas is reversed and costs awarded to Keene, who there-

- Keene's answer, . . . . . 580, 581
- The court decide that Keene's right of action was barred by the former judgment for Shepard, senior, in the action for forcible detainer in 1694, and the delivery of possession upon execution issued in that case, and the judgment of the court of common pleas in the last action is reversed; costs awarded to Shepard and execution issued accordingly, . . . . . 581
- Keene applies to the general court for relief, . . . . . 581
- His petition and proceedings thereon; order of the house not agreed to by the council, . . . . . 581, 582
- order directing the justices of the superior court, etc., to report to the general court the proceedings in an action brought by Nathaniel Keene against John Shepard, junior, both of Kittery, in which judgment for a tract of land claimed by the plaintiff was rendered against him, and for a stay of execution, etc., . . . . . 167
- The judge's report, . . . . . 699
- order for allowing a trial at the next session of the superior court, etc., for the county of York, the appellant to be served with a copy of the order, . . . . . 219, 698

 Dudley's fears of a formidable invasion from Canada somewhat allayed after the return of Caleb Lyman from Cowassic and his finding no settlement of Indians there, . . . . . 420
 Connecticut makes careful provision for the defence of her near frontiers; she has about seven hundred soldiers in the woods or in garrison, most of them on territory over which neither her governor nor her legislature could exercise any legal authority, 420
 Encouraged by recent acts of the legislature of Massachusetts, Maj. Whiting, who is convinced that the reports of an invasion on a large scale are well founded, and that the enemy are approaching the northern towns of Hampshire County, proposes to revive the project, which had been abandoned, of a large expedition to Cowassic, . . . . . 420
 Council of war advise sending five hundred men, besides the Moheag Indians, under Whiting's command, 420

LANCASTER — continued.
 Whiting writes to Winthrop, "I verily conclude they [the French and Indian enemy] will be here ere long;" evidence accumulates of Whiting's sagacity; the fact suddenly revealed by a deserter from the French, who came in at Deerfield, that the Sieur de Beaucourt, at the head of a large body of French and Indians, had for some weeks been approaching the English frontiers through the wilderness across Vermont and down the New-Hampshire valleys, . 421

- allowances to, as lieutenant-governor and captain of the castle, . . . . . 25, 299
- his salary as lieutenant-governor, in 1703, and proposal by the council to fix his pay as captain of the castle, which, having failed, a message is sent to the house to move "the consideration of an allowance" to him in that capacity; and action being still deferred the proposal is renewed by Dudley in the first session of the next assembly, and two successive messages sent by the council to the house, . . . . . 378
- resolve for allowing and paying him £120 for his services as commander of the castle during the current year, beginning June 10, 1704, provided that he be on the place at least three days in the week, etc., passed in response to the latter of the messages above mentioned, . . . . . 75, 379

The last allowance to Povey by resolve, 379
the council, Oct. 9, 1704, order a warrant to be drawn upon the province treasurer for payment of a muster-roll of the garrison at the castle, in which they place £50 opposite Povey's name as his wages in the capacity of commander of the castle from Jan. 6, 1703-4, to July 5, 1704, as in accordance with the establishment made by chapter 62 of the resolves of 1700-1, and the grant to Povey in July, 1703, . . . . . 379

the representatives having previously voted that the meaning of the vote of July, 1703, was that the £100 granted should be "in full for Povey's wages for his service as commander of the castle" for that year, resolve that the order in council is arbitrary and illegal, a violation of their charter rights and privileges, etc., and that the house "expects the said sum of £50 should be refunded into the treasury by those that drew it out;" the council's reply; rejoinder by the house, . . . . . 379, 380

the issue between the council and the representatives narrowed down to the question whether the establishment under the resolve of 1700-1 was only for that year, or was a permanent regulation, . . . . . 380

the last payment to Povey upon a warrant to the province treasurer (£25 for three months' service from Oct. 31, 1705) issued Jan. 28, 1705-6, . 380

- Of Birmingham, England; immigrates to this colony, and dies about Dec. 18, 1688; his family relations, . . . . . 362, 363
- an instrument purporting to be his last will, etc., . . . . . 363
- his niece, Deborah Penn, is married to Edward Hill of Boston, cordwainer, clerk of King's Chapel;
some account of Hill; he is named in said instrument residuary and principal legatee and devisee, . . 363
- the instrument offered for probate, . . . . . 363
- Joseph Dudley, being then commissioner or judge for the probate of wills by delegation from Sir Edmund Andros, admits the instrument to probate, . . . . . 364
- State of the law at that time with regard to the attestation and probate of wills, . . . . . 364
- Certain suspicious circumstances indicate that the instrument is a forgery, contrived by Edward Hill and John Pottwine, a physican, who afterwards married Hill's daughter; and that the subscribing witnesses are bribed to testify falsely to sustain it, 364
- these circumstances induce the heir apparent, Anthony Penn of Birmingham, to apply March 28, 1694, to William Stoughton, first judge of the probate of PENN, WILLIAM — continued.

- wills in Suffolk County, under the province charter, to have the probate revoked, . . . . . 364
- Petition of the heir by his attorneys, 364, 365
- Stoughton's order to the register to issue a citation, . . . . . 365
- hearing thereupon, and decree dismissing the petition, . . . . . 365
- One of the witnesses had not testified, and her husband, knowing the will to be fraudulent, had threatened to desert her if she perjured herself to sustain it in her testimony before Stoughton, . . . . . 365
- Depositions obtained tending to show that Pottwine and Hill concocted the alleged will; that the former made a rough draught which was formally written out by Dr. John Lee, a scrivener in Boston; declarations, made by one of the subscribing witnesses to the will, of fraudulent proceedings; upon this showing the heir apparent brings an action of trespass against Clement Cock, a grantee of Edward Hill, who claimed Penn's estate as devisee, . . . . . 365, 366
- in Penn v. Cock, the jury find for the defendant; Penn appeals to the superior court of judicature; the reasons of appeal, and answer by the appellee, . . . . . 367
- The appellate court give judgment for Cock, . . . . . 368
- Still more damaging evidence against Hill is discovered and he is indicted by the grand jury for suborning two of the subscribing witnesses, and for forging or assisting to the forgery of the will, and for publishing the forged will to defraud the lawful heir; he is tried and acquitted, . . . . . 369
- One of the subscribing witnesses (Thomas Sea) arrested and indicted for wilful perjury by the subornation of Hill, but not tried, . . . . . 369
- Sea is again indicted, tried and acquitted, . . . . . 369, 370
- the heir brings a writ of review against Cock in the superior court of judicature, and recovers judgment for possession of the land sued for, . . . . . 370
- suit brought in the court of common pleas by the heir against John Hollis, a grantee of Edward Hill, declaring in "trespass and ejectment," . . . . . 372
- Newton, for the defendant, argues the sufficiency of two witnesses; English statute of frauds not in force in the province in 1688; he also contends for the first time that the probate of the will cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding at common law, but only by appeal to the - supreme court of probate; the court proceeds with the case, notwithstanding, . . . . . 373

- the heir, having been defeated on appeal to the superior court of judicature, brings a writ of review in the same court and recovers judgment for the land in question; he is put in possession by writ of habere facias possessionem, . . . . . 373, 374
- the heir brings other suits against divers grantees of Hill, with varying results, . . . . . 370-373
- Still stronger evidence, particularly the dying declaration of Thomas Sea, one of the subscribing witnesses, having been gathered to impeach the will, the heir, by his attorney, Joseph Hill, applies by petition to the general court for the revival of the actions in which he had been defeated, . . . . . 374, 375
- Joseph Hill's petition and proceedings thereon, . . . . . 375
- order referring it to the next session, and for notifying the adverse parties, . . . . . 73
- Return of service of notice on Thomas and Samuel French and John Bowditch, . . . . . 412
- Court not in session on return day, . . . . . 412
- order appointing a hearing by the governor and council, and that the attorney for the heir forthwith lodge in the secretary's office his challenge to the will, etc., 86
- hearing had and decree made that the forgery or perjury has not been proved, 412
- Later attempts to have the probate revoked; new depositions, . . . . . 412
- Cock renews his application to the general court for an act granting him a new trial; tenor of his petition; Hollis also applies for an act enabling him to try his case anew; both petitions presented in 1706, but no action taken at that time, . . . . . 413
- Cock again applies, Feb. 13, 1709-10, to the assembly, for leave to try his case; court order notice to the adverse party, who is forbidden in the mean time to make any strip or waste of the timber or trees, etc.; hearing postponed to June 7, 1710, . . . . . 413
- Council and house disagree on the question of allowing a new trial, — the council opposing it, . . . . . 413, 414
- Judicial proceedings to revoke the will suspended between 1707 and 1715, . . . . . 412
- Dec. 8, 1715, Anthony Penn makes another ineffectual effort to procure a new trial, . . . . . 414
- June 25, 1716, decree by governor and council finally declares the will null and void, . . . . . 414

- SAFFIN, JOHN.
- Biographical sketch of, . . . . . 267, foot-note
- his agreement or declaration of conditional manumission of his negro slave, Adam, . . . . . 266
- To take effect in seven years from March 25, 1694, . . . . . 266
- At the expiration of that time Adam asserts his liberty and declines to obey Saffin's orders, and notifies him to appear before Justice Samuel Sewall, . . . . . 267
- Saffin claims that the condition of his promise has not been performed by Adam, . . . . . 267
- Sewall and Addington advise him to give the negro his liberty, . . . . . 267
- Saffin persists in his claim and induces Penn Townsend of the council to bind Adam over to the Suffolk court of sessions; but the assizes being held there earlier Adam is required to recognize for his appearance to answer at the next term of the superior court of judicature, court of assize and general gaol delivery in Boston, . . . . . 267
- A free negro accepted as Adam's surety, 267
- Not having jurisdiction of the parties in Suffolk, the court orders the issue to be tried in Bristol County, . . . . . 267
- Saffin meanwhile is appointed to the bench of the superior court and actually sits with his associates in the trial of Adam, upon his complaint, . . . . . 267
- Adam is found guilty and the case is continued under advisement, . . . . . 268

- SAFFIN, JOHN — continued.
- Adam is ordered into Saffin's custody, and is directed by him to proceed to Boston to work on the fortification at Castle Island, . . . . . 268
- Adam resents the ill treatment he receives there from Capt. Clarke, . . . . . 268
- and is committed for assault, . . . . . 268
- Dudley arrives as governor, and Saffin is removed from the bench, . . . . . 268
- At the September term, 1702, of the superior court of judicature at Bristol, Adam fails to appear, being sick with the small-pox, and the case is again put over to the November term for Suffolk, . . . . . 268
- The court are of opinion that the question of Adam's freedom cannot be tried upon Saffin's complaint, . . . . . 268
- Adam now prefers to the court a petition for his enfranchisement, . . . . . 268
- The court appoint Thomas Newton and Joseph Hearne as his counsel, and send the case to the court of common pleas of Suffolk, . . . . . 268, 269
- Form of the writ, . . . . . 269
- Abated because "not regularly brought before this court," . . . . . 269
- Saffin threatens to have Adam deported from the province, and Newton thereupon applies to the superior court by petition, . . . . . 269
- the court, May 8, 1703, order that Adam "be in peace until, by due process of law, he be found to be a slave," . . . . . 269

- Saffin's petition to the general court that Adam be restored to his custody, . . . . . 266
- The representatives order a hearing before the general court, but the council dissent, . . . . . 11
- order that the matter be heard before the court of sessions of Suffolk County, . . 11
- Newton appears for Adam before the council; his plea, . . . . . 270
- Adam is again defeated in Suffolk court of sessions Aug., 1703, on a special issue on the claim of Saffin, and again appeals; his reasons of appeal, . . . . . 270
- The case argued at the November term of the superior court of judicature, judgment awarded for Adam, . 271
- Saffin again applies to the legislature to have Adam kept in close custody for his (Saffin's) protection, and also prays to be reimbursed his expenses on account of the said negro "upon all occasions as aforesaid," . . . 271
- The representatives vote that Saffin be allowed to review the case, but the council do not concur, . . . . . 271
- Adam continues free, . . . . . 271
- Sewall's tract entitled "The Selling of Joseph," . . . . . 267
- Saffin's reply, "A Brief and Candid Answer," etc., . . . . . 267
- Sewall's dislike of Saffin, . . . 267, 269

WOODBIDGE, BENJAMIN.
 his family and personal history, 776 accepts a call to preach to the first church and congregation at Amesbury, 1686-7. (See Table of Errata and Addenda.)

 preacher at Windsor, Conn., in 1667; opposition in the congregation of the first religious society there to the settlement of Nathaniel Chauncy, the approved candidate, as successor to Rev. John Warham; beginning of a separation; Mr. Woodbridge called by vote of the inhabitants to preach once every Lord's Day; discord increases; the general court intervenes, . . . 776
 Continuation of the differences until 1680, . . . 777
 "Final issue of all matters of strife" determined by the assembly; Woodbridge's career at Windsor closed, . 778 soon afterwards, one Woodbridge, a minister, appears as a persecutor of the Baptists at Kittery; his identity not fully established, . . . 778
 he next appears at Bristol in Plymouth County, an unorganized plantation; his modest claims for compensation; he obtains a vote for £80 per annum; vote revoked; the leading inhabitants object to his settlement and think "it will not be for the glory of God, his good nor ours;" ecclesiastical council called; Rev. Samuel Lee settled, and Woodbridge leaves Bristol, . . . 778
 he next appears at Kittery, and then at Portsmouth; and later at New Castle or Great Island; unsettled state of society in those places attractive to him on account of opportunities afforded for irregular settlement, . . . 778
 he appears next at Medford, where there was neither organized church nor settled minister; in 1698 he obtains a contract for indefinite probationary service as minister; in 1701 the town vote £30 towards building him a dwelling-house, and as an encouragement to his settling; in 1703 he has a controversy with the workmen employed to build this dwelling-house; opposition to his settlement; vote of the inhabitants "not to settle him until some things be better composed;" matter referred to the elders at Boston; they recommend an amicable dissolution of the relation of minister and congregation; votes of the town relative to his salary; revocation of former votes, . . . 779
 Woodbridge applies to the governor and council for the appointment of arbitrators to hear and determine the difference between him and his people; notice issued and hearing had before the governor and council, who advise to mutual reconciliation, . . . 780

He fails to procure an order from the governor and council to the town for his settlement; grand jury present the town for violation of the law requiring a settled minister; inhabitants meet March 5, 1704-5, and vote not to settle him; court of sessions orders the town to take effectual care to obtain a settled minister, etc.; Woodbridge contrives another scheme to discomfit his opponents, . . . . . 780

He attempts to gather a separate congregation; town vote their dissatisfaction, and protest against his "offensive" proceedings; ecclesiastical council called; charges considered by the council, and their decision; new presentment against the town by the grand jury; Oct. 22, 1705, the principal inhabitants propose to him to refer their grievances to the members of the ecclesiastical council; he replies by bringing two suits at law, one in the court of sessions and the other in the inferior court of common pleas, 781

His complaint to the court of sessions, and the answer thereto of the town; specifications of the unreasonableness of his conduct; court orders notice to the town to choose agents to appear and answer at an adjourned session; jury find for Woodbridge in the civil suit; Woodbridge procures a written protest from a minority of the inhabitants, . . . . . 782, 783

He springs a new scheme upon the inhabitants at a town meeting held Dec. 19, 1705; his paper there presented is subsequently filed in court; demands £391 2s. 10d. as the condition of his removal, and the further sum of £55 as the balance of arrearages due to him; Woodbridge's complaint comes up for hearing at the court of sessions held Dec. 25, 1705; the court decides that he is not a settled minister and that the town, being without one, do forthwith provide themselves with a minister qualified as the law directs, upon penalty, etc., . . . . . 783

The inhabitants meet Jan. 21, 1705-6, to comply with the order of the court of sessions, and they choose a committee to advise with the fellows of Harvard College about procuring candidates to preach to them, on trial; four of Woodbridge's friends dissent; the inhabitants vote not to settle Woodbridge; the town again presented, at the March term of the court of sessions; Woodbridge indicted for breach of the marriage act, he having solemnized a marriage while he was not a settled minister; an innovation by the town clerk in the method of keeping the town records is made in the interest of Woodbridge; a similar innovation had been made at Windsor; the town clerk (his nephew) makes records without the knowledge of the selectmen; answer of the town to the complaint of want of a settled minister filed at the March term of the court of sessions, . . . . . 784, 785

Woodbridge's reply to the town's answer; his humble address filed at the same term, . . . . . 785, 786

The court adjourns to March 20 to hear all the issues; notices to all parties interested to appear; four of the protesting minority appear and file their reasons for dissent, . . . . . 786

Certificate of Nathaniel Wade declining to vote for Woodbridge's dismissal; the answer of the committee of the town to Woodbridge's address, . . . . . 787, 788

Woodbridge files a new complaint and memorial against the town; the court reaffirms its judgment that Woodbridge is not a settled minister, and orders the town to proceed to settle a minister according to law; Woodbridge appeals; his answer to the complaint against him for violating the marriage act; consideration thereof postponed; Rev. Benjamin Wadsworth preaches to the congregation at Medford; Woodbridge writes him a caustic letter of remonstrance for "intruding into" his "pulpit and work, without leave," . . . . . 788

April 9, 1706, offer of leading inhabitants to purchase his house, etc., at cost, upon condition that he leave the town, and make no further disturbance among them; Woodbridge's rude treatment of Nathaniel Williams, regularly invited to preach as a candidate; he is again complained of to the court of sessions, and presented for disorder on Sabbath days, especially in his treatment of Mr. Williams; the case is postponed to July 9; he files his reasons (which are argumentative) for his former appeals at the September term; Medford's reasons for not settling a minister accepted by the court, "for the present, under their awful circumstances," but with a further requirement that they proceed to settle a minister; circumstantial reply of the inhabitants to Woodbridge's last answer; Woodbridge moves for a continuance; excepts to the jurisdiction of the court; expresses a desire that the complaint of the inhabitants be heard by the governor and council, . . . . . 789

He makes a new proposal to the town, agreeing to a temporary absence, to be made permanent upon certain conditions; legislative act of Nov. 14, 1706, making more stringent provisions for the support of ministers, and giving fuller powers to the court of sessions with regard to the appointment of ministers, . . . 790

 Dec. 6, the inhabitants pass a vote denying their obligation under former votes for the support of Mr. Woodbridge; Woodbridge complains to the court of sessions; files his account; his letter to the selectmen, 790, 791
 Case adjourned to Charlestown, Jan. 14; another ecclesiastical council called; the result; the council condemn Woodbridge and call upon him to make acknowledgment, failing which they advise amicable separation and that the town proceed with unanimity and vigor to the settlement of another minister; the council adjourn to April, and then to June, when they again assemble; advise Woodbridge to sign the confession formerly proposed, and thereupon that he have a six months' probation; but, if confession is not signed, or equivalent amends made in one month, separation advised, 791, 792
 Form of confession proposed for Woodbridge to accept; he declines, but substitutes an answer of denials, excuses and recriminations; the inhabitants again apply to the court of sessions; their humble address; Woodbridge notified to appear, . . . 792
 He appears and files an evasive answer; the court orders the proceedings of former courts to be represented and reported by the clerk of the sessions unto the next session of the general assembly; no record of proceedings upon this petition appears until Nov. 28, 1707, . . . . . 793 order of the general court for appointing a committee to examine, etc., into the controversy between Woodbridge and the town of Medford, . . . . . 253

WOODBURY, HUGH.
 Account of Hugh, who dies at Bristol; his widow administers on his estate; inventory of his effects, . . . 458, 459
 Judge Saffin's decree of final settlement of the estate unsatisfactory to the widow and the children; petition of the widow to have the decree set aside; proceedings thereon, . . . 460 vote referring to a committee the petition of Mary Woodbury praying for leave to sell real estate of her husband for payment of his debts, . . . 103
 Governor and council take cognizance of the case as supreme court of probate upon the report of the referees, 460 pass a resolution and decree reversing the decree of settlement, . . . 461
 The widow again applies to the general court; her petition; proceedings thereon stopped by her death; heirs join in a conveyance, . . . 461, 462 the same grantors again convey; description of the premises, . . . 462
